Murphy paces lady Skippers soccer in strong week

By Paul McAleer
Mariner Correspondent

The girl's soccer team avoided defeat last week, picking up two victories and a tie, paced by sophomore Erin Murphy's four goals and one assist during the three game period.

Last Tuesday at Carver, the Skippers, took home a 3-2 victory after squandering a 2-0 lead in the second half.

Eleven minutes into the first half, Murphy, assisted by sophomore co-captain Kathleen O'Brien, got things moving with her first of two goals in the game.

After a 1-0 halftime lead, O'Brien provided the second goal by driving the ball from mid-field, under pressure, and taking it in.

Shortly after O'Brien's goal, Carver began a comeback and scored unanswered twice but then, with six minutes left to play, Murphy knocked in her second of the day, the game winner.

At the other end of the field, the heads up defense of sophomore Corinna MacMackin and steady goaltending of co-captain Allison Ludlow helped keep Carver from getting any more points on the board.

"She (Corinna) kept the ball out of our end," coach Kennan Startszel said. "Every time Carver charged and got the ball out to our side, she was the first one there."

Thursday at Scituate, Cohasset kept rolling with a 2-0 victory, sparked by Murphy's goal and assist.

Midway through the first half, Murphy got things rolling by assisting on Jen Knowles' goal, which would be all the Skippers would need for the win, although Murphy added a little insurance by scoring eight minutes into the second half after freshman Tammy Maitlin set her up with a beautiful pass.

Unfortunately, Corinna MacMackin had to be replaced in the backfield by senior Colleen Fitzsimmons after MacMackin suffered a severe sprained ankle late in the second half and will probably be out for a few weeks.

Riding on the momentum of their past few games, Cohasset came into Hanover on Monday night looking to continue their winning ways but had to settle for a 1-1 tie.

All the scoring action came in the first half as Hanover scored 10 minutes into the game. That goal was answered a few minutes later as Murphy stayed hot and scored unassisted on a breakaway.

After that, the two teams matched each other's play.

"When you go and play against another good team at their home and tie, that's alright," Startszel said.

The Skippers head into this week's action with a 4-1-1 record. They will be playing at Nauset on Wednesday before Friday afternoon's home game against Norton.

Skipper gridmen fall

There wasn't much to say about the Cohasset football team's performance last Friday night in Hanover.

"We got a good old-fashioned ass-kicking," coach Ted McDermott said of the 39-0 loss. "On both sides of the football, offense and defense, we flat out didn't do the job."

Although Cohasset was overmatched by Hanover's size and ability, McDermott said, he had hoped they were going to be more competitive.

Although tailback Ray Jones missed the game because he was still recovering from a sprained ankle sustained the week before in the loss against Norwell, McDermott said senior Steve Harrington and junior Scott Theirault played well in his absence.

Another bright spot in this dismal performance was the play of senior wide receiver Sheldon Morgan, who got his first varsity start in this game, McDermott said.

McDermott said he hoped to put this game out of the minds of the players and focus on this weekend's match-up against St. Clemens.

"We took our licks but that was last Friday. We've got to look forward to St. Clemens on Sunday."

Field hockey update

After their first three games, the Cohasset field hockey team had gotten off to their best start ever, 3-0, but things cooled down for them this last week as they wind up with a league record of 2-1-2, 3-2-2 overall.

The Skippers started the cooling trend last Tuesday at Carver with a 3-3 tie in which the cold weather, bad decision making and other little factors affected their play, coach Debbie Boswick said.

Before this game, Carver had not played well but they came in ready to play and prove something, Boswick said.

"They dominated. Carver beat us to the ball and they were determined to win. We didn't play bad but ..."

On Thursday, the Skippers travelled to Scituate and again came away with a tie but this time against a tougher opponent.

Scituate, who had a four-game win streak snapped in this game, scored first when Cohasset's player to player coverage let up for a brief moment, allowing Scituate the opportunity to score.

Cohasset got on the board when co-captain Bridgette Corkery set up co-captain Danielle Shaughnessy to even the score at 1-1, the final.

There was no goal production in the second half but the game remained exciting as Cohasset played a very motivated and intense half against a physical and aggressive Scituate team, Boswick said.

Worn out from the Scituate game the day before, the Skippers reached the low point of the week and the season on Friday as they were handed a bitter, as well as their first, defeat at West Bridgewater in a 6-0 route.

In the first half, the team looked good and matched the endurance and speed of West Bridgewater, a perennial contender in the state championship, Boswick said, but then things fell apart.

West Bridgewater turned on the gas in the second half and Cohasset began feeling intimidated and couldn't match up to them.

The Skippers will be facing West Bridgewater again on homecoming and coach Boswick said they better be prepared.

"When we face them on homecoming, they'll be surprised. We'll have four straight practices in preparation. We'll be ready."

Unfortunately, they weren't ready for Hanover on Monday as they were on the short side of the 5-1 final, their first league defeat.

Boswick said she knew the team wasn't ready for the game when she got on the bus and people had forgotten sticks and just didn't seem focused, she said.

"The whole front line played well whenever they got the ball," she said, but otherwise, the team just wasn't prepared.

Boswick was happy that they had at least scored in this defeat but said she was planning to have talk with the team to try and straighten them back to their winning ways and their goal of winning the league and bringing a banner to the gym.

Soccer boys' soar

The boys soccer team picked up an 8-0 victory over Hull, a 3-0 victory over Scituate and took a 1-0 loss from Hanover last week to bring their record to 6-2-1.

Hoop boosters meet

Cohasset Basketball Boosters next meeting is Tuesday, Oct. 13, 7:30 p.m. at Cohasset H.S.

Great enthusiasm and support for the junior high, junior varsity and varsity basketball programs was displayed at the first Booster's meeting Sept. 29, with several parents in attendance.

The group will help host a girls' AAU basketball tournament Oct. 24 and 25, and will run the food concession stand at the tournament as its first fund-raiser. Funds raised will support junior high, junior varsity and varsity basketball programs.

Anyone interested in volunteering time and/or food Oct. 24 and 25, please call Taffy Nothnagle 383-0895, Merlyn Corcoran, 383-6862 or Marilyn Adams, 383-0257.

Parental support is necessary for the success of the basketball programs. Please join the Boosters and the coaches in support of school athletes.

Ford earns award

Christian Ford, a senior at Cohasset High School, has been selected a winner in the University of Massachusetts at Amherst's Chancellor's Talent Award Program competition for 1993.

The students receiving this award have demonstrated high academic achievement both in high school and on standardized tests.

As Chancellor's Talent Award winners, these students are offered a scholarship with a four-year waiver of tuition if they enroll at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

SAT prep course

The Community Center offers a Saturday class for students preparing for the college board examinations.

Taught by instructor Ron Emmons, this English class meets on three consecutive Saturday mornings from 9 a.m. to noon at Cohasset High School. Class dates are Oct. 17, 24, and 31.

Please call the Center at 333-0088 to register for this course.

Students interview Jack Stebe

Last Tuesday the Deer Hill School had the opportunity to listen to a man whose name was Jack Stebe. He worked in the Air Force for 20 years, as a test pilot for 10 years, and is now currently working at Draper Laboratories in Cambridge.

Jack Stebe, now living in Scituate, was born in a small town in Minnesota. When he graduated there were only 121 graduates out of six towns!

When Stebe was 15 he went to Exeter Academy. But after one year there, Stebe went back to Minnesota. After he finished school he went to Dartmouth College. In all Stebe went to school for 23 years!

Stebe had a paper on which he showed the highest points of his life. He said, "The highest point of my life, was when I got married and had my four boys."

He showed us a movie about technology and airplanes. It was very interesting. After that he gave us a test. Actually it wasn't really a test, but sort of. Then we went back to our rooms. Though it was over, we would remember the things Stebe taught us for a while.

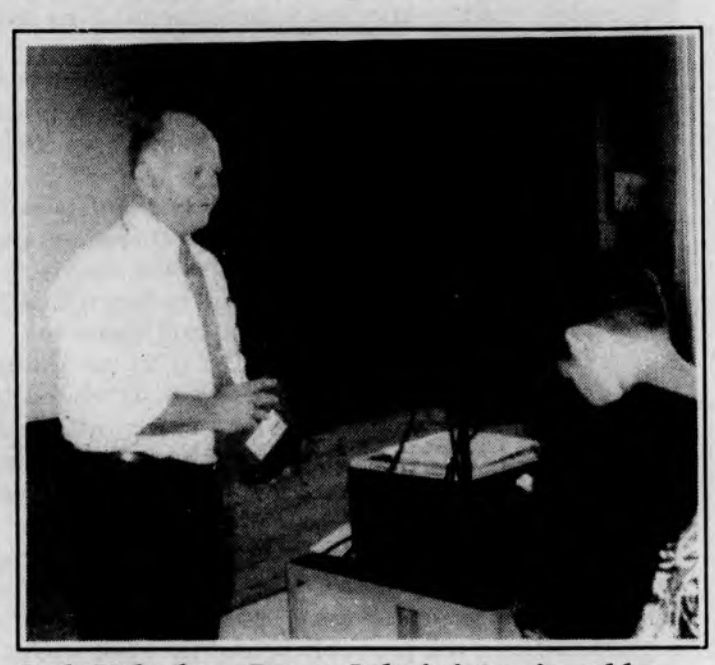
AN INTERVIEW WITH JACK STEBE

Mr. Jack Stebe was born in a small town in northern Minnesota. His father was a teacher. Mr. Stebe graduated with 121 students from six nearby towns and went through four years of college.

He went to the air force as a test pilot for 10 years. He flew in U2's and never crashed.



At the present time, Mr. Stebe works at Draper Laboratory in Cambridge, Mass. He is married and has four boys. His hobbies include camping, canoeing and playing the trumpet.

AN INTERVIEW WITH JACK STEBE

Jack Stebe was a test pilot and was in the air force and was in Vietnam. Now he works at Draper Labs, is married and has four boys. Mr. Stebe came to Deer Hill Tuesday, Sept. 22.

Mr. Stebe grew up in a small town in Minnesota. He went to Dartmouth. After that he went to go get his flying license. From there he became a test pilot usually flying U2's. Jack also was a spy pilot for five years and helped take down Berlin Wall for 20, and was also in the air force. For recreation Jack enjoys hockey and coaching sons soccer.

Jack Stebe from Draper Labs is interviewed by Deer Hill kids.

CHS drama workshop kicks off season

The Cohasset Drama Workshop kicks off its '92-'93 season with "More Than Just a Joke," two one-act comedies, Thursday and Friday, Oct. 14 and 15. The double-bill is made up of "Princess Rebecca Birnbaum," by Jerome Kass, and "Just a Joke," by Michael Scanlan.

The plays are described by director Ron Emmons as two comedies that do more than promote laughter.

"I hope," he said, "that people will laugh but also think about the psychological ramifications later."

Kass' play was produced successfully off-Broadway. Set in the Bronx, "Princess Rebecca Birnbaum" considers the plight of a young girl about to attend her first prom in a simple dress she has selected for the occasion. Unfortunately, her well-meaning family and friends do not have the same taste and force elaborate make-up and trappings upon her with little concern for her own taste. Featured in the cast are Allison Ritts as Rebecca; Karen Kristiansen, filling in for the ailing Erin McAllister and making her CHS debut, as her mother; Mary Ellen Rayment as her sister; Meredith Hansen as her piano teacher; and Kevin O'Donnell, appearing in his first CHS production, as her date.

"Just a Joke" is yet another play from the pen of Michael Scanlan, whose "Candid," "Fortress," and "Of Widows and Vegetables" have all taken the Cohasset Drama Workshop to the finals of the state drama festival in past years. Scanlan developed this script two summers ago with students enrolled at Choate Rosemary Hall Summer Theatre School.

"It was amazing," said Emmons, who is director of the Choate program. "Michael said he wanted all the students who didn't fit into the other plays. We were all a bit skeptical, but Michael would come back to the dorm after rehearsal and tell us what they had accomplished that day. They produced everything from some very touching family scenes to a mock country and western song about Jason and Medea, to a speech in praise of the literary merits of The Three Stooges. I was happy to be part of it in a very small way by playing guitar for the Medea bit."

"Just a Joke" is the story of Libby Chandler, a young girl who wants acceptance as a stand-up comic. The play follows her through her routine in a talent show that succeeds by mocking her family, English teacher and friend. Soon she is placed in the precarious position of having to choose between the acceptance of the crowd and the love of those whom she is so cruelly imitating. Katie O'Sullivan, replacing the ailing Erin McAllister, plays the comedienne, Libby. Her best friend is played by Jessica Hurley. Making their CHS debuts are Megan McNamara as her older sister, Diane Saldi as her younger sister, and Jessica Hurley as her best friend. Meredith Hansen and Caitlin Connolly will play Libby's mother and English teacher respectively .

Performances of "More Than Just a Joke" take place Thursday, Oct. 15, at 7 p.m., and Friday, Oct. 16, at 8 p.m.

Tickets will be sold at the door for $5.

Yard, craft sale

Old Colony Montessori School (OCMS), 20 Derby Street in Hingham, holds a yard and craft sale Saturday, Oct. 17, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

All proceeds to benefit the OCMS Scholarship Fund.

OCMS is certified by the American Montessori Institute (AMI) to instruct children from ages 2.9 years to nine years old. Open enrollment is held throughout the school year.

OCMS is a non-profit, parent run, cooperative school.

METCO news

The Cohasset METCO Program celebrates the start of this, its 25th year, at its second annual fall dinner Sunday, Nov. 1 from 3 to 6 p.m. at Cohasset High School. (The date has been changed from Oct. 24, as previously reported.)

Last year's lasagna menu will be repeated, as will the fun events including apple bobbing and donut hanging.

Entertainment includes a street dancing event.

The METCO Committee continues to finalize its host family assignments and families are still needed. Anyone interested in the Cohasset METCO program will find opportunities to be involved in some aspect of the program and may call their class rep, listed below or Dayle Dickinson, Committee Chair. METCO Class reps are as follows: Grades 1, 2 and 4 - Sherry Anderson (0587); grades 3 and 5 - Angie Walsh (2151); grades 6, 7 and 8 - Susan Pile (6088); grades 9 and 10 - Dayle Dickinson (0892) and grades 11 and 12 - Joan Kovach (6358).

Historical tour, Oct. 11

The Cohasset Historical Society holds a tour of historical areas of the town Sunday, Oct. 11. Originally scheduled for Oct. 4, the tour has been rescheduled for the following week.

Subjects of the bus tour will be "Old King Street" and Beechwood, to the junction of Beechwood and Doane Streets, then to the North Scituate mill of Mordecai Lincoln, built in 1695. The ancient Colonial boundary between the Massachusetts Bay Colony and Plymouth Colony passes just a few feet from the early grist mill and is marked at that site.

Historical houses and sites along the "ancient ways" of Beechwood and King Streets will be noted, and there will be an opportunity to visit the Lincoln mill and nearby house of Mordecai Lincoln.

The tour meets at the Society's Caleb Lothrop House, 14 Summer Street, Cohasset, at 2 p.m. Admission to the tour will be $5 and may be obtained at the time of the tour or beforehand at the Lothrop House.

The Society's telephone is 383—6930.

Memorial service, Oct. 10

At 11 a.m., Saturday, Oct. 10, the Ancient Order of Hibernians of Plymouth and the Massachusetts State Board, A.O.H., conduct a memorial service for the victims of the brig St. John disaster at the Celtic Cross at the Cohasset Central Cemetery at Joy Place.

The St. John was sailing from Galway, Ireland to Boston when she met a hurricane outside Boston Harbor. Unable to sail into the sheltered harbor, and after a failed attempt to sail north towards Gloucester, the ship headed south. The sails were cut away and both anchors were dropped in a effort to ride out the storm. Early in the morning of Oct. 7, 1849, the ship was wrecked on the Grampuses ledge off the coast of Cohasset. Ninety-nine Irish immigrants, who were coming to this country to flee the famine in Ireland, were killed in the shipwreck.

The Celtic cross was erected in 1914 as a memorial to those Irish men and women who lost their lives while searching for a better life.

Local actors shine in "Wait Until Dark!"

By Gayle Varallo
Special to the Mariner

Gary Ritts, pastor at the Second Congregational Church, is trotting out his thespian skills again, this time to play the Segal role in "Wait Until Dark." He enjoys it, especially for the good cause of the Oct. 22nd benefit performance for Habitat for Humanity.

Another Cohasset denizen hits the boards, as well, this one a 9-year-old!

Yes, Karen McMorris, daughter of "Ronnie" and David McMorris, is putting her all into the role of sneaky little Gloria, who alternately pesters and aids the blind woman downstairs and ultimately saves her life. We'll see more of this talented young lady in the future!

And Mike Nakashima, Beechwood Street newcomer, is thrilled to be on stage again, having been in a number of musicals in the past. We're glad he's fitting this in while still singing in the First Parish Choir and being a computer specialist. You can get tickets ($8) for the Oct. 16 to 24 Town Hall production at the Children's Exchange or Cohasset Hardware, or by calling Lynn Eisenhauer at 446-6601.

The Dramatic Club reports another sensational "Play-Reading Party" last Saturday night, this one at the new home of Peggy Corrigan and Bob Gaughen. The group's always welcoming new members, so if you're interested in acting or backstage design or crew, be sure to call president Gayl Varallo 383-2366 or membership chair Anita Aherne 545-1549.

Wrestling clinic offered

The Cohasset Recreation Department accepts telephone registrations, at 383-6791, for a six-week fall wrestling clinic, scheduled to begin Thursday, Oct. 15, at the Upper Gym, Cohasset High School.

This program is open to junior and senior high school students and is instructed by Ricky Rouke, assistant varsity wrestling coach at Cohasset High School.

The fee for this unique, pre-season opportunity is $33 per student. The clinic meets from 6 to 8 p.m., Oct. 15 thru Nov. 19.

Non-residents of Cohasset are accepted for enrollment on a space available basis. Enrollment is on a first call basis, however, clinic size must be limited.

Judo on cable

Tonight (Oct. 8) host Wigmore Pierson's guests on Pierson to Person are Judo instructor Robert Barra, and others demonstrating Judo and self defense techniques.

The second segment guest is the new Headmaster at Derby Academy in Hingham, Edward R. Foley, discussing education in the 1990s.

The Pierson to Person television show is broadcast live each Thursday, 8 to 9 p.m., from the North Scituate studio of Continental Cablevision. The show airs on Channel 53 in Hingham and on Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset.

For further information about upcoming guests and additional show information contact the Pierson Show's Executive Producer, Robert Belliveau, at 545-2500.

Organ recital

Nancy Granert, associate organist at Memorial Church, Harvard University, performs Sunday, Oct. 18, at 4 p.m. at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church.

The public is cordially invited. Donations, $5 adults, $4 students and senior citizens.

The performance features The 1964 Aeolian - Skinner Organ.

For more information, please call 383-1083.

Ham and baked beans

The First Baptist Church, Country Way, North Scituate, holds its annual old fashioned deluxe "Ham and Baked Bean" dinner Saturday, Oct. 17, at 6:30 p.m.

Tickets may be reserved by calling 545-1986 or 383-9323.

Babysitting course set

Registrations are available for the Babysitting Course given by Linda Farrag, R.N. at the Community Center, Oct. 28.

Offered on Wednesday from 3:30 to 5 p.m., this course meets for a four-week session. The cost is $30.

The course stresses a better understanding of young children and infants, their care and safety, and many other practical tips. Participants will learn what is expected from a babysitter. Topics include: first aid, fire safety, entertaining young children, child development, and nutrition. Students will also receive an extensive babysitter's manual.

For women only

This course offers women a thorough overview of money management and financial planning. Taught by instructor Sandra Mazella, topics include professional portfolio management, investment philosophies, tax strategies, and estate planning principles.

The Community Center offers this course beginning Thursday, Oct. 29. The class will meet for four weeks from 7 to 8:30 p.m. The cost is $30.

public notice

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS THE TRIAL COURT THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT NORFOLK DIVISION DOCKET NO. 92P2297E1

Estate of RICHARD L. COHEN late of COHASSET In the County of NORFOLK

NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that the last will of said decedent be proved and allowed and that JUDITH A. COHEN of COHASSET in the County of NORFOLK be appointed executrix named in the will without surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on November 18, 1992.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving the specific grounds therefore, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16.

Witness, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, the first day of October, one thousand nine hundred and ninety-two.

Thomas Patrick Hughes

Free flu shots

Flu (short for "influenza") is a very contagious infection of the body's respiratory (breathing) system. Symptoms of the flu include fever, muscle aches, headache, stuffy head, runny nose, cough, sore throat, and general weakness. These symptoms range from very mild to very severe, and most people get better within a week.

There are vaccines to prevent flu. Flu viruses change so often that new vaccines must be made each year to prevent this year's flu strains. If you want to protect yourself from the flu, you must get a flu shot every year. Last year's vaccine will not protect you this year.

It is very important that people who are at risk for dangerous flu complications—and people who live or work with them—get a flu shot every year.

Who should get a flu shot?

- People aged 65 or older
- People whose immune systems are weakened (by cancer treatments, organ transplants, or AIDS, for example)
- People with chronic medical problems (such as heart disease, asthma, kidney disease, diabetes, or lung disease).

People who are allergic to eggs should not get a flu shot.

The Social Service League and the Board of Health will be holding their Annual Flu Clinics Saturday, Oct. 24, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., and Saturday, Oct. 31, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Town Hall. The flu shot is free to all Cohasset residents.

Public forum set on Old Colony train options

Not one, but four tunnel routes through downtown Hingham are likely to be among the options reviewed by the next environmental impact statement/report (EIS/R) on the Old Colony Railroad, according to Alexander Macmillan.

Macmillan, a Hingham resident who is a member of the Old Colony Response team, explained the other options the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority (MBTA) suggest be included in the EIS/R.

"The MBTA has pared the scope of the study down to five alternatives," he said.

The MBTA's five alternatives for the EIS/R were drawn from a list of 22 possible alternatives.

At 7:30 p.m. tonight (Oct. 15) at Cohasset Town Hall, citizens will have the opportunity to tell MBTA officials what they think of the five suggested alternatives.

The MBTA was instructed last year by the Federal Transit Administration (FTA) to study alternatives to surface rail, proposed as part of the restoration of the Greenbush Line of the Old Colony Railroad, through downtown Hingham.

In addition to analyzing the tunnel option — of which four routes were suggested for review by the MBTA — enhanced commuter boat and bus service was an option, as well as construction of new boat terminals in Nantasket and Quincy.

The MBTA also suggested the study include a TSM option.

TSM, or transportation system management, attempts to decrease congestion by making adjustments to current traffic patterns, intersections and other variables which affect traffic in town.

The fifth option suggested for the study was a "no build" option, which compares proposed actions against that of no changes.

The public forum, called a scoping meeting, is intended to help the MBTA determine how and what types of options should be considered for the study.

"This process relates solely to whether the Greebush Line should be restored," Macmillan said.

Addresses must get ready for E911

To some Cohasset residents, a street address is like a vanity plate.

It looks good, impressive in fact — even if its not completely accurate.

Jerusalem Road, for example, is traditionally one of the more prestigious addresses on the Shore Shore.

But those who don't live quite on the celebrated way — and say they do — will have to 'fess up soon.

It's all part of getting ready for E911 (Emergency 911), an emergency system so prevalent nationwide that there is even a television program named after it.

E911 works in conjunction with the telephone system so when someone calls 911, an address comes up on a computer

Three ballot questions pit environment vs. business

By Tom Henshaw
Mariner staff

Familiar battle lines have been drawn once again between environmentalists and business interests over three referendum questions on the Nov. 3 election ballot.

A "yes" vote on the three would (1) impose a 25-cent tax on a pack of cigarette, (2) require all packaging to meet new recycling standards and (3) tax hazardous materials to raise money for a cleanup fund.

Opposing sides on a fourth question that would make public the state tax records of certain banks and insurance companies have reached a pre-election compromise but the question remains on the ballot.

Question 1 would establish an additional 25-cent per pack on cigarettes and raise by 25% the tax on smokeless tobacco with the money going into a new state Health Protection Fund.

The measure, if approved, would raise an estimated $130 million annually which is recommended to be used to gather and disseminate information on what are seen as the harmful effects of smoking.

Lined up for the question are the Massachusetts Coalition for a Healthy Future and the American Cancer Society.

Against it are the Committee Against Unfair Taxes and the tobacco industry, which is said to have spent some $5 million to underline its opposition.

Proponents of Question 1 hold that the 25-cent increase on top of the current 26-cent a pack tax will result in moving 80,000 people to quit smoking or discourage them from starting up.

This is a health measure, they say, because smoking causes more premature deaths than AIDS, fires, cocaine, heroin, alcohol, auto accidents, suicides and murders combined.

Golfers tee off in first kilted tourney

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

It wasn't The Old Course at St. Andrews but right here in Cohasset.

Two foursomes set out Saturday in the first annual invitational "Kilted" golf tournament on the town's bonny shores.

"Every year Dick (Forrest) goes to Scotland to golf," notes co-organizer Bob Savage.

"So Dick thought it would be nice to get some Scottish golf history into our own club which is Cohasset," he said.

"So we called the people I know and the people Dick knows who like Scottish heritage and culture.," he said.

Savage, who hasn't lost all of his Scottish brogue after 15 years in Hingham, said the biggest obstacle was selling prospective competitors on the traditional garb.

"The real hurdle was they must wear a kilt on the course and at the dinner — no shorts or dockers were allowed," he said.

But Savage said one of the players liked the kilt so much, he's buying his own Scottish attire to replace his tuxedo.

Full Scottish regalia is formal wear, Savage noted.

He explained that if one doesn't have an official family tartan it's okay to chose whichever tartan one wants to wear.

Later the men were joined by their wives at a formal kilted dinner after the tournament at the country club.

Dinner featured Scottish black angus steak and salmon from the Tay River. A piper played during the tournament. Entertainment at dinner included piano, accordion, small pipes and vocalist — "all Scottish

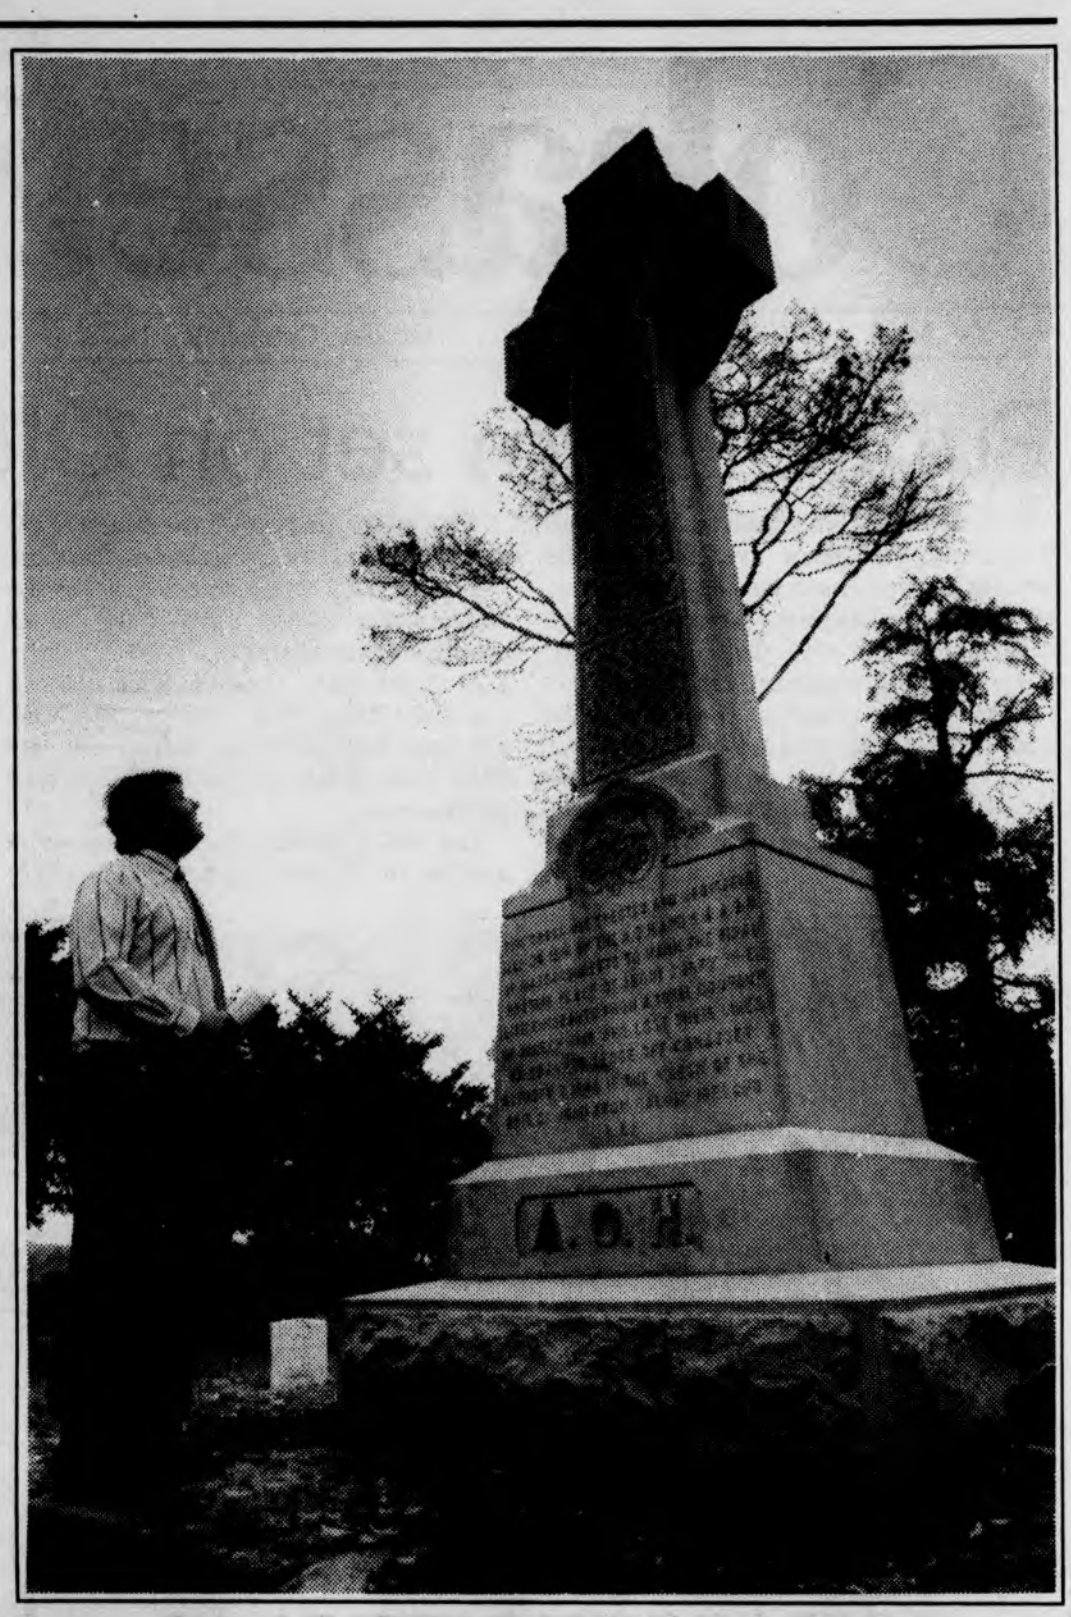
- No length restrictions apply



Questions may be answered at the RTF. Phone 383-9627.

Drive hits target

Sept. 15 the triannual Cohasset Community Blood Drive reached its goal of 105 pints of blood.

Jack Cibelli, co-chair of the drive, was pleased with the results.

"Thanks to the commitment of the many volunteers and donors we hit our goal of 105 pints right on the nose. It was the smoothest blood drive that I have seen: an outstanding community event."

Michael Joyce, president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians (AOH) in America, Division One, Plymouth, MA, admires the 20-ft. Celtic Cross in the Cohasset Central Cemetery at Joy Place. The cross is a memorial to the 45 victims of the Oct. 1849 brig St. John disaster. The ship was on its way from Galway, Ireland to Boston when she met a hurricane and crashed on the treacherous granite ledge called the 'Grampuses' off Cohasset. Last Saturday, the AOH, which is the only national Irish-American fraternal organization in this country, conducted a memorial service for the victims of the disaster.

Questions pit environment vs. business . . .

Every year, proponents maintain, more than 11,000 Massachusetts residents die of illnesses related to smoking and 38,000 children begin to smoke.

The tax money collected would be used, subject to Legislative appropriation, to fund anti-smoking aspects of health education programs in the schools and workplaces and to monitor illness and death associated with the use of tobacco.

"Ninety per cent of all smokers began their habit as adolescents which is why it is so important for both sides — the medical community and the tobacco industry — to gear their message to children," says Dr. Blake Cady, head of the Coalition for a Healthy Future.

Opponents of Question 1 call it "bad tax policy . . . an unfair and unnecessary tax increase."

If the measure passes, they say, Massachusetts will have the highest cigarette tax in the nation (51 cents a pack) and smokers will be driven to purchase them in neighboring states. A pack of cigarettes now cost between $2.20 and $2.50 in Massachusetts.

"If this question passes, it will impose a punitive tax on working people and small businesses," said Jack Flood, former House chairman of the Taxation Committee, now a consultant for the Committee Against Unfair Taxes.

Question 2 would require certain banks, insurance companies and corporations to file reports listing information from their state tax returns and require state officials to release information on state tax expenditures.

Proponents of the question say that 50,000 corporations in the state pay only the minimum state tax of $456, which is one-third of what the average family pays. Such firms are now required to disclose what they pay in federal taxes, which resulted in closing tax loopholes.

Opponents argue that the revelation of such a "vast amount of confidential financial information" would enable out-of-state competitors a weapon to hurt already suffering business firms in Massachusetts.

Late last month, a compromise was reached by the opposing sides — the Tax Equity Alliance of Massachusetts (TEAM) and business groups — on legislation that would supersede the referendum question when passed by the Legislature.

The proposed legislation would require the state to report the tax credits and deductions in in aggregate form, not by individual company, and create a commission to determine how well the state's corporate tax system is working.

In spite of the compromise, the question remains on the ballot and TEAM still recommends a "yes" vote "to send the message that the public supports the concept and the compromise."

Question 3 would require most packaging used in Massachusetts on or after July 1, 1996 be reduced in size, reusable or made of recycled or recyclable materials.

After a warning, violations could bring up to a $100 fine for each offense and up to $10,000 for any single shipment or continuing act of non-compliance.

Proponents of the question, led by the Recycling Initiative Campaign, note that millions of tons of throw-away packaging — one third of all garbage — is buried or burned in landfills when most could be recycled.

Economic benefits of the referendum, they say, would be to triple recycling levels, create new markets for recyclable materials collected, conserve trees, water and energy, save millions in garbage disposal costs and create new jobs in recycling businesses.

Opponents, joined together in the "NO on 3 Committee," says the packaging ban would cost millions of dollar at a time when the state is trying to mount an economic recovery and would not do much to effectively solve solid waste disposal problems.

NO estimates that it would cost Massachusetts business about $510 million to comply with the law and that sum would be passed on to consumer in higher prices at a rate of $230 a year for the average household.

It would also result in the creation of three new state commissions and new inspection and enforcement programs that would cost the taxpayers $12.4 million a year, according to a study commissioned by NO.

All this expense, says NO, would reduce municipal solid waste stream in Massachusetts by only 2 to 9 per cent.

Question 4 would tax certain oils and hazardous materials at a rate sufficient to yield $35 million annually starting in 1995 and put the money raised into the State Environmental Challenge Fund.

Supporters of the measure, the Committee to Make Polluters Pay, note that there are more than 2,700 confirmed and 2,500 suspected toxic dumpsites in Massachusetts and 495 of them have been classified as a "substantial hazard to health, safety, public welfare or the environment."

Yet, despite the passage of the state Superfund law in 1983, "only two toxic dumpsites in the state have been cleaned up," mostly because the state does not have the financial resources to deal with the problem. In 1992, the cleanup budget was $18.7 million while conservative estimates say $45 million a year is needed.

Proponents cite a State Department of Environmental Protection study that shows 58 out of 246 towns have closed public drinking water supplies because of contamination by toxic chemicals and oil.

Opponents of the proposition, the Coalition to Stop the Question 4 Tax, say passage of the measure would "impose an unworkable, unfair and costly new excise tax on virtually every resident, workers and employer in Massachusetts" by increasing the cost of energy, public transportation and other basic services.

Furthermore, they say, "there is no guarantee that any revenues from this tax will actually be used for environmental cleanup" since collections would by law go into the state's general fund to be appropriated by the Legislature.

The League of Women Voters has announced its opposition, saying "the only thing that passage of Question 4 will deliver is a new tax, compete with detailed licensing and reporting restrictions, and a new state bureaucracy to monitor and collect the tax."

Free flu shots offered at Annual Flu Clinic

Flu (short for "influenza") is a very contagious infection of the body's respiratory (breathing) system. Symptoms of the flu include fever, muscle aches, headache, stuffy head, runny nose, cough, sore throat, and general weakness. These symptoms range from very mild to very severe, and most people get better within a week.

It is very important that people who are at risk for dangerous flu complications—and people who live or work with them—get a flu shot every year.

Who should get a flu shot?

- People aged 65 or older
- People whose immune systems are weakened (by cancer treatments, organ transplants, or AIDS, for example)
- People with chronic medical problems (such as heart disease, asthma, kidney disease, diabetes, or lung disease).

People who are allergic to eggs should not get a flu shot.

The Social Service League and the Board of Health will be holding their Annual Flu Clinics Saturday, Oct. 24, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., and Saturday, Oct. 31, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Town Hall. The flu shot is free to all Cohasset residents.

For more information call the Social Service League office (Mon. - Fri. 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.) at 383-0771 or 383-0821.

Library story hours

Fall story hour at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library is offered at 10 a.m. Thursdays and Fridays through Nov. 6.

Each 45-minute program consists of several picture book stories and simple finger plays, songs, and crafts. Children must be at least 3-1/2 years old to participate.

To register, please call the children's librarian at 383-1348.

Book bags arrive

The Friends of the Cohasset Library announce the arrival of canvas book bags at the library. Designed in collaboration with Ron Goodwin of Goodwin Graphics and John Hartshorne of the Friends, the bags feature the new mackerel logo and an inscription "I am a Friend of the Cohasset Library."

Made from sturdy canvas, these attractive totes have ample room for books and for plenty of gear and are comfortably sized for children as well as adults.

Bags can be purchased at the library, now, for the low, low price of $10 per bag, a great gift for literary friends both young and old!

The Friends Annual Book Sale takes place Oct. 23, 24, and 25, downstairs at the library.

Fall library hours

Fall hours at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library are: Sunday, 2 to 5 p.m.; Monday and Tuesday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; closed Wednesday; Thursday and Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Books for sale

The Paul Pratt Memorial Library holds its Annual Book Sale Oct. 23, 24 and 25.

Many books of all types are offered, fiction and non-fiction in hard cover and paper back. There are children's books and adult books as well. Prices are more than reasonable ranging from 50 cents to a dollar with a few exceptions.

Volunteers from the executive board and the board of trustees will staff the sale Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m.

The purpose of the sale is to raise funds for programs the Friends sponsor. The Sale takes place downstairs in the library. You won't want to miss the book bargains!

The Friends of the library hold their monthly meeting at the library Oct. 15 at 9 a.m.

Julie Shea shows off one of the new Paul Pratt Memorial Library bags now available at the library. To the other library bag models who came Monday: we'll get your picture in next week!

Selectmen w(h)ine about liquor license application

By Jeff Cutler
Mariner Correspondent

While the vice-presidential debate was taking place in Georgia Tuesday, the Cohasset Board of Selectmen had a debate of their own going on at town hall.

The issue that raised the most controversy was an application for a beer and wine license at the former Roberts Food Mart site in Jonathan Livingston Square.

Atty. Thomas J. Cummings, the applicant, was unable to attend and was represented by his brother, Paul Cummings.

Cummings told the board that he is a co-trustee in Jonathan Livingston Realty Trust and could make any decisions for his brother.

"Tom got a mix-up with some airline tickets...and asked me to show up for him," he said

The stir began when Cummings told the board he had not brought the receipts from notifications that were to be sent to abutters in the square. Town counsel Richard A. Henderson said the hearing could continue contingent upon the delivery of the receipts at the next meeting.

At this, selectman Jane Goedecke quickly announced, "We won't be voting and if they (receipts) don't come in, we'll simply start over."

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan wanted to put the hearing off.

"You're starting a discussion that's going to be different at another time," he said. "I don't think it makes sense to start it."

Before the board could vote, Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle questioned applicant's motives.

He wanted to know why Cummings was no longer practicing law or acting as a CPA.

The sticking point remained the registered mail receipts and Laugelle loudly questioned why they hadn't been sent to the meeting with Cummings' brother.

Goedecke interrupted Laugelle's outburst to allow Cummings a chance to explain.

"He missed a plane in St. John this morning...he just can't be here. His plane comes in about ten o'clock tonight," said Cummings.

From there, the board decided to go forth with whatever part of the hearing they could complete.

Cummings told the board that he and his brother "have a major concern with the tenants" that are currently at the square.

"We're trying to get traffic through the square for the benefit of the tenants we have in there," he said.

Opposition came from both Sullivan and Laugelle who felt that a wine-and-beer store wouldn't bring the increased traffic that Cummings talked about.

Cummings stated at the meeting that plans were to open only a wine and beer store at the site, according to Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon.

"I think a variety store probably would continue to pull the traffic," said Sullivan. His point was that a store selling only beer and wine wouldn't be successful.

Laugelle went at the situation a little more harshly. "I can't understand a person who is an attorney and a certified public accountant who is going to put 40 hours in a five and dime" store.

"You're not going to do any business there to survive," he added.

The discussion eventually moved away from talk of how the business would fare in that location and turned back towards the licensing procedure.

A number of business owners attested to Cummings' good character and they all want the license to be approved.

The board listened to these statements and agreed that the final decision would be made next meeting if the receipts were all returned by Cummings.

Legal wrangle over moderator

Another major issue on the agenda was the town moderator spot, vacated when William D. Weeks stepped down last month.

Chairman Goedecke said she wanted to table the decision until next week because of legal questions raised about the selectmen's authority to appoint an interim town moderator.

The delay allows the board to read the specific stipulations governing the moderator's position and to get an opinion from the town counsel, she said.

Selectman Martha Gjesteby concurred and said she wanted to make sure "what we do is proper under the law."

Henderson said there is a lot of gray area.

"It's not an easy question to answer," he said. "If you read each statute on its own it looks like a very simple problem...if you read them together" it gets more difficult.

"What it comes down to," he said. "Is whether or not the town moderator is a town official within the meaning of Chapter 41." If the moderator is an official as dictated by the regulations, he can be appointed, explained Henderson.

Two residents, Myrna Putziger and George Marlette applied for the position.

Dredging contracts

Near the end of the session, executive secretary Greg Doyon brought up the subject of dredging contracts and a recent bidding process for cleaning out Cohasset Cove.

Two bids were received by the town and both were well over the minimum bid requirement for the project. Doyon commented that the low bid could also be "subject to a lot of environmental conditions."

The board as a whole was not happy with the figures, the low bid being $14,265 over minimum, but decided that time was at a premium and the job should be awarded to the low bidder. With that, AGM Marine Contractors, Inc. was given the job as long as they could meet all contract specifications.

The selectmen did acknowledge that nearly $40,000 had to be appropriated to cover unanticipated costs and the job had to be completed between Nov. 1, 1992 and Feb. 15, 1993.

Traffic safety

In other business, the selectmen decided to form a subcommittee to look at traffic safety improvements in Cohasset Village. Laugelle said the "crosswalk cones are just ridiculous!"

And Selectman Merle S. Brown said "I think you should look at the signs before the cones. We don't put our speed limit signs in the middle of the street."

The next selectmen's meeting is Monday, Oct. 19 at 7:30 p.m. at Cohasset town hall.

people," Savage said.

He said the event is the first of many.

"We created a lot of interest at the club," he said. "Next year there will be more participants, I guarantee it."

This year's tournament winner with the best net score was Peter Stone of Cohasset.

Appliance fee set

There is a $10 fee per appliance for all residents disposing appliances containing chlorofluorocarbons (CFC's) in their cooling units. Examples of such appliances are refrigerators, air-conditioners and dehumidifiers.

New regulations require removal of CFC's before they are sent to the scrap dealer.

So in addition to attaching each home to its proper street — some homes will be renumbered or receive a number for the first time.

For example, some homes may be listed as 'Park Place' rather than '12 Park Place.'

According to assistant assessor/appraiser Joseph DiVito there are about 100 discrepancies in addresses in Cohasset.

Those on corner lots should use the street where their front door faces, he explains, even if their garage and driveway are on another street.

"This (clarification of addresses) is strictly for safety reasons," DiVito adds. The changes will not affect the home's value.

DiVito explains that there's a number for every 40 feet on a street. So if there are only two homes on a street for example — they probably won't be numbered one and two because of the distance between them.

He adds that the assessors office determines the legal address of a residence.

The assessors are sending letters to the residents whose addresses require a change.

A resident's stationery doesn't have to change, however.

A legal address and mailing address don't have to be the same, although the assessors will notify the post office of the changes in addresses, DiVito says.

Railroad options

Environmental Affairs Susan Tierney will ultimately decide the scope of the study.

"It is unlikely she will eliminate any of these five alternatives," he said.

Macmillan added, however, that Tierney could add more alternatives to the list of what is to be included in the EIS/R.

Written comments on the scope of the next EIS/R must be received by Tierney by Nov. 7, Macmillan said.

Deadlines for subsequent decisions are nebulous, Macmillan said.

"The MBTA is optimistic to get through all the steps by 1994," he said.

RTF regulations set

Regulations for resident/hauler use at the Cedar Street Recycling Transfer Facility (RTF) are:

The RTF may be used by residents who have a current sticker purchased at the board of health or the RTF for waste generated at their residence only. Persons who recycle must also purchase a sticker to be admitted to the RTF. Certain businesses may also purchase a permit. Landscapers may deposit leaf and yard waste from Cohasset without a permit. Violators may be fined $25.

The RTF is open Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. .

The entire regulation is available for public review at the board of health offices, town hall.

around town

❑ Foreign and Art films are playing regularly at the Loring Cinema in Hingham. Shirley Marten has organized a team of 20 people to keep their friends informed of current showings and to create interest in future attractions. Be sure to get there, enjoy living abroad vicariously!

Tuesday and Wednesday are Bargain nights and weekends are a great time to see your friends and neighbors.

Let's all encourage this new cultural event on the South Shore so that it will become a permanent asset! And extend thanks to Shirley for making it all possible!

❑ Many of you have heard about Bob James by now, but for those of you that haven't, here goes...On Sept. 6 Bob was playing golf with Sally Anderson and Bob and Dorothy Palmer at Cohasset Country Club. On the second hole Bob (James) got a hole-in-one, something he hadn't done in 40 years. Wow!

Nussdorfer is a recent graduate of Northeastern University's Radiologic Technology Program, where she participated in an intense program of study involving academic and direct-patient hospital experience. During her internship at University Hospital in Boston, she demonstrated proficiency in all aspects of basic routine radiographic procedures as well as in advanced diagnostic imaging modalities. Her areas of expertise include Computerized Axial Tomagraphy Scanning and Magnetic Resonance Imaging, more commonly known as C.A.T. Scanning and M.R.I. A 1990 graduate of the Stoneleigh-Burnham School in Greenfield, MA., Nussdorfer accelerated her course sequence and successfully completed the associate of science degree program which led to her to her early graduation this past summer.

❑ Congratulations go to John O'Leary who was selected as a Ouimet Scholar by the Francis Ouimet Caddie Scholarship Fund.

First Lady Barbara Bush holds Jennifer Elizabeth Curley, state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray's granddaughter, during Mrs. Bush's recent visit to Hingham. Also pictured is Mrs. Murray's son-in-law and Jennie's dad, James F. Curley.

The Ouimet Scholarship is a competitive award program available to students who have worked three summers as a caddie or as a helper in pro shops or course superintendent operations at a Massachusetts golf Club. The candidates for scholarship must be demonstrate acceptable scholastic rating and must be entering or attending an undergraduate college or institute.

John is a member of the class of 1996 at George Washington University.

❑ We certainly hope that Jackie Rhodes is rapidly recovering after his recent open heart surgery (he had by-pass surgery last week). Jack delayed the operation until after the wedding of his daughter.

We hope to hear all the good news from both events real soon.

❑ Emily Reardon makes the news again this week for her tennis prowess. This time Fairfield University played against Villanova and Emily and her partner Melissa Gassler took the #2 double match against Tina Fiore and Suzanne Quigley, 6-3.

❑ Bruce and Claire Williams were spotted around town during the long weekend. They came to see friends and relatives. Their "children" are great. Ian is in graduate school and playing music, and Allison is a junior in high school. Bruce's mom is well, and heading for Florida for the winter in a few weeks...she spends the rest of the time living with Bruce and Claire and loving it.

Anyway, it was great to see them, and they do send all those they missed love.

❑ Congratulations to Nadine Zaslow and Erik Swanson on the birth of their son, Erik Anthony Zaslow. Erik was born on Oct. 3 at 2:52 at Brockton Hospital. His maternal grandparents are Dr. and Mrs. Ira Zaslow; paternal are Patricia Torrey and Steven Swanson. Erik weighed in at 7 lbs. 3 ozs. and was 20 inches long.

❑ Veronica Maria Annemie de Vos, daughter of Merilyn Linda DeCesare-de Vos of Nicholas Road and Gerrit Thomas Bientje de Vos of Geneva, Switzerland, is working at Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations in Rome, Italy this fall through the Field Experience Program at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Veronica researches agricultural economics in Southern Africa and is currently analyzing the possible impact of the current GATT talks on agriculture imports and exports of Southern Africa. She will also analyze the impact the conservation of natural resources with the liberalization of agricultural trade. Veronica is a member of the Class of 1995 majoring in resource economics. She graduated form CHS in 1990.

❑ The Roger Pompeo family celebrated Thanksgiving last weekend, huge turkey dinner with all the fixin's! The reason? Their daughter Laura is heading for Germany, and won't be back until her wedding next May...and they wanted Laura and Jeffrey to be sure to have a "Thanksgiving" to remember until then!

Good luck to you two in Germany, and God Speed. Be sure to send us news of your adventures, and the wonderful job opportunity that Jeffrey has awaiting him.

❑ Finally, be sure to plan on going to lots of games this weekend. It's homecoming, and every Varsity team will be playing (field hockey, boys and girls soccer, and football). The homecoming festivities, where they crown the King and Queen, will take place around 2 p.m.

Support those players and those candidates, be there!!

Mary F. Leavitt

Mary F. (Laurel) Leavitt, 78, of Cohasset, died Oct. 4 at Jordan Hospital in Plymouth.

A Native of Eureka, Calif., Mrs. Leavitt lived in Cohasset for more than 40 years. She was a member of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Wife of the late Ernest G. Leavitt, she leaves two brothers, Joe Perreira of Stevinson, Calif., and Anthony Perreira of Madera, Calif.; and a sister, Isabell Perreira Castro of Gustine, Calif.

A funeral Mass was celebrated at 9 a.m. Oct. 7 in St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in Spring Brook Cemetery, Mansfield.

The McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer St., handled the arrangements.

Debate

The second presidential debate starts at 7:30 or 9 p.m. EST tonight depending on whether or not there's a seventh game in the American League pennant race.

The A's and the Blue Jays played game six yesterday after the Cohasset Mariner went to press.

But regardless of the time when presidential debate gets underway or if there's a baseball game tonight — we hope many of you will come to town hall.

By taking part in the public forum at 7:30 p.m. tonight on the Greenbush Line of the Old Colony Railroad at town hall — Cohasset citizens have the chance to be part of the debate on public transportation in the South Shore.

The MBTA is studying alternatives to surface rail through downtown Hingham.

And although neighboring Hingham is the one that's trying to prevent surface rail from going through its Lincoln National Register Historic District – it's a Cohasset issue too.

Because without Hingham — there will be no Old Colony Line to Cohasset.

Some of you may think that's the best solution.

But your ideas, suggestions and opinions will be like the tree falling in the forest — unheard and unheeded — if you don't take an active part in the process.

In addition to a tunnel under Hingham, the MBTA is also examining the options of "no build" and improving other forms of public transportation such as buses and boats.

So program that VCR to tape the pennant race if you're a baseball fan, or the presidential debate if you a political junkie don't want to miss a beat of this election season.

And come on down!

Questions

There's more on the ballot this year than Bush, Clinton, Perot, Fulani, Hagelin, LaRouche, Marrou, and Phillips — and those are just the candidates for president.

There are four questions on the ballot, which could affect your pocketbook.

Most of us don't object to paying for something we really care about. But if we don't take the time to study the issues — we're doing ourselves an injustice.

More of you are going to vote Nov. 3 than did in the general town election or in any of the primaries. We all like to vote in the presidential elections – it's the one that requires the least work on our part. After all, with all the campaigning going on for the right to occupy the Oval Office — we practically get to know the kind of toothpaste a candidate uses.

But all this whoopla clouds other issues and races.

This week, we're running a story on the ballot questions. It's a short overview – but it's a start. Hopefully, it will spark some interest on your part to find out more about the questions and what they'll mean to you.

Next week, we print an overview of the candidates in the races for the tenth district Congressional seat held by Democrat Gerry Studds and in the Norfolk and Plymouth County District state senate seat held by Republican Robert Hedlund.

Please take the time to make an informed choice.

And vote Nov. 3.

Sheldon Rd. sign should be returned

To Whom It May Concern:

Although I don't know who you are, I wanted to find some way to thank you for stealing our street sign Saturday night, Oct. 3. It was such a thoughtful thing to do—you really shouldn't have. I guess you must have a better use for the sign that says "Sheldon Road" than the rest of us who live there.

Thank you also for the broken beer bottles left behind. You must not have been able to carry away both the sign and your trash. Not to worry—I picked up the broken glass, along with the pieces of wood which fell on the ground when you ripped the sign off its bolts!

Well, I guess that's all I have to say, other than, now that you've had your fun, would you please kindly return it. It wasn't just a sign...it was my birthday present.

Roll call photos were transposed

To the Editor:

Your Beacon Hill Roll Call of the Oct. 8 Cohasset Mariner was a little(?) mixed up as to Sen. Robert Hedlund and Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray's pictures!

Rep. Murray's votes are correct under her name—not her picture. Senator Hedlund's votes are accurate under his name and Rep. Murray's picture.

Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray's votes were YES to Bail question H5772; YES to H6010, a bill regarding Abandoned Buildings; and YES for the Homeless, H5800.

Incidentally, these votes were amendments to budget bills.

I do have short hair, but not a man's haircut.

Mary Jeanette Murray
State Representative

SAFE hosts Question 4 forum

To the Editor:

Thursday, Oct. 22, S.A.F.E. (Stop Any Further Expansion) hosts a forum in support of Question 4, "The Polluters Pay Initiative" on the Nov. 3 state ballot. This event is at 7:30 p.m. at the Unitarian Parish House.

Speaking at the event is Matt Wilson of the Committee to Make Polluters Pay. He will show a 10-minute film about the hazards of toxic dump sites in Massachusetts and answer questions from the audience.

Passage of Question 4 is in the best long-term financial interests of Cohasset. Question 4 provides sorely-needed state funds for the cleanup of contamination from landfills and hazardous waste sites.

Without the passage of Question 4, few state funds would be available to help Cohasset deal with any potential pollution of our water supply if Lily Pond is threatened by the Cohasset Heights landfill after it closes.

S.A.F.E. urges you to attend this important meeting.

Kevin F. O'Donnell

United Way donations sought

To the Editor:

As you may recall, we are asked each year, along with other private and public sector employees throughout the state, to contribute to the United Way of Mass. Bay Fund, that serves 219 agencies in the Commonwealth. The efforts are primarily absorbed by 11 "loan executives" who are loaned to the United Way from private sector industry to help coordinate the state-wide effort.

Unlike some charitable organizations that require a large percentage of donated monies to meet overhead, the United Way is capable of applying 85 cents of each donated dollar towards people in need. Through centralized fund administration and management, the United Way encumbers only a small portion of contributions towards operating costs. The United Way allocates funds throughout the Commonwealth in both urban and rural areas, including right here in Cohasset.

It may be this year particularly that it is more incumbent upon those of us who have not suffered drastically from the effects of the economy, to step forward and offer our assistance to the thousands of families who have been less fortunate. By doing this, we may find it a good time to reflect upon our own good circumstances — something we can all forget to do from time to time.

It is not the amount of your contribution that matters. Rather, it is the fact that you have taken it upon yourself to consider the needs and fates of others that remains more essential. In so doing, you may find, regardless of the amount you choose to donate, gratification and appreciation. That is, gratification that comes from helping others and appreciation that you are in a position to be able to help others. These feelings do not necessarily correlate to dollar amounts, but tend to be representative of the thought that is behind the gift.

As public sector employees, we have learned during the past few years that we should neither take employment for granted, nor consider our own jobs as especially secure. It is with this apparent knowledge that we, of all people, should be sensitive towards the misfortunes suffered by others. We, as the gainfully employed, have an incumbent responsibility to assist those less fortunate. We may not particularly want this responsibility; however, it is there, and ignoring it does not make it disappear.

As in previous years, we will make the contributory payroll deductions on the fifth payday of the month, Oct. 29, helping to absorb the impact of donating to a degree.

While most of us have fewer deductions on fifth-week paydays, it is nonetheless a sacrifice that we are being asked to make. However, I feel certain that you will also find the apparent rewards associated with helping others.

Thank you for your consideration and anticipated thoughtfulness.

Columbus: a man of his times

By Tom Henshaw
Mariner staff

If Christopher Columbus had known what was going to happen to him on his 500th anniversary, wethinks he would have turned around and sailed back to Italy instead.

At least, he wouldn't have had to put up with all this politically correct claptrap that (a) he didn't really discover America, (b) he killed millions of Indians and (c) he invented slavery.

(He may even have been responsible for the AIDS epidemic. We have it on good authority that, even as we speak, an eminent historian somewhere is working on that theory and is preparing to announce it next Monday, which, sonuva gun, just happens to be Columbus Day for the rest of us.)

In fact, if you listen to the new breed of historian, Columbus was the epitome of evil, a sort of Adolf Hitler, Tamerlane and Idi Amin all rolled into one.

He was so bad, in fact, that the Peace and Justice Commission of St. Joseph's Parish in Rock Island, Ill., demanded that the Knights of Columbus change their, ugh, name to something more PC.

"We don't think Columbus is really the kind of person the church should be holding up as an example," said Charles Guilty, the chairman of the commission.

"(This included) the calculated destruction of the cultures of indigenous people . . . the legacy of slavery, the rape of the land — all done in the name of the Lord."

"Ideologically tainted baloney," snorted the K of C's Russell Shaw. "Neo-Marxist socio-political critique of Western capitalism presently much favored in some liberationist circles."

Russell maybe displaying some socio-political biases of his own but his heart is in the right place.

Did Columbus really discover America? He sure did. And so did John Manjiro and probably a dozen others. What? You never heard of John Manjiro?

Beacon Hill Roll Call

QUESTIONS	Senator Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth) 722-1646 Room 416B	Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Cohasset) 722-2800 ext.7957 Room 134
THE HOUSE AND SENATE. "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local senators' and representatives' votes on one roll calls from sessions during the week of September 28-October 2.
WATER PROJECTS (H 6123) Senate 25-0, House 130-0, gave final approval and sent to Governor Weld a $677 million bond package to help cities and towns pay for wastewater treatment projects. Supporters said the bill reforms the financing mechanism to fund these important water protection projects. They noted the bill also insures reimbursement for many communities which have completed and paid for projects based on promises of state aid. (A "Yea" vote is for the bill.)	Y	Y

Columbus was a man of his times . . .

He was the Japanese seaman who was picked up at sea by the American whaler John Howland and brought back to Fairhaven, Mass., sometime in the 19th Century when the islands of Japan were off limits to all but Japanese.

Eventually, John found his way back to his homeland where, we are told, he was celebrated on the streets of Tokyo and Kyoto as "the man who discovered America," even though it was only Fairhaven and perhaps New Bedford, too.

Did Columbus really kill all those Indians (or Native Americans)?

Of course not. True, later-arriving Europeans did all but wipe out the indigenous peoples of the Americas through warfare, disease and intermarriage. But there were those (the missionary las Casas comes to mind) who tried their damndest to halt the mistreatment and slaughter of the original Americans.

It is difficult to picture Columbus (or Colon, as his Spanish sponsors called him) telling Ferdinand and Isabella: "The first thing I'm going to do is enslave and kill all them Native Americans and replace them with African Americans, and then I'll go looking for gold for you."

Did Columbus really invent slavery?

Of course not. As far back as 4000 BC the strong were enslaving the weak. Ask the people who were forced to build the pyramids. Or those who toiled over oars in the galleys and triremes of Persia, Greece and Rome. Slavery came easily to the otherwise good folks of the 15th, 17th, even the 19th Centuries. The preeminent slave trader of the 19th Century was an Arab named Tibbu Tib (or Tippu Tip) who operated out of Zanzibar and sold his wares to the east, not the west.

Actually, all Columbus stands charged with is being a man of his times — the one thing he could do nothing about.

Malone is honored

South Shore communities honor Treasurer and Receiver-General Joe Malone, Sunday, Oct. 18, at a noon to 2 p.m. brunch at the Cohasset home of Polly Logan, 121 Nichols Road.

Logan noted that Treasurer Malone has instituted innovating programs such as Middle-Class American Dream program and the Massachusetts Affordable Housing Initiative. The first program brings home ownership within closer reach of citizens in Massachusetts and the second is joint venture with Local Initiatives Managed Assets Corporation (LIMAC) which will help to free up capital for community-based developers of affordable multi-family housing.

Open to the public, reservations may be made by calling Chris Thayer 335-4681, Ann Collins 749-0817, John Clarkson 545-7977, Julie Guild 383-6443, Deborah Tortorella or Ed O'Sullivan 585-5733.

Wrestling clinic offered

The Cohasset Recreation Department accepts telephone registrations, at 383-6791, for a six-week fall wrestling clinic, scheduled to begin Thursday, Oct. 15, at the Upper Gym, Cohasset High School.

This program is open to junior and senior high school students and is instructed by Ricky Rouke, assistant varsity wrestling coach at Cohasset High School.

The fee for this unique, pre-season opportunity is $33 per student. The clinic meets from 6 to 8 p.m., Oct. 15 thru Nov. 19.

Non-residents of Cohasset are accepted for enrollment on a space available basis. Enrollment is on a first call basis, however, clinic size must be limited.

Amateur gardeners meet

Members of the Amateur Gardeners of Cohasset meet Tuesday, Oct. 20, at 1 p.m. at the home of Kathy Morgan with Gert Young assisting as co-hostess.

The program is a presentation by the Tomassi Nursery.

Newcomers plan brunch

The Scituate-Cohasset Newcomers Club is planning a brunch for Sunday, Oct. 18 as a kick-off social for the new year.

This informal gathering will be held at a private home in Cohasset and invitations are extended to all existing members as well as new members. For more information please call Patty at 383-2773.

Birdlife lecture set

Where do our Herons and Egrets come from and where do they go when they leave the Gulf River?

What do Black Ducks and Bufflehead find to eat on the bottom of the river that keeps them warm and happy here all winter?

Are Cormorants depleting our fish supply?

Questions like these and others covering all aspects of birdlife in the Gulf River will be addressed in an illustrated lecture by David Clapp, Director of the South Shore Sanctuary, Massachusetts Audubon Society, Wednesday, Oct.21, at 7:30 p.m. at the Parish House of the Unitarian Church on Cohasset Common.

David Clapp is an expert ornithologist and has a well-deserved reputation in this region and internationally as an exceptionally informative and entertaining speaker. He is, in fact, a teacher, having received a Master's degree in Secondary Education from U/Mass.-Boston. He has directed the programs and activities of the five different properties comprising Mass. Audubon's South Shore Sanctuary for the past 12 years, while also lecturing frequently here and abroad.

Please mark your calendar and plan to attend this free-of-charge, open-to-all meeting.

This is also the Annual Meeting of The Gulf Association. Attendees will hear brief reports of Association activities, and members will vote on next year's officers and directors at a brief business session.

Save the museums

The Jazz Pops Ensemble presents a benefit concert at Kimballs By-The-Sea, Sunday, Nov. 8 from 4 to 6 p.m.; the proceeds to go to a special fund to make needed repairs and improvements to the Captain Wilson House and Maritime Museum.

A buffet is served following the concert. Ticket sales are limited to 130, and are $50 per person.

For more information, please call 383-6930.

Organ recital

Nancy Granert, associate organist at Memorial Church, Harvard University, performs Sunday, Oct. 18, at 4 p.m. at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church.

The public is cordially invited. Donations, $5 adults, $4 students and senior citizens.

The performance features The 1964 Aeolian - Skinner Organ.

For more information, please call 383-1083.

Soccer adjustments

Due to homecoming Saturday, Oct. 17, Recreation Soccer League games for grades three through nine are cancelled.

However, soccer clinics for grades kindergarten through second will meet as scheduled Saturday, Oct. 17

League players should follow the schedule for games as indicated on your roster; the Oct. 17 games will be made up at the end of the season if weather conditions permit.

Ham and baked beans

The First Baptist Church, Country Way, North Scituate, holds its annual old fashioned deluxe "Ham and Baked Bean" dinner Saturday, Oct. 17, at 6:30 p.m.

Tickets may be reserved by calling 545-1986 or 383-9323.

Houseraising dedication

South Shore Habitat for Humanity (SSHH) conducts a Houseraising Dedication at the Bates Building at 43 Elm Street.

Formerly town office space, the building will be remodeled into two housing units of 1200 sq. ft. each. The dedication takes place at the worksite on Saturday, Oct. 17, at 10 a.m.

SSHH is an ecumenical, nonprofit Christian housing ministry established in 1985. Working with volunteer labor — including skilled professionals—and donated funds, SSHH joins in partnership with people in need to build simple, decent housing.

If unable to attend, but wish to support the work of SSHH through donation, please send to South Shore Habitat for Humanity, P.O. Box 127, Norwell, MA 02061, or please call 617-659-1440.

CDC play opens

The Cohasset Dramatic Club opens its 72nd season Friday, Oct. 16, with the first of five 8 p.m. performances (repeated the 17, 22, 23, 24) of Frederick Knott's drama-thriller "Wait Until Dark!" at the Cohasset Town Hall Stage.

Dramatists Play Service accurately touts it as "a rousing example of the school of chilling menace that deserves its popular welcome."

Tickets for this now-classic thriller, directed by veteran Bob Champagne, are $8 to the public, and free to CDC patrons. To reserve a ticket or to get info re '92-'93 patronage or active membership (painters and carpenters are always needed), please call 446-6601.

The Thursday, Oct. 22, show proceeds will benefit the South Shore Habitat for Humanity organization.

Badminton for adults

The Cohasset and Scituate Recreation Departments would like to establish an adult badminton program for area adults, if there is enough interest.

If you would like to play badminton with other adults, one evening per week, please call either the Cohasset Recreation Department (383-6791), or the Scituate Recreation Department, (545-8738), to register your interest in this program and sport, open to area residents.

Fall gala coming

One of the area's most distinctive and delightful musical events takes place in Hingham Saturday and Sunday evenings this weekend. The Fall Gala, performed by the combined Broad Cove Chorale and Unicorn Singers, is the annual fund-raising event for these select ensembles and show-cases their many talents in a fast-paced and varied concert at Broad Cove House on Lincoln Street, home of founder/director Margo Euler.

The concert combines traditional choral pieces of a light vein, such as spirituals, madrigals and folk-song settings, with lively barbershop, opera, jazz and close harmony selections for smaller groupings. Costumes, props and staging enhance the medley from a well-known musical which always ends the Gala, and here and there throughout the evening are entertaining contributions by "Mass. Hysteria," the clever writers (otherwise known as Bill Grimes and Isabel Leonard) who conjure up playful jabs at this and that in the wittiest of rhyme schemes.

Don't miss this sparkling event, which ends with an elegant party for all the guests and performers. The concert is at 8 p.m., Oct. 17 and 18, and tickets must be ordered in advance by calling 749-6561.

Debate on cable

Thursday, Oct. 15, host Wigmore Pierson's guests on Pierson to Person are State Rep. Frank Hynes (D-Scituate) debating his Republican opponent Ronald Wheatley.

The second segment guests are State. Rep. Janet O'Brien (D-Hanover) debating her Republican opponent Brian Hickey .

The Pierson to Person television show is broadcast live each Thursday, 8 to 9 p.m., from the North Scituate studio of Continental Cablevision. The show airs on Channel 53 Hanover, Hingham and Norwell; on Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset and Scituate.

The public is invited to be part of the studio audience each Thursday evening and those planning to attend should be at the studio on Gannett Road by 7:30 p.m.

For further information about upcoming guests and additional show information contact the Pierson Show's Executive Producer, Robert Bellitveau at 545-2500.

by Ed Leary

In September, I wrote that the townspeople of Cohasset should know the variety and diversity of educational experiences that are offered to the students in the schools. At that time I noted some of the unique summer activities that the staff had completed. I now begin the focus on the types of classroom events that take place on a day-to-day basis in Cohasset.

The task: move two 10-foot pieces of 4x4 lumber across a field. The catch: no part of your body may touch the ground! Another task: navigate an obstacle course. The catch: it has to be done blindfolded. Thus, the participants in the fifth annual Camp Marist Ninth-Grade Orientation trip to New Hampshire found themselves confronted with a variety of unusual and challenging activities that, in fact, have many significant goals.

Accompanied by ten members of the high school faculty and the high school peer counselors, 77 freshmen travelled north to spend a weekend, the purpose of which is to foster communication within the class, promote personal growth and self-confidence, improve decision-making skills, create a sense of trust in their peers, and establish a better rapport between teachers, counselors and students.

Meanwhile, back at Deer Hill, Mr. Becker's sixth-graders are exploring another aspect of nature. The class has dissected owl pellets, which are the regurgitated remains of various prey that the owl has eaten, in order to determine the diet of these predators and the relationships between species in the ecosystem. (I assume that this is done before lunch.) There's no question that this is an approach different from looking at a chart of the food chain, as the students have an opportunity to engage in research actually using the scientific method.

Ms. Berman's art classes have been learning about recycling and the environment while creating art. Using coffee cans, sponges, old newspapers and some donated blenders, the students have produced beautiful, useful and decorative hand-made paper. Each student is urged to experiment with special blends of grasses, fibers, paper scrap and pulp to contribute to a display at the school. In addition, members of the class demonstrated their skill at the Deer Hill Open House.

Art projects are also under way at the high school. Ms. Lucas challenged her students to come up with an art/music "event, idea, happening, installation" that incorporates all five senses. They must utilize various forms of abstraction, original music scores and different media to create a total environment. Furthermore, the school musical is now up and running, with Ms. Wood and Mr. Marks producing "South Pacific." Auditions have just been completed, and performances are scheduled for Dec. 4, 5 and 6. Along the same vein, Mr. Emmons' Cohasset Drama Workshop has been in rehearsal since early September to present two one-act plays Oct. 15 and 16, that will coincide with Homecoming Weekend.

In an example of inter-departmental cooperation, Mr. Dunn, chairman of the high school math department and a practicing surveyor, visited with Mr. Antolini's Architectural Design and Pre-Engineering students. In a series of hands-on procedures, Mr. Dunn took them out onto the back field to demonstrate the instruments, the types of complex measurements, and the computations that are involved in laying out a house lot. They discovered that a 1/2 inch here, a few degrees there, and suddenly the house may not fit on the lot! Students will now examine lot plans acquired from the town assessors' office and go through the entire process of designing and building a model house for a particular lot. In addition, a planned visit from the building inspector will explore the history and purpose of zoning regulations.

Finally, 28 members of Ms. Keenan's social studies classes had the rare experience of witnessing the legal system from the inside as they travelled to Boston's Federal District Court in order to serve as jurors in the mock trials conducted by third-year Harvard Law School students and presided over by Superior and Federal Court judges. Pupils from Cohasset observed from the jurors' box, listening to testimony and cross-examination, and were then asked to deliberate as a real jury does to reach a verdict on each case. The dynamics of the debate over the verdict struck some students, as one admitted to being "steamrollered" into changing his vote, and another said, "I couldn't convince everyone of my opinion even though I know I was right!"

Kudos for the Kids: In closing I'd like to note the accomplishments of several students. First, Mike Equi spent last summer working with Ed McDonough, the Massachusetts Art Teacher of the Year, in producing a professional quality video documentary on the building of an Irish curragh (a traditional canvas-covered rowing dory). Secondly, Chris Ford is to be congratulated for receiving a four-year Chancellor's Scholarship to the University of Massachusetts as a result of his performance on a series of competitive examinations. Finally, the National Merit Scholarship Foundation has recognized Kate Barrett, Katie O'Sullivan and Kerri Souffrain as national semi-finalists on the basis of their performance on the college board tests.

CHS drama performs

Don't miss "More Than Just a Joke" on stage at 8 p.m., tomorrow Oct. 16 at the high school auditorium.The two-one act comedies kick off the Cohasset High Drama Workshop season. Tickets at the door are $5.

Please note there will be no performance tonight (Oct. 15) because of a conflict.

Spanish teens are just like Cohasset's

By Alison Cohen
Mariner correspondent

The teenage population of Scituate and Cohasset exploded three weeks ago.

Decked out in T-shirts, Levi's and Reeboks, this mini-invasion blends right in with the natives.

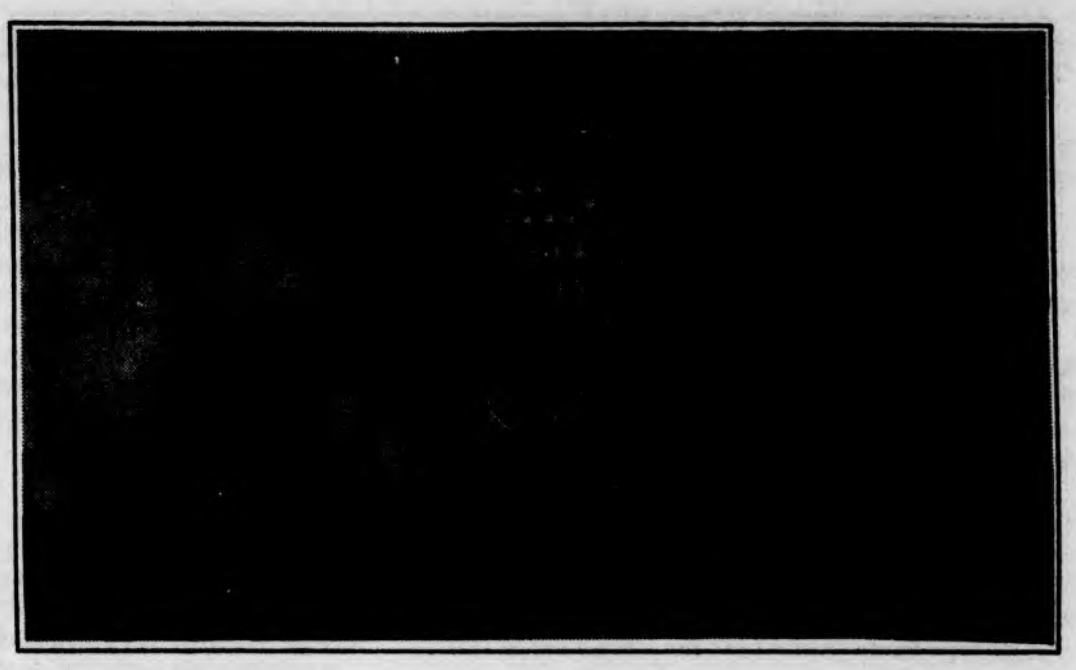
But when they speak, it's clear that 500 years after the first Spaniards landed in the Americas, another group had come to visit.

It took Columbus three ships and two months to travel from Spain to the Bahamas. The visitors traveled from their homes in Scituate and Cohasset in less than a day, thanks to the wonders of air travel.

The home-stay exchange is a joint program between Scituate and Cohasset, whose purpose is for students' to live another's culture and to learn the language through immersion, says Cohasset High Spanish teacher Joseph Federico.

Getxo — pronounced "Getcho" — is in northern Spain in the Basque region.

Language apart, relatively little separates the Spanish teens from their Scituate and Cohasset counterparts. They watch American television shows dubbed in Spanish, see American-made films at the movies, and buy records by American musicians.



Even language presents no real barrier to communication. Most of the students have been taking English for three-to-five years. Although they lapse into Spanish to discuss possible answers to questions, they quickly revert to English.

During their two-week stay, the teenagers were in a constant whirlwind of activity. They attended classes at Scituate and Cohasset High Schools, toured both towns, visited Boston several times and spent a weekend in the Big Apple.

Two days were spent making a video of Cohasset and Scituate which (once transferred to the European system) can be shown to the folks back home.

All were impressed with how "beautiful" Cohasset is and the "amount of ground around a house."

The students said their classes are noisier back home because of the increased numbers of students in the room.

They also noted that in the Basque region, students call the teachers by their first names.

During trips to the mall, the students stocked up on Levis and Reeboks, which cost about a third as much on this side of the Atlantic.

The teenagers stayed with local host families in both towns.

Federico said the exchange program tries to match up American and Spanish kids with similar interests.

Scituate and Cohasset kids will get a chance to visit Getxo during the second-half of the exchange during February vacation.

(Staff writer, Mary Ford also contributed to this report).

PSO calendar is here

The popular PSO (Parent School Organization) calendar for the 1992-93 school year has been mailed to approximately 700 Cohasset school families. If any Cohasset resident who hasn't received one, would like a calendar there are extras at the Cohasset High School.

Thanks to all who donated. Others can send to P.O. Box 30, Cohasset, Ma.

Clippers' soccer squads continue winning ways

By Paul McAleer
Mariner Correspondent

The Cohasset High School boys' soccer team brought their record up to 7-2-1, continuing their winning ways this week picking up victories over Hull and Norton.

On Wednesday, the Skippers made a game with Hull look easy in a lopsided victory in which sophomore Ryan Freeman scored two goals and an assist and sophomore Jim Magmer and senior co-captain Joe Andrade each added a goal and an assist.

Andrade got things rolling seven minutes into the game with a goal when he was set up by fellow co-captain, junior Chris "Kondo" Kondrat.

By the end of the first half, the score was 4-0 and after halftime, Freeman added his two goals in the Skippers' four point second half effort, for a final score of 8-0.

A big key for the team was the use of the off-side trap, coach Keith Clark said.

"We came out using the off-sides trap and threw off the other team," Clark said. "We controlled the bulk of the play. They had a few chances but we stopped them."

The game on Friday at Norton was closer but the end result was the same as Cohasset put another W in the column as they cruised to a 4-1 win.

"It was a rainy day, the field was wet and muddy and that can be a problem," coach Clark said, "but we outplayed and out-shot them fairly significantly."

Junior Chuck Endris put the first number on the board twelve minutes into the first half when he was set up by Andrade, who also assisted on the next goal, scored by Chris Kondrat. Endris and senior Mike Reynolds finished off the scoring with the final two goals.

"I thought we played well. We moved the ball well, we defended well, we carried the play pretty much," coach Clark said. "They put us under some pressure in the second half but we just had to work a little harder."

Field hockey wins one, loses one

The field hockey team was looking for a return to their winning ways, after two losses and two ties the week before, and on last Wednesday, they hoped to get rolling at home against Notre Dame, a team the Skippers easily beat in their season opener, 11-0.

This wasn't the same Notre Dame team that they played in the season opener, though, coach Debbie Boswick said.

"The second time, their positioning was a little better, there was less hacking and they did much better," Boswick said of Notre Dame's first year field hockey team.

"They're in a position we were in a few years ago. Give them a few years and they'll be decent."

Cohasset came into this game looking a little lackadaisical, coach Boswick said, but about one minute into the game, they got a wake up call as Notre Dame scored.

It didn't take long for them to get back on track as junior Cilla Goff scored Cohasset's first goal about 20 seconds later. Goff contributed more to the first half action by setting up co-captain Danielle Shaughnessy, for a halftime score of 2-1.

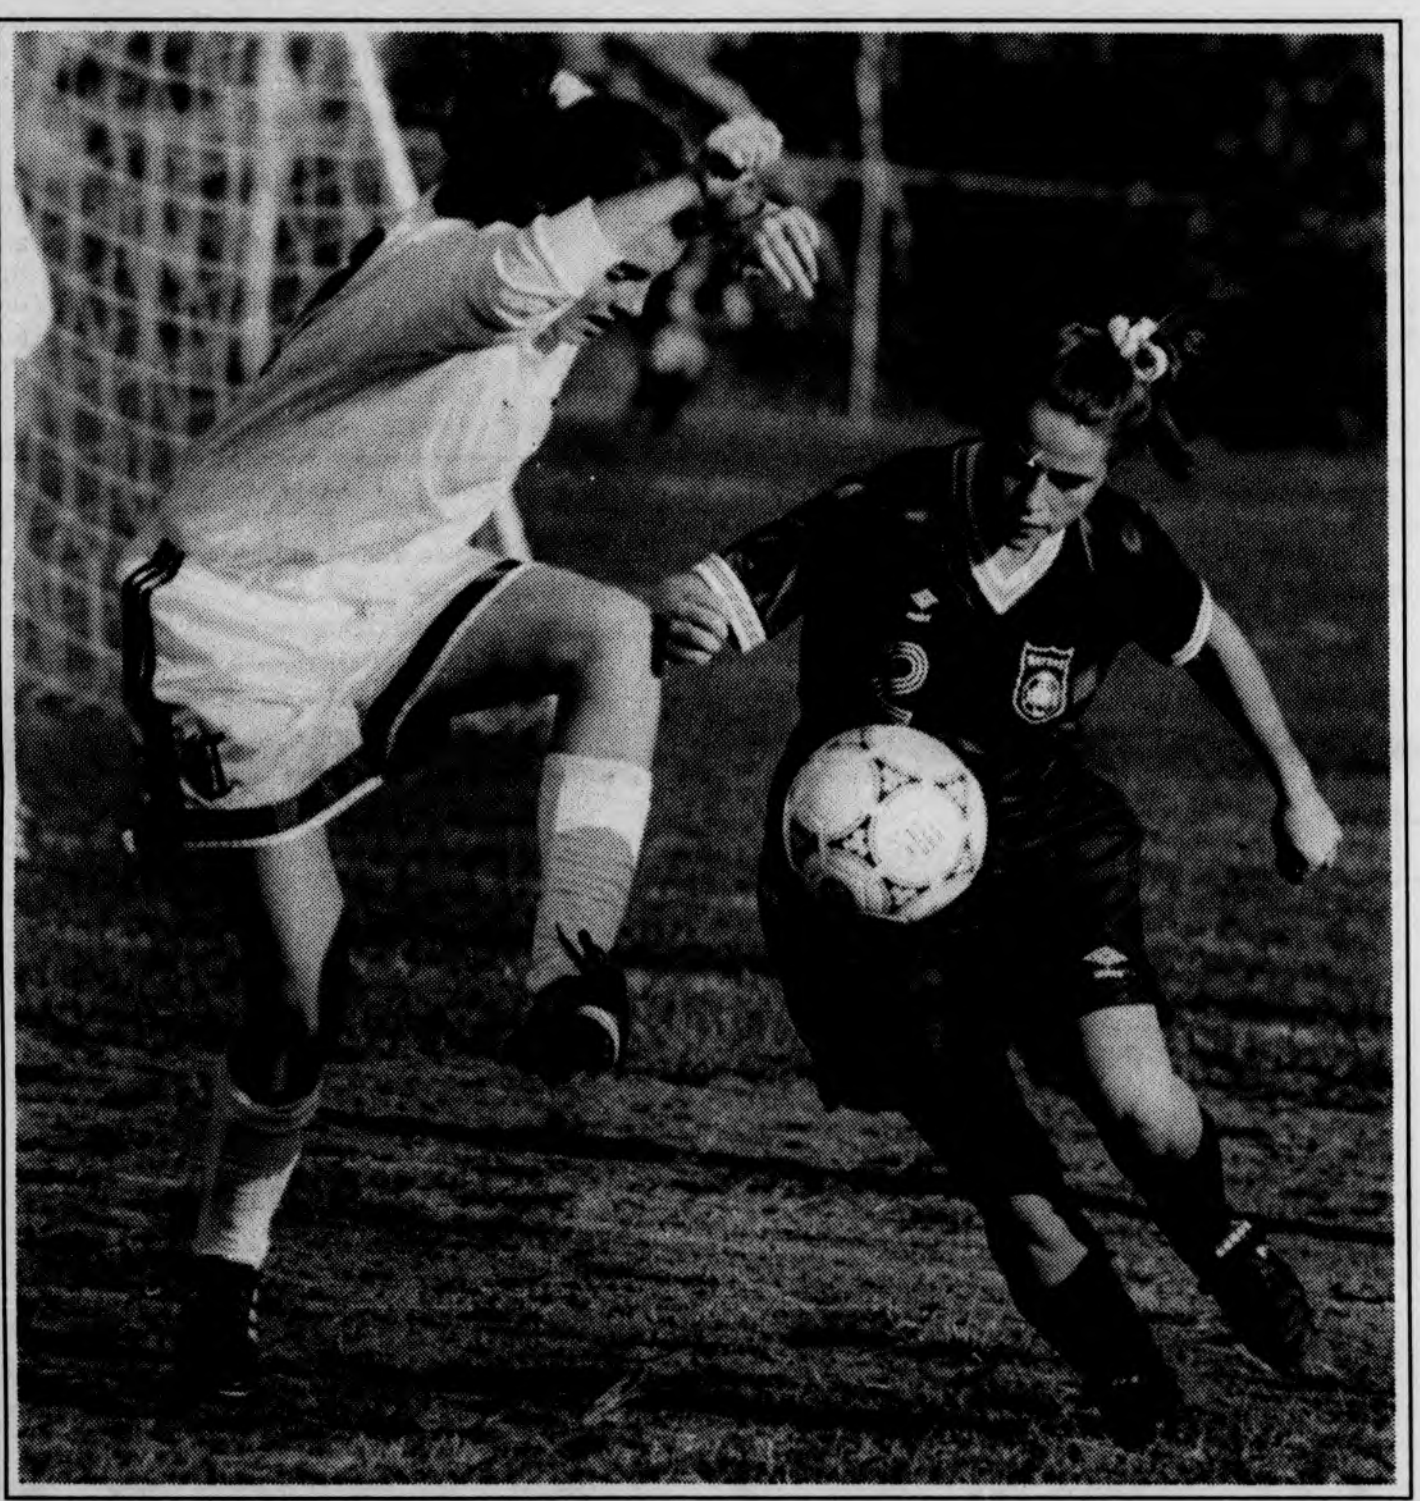
At halftime, Boswick said she told her team to open their eyes or Notre Dame was going to get them.

The team came out stronger in the second half and scored twice, one by Shaughnessy on a pass by co-captain Bridgette Corkery and the other by co-captain Caryn Murray, who scored unassisted.

Boswick also got support off her bench from juniors Julie Good, Jemilah Afshar and Megan Stauton, who turned in positive contributions in the 4-1 final, Boswick said.

"For people that get in here or there, they played a really good game."

On Thursday, the Skippers turned in an outstanding performance against Hull, Boswick said, but were also playing a much better team than Notre Dame and came away with a tie, 2-2.



"The girls were mentally prepared for this game. They made banners to get themselves psyched and there was a real good crowd," she said.

Things started off well as Cohasset got a 2-0 lead on goals by Goff and Caryn Murray but Hull came back and scored twice in the last 10 minutes of the first half.

"In the second half, it was back and forth. There would be scuffles in front of our net and then it would move out," Boswick said. "It was very intense. They would dominate in our circle for 10 minutes and then we would be back in their circle for five to seven minutes."

"I could taste a win with the way the kids played but

Boys' night out, Oct.16

The Cohasset Community Center Gymnastics program is now taking registration for the ever-so-popular "Boys and Girls Night Out."

The Boys' Night out is scheduled for Friday, Oct. 16, 6:15 to 8:15 p.m.

The Girls' Night Out is scheduled for Friday, Oct. 23, 6:15 to 8:15 p.m.

Girls and boys ages 5-11 may attend a fun-filled evening of pizza, bowling, gymnastics and contests for prizes. Cost $13 for members and $15 for non-members. Sign up early. Class size is limited. No drop ins.

There are still openings in a variety of gymnastic classes offered Monday through Saturday. Those who are not familiar with the centers' Gymnastic Program, may drop in to take a look at the complete facility.

The center now has a 30'x35' floor piece, Reflex IV Uneven bars, American Vault and High Balance Beam, and five low beams. There are teams available in the competitive Compulsory levels four, five and six. AAU Optional Levels in the spring. Ages three to adults.

Call the center at 383-0088 for more information.

Soccer teams keep on winning . . .

they didn't win and they got really upset."

Cilla Goff in particular was very upset because they had played so well and didn't win but Boswick wanted them to understand they shouldn't be so frustrated, especially since Hull is in first place in their league, Boswick said.

"They have to keep faith in themselves and play like they did today."

Girls' soccer blanks opponents

The girls' soccer team improved their record to 6-1-1 as they picked up two shutout victories, 1-0 at Nauset on Wednesday and 3-0 at home against Norton on Friday.

The only goal of the game at Nauset came from Jen Knowles off a corner kick from Erin Murphy.

"We had a few changes in that game because on the outside backs was hurt and so Jen Anstead got her first start of the year," coach Kennan Startszel said.

Possibly even more impressive was the play of senior goalie Jessica MacDonald who was playing goal for the first time because co-captain Allison Ludlow was having knee problems. She turned away all nine shots she faced in the Nauset game as well as all six in the Norton game.

"She was very happy about what she did and confidence is a key part of playing goal," Startszel said.

On Friday, Cohasset beat Norton after a lackluster first half in which their only goal came off an Erin Murphy kick that deflected into the net off of a Norton player, he said.

In the second half, Murphy started the assault with a goal 10 minutes into the half on a pass by Tammy Maitlin and Murphy assisted on the final goal of the game by Jen Knowles.

"She's (Murphy) our main plug but she wasn't being selfish enough in the first half," Startszel said.

Ray Jones returns

The football saw the return of senior tailback Ray Jones and the team chalked up its first victory of the season on Sunday as they rolled over St. Clement's by a score of 27-8.

Jones rushed seven times for 178 yards and three touchdowns, scored on 64, 40 and 34 yard plays.

Homecoming is Saturday

This Saturday is Homecoming. The field hockey team will start off the festivities at 9 a.m. against West Bridgewater. At 10 a.m., the girls soccer team will start their game against Nauset and kickoff will be at 1 p.m. for the football team, who are taking on Carver. The final game of the day will be at 3:30 p.m. when the boys' soccer team takes on East Bridgewater.

Register for baseball

Registration for the 1993 Season of Cohasset Little League and Pony League takes place on Tuesday, Oct. 27, at Deer Hill School from 7 to 9 p.m.

AARP to meet

The next meeting of the South Shore Chapter #1139 of the American Association of Retired Persons is Thursday, Oct. 22, at noon at the Sons of Italy Hall, Route 3A, Hingham.

This is the annual "Candidates' Corner" meeting. Brown bag it. Bring your own sandwich. Coffee and dessert will be available. Meet the political candidates in person before the election.

Any member of the National AARP or NRTA may join a chapter and is welcome at this meeting.

Alzheimer's talk set

The Alzheimer's Disease Support Group of the South Shore sponsors Attorney Wendy Crawshaw of Crawshaw and Lesser of Wellesley who will speak on "Legal Issues for Alzheimer Families" Wednesday, Oct. 21 at 7:30 p.m. at the Hersey House, 299 North St., Hingham.

The program includes information on guardianship, powers of attorney, trusts and Medicaid Assistance for long-term (nursing home) care.

Financial and legal planning are extremely important factors in the care and quality of life of both patient and family. As planning should be done several years in advance, this program is planned to make families aware of their legal options, including guardianship, conservatorships, trusts and other instruments in making informed decisions.

ADSGSS meets monthly at the Hersey House for educational programs and peer support. All meetings are free and open to the public. Call 617-749-5417 for more information.

Rita Sanford leads line dancing at town hall last week. Line dancing is just one of many activities on offer for Cohasset's senior citizens. For more information, please call the Council on Aging at 383-9112.

STRESS & COPING

Stress in one form or another is always with us. Often the problem is not the stress but how well we cope with it.

Stress can produce physical symptoms or worsen existing medical conditions.

Examples would be:

• Panic Disorder • Anxiety • Depression

We have had 8 years experience on the South Shore successfully treating these and other stress related problems.

The time to do something about these stressors is always now.

Lead dust hazard leads to employee backlash

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Town Counsel Richard A. Henderson muzzled selectmen Monday after employees at town hall threatened a class action suit against the town.

Henderson's advice followed 45 minutes of charges that Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon was not responsive to town hall employees' concerns about exposure to lead paint dust emanating from painters' sanding the exterior of town hall last week.

Carol Oteri-Puffer, administrative secretary for the health board, said her symptoms included pressure in her head, sneezing, tightness of her jaw and teeth and muscular aching/tenseness in her neck.

She said other employees reported sneezing, blowing blood and catarrh.

"It was like a mist floating through the air conditioning," Oteri-Puffer said about the dust in the health office. "And there is a young woman in her reproductive years (in town hall) and no one here would address the issue."

Health Agent Dr. Joseph Godzik was away from town hall when Oteri-Puffer started to feel ill.

Sanding the paint, which was later found to contain lead, began Tuesday, Oct. 13.

Cohasset High cheerleaders Amie Mitchell, Jill DuMoulin, Melissa Vanderwoerf, Larissa Huskins, Kim Ward, and Karla Kennedy lead cheers at last Friday's Homecoming pep rally in the gym. The football team fell 18-7 to the Carver Crusaders Saturday but both the girls' and boys' varsity soccer teams beat their Homecoming opponents. For more photos, please see page 16. Jonathan Livingston Square gets convenience store

Confusion over what type of store is intended at Jonathan Livingston Square nearly derailed plans to reopen a convenience store in the plaza.

It was only after repeated pleas by shopping center owner Thomas J. Cummings that selectmen in a 3-2 vote approved a liquor license for the site, which was formerly Roberts Food Mart.

A victim of circumstances, Cummings could not attend the public hearing on the matter last week.

"I was out-of-town with screwed up airline tickets," he said.

So Cummings' brother, Paul Cummings, a Realtor in Springfield, appeared at the liquor license hearing on his brother's behalf.

But Paul Cummings mistakenly told the board last week that his brother intended to open solely a beer and wine store.

"I do not intend to open a separate beer and wine store," Cummings said Monday. "I plan to open a store similar to Roberts Food Mart only a little bigger.

"This is not a trick. I intend a full convenience store," he said.

Cummings, an attorney, said he did not want to make the investment in a convenience store unless he could sell beer and wine.

"It will take the entire concept (convenience and beer

George Marlette gets the gavel

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Ending two weeks of suspense, selectmen appointed George L. Marlette III, chairman of the registrars of voters, as interim town moderator.

Marlette holds the post until the April town election.

The board had been in a quandary after two qualified candidates came forward for the position vacated by William D. Weeks, who stepped down after 12 years.

Appeals board chairman Myrna Putziger also applied for the post. Both Marlette and Putziger are attorneys.

After interviewing the candidates 2-1/2 weeks ago, Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle suggested the board split the interim post, letting each candidate take a town meeting. The special town meeting is Nov. 16 and the annual town meeting is in April.

Habitat's work at Bates House begins

South Shore Habitat for Humanity is tackling the problem of affordable housing in the area.

And it's accomplishing its goal — one house at a time — without government bureaucracy or money.

Now Cohasset joins Weymouth, where Habitat volunteers recently built a house, in offering affordable home ownership to local residents.

Voters in Braintree, Abington and Norwood decide whether to sell lots of land to Habitat at town meetings this fall.

About 50 citizens took part in the house-raising dedication at the Bates House, Saturday.

Last year selectmen agreed to sell the Elm Street property to a non-profit entity for the development of affordable housing after town meeting passed a resolution endorsing the idea.

In August South Shore Habitat bought the property for $1.

At the dedication ceremony, Michael Keneally, president of the non-profit volunteer organization, said the group accepts no government funds.

"Rather than sitting back and listening to the presi-

Defense is tough despite Skipper loss

By Paul McAleer
Mariner Correspondent

Tailback Ray Jones rushed for 63 yards, a touchdown and walked away with a crown after halftime but left with a loss after Cohasset fell to Carver by a score of 18-7 on Saturday's homecoming game.

The Skippers, 1-4, got off to a 7-0 lead on Jones' first half touchdown but weren't able to hold it against a Carver team that was very scrappy, hustled off their blocks and made good second efforts off their blocks, coach Ted McDermott said.

McDermott said the Cohasset offense had good schemes but made some mistakes.

"We had our opportunities, even in the fourth quarter," he said. "We could not capitalize, though."

"Defensively, although we were able to shut them down, we were on the field too long. We weren't giving

Cohasset's week

Absentee ballots available

Absentee ballots are now available at the town clerk's office for the State Election on Tuesday, Nov. 3. You may apply for an absentee ballot if you will be out of town, have a physical disability or because of religious beliefs.

Absentee voting may be done in the office of the town clerk during regular business hours until noon Nov. 2. A written signed request for a ballot may be sent to the town clerk and one will be mailed out. Included on the application should be your name as registered, your registration address, precinct, the address to which you wish the ballot sent and your signature. Applications may also be picked up at the office. The town clerk's office will be closed at noon Nov. 2 in preparation for the election.

If you need further information, please call the town clerk's office at 383-9900 ext. 105, 106 or 107.

One-day license granted

Selectmen issued a one-day liquor license to the Cohasset Community Center to host the annual PSO Monte Carlo Night fund-raiser, Nov. 7.

"The event will be supervised by community center people and we expect it to go smoothly as they always have," said David McMorris, a director at the community center and applicant for the license.

The liquor will arrive at 6:30 p.m., and be removed by 1:30 a.m., McMorris said in his application. The hours of Monte Carlo Night are from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Quarterly taxes due

The second quarterly Fiscal 1993 real estate and personal property tax bills are due in our office no later than 4:30 p.m., Monday, Nov. 2. Postmark dates will not be accepted. No exceptions.

A number of bills have been returned to our office because of improper mailing addresses. Any property owner who has not received a tax bill should contact the Collector's office at the Town Hall, 383-9900, extension 113. Failure to receive a tax bill does not waive payment of the tax and does not excuse the homeowner from interest charges on payments received after the due date.

The mailing address for tax payments is: Treasurer-Collector's Office, P. 0. Box 296, Cohasset, 02025. For those taxpayers who wish to pay their taxes in person, office hours for the week of Oct. 26 are: Monday through Wednesday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 7 p.m.; and Friday. 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.. Monday, Nov. 2, the due date, our hours will be 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

If you have any questions please call 383-9900, extension 113.

Acting chiefs appointed

Sgt. Robert Jackson was appointed acting police chief Monday by selectmen for the weeks of Nov. 1 and Nov. 9 per the existing collective bargaining contract while Chief Joseph Kealey is on vacation.

Selectmen also appointed Sgt. Robert Silvia as acting fire chief while Chief John Nadeau attends the Society of Executive Fire Officers Symposium Oct. 23-29 in Bakersfield, Calif. Nadeau is paying his own expenses for the trip.

Halloween storage ok'ed

Selectmen gave permission for the Cohasset Community Center Nursery School to temporarily store Halloween fair equipment on the Town Hall lawn, Oct. 25.

The annual event promises to be a hit, Lynne Sheridan of the nursery school said.

"The Halloween fair has become a great celebration for toddlers, preschoolers, and young school children. Attendance at the fair has grown considerably," Sheridan said in her application.

The fair runs from 1 to 3 p.m., on the town common.

Benefit walk set

The Multiple Sclerosis Society will sponsor its first benefit walk in Cohasset at 1 p.m. March 28.

The 10-Kilometer walk will follow the same route as the annual road-race sponsored by the Cohasset Rotary Club.

Selectmen gave organizers permission to conduct the race and will also allow the group to use the town hall auditorium for registration and the parking lot for a barbecue and port-a-toilet facilities.

"Everything will be done and cleaned up by 5:30 p.m.," said Lori Besagai, a coordinators of the event.

Besagai said the MS Society anticipates the event will attract about 100 walkers.

Liquor violations hearing

Selectmen set a public hearing relative to allegations of alcoholic beverages violations at With Richards, Inc., 234 Hull St. for Nov. 2 at town hall.

Insurance contract awarded

Cohasset will save about $70,000 in property and casualty insurance costs next year with the new three-year commitment awarded to Richard Insurance brokerage firm for Great American.

Three companies submitted bids, said Samuel Wakeman, chairman of the insurance advisory committee.

Richardson'z bid of $178,837 was about $12,000 less than the next lowest bidder.

"(With Richardson) there's a $60,000-$70,000 savings over what we had the previous year," Wakeman said.

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle was concerned about the lack of flood insurance in the new policy for the sewage treatment plant.

Wakeman said the town can pick up special flood insurance on the plant for $2,000-$3,000. But he said that the insurance advisory committee did not think there would be substantial damage to the building if there were a flood.

"We're not talking about a pollution situation (should there be a flood affecting the plant), because we have no coverage for that," Wakeman explained.

The policy also provides a total cap of $1 million per year with a $10,000 deductible in what Wakeman described as "primarily a legal defense policy" for all elected and appointed town officials except the school board which has its own policy.

Other bids were $191,339 from Hastings-Tapley agent for the Massachusetts Interlocal Insurance Agency (MIAA) a cooperative of many towns; and $220,016 from Mahoney and Wright agent for United Community, which holds the town's current policy.

Lead dust hazard . . .

Oteri-Puffer said it was two days later on Thursday when workers on staging were sanding the exterior of her office that she experienced drastic discomfort as the dust came through the air conditioner which was off.

"It was like a mask onto my face," she said about the dust.

Oteri-Puffer said at a staff meeting three weeks ago, when the painting of town hall was brought up, she asked if the paint would be tested for lead and "was blatantly ignored" by Doyon.

Oteri-Puffer, who is president of the Konohasset Clerical and Custodial Union, demanded selectmen authorize payment for blood tests for lead paint exposure for employees who are concerned about their health.

She also asked for an air-quality test to be performed at town hall and presented the board with a petition signed by 12 employees demanding copies of all documents concerning the 1992 painting of town hall.

Jackie McGuire of the town clerk's office said employees were complaining of sore throats and irritating eyes.

She said Doyon ignored "the whole question" and she said Building Inspector Robert Egan called the employees "hysterical women."

"What hurts us most is no one cared enough to stop it," McGuire said.

Reached by telephone Egan denied saying "hysterical women."

In a letter to the board, Treasurer/Collector Elizabeth Ripley said the only information forwarded to employees during four days of sanding was to keep the office windows closed.

"By last Thursday (Oct. 15) my staff and I were experiencing itchy and watery eyes, headaches and dry, irritated throats," she wrote. Ripley also said it wasn't until the following Monday that employees were informed the exterior of the building tested positive for lead paint.

"I am very disappointed about the lack of communication that existed between the selectmen's office and town hall employees regarding this potentially dangerous situation and that you show such little concern for our health and safety," Ripley said.

Selectmen said the painting contract stipulates that the contractor is responsible for all precautions regarding hazardous materials.

"The contract was clearly not followed and we have to deal with it," Selectman Michael H. Sullivan said.

Oteri-Puffer said the matter is not going to go away.

"It's either employees vs. the contractor or employees vs. the town. You may be dealing with a class action suit here," she said.

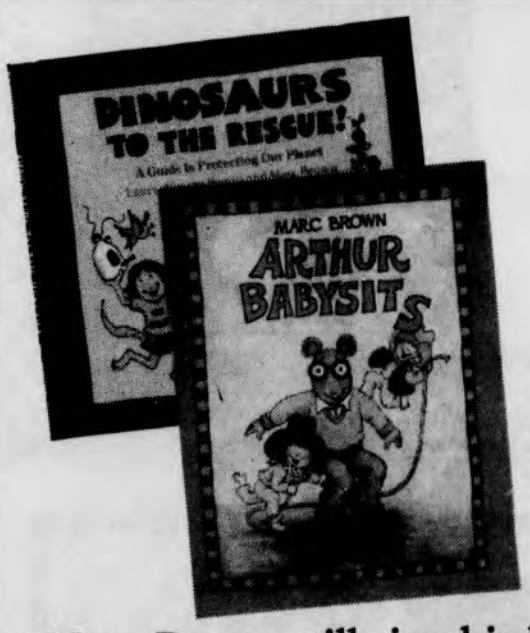
Henderson said the contract is clear and the town should not be blamed.

Experts say even low levels of lead, which is considered very toxic by the EPA, can be harmful because it accumulates in the body.

Godzik said Tuesday that the contractor has stopped sanding and is now scraping the paint off. The grass is also being covered and debris is being removed, he said.

Egan said the sanding had been done with small machines on the edges.

"I'm no expert on it, but it seemed like a reasonable way to prepare the surface," he said.



Selectmen unanimously approved payment for blood tests. The board also decided to investigate the incident.

Selectmen recently awarded the town hall repainting project to Paul Gentile who was the low bidder at $11,985. Doyon said the bid met the specifications for the project.

dential candidates' plans to solve our problems, you can do something here and make a difference to two families," Keneally told the crowd.

Habitat, which formed in 1985 in Massachusetts and has 700 affiliates across the country, will hold the mortgage to the property. No interest will be charged.

The house will be transformed into two housing units which will be sold at cost for $50,000 each. Principal payments will be about $210 a month, plus taxes and homeowner's insurance.

Payments on the mortgages are recycled as an ongoing fund to finance additional home construction or renovations.

The first floor unit will be handicapped accessible for a family that is facing both financial and physical challenges, Keneally said.

Selectmen Chairman Jane Goedecke said the project shows what can be done when government gets out of the way.

"There's been so much talk lately about government as an obstruction; government as a hindrance," she said. "But this is the best example of what government can do as a facilitator of good ideas."

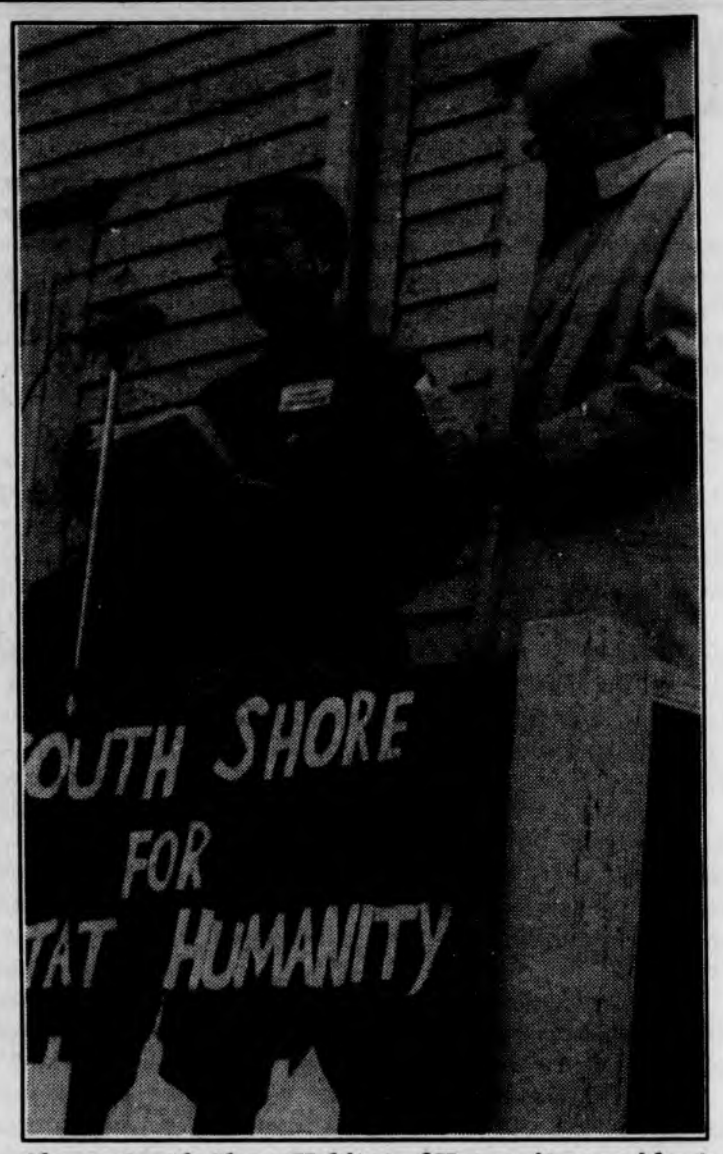
Habitat director, Mary Pottle, secretary of the fair housing committee in Weymouth, said Cohasset was "embarking on a wonderful adventure.

"It's wonderful to be doing something right," she said. "Be like an express train without breaks — come on board, get involved."

Pottle said Habitat faces the fiscal challenge of raising enough money to build five new homes a year.

"Do the arithmetic, it's frightening," she said.

The Bates project is estimated to cost Habitat $100,000 in materials.



The group has planned two events. Thursday, Oct. 22, the Cohasset Dramatic Club holds a benefit performance of "Wait Until Dark" and Habitat sponsors a volleyball and basketball competition Nov. 21 at Cohasset High School.

In addition to cash, professional services are also needed.

So far, architects James Sandell of Carr, Lynch, Hack and Sandell in Cambridge and Steven Devine of Shevalier Associates in Taunton donated the architectural drawings; Paul Barry of Cohasset Heights Landfill is providing a 30-yard dumpster and offered transportation and removal of all demolition materials throughout the project; and Joe Conley and Plumbers Union #12 of Boston will donate all plumbing labor.

At Saturday's ceremony, Rev. Edward Atkinson of the First Parish Church gave the invocation; Rev. John Keohane of St. Anthony's Catholic Church read from the scriptures; and the benediction was provided by Rev. Clifford Cutler of St. Stephen's Church.

Above, South Shore Habitat of Humanity president Michael Keneally leads the dedication of the Bates House, Saturday. Rev. Edward Atkinson of the First Parish Church gave the invocation. Left, Sumner Smith of King St. doesn't waste any time getting to work on the interior of the Bates House, being renovated into affordable housing units by volunteers. (Staff photos/Mary Ford)

Also on hand were Congressman Gerry Studds, state Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray; congressional candidate Republican Dan Daly; and several current and former town officials.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Philip Murphy, CRS, GRI

WRONG PRICING LOGIC

QUESTION: Why do so many homeowners go wrong when they try to set a realistic selling price?

ANSWER: ...Most people base their price tags on these factors: original price, cost of improvements, hoped-for profit and what they think similar homes are bringing. The original price, improvements, and hoped-for profit only determine whether you gain or lose, but they have nothing to do with the right price to produce a sale. Prices of other homes? Most of the time you only hear of the asking price, not the selling price.

Solution: Consult a local Realtor whose business it is to KNOW how much property can and will bring.

New convenience store planned for Square and wine) to be successful," he explained.

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle said he wanted to to wait until the convenience store was set up before granting the liquor license.

"Then I'd be the first to make the motion for a license," said Laugelle, adding in his view a beer and wine store would not be viable at that location.

Cummings reiterated that he intended to open a full convenience store but he could not justify spending big bucks to set the store up without the license.

"You asking me to go out and spend $100,000 just to prove to you I'm entitled to a liquor license?" Cummings asked.

Merchants at the square say the popular food mart, destroyed by fire last April, was a big draw and therefore helped their businesses.

Cohasset Chamber of Commerce president Robert Martin urged selectmen to grant a liquor license to Cummings.

"The owner has suffered a loss; other tenants are suffering because of lack of traffic...this is an opportunity to improve the situation," Martin said.

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke was concerned about the management of the new store because Paul Cummings stated last week that his brother would look for a new manager as soon as possible.

Goedecke noted that it is difficult to transfer licenses to a new manager when there is a going concern.

"I hope we don't see a request for change of manager very soon," she said. "I'm feeling a little bit used in this process; I'm not feeling great about the decision."

In a 3-2 vote selectmen granted the license with selectmen Laugelle and Martha K. Gjesteby voting against approval.

Gjesteby said she was not against the store but wanted to see more complete plans before granting the license.

Cummings successfully broke his lease with William Roberts, owner of Roberts Food Mart, in an Aug. 13 court action because he said Roberts had abandoned the business following the April 24 fire.

The early morning blaze, which is of suspicious origin, caused an estimated $150,000 in damage to the food mart and neighboring businesses. No one was injured in the fire.

Police are seeking an indictment from the district attorney against Roberts after test samples taken from the convenience store showed traces of gasoline.

In September, selectmen revoked Roberts liquor license because they said Roberts had abandoned the business.

Town moderator

Then the following week after Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby questioned the board's authority to appoint an interim moderator under state law — the board tabled making a decision until the legal issue could be clarified.

In a four-page decision, Town Counsel Richard A. Henderson said the board does have the legal authority and responsibility to make the appointment. Only if the board fails to reach a decision would the matter be left up to the floor of town meeting or a special election, he said.

Although Gjesteby was one of three members voting for Marlette's appointment, she said the decision should be left up to the town.

"They were both very good candidates but I still want it to be up to the town," she said in a telephone interview.

At the meeting Selectmen Michael H. Sullivan, who nominated and voted for Putziger, cited her experience in town government.

Chairman Jane O. Goedecke also voted for Putziger.

Goedecke said she voted for Putziger because "of her ability to mediate difficult situations."

Goedecke said she had not had the opportunity to see Marlette in action.

"So I voted for the person I knew in fact could do the job," she said.

At the meeting Selectmen Gjesteby, Rocco F. Laugelle, and Merle S. Brown did not state the reasons for their votes.

Rebuking the Mariner, Laugelle angrily asserted it was inappropriate to ask why he voted a certain way.

Gjesteby was reached later for comment.

She noted that in the candidate interviews Marlette favored continuing to televise town meeting live — a position she also supports — and Putziger had reservations about televising live stating that in her opinion it hurts attendance.

SAT scores are well above average

By Chris Kukk
Mariner correspondent

The Cohasset class of 1992 is considerably ahead of many classes on both the national and state level when it comes to the S.A.T.'s.

The Cohasset class of 1992 out performed the Massachusetts' general score on the verbal section of the Scholastic Aptitude Test by 62 points and the national score by 67 points. The average verbal score for Cohasset was 490 out of a possible 800 while the Massachusetts and national average scores were 428 and 423 respectively.

In terms of the math average scores, Cohasset furthered its difference and out scored the national average by 71 points and the Massachusetts' score by 73 points. Cohasset's average math score was 547 compared to the national score of 476 and the state score of 474.

Cohasset students have not only "out-tested" many state and national student bodies but have also continually increased their own scores in both the math and verbal sections of the S.A.T. over the last five years with slight fluctuation. For example, Cohasset's 1988 average verbal and math scores were 476 and 511 respectively.

As discussed in the school committee meeting on Oct. 15 , many factors could have accounted for such stellar performances in standardized testing throughout the grades and over the years which include the Educational Records Bureau tests taken in grades 2 through 11.

One of the more interesting factors was explained by Jack Leary in which a "relative weakness" is targeted by the school system and then "worked on" by the teachers through a focused approach on the subject.

What is interesting, is that although the "relative weakness" may be something that Cohasset students did better than both the national and state averages, it was in a specific subject (i.e. vocabulary) that they themselves scored lowest in when compared to the rest of their own scores.

One could find many school systems wishing to have that as their only weakness.

Hats off to the students, teachers, and often forgotten administrators for a standardized testing record that Cohasset can be proud of.

around town

❑ We begin with two wonderful announcements, there are two brand new baby girls "around town." Welcome to Kaci Madeline Kucinski, daughter of Nancy (Babine) and Hank Kucinski. Kaci was born October 2 at 8:14 a.m. at South Shore Hospital. She weighed in at 7 lbs. 2 ozs.

❑ Sept. 20 at 10:15 Pamela Duddy came into the world. Pamela was also born at South Shore Hospital, and she weighed 5 lbs 7 ozs. You can bet that Mom, Donna, and Dad, Paul, are thrilled, and what about Pamela's grandparents?!! Her maternal grandmother is Isabella Verrier of Quincy, her paternal grandparents are Paul and Margaret Duddy Sr. of Quincy. Congratulations to you all.

Jake Berger, 5, of Cohasset shows his stance at a Skippers' football game. Jake hopes to follow his brothers, Ben and Jonah, who play for the Skippers and older brother Matt who was the 1990 Skippers' team captain.

Benched! Jake Berger warms the bench as he watches the Skippers' football game.

❑ Don't forget to mark Saturday, Nov. 7 on your calendar. It's Monte Carlo Goes to Sea night at the Community Center and will feature blackjack, craps and roulette, a live auction and silent auction, door prizes, cruise line cuisine and a cash bar. Tickets are $20 per person (includes a $5 start-up stake). The PSO has done this for seven years now so they sure do know what they are doing!

Go, and have fun. And, you will be supporting the PSO.

❑ Hats off to Cohasset's own Joe Godzik. He was recently re-elected president of the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association at its annual meeting. Dr. Godzik is the director of the board of health in Cohasset and a veterinarian. The Association is to prevent and control lung disease. We are lucky to have such a fine man and hard worker in our community, working with us to better it.

❑ Did you know that the National Merit Scholarship Foundation has recognized Kate Barrett, Katie O'Sullivan and Kerri Souffrain as national semi-finalists on the basis of their performance on the college board tests?

Great work gals, it sure pays off to study hard!

❑ Don't forget, this is the Saturday (Oct. 24) that we set the clocks back one hour...Yippee,one more hour of sleep!!

❑ Please call me with your newsworthy events, don't forget!!

Sallyann Chatterton

❑ Rebecca A. Kirk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Kirk, and Kristine A. Pozatek, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Zigmunt W. Pozatek, have begun their college careers at Middlebury College in Vermont.

Upon arrival at Middlebury, incoming freshmen spent three days taking placement exams; attending presentations regarding the College's 38 major departments of study; and getting to know other students through a variety of social and cultural activities.

They are currently enrolled in programs of study that will provide broad exposure to a variety of disciplines through a unique series of first year seminars and other courses prior to the selection of a major sophomore year.

During their first few weeks at Middlebury, Rebecca and Kristine were able to take part in a variety of special activities highlighted by a four-day Symposium on 1492-1992 examining the history, mythology and cultural impact of Columbus.

Students also helped to welcome a new president at Middlebury and to participate in his inauguration.

Have a great year, and why not write us and let us in on some college news?

❑ One more bit of college news...the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce's "Little Piece Of Home" packages went out the 15th — you can imagine how much the freshmen at all of the colleges love them, and what their dorm-mates must think of the gesture. Be sure to thank a member of the Chamber when you see them, and thank the donors too.

❑ We are happy to report that Millard MacNeill is home from the hospital and feeling better every day. Keep up the good work!!

❑ Hats off to all that contributed to making the Homecoming weekend such a special one last Saturday. Even the weather cooperated, all the teams did well, and a grand time was had by all!!

❑ Congratulations to Christian Ford, a senior at CHS who has been selected a winner in the University of Massachusetts at Amherst's Chancellor's Talent Award Program competition for 1993. The students receiving this award have demonstrated high academic achievement both in high school and on the standardized tests.

Christian will be offered a four-year waiver of tuition if he enrolls there.

Spread the good news! Call Sallyann Chatterton with your Around Town items.

Earle Goodrich

Earle A. Goodrich, of Cohasset, a retired Air Force lieutenant colonel who was awarded the Silver Star and Bronze Medal, died Oct. 8 at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth.

A veteran of World War II, Mr. Goodrich retired in 1966 from the Air Force after 26 years of service. During the war, he was a B-17 bomber commander in India, the Middle East, and Africa. Mr. Goodrich was one of the first heroes to return after 21 bombing missions.

Mr. Goodrich also was a former employee of Western Electric Co., where he worked during his college years.

After his retirement from the military, he worked as an administrative officer for the chemistry department at MIT for four years.

He was a member of Konohasset Masonic Lodge, Retired Officers and Air Force Organization and Cohasset Golf Club.

Mr. Goodrich was a deacon at Second Congregational Church in Cohasset.

His hobbies included golfing, skiing, sailing, and bowling.

A native of Palatka, Fla., he grew up in Cambridge, graduating from Rindge Technical School. Mr. Goodrich attended Northeastern University and graduated from Boston University and Syracuse University with a master's degree. He moved to Cohasset more than 40 years ago.

He leaves his wife, Aylsa (Tibbets) Goodrich; two sons, Earle A. Goodrich Jr. and Mark E. Goodrich; a daughter, Laurie G. Cleveland; and three grandchildren.

The Rev. Gary Ritts officiated at a funeral service Oct. 13 in the Second Congregational Church. Burial was in Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

The McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer St. handled the arrangements.

Donations may be made to the Second Congregational Church Memorial Fund, 15 Highland Ave., Cohasset 02025.

Cynthia MacKay Bell

Cynthia MacKay Bell, 23, of Bridgewater, New Hampshire, formerly of Cohasset, died Oct. 18 at Dartmouth Medical Hospital in Lebanon, N.H. after a long illness.

She was a student at Haverford College in Haverford, Pennsylvania.

Miss Bell was raised in Cohasset and was a graduate of Cohasset High School.

She was born in Boston.

She leaves her parents, William F. and Joan (Hoxsie) Bell of New Hampshire; four brothers, William, David, Donald, and Douglas; her grandmother, Effie M. Hoxsie; and eight nieces and nephews.

A memorial service will be held at 4 p.m. Sunday at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church. Burial was at Riverside Cemetery, Alexandria, N.H.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made in Cindy's name to Bristol Community Services Inc., 4 N. Main St., Bristol, N.H. 03222.

Funeral arrangements were made by the Emmons Funeral Home, Bristol.

Mark Donovan

Mark A. Donovan, 53, of Cohasset, died Monday, Oct. 19 at his home following a brief illness.

Born in Boston and raised in Brookline, he graduated from Boston College High School, Class of 1957, and Georgetown University. He was a resident of Cohasset for the past 14 years.

Mr. Donovan was an executive in the planning and developing department of The Flatley Company, a firm he has been associated with for the past 20 years. Prior to his Flatley association, he was affiliated with BRA/Charlestown. A member of several real estate associations and the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Donovan was also active in the Seahawks Hockey Program of the South Shore, a program in which all five of his children participate.

Son of the late Dr. Arthur and Eleanor (Bruton) Donovan, family members include his wife Donna (Hannaway); four sons, Adam, Brian, Gregory, and Mark; one daughter, Caitlin, all of Cohasset; one brother, Joseph of Newton; one sister, Eleanor Driscoll of Newton.

A funeral Mass was held in St. Anthony's Church, Oct. 21. Interment was in Woodside Cemetery. Memorial contributions may be made to the Neo-Natal Intensive Care Unit, Saint Margaret's Hospital, 90 Cushing Avenue, Boston, MA 02125.

The McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer Street, Cohasset handled the arrangements.

Sound advice

Remember to turn your clocks back an hour before you go to bed Saturday night.

And as we enjoy an extra hour of sleep — we might sleep a little easier if we take the time to do some safety homework.

So we don't forget, the International Association of Fire Chiefs recommends replacing batteries in smoke detectors twice a year when we turn our clocks forward and back.

And safety officials also recommend if you don't have detectors outside every sleeping area in your home — and at least one on each level of your home (including the basement), it's time for a trip to the local hardware store.

Smoke detectors provide an early warning system. The buzzer can alert you before you can see or smell smoke.

Cohasset Fire Chief John Nadeau says that nationwide 60 percent of residential fire deaths occur in households without smoke detectors.

"Do it as a gift to your family," Nadeau says. "Installing a smoke detector doubles your chances of surviving a fire."

Studies show in many homes with detectors, residents don't replace the batteries.

The used 9-volt batteries don't have to go to waste.

"They can be pulled out and used in a calculator," Nadeau adds.

Although smoke detectors alert us to a possible fire — they don't prevent fires.

Here are the leading causes of residential fires resulting in deaths:

- Careless smoking.
- Children playing with matches.
- And faulty heating systems including furnaces, wood-burning stoves and chimneys.

So install and check those smoke detectors; don't smoke; be careful with matches; check your heating system — and the chances are you won't experience the tragedy of a fire in your home.

But even if you follow all the safety precautions, everyone should have an escape route just in case. That means all members of your family should know two ways to get out of a room.

A room can "flash over" or flame up in two minutes or less, sending toxic smoke and fumes throughout the house so there's no time to spare.

Chief Nadeau explains that smoke is filled with carbon dioxide which takes the place of oxygen in the blood which causes confusion and an inability to think clearly.

So a rehearsed escape procedure is essential.

"Stay low and crawl under smoke," the chief warns.

"Toxic gases rise, so the air is clearer and you'll see better closer to the floor," he says.

In addition, pick a check point for family members to meet outside.

If a fire strikes in your house, get out and stay out!

So remember to check those detectors and be prepared.

Let's be safe not sorry.

Get rid of wasteful packaging

To the Editor:

We're drowning in packaging! We bum and bury over two million tons of this waste every year in Massachusetts — and much of it is simply unnecessary. What's worse, it's usually made to be thrown away, so that even the most ardent recycler can't recycle it. Juice boxes for example.

The irony is that there are numerous examples of packaging which is more environmentally sound — bags, boxes, jars, cans and bottles made out of recycled material, reusable or easily recycled. We need to demand that every company that sells us packaging takes some responsibility for its environmental impacts.

The Recycling Initiative, Question 3 on the November ballot, would do just that. It is supported by a broad, bi-partisan coalition which includes all the major environmental groups in the state, Governor William Weld, community leaders, and environmentally concerned businesses.

Question 3 simply requires that most packaging used in the state meet any one of the five reduction or recycling standards by July '96 or receive an exemption. This will reduce wasteful packaging, increase recycling and create a market for the materials collected in local recycling programs.

Not surprisingly, the national plastics and packaging industries oppose Question 3. They have pledged to spend "Whatever it takes" to defeat the Recycling Initiative in November. Their arguments often remind me of the arguments against the Bottle Bill...rampant disease, economic devastation...huge bureaucracies. They were wrong then and they are wrong now.

Please join me in voting Yes on Question 3 Nov. 3.

Question 3 creates more red tape

To the Editor:

Like most Massachusetts consumers, I am concerned about the future or our state's economy. Given the current recession, the last thing we want to do is spend more money on common, everyday products that we buy in our grocery stores. Question 3, the repackaging bill on the November ballot, would do just that.

Proponents of this bill refer to it as a "recycling" initiative. Yet Question 3 would not create or fund a single recycling program or facility. Question 3 is a complicated piece of legislation that would impose packaging regulations on products used or sold in the state.

Nearly every consumer product would be affected, ranging from food and clothing to toys and electronics. Nearly every item we pick up in a grocery store would cost us more money. Question 3 would increase consumer costs by more than $500 million a year. Each household would pay, on average, an extra $230 per year. And, for all its costs, Question 3 would leave most of our solid waste — more than 90 percent — untouched.

I see Question 3 as an economic question wrapped in empty recycling rhetoric. It would create more red tape, more burdens for local businesses, fewer jobs for local employees, and more costs for all Massachusetts consumers. That's why I am voting NO on Question 3 on November 3.

Democratic process is still the best

To the Editor:

Doing "stand-outs" at the side of the highway during commuter hours for political candidates is an interesting experience. One holds a sign in one hand, while either waving at approaching cars with the other or warming it in a pocket, wondering why each 15 minutes takes an hour to go by.

Why is it that those who wave back, or honk, are the attractive women and the handsome men? One can almost sense their happy and secure relationship with the rest of the world, and predict the good day that they and those around them will have.

But why are so many commuters stony-faced, as if suffering from an inadequate love life and a cold breakfast? Why the turned-down mouths, the scowls? After all, each commuting vehicle contains people that are still employed, so at least they have that to be happy about. It doesn't seem to matter which political party is doing the stand-out, the ratio of live ones to catatonic commuters is about the same.

Some despair of the political process and of the candidates we have to choose from. Well, the democratic process can be messy, but it leaves fewer bodies and gets better long-term results than either anarchy or totalitarianism. And anybody is welcome to join in and improve the details, rather than merely complaining or disdaining. Refusing to participate, on the grounds that "They're all the same" is an admission of ignorance and irresponsibility. It's everyone's responsibility to do something to elect the candidate he or she judges to be the least worst. Don't be an empty suit!

Those who glare at those who dare to demonstrate their support for the process and for a candidate are at the opposite end of the spectrum from those who fought tyranny over the ages, to gain or to preserve freedom. But may the cheerful and responsive souls be rewarded by like response at both ends of their commute.

Tailgate party is a success

To the Editor:

Thank you to all of the football players' parents who participated in making the Homecoming Tailgate Party a success.

Question 3 proponents formalize

A South Shore campaign committee has formed to promote the passage of Question 3, the recycling initiative on the Nov. 3 ballot.

District coordinator Debbie Cook of Cohasset says the group will spread the word by talking with civic and religious groups; disseminating information at stores and through leaflet drops; and appearing on local radio and television stations.

"Question 3 is the common sense solution to the state's garbage crisis," Cook says.

Governor William F. Weld is chairman of the Yes on 3 campaign. If passed, packaging in Massachusetts would be either reduced in size, reusable; made of recycled or recyclable material by 1996.

Question 3 is endorsed by the Massachusetts Audubon Society, the Sierra Club, MASSPIRG, and the League of Women Voters.

People interested in joining the campaign effort should contact Cook at 383-6313 or come to a campaign meeting at 4 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 25 at 281 King St.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

QUESTIONS	Senator Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth) 722-1646 Room 416B	Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Cohasset) 722-2800 ext.7957 Room 134
THE HOUSE AND SENATE. The House and Senate met only in informal sessions last week. Formal sessions are expected to resume after the November election. This week, "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local representatives' and senators' votes on one roll call from sessions at the end of September. There were no roll calls last week.
CONDOS...(H 6074) - House 122-27, rejected an amendment to a bill giving Massachusetts condominium associations broader powers to collect fees owed by delinquent owners. The amendment would require associations to report to banks the identity of any unit owner who owes three months or more in condo fees. Amendment supporters said this will give banks this important information so the banks can put pressure on the delinquent owners to pay the overdue fees. Opponents said this requirement goes too far and will create a bureaucratic nightmare for condo associations which are already understaffed. The House later approved the bill on a voice vote and sent it to the Senate. (A "Yea" vote is for the amendment requiring notification of banks. A "Nay" vote is against the amendment).		N
SURROGATE MOTHERS (H 1333) - Senate 29-6, gave near final approval to the bill stating that "a woman who has given birth to a child shall be deemed to be the mother" and prohibiting any agreement, signed before the child is born, from requiring the birth mother to be bound to give up the child for adoption. Supporters said this insures that surrogate mothers retain the four-day period following birth to change their minds and noted many birth mothers do in fact change their minds. Opponents said the bill is unfair to the adoptive parents and would essentially eliminate surrogate parenting guarantees. The bill later received final approval in both branches on a voice vote and was sent to Governor Weld. (A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it).	Y

Groups square off over Greenbush Railroad

By Mary Ford

Two Scituate selectmen reaffirmed that town's support for restoration of the Greenbush Line of the Old Colony Railroad last week.

"We urge the T to expedite the train's return to the South Shore corridor," said Selectman Richard Blake.

Selectman Kevin Kinsella said 75 percent of Scituate voters support the project.

But Robert Foley, 66 Station Street in Scituate, co-chairman of Scituate Citizens Against the Railroad (SCAR) said the train would damage the town's unique character.

"A town like Scituate would be adversely affected," he said. "It would turn a small fishing village into a large commuter area."

William Gray, 129 First Parish Rd. in Scituate, was concerned about the effect of future assessments on his wallet.

"Once the MBTA gets its hands in our pocket, it will never go away," he said.

State transportation officials listened quietly last week as this scenario was repeated over and over during a scoping session in which the only agreement was there was disagreement.

About 125 citizens flocked to Cohasset Town Hall Oct. 15 to provide input for the supplemental environmental impact statement/report for transportation improvements in the Greenbush line corridor.

The Federal Transit Administration (FTA) instructed the MBTA last year to study alternatives to surface rail through downtown Hingham.

The MBTA will prepare a supplemental environmental impact statement/report (SEIS/R) for transportation improvements in the Greenbush Line corridor in the coastal communities of Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, Cohasset and Scituate.

Existing transportation in those towns does not meet the corridor's needs, said Joseph M. Connor, project manager for the MBTA.

The first step in the process is to address transportation alternatives to be considered and their potential impacts, said Connor said.

Alternatives include:

- No build;
- At-grade diesel-powered commuter rail to Scituate;
- Diesel-powered commute rail to Scituate with a tunnel through Hingham square;
- Commuter boat with an expanded Hingham terminal and feeder bus service; commuter boat with an expanded Hingham terminal and new terminals in Nantasket or Quincy or both, and feeder bus service;
- Expanded bus service and park/ride lots (TSM).

Former Scituate resident Richard Prone, now of Duxbury, has commuted to Boston for 23 years.

"I'm still not adjusted to the gridlock," he said. "We need an attractive alternative and we need it quickly. I feel shortly my main concern will be staying alive long enough to see the MBTA make a decision," he said.

Cohasset Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby, who is also president of the 10-town South Shore Coalition, reaffirmed the Coalition's support for the Greenbush line.

Hingham selectmen were notably absent from the session. However, they sent a statement along with Charles Chittick, who represents the town on the MBTA advisory board.

The letter urged the MBTA to study all "prudent and feasible alternatives" to surface rail including terminating the Greenbush line at some other location.

Louis F. Eaton, Jr., 30 Beach St., Cohasset said he used to commute on the old Greenbush Line.

Eaton said at times he felt like the alternatives suggested were "like re-inventing the wheel."

He said diesel rail is "a far more cost effective and sensible mode to transport people" than other alternatives suggested.

Eaton, and others, alleged the Hingham tunnel alternative is designed "to kill the project."

Ironically Alexander Macmillan, chairman of the Hingham historical commission, who was singled out as an "obstructionist" by a Cohasset resident, spoke about coming to the table.

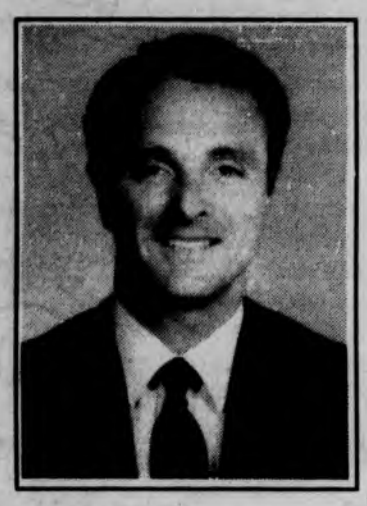
"Let's face it we have a dispute where we have conflicting interests," he said. Macmillan, who endorses the deep, bore tunnel alternative under Hingham, suggested the MBTA obtain some environmental mediation services.

"Such mediation can be helpful in solving a range of issues," he said.

The Federal Transportation Association (FTA) and MBTA will assess comments received and use them in preparing the project's final SEIS/R to be distributed by mid-1993.

Then the SEIS/R will undergo a review and comment period, and on the basis of information in the SEIS/R and comments received, the FTA and MBTA will make a determination on a preferred alternative, Connor said. That step is followed by the preparation of a Supplemental Final Environmental Impact Statement/Report.

The Executive Office of Environmental Affairs accepts comments on the scope of the SEIS/R through Nov. 6.



These can be sent to Secretary Susan F. Tierney, EOEA, 100 Cambridge St, 20th Floor, Boston 02202.

The EOEA is also looking for input into the make up of a new Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) for the Greenbush line.

State Congressional candidates

Jon Bryan

Jon Bryan, 43, thinks the 10th district needs a new face in Congress — his.

The US Air pilot and college professor from Barnstable will try again to unseat longtime Congressman Gerry E. Studds, D-Cohasset, on Nov. 3. It will be his third time out against Studds. He also faces opposition in the five-man race from Daniel W. Daly of Hingham (Republican), Michael P. Umina of Mashpee (Independent Voters Party) and Robert W. Knapp of Boston, running on the Freedom for LaRouche ticket.

Bryan disputes Studds' claim that he should be returned to Washington because of his seniority and his potential of important committee positions. "When you have turnover, you get real people in office. What we don't need is 15-20 year incumbents. We need more common people in Congress. Seventy-five percent of the people in Congress are lawyers.

"He can no longer take the position that he'll bring the pork back to the district. There is no pork. The nation's broke. We're being killed by international competition because we have terrible leadership. Congress is for sale and it will never be cleaned up until we get rid of the political action committees and lobbyists.

"I have never taken a dime from political action committees and I never will," he said. "Ross Perot flourished because people know the system is corrupt and it's not working. We have to correct the system and fundamentally change the way Washington does business. Once we do that, we can address the economy."

Bryan added that Studds' voting record hurts jobs, education and the economy. "He's been terrible for the fishing industry. It's in the worst state of decline ever. I could do a better job. If he operates at the full committee level like he operated at the subcommittee level, Lord help us all. The fishermen feel they don't have a voice. No one is listening to them."

Bryan suggested investment tax credits for small business, "like Jack Kennedy did, to immediately stimulate the economy. We also need to have federal enterprise zones. Red tape is killing our small business."

In Europe and Japan, he said, 15 to 20 percent less is spent in product liability. The Senate, he added, "killed the Product Liability Reform Act several weeks ago." American business is being asked to compete with countries like Mexico "with our hands and feet tied behind our backs."

Health care is another critical area, he said, that must be addressed. Urban and rural health clinics should be encouraged and doctors should be allowed to make clinical decisions again rather than ordering multiple tests to defend every diagnosis from malpractice suits. He favors a lottery system for diagnostic equipment like MRIs and thinks hospitals should be competitive. "I don't think they should be debilitated more than they are, but I think there are some things that others can do better."

The biggest issue in the 10th District, Bryan said, is "jobs, jobs, jobs. Studds voted 100 percent against the US Chamber of Commerce in the first session of the 100th Congress and 87 percent against issues that were important to small businesses," Bryan said.

Studds' censure, he added, "isn't an issue now. There are 435 members of Congress and only one censured Congressman. That is an issue. It has nothing to do with his sexuality.

Bryan said his campaign has always been focused on "the issues." He said he doesn't talk about Studds' censure very much, "but I do when I'm asked. Do I respect Gerry Studds? No. And neither does the body that censured him."

Daniel Daly

Daniel W. "Dan" Daly, 49, of Hingham, Republican challenger for the 10th Congressional seat, sees his experience as a small business owner and family man as assets in understanding the problems that face the citizens of Massachusetts today.

"I've created jobs, I've met mortgage payments; I've paid education bills; and I've worried about health insurance," says Daly. "Those are the things people are talking about."

Although there are five candidates in the race, the three main contenders for the seat, held for 20 years by incumbent Democrat Gerry Studds, are Studds, Daly, and Jon Bryan, an unenrolled candidate.

Daly doesn't shy away from the character issue but parts with those who would make Studds' 1983 censure by the House of Representatives a campaign focal point.

"Of course Studds' character is an issue and Studds has a problem (with the censure) — but that doesn't justify a campaign of hate," Daly notes. "You can't build a campaign philosophy around that."

Daly prefers to hit Studds on his record saying "let's separate myth from fact."

Rolling off statistics about the decline of the American commercial ship building industry and loss of contracts at the Quincy Shipyard under Studds' watch, Daly calls Studds record "a joke." If re-elected Studds will assume chairmanship of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries where he now serves in the number two spot.

"He (Studds) is good for New Bedford and good for the fishermen — tell me what else is all so exciting?" asks Daly, noting that New Bedford is no longer part of the 10th district.

If elected, Daly sees himself as part of a new "freshman class" in Congress who — whether Republican or Democrat — "will get together to accomplish something."

He favors reducing the capital gains taxes on small business as an incentive for businesses to create jobs and expand.

"If someone uses their savings, takes a risk, and is successful (in creating a business) it's a ridiculous disincentive to say 'I'll clobber you'," Daly says about the current capital gains tax rate of 35 percent.

Daly also wants to reinstitute the investment tax credit for business to encourage capital investment in big ticket items.

Bringing back the selective use of the passive-loss deduction among real estate professionals is another important part of Daly's plan to encourage business growth. The deduction was nixed in the Reagan years to stop speculators. But Daly says eliminating the deduction killed the small investor at the same time.

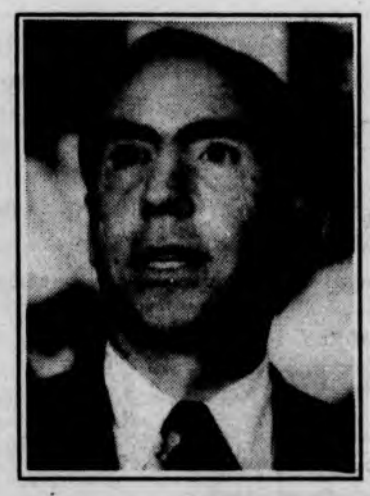
"If you own an apartment house and a donut shop — you can move losses among (your properties)," he explains. "A lot of real estate on the South Shore sure could use it (deduction)."

To get banks lending again, Daly favors prohibiting banks from foreclosing on a small business — when a property loses value — if the owner is current with interest and principal payments.

Under current loan contracts, banks can foreclose if a property drops in value and the owner cannot come up with more collateral to make up the difference.

He also wants to increase incentives for people to use individual retirement accounts (IRAs) to bolster savings. The additional savings could be used for loans to help business, Daly explains.

Daly thinks congressional terms should be increased from two-to-four years and favors term limitations of three, four-year terms for congressmen and two, six-year terms for senators.



He is against a "federally-controlled" universal health care system but supports aggressive reform of the existing system.

"People want to remove the problem without saying what they mean by a national health care system," Daly notes. "I don't think they want some bureaucrat in Washington deciding whether or not they need a by-pass."

But Daly does endorse a single, universal and federally implemented health care claims form that would cut down on administrative costs.

"Forty cents of every health care dollar is spent by government," Daly says. "Reform of the health care system will have a direct impact on government spending."

Gerry Studds

When it came time to decide whether to run for an 11th term in Congress, Gerry Studds was sorely tempted to chuck it all and go into another line of work.

A lot of his colleagues on Capitol Hill did just that.

"They're blissful," said Studds in an interview. "You can see it in their faces. The tension and the stress which was there morning, noon and night is visibly leaving their bodies.

"They are all contemplating doing something that requires many fewer hours and makes them much more money. They are thinking for the first time in years of having weekends and evenings to themselves.

"They are among the happiest of God's creatures."

Studds, who also faced the prospect of trading in one-third of his old familiar voters for new ones due to redistricting, thought about it and decided that he just couldn't let go.

"I never expected to be in Congress long enough to be chairman of a committee," said Studds, who is now acting chairman of the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee and is a certainty to win the job permanently in the 103rd Congress, if he is reelected.

"But the imminent prospect of a new president makes it a once in a lifetime shot not only to be in the thick of very major fundamental changes but to be in a leadership position in the process. Twelve years of Reagan and Bush is pretty discouraging for a member of Congress who is trying to go the other way."

Studds, who lives in Cohasset, never fails to point out in his campaign that his committee will have legislative jurisdiction over the Clean Water Act, under the provisions which the MWRA is charged with cleaning up Boston Harbor almost entirely at the expense of sewer ratepayers.

"I look at it as a national problem," he said. "We are not alone here. The city of New Bedford is under a similar court order to the tune of $500 million which the city cannot possibly afford. Eventually, the mayor may go to jail but there is no way they can pay it.

""The problems in Quincy and Weymouth and other parts of the district are the same. How in the world can communities pay for a project that is costing billions of dollars. We are coming within sight of a time when someone will have to say, 'Arrest me. We can't do it.'"

Studds answer is a bill, which he has already filed, to establish a National Clean Water Investment Trust that would be funded with $2 billion a year from the federal government, $2 billion from those industries that pollute the water and a billion in taxes on pesticide and fertilizer manufacturers.

"I'm hoping we will be able to do even better than that with a new administration," he said. "If that is Clinton we will have someone who is constantly talking about investment, specifically for bridges, roads, harbors, water and sewers.

"The simple English language translation of all those words is that, if the federal government is going to do anything to take the burden off the backs of the homeowners, those decisions will be made in the committee that IO will be chairman of."

Studds said he feels the voter revolt, the "we're mad at everything" mood reached a peak in the 1990 elections when he almost lost his seat to Republican Jon Bryan.

"There was an attitude of 'Let's send everyone a message that we are angry and we're not convinced that anybody notices so we'll get their attention by voting against them.'

"There's some of it still around but I hope that in our case we've made it clear that we got the message."

State Senate candidates

Robert Hedlund

Incumbent Republican State Senator Robert Hedlund directs voters to his record on Beacon Hill when he positions himself as an anti-tax friend of small business and taxpayers.

"I voted to repeal the tax on business services," he said.

Hedlund, 31, faces Democrat Brian McDonald in the race for the Norfolk-Plymouth State Senate seat Nov. 3.

Owner of Hedlund Motor Sales in Braintree, Hedlund said he knows first-hand the needs of the small business owner.

"The less money the government takes out of the private sector, the more spending can occur in the private sector — where meaningful job creation occurs."

Hedlund said he alleviated the tax burden on citizens by opposing legislation which would have raised the income tax and sponsored legislation to counter proposals to increase the auto insurance excise tax.

"I was the sole legislator who offered an amendment to limit what would have been a doubling in the auto excise tax," he said.

Hedlund said he was influential in passing legislation to phase out the estate tax.

"That tax was one of the worst taxes in the state," he said.

"The rich could get around it, but the middle class couldn't."

Taxpayers need my Republican approach to state government in Massachusetts, Hedlund said.

"Now there is a small margin of Republicans up there — enough to sustain veto power and fight against the tax and spenders."

Hedlund said he supports health care reform which is similar to the Hospital Finance Bill.

"It was a step in the right direction," Hedlund said, noting the bill made hospitals more competitive.

"We need to interject some free market principles into that industry."

He added that any reform package should restructure the insurance industry and reduce regulations governing health care.

"When it takes France five years to get a new drug to the market, and it takes 15 here — something is wrong," Hedlund said.

He added that he does not favor adopting a Canadian-style health care system.

Regarding education, Hedlund said he helped get more money to communities for education this year by overriding the Governor's veto.

While saying reform is needed, Hedlund opposed both the legislature's and the governor's education packages.

"I have a problem with both proposals because there is no real reform," he said.

"There is no recognition of the societal factors which affect education," Hedlund said.

He noted that 60 percent of the children now attending his grammar school, Foster School in Hingham, are from single-parent families.

"I also think the onus put on teachers for re-certification is ridiculous."

Hedlund said he supports reconstruction of the Plymouth and Middleborough lines of the Old Colony Railroad, but also supports Hingham's right to request further study of the Greenbush line.

"They are within their rights," he said.

Hedlund said he supports political reform, but is apprehensive about term limits.

"Rather than see someone's choice limited, I'd like to eliminate pensions for state legislators," Hedlund said.

"So you can truly call it public service."

The state should revert to a part-time legislative session, he said, so legislators can hold their jobs while serving state government.

He also supports campaign finance reform.

"This is from someone who ran against an incumbent who spent more money on this seat than possibly anyone else in the Massachusetts Senate," Hedlund said.

In 1990, Hedlund defeated Democrat Robert Ambler, who he said spent $250,000 on the race.

"I am one of two senators who do not take special interest or PAC money."

He said he voted for legislation affecting women.

"I voted for the mammogram bill and the stalking bill," he said.

"And it was through a Republican initiative" that money for inspection of day-care centers was appropriated, Hedlund said.

try and this state to realize a long-term economic revival a strong commitment to education will be necessary.

"Education has always been our natural resource in Massachusetts. We don't have coal and oil and minerals or timber and farm land.

"Our natural resource has always been out education system. That's what has driven our economy. We've had high tech and now a burgeoning bio-tech field as a direct result of our universities.

"I'm committed to restoring our public schools and colleges to their role as the finest in the nation."

McDonald, who turns 40 this election year, tried for the Senate two years ago and lost to longtime Rep. Robert Ambler in the Democratic primary. Ambler, in turn, lost to Republican Sen. Robert Hedlund in the general election.

This time, it's McDonald's turn at an incumbent Hedlund and it may more difficult, depending on whether the "throw the rascals out" mood of the electorate two years ago remains strong.

"I don't think it's as significant as it was in 1990," said McDonald in an interview. "I don't think it's anywhere approaching the level of frustration we were facing in this state in 1990.

"Our problems seemed so much more severe than any other part of the country two years ago. We got hit by the recession first. Now it has the whole country in its grip. It's a national problem.

"What has overtaken the 1990 frustration level today is the reality that Massachusetts just happened to be on the cutting edge of the recession. I would like to think we could be on the cutting edge of getting out of it."

McDonald said he feels history will be kind to Michael Dukakis, who has been in sort of a political purgatory since he lost a presidential bid in 1988 at the same time the economy collapsed. McDonald was a strong Dukakis supporter.

"History will rate Dukakis as an effective governor," he said. "His biggest mistake was, once the presidential campaign was over, he failed to react with enough degree of urgency in dealing with the economic problems.

"But I don't think anybody was prepared for how strong and severe the economic collapse was going to be, myself included. We put $25,000 in renovating our kitchen and the house was worth less than when we started."

McDonald said he favors a single-payer system of insuring health care, which "in Massachusetts alone would save nearly $2 billion a year in overhead costs and insurance profits" but "health care is better addressed on the federal level."

The Boston Harbor cleanup, he said, is also a federal responsibility, but "in lieu of the feds not living up to it, I think the rate structure ought to be based on what sewage is generated" which has resulted in Weymouth alone being overcharged by $2.6 million.

"One of the real issues in this campaign is who will be most able to deliver for the district," said McDonald. "The day I walk into the State House I'll be more credible than Bob Hedlund.

"He's a decent person but I just don't think he is taken all that seriously in the State House. You have to be perceived as credible in order to be a player. If you're not a player, you lose out."

Brian McDonald

Above anything else, Brian McDonald would like to become known as "the education senator."

"The big issue on all levels in this election is the state of the economy," said the former two-term Weymouth selectman who is making his second run for the State Senate.

"And in order for this coun-

'Wait until Dark' offers chills and thrills

By Chris Kukk
Mariner correspondent

"Wait Until Dark," but don't wait any longer...This is a must see!

The Cohasset Dramatic Club opens its historic 72nd season in dramatic fashion with the suspense-thriller, "Wait Until Dark."

This Frederick Knott classic Broadway thriller of a blind woman's foil of a deceptive plot by a murdering con-artist is masterfully directed by veteran director Bob Champagne and so convincingly performed by the cast of CDC that the audience is continually kept at the edge of their seats.

Sally Wright provides a stellar performance in her portrayal of the blind Susie Hendrix who's life becomes the object of manipulation by a drug-trafficking and murdering con-artist who is after a doll full of heroin of which the Hendrixes innocently possess. Wright's talented and convincing performance is on a professional level that is above the reach of many.

John Kuhn plays the "Hannibal Lecter" type villain of Harry Roat who will stop at nothing to acquire the doll filled with heroin. Kuhn's stirring performance of the diabolical and master criminal mind of Harry Roat is so exceptional that you will forget he is only playing a character. Kuhn acted beyond evil; his performance was deadly professional

Scott Metivier as Mike Talman, a second rate con-artist who is one of two accomplices in Harry Roat's scheme to obtain the doll and who is also eventually manipulated by Roat, is excellent as an ex-convict with a clever mind and a conscience to match. When Susie's husband leaves town, Talman introduces himself as a long-time friend of her husband (a lie) and pretends to be her friend all the while trying to manipulate her into handing over the doll to Roat. Metvier's performance is outstanding and sincere.

Mike Nakashima handily plays the second accomplice and con-man in the scheme to retrieve the heroin stuffed doll. Nakashima's character is an ex-convict and past associate of Talman's who impersonates a police sergeant named only as Sgt. Carlino in the plot to manipulate Susie. Nakashima's distinguished portrayal of the always uptight and unsure Carlino is enjoyable and fun to watch.

Karen McMorris portrays Gloria, a young girl with an "attitude" who occasionally helps Susie with buying groceries and "cleaning house." McMorris, as young Gloria, adds the dimensions of charm and flair to the production that only she could have provided. This young actress has a bright future ahead of her and should not be missed in her climb to the top.

Susie's husband, Sam Hendrix (played by Gary Ritts) is a photographer on the move and a husband that never lets Susie give into her blindness.

Also deserving mention are Joe Rota and Mike Walsh who play the "after-the-fact" policemen in this chilling drama.

What is as equally as impressive as the cast of the production is the set, which is the basement apartment of the Hendrix's. The set designer, Dwight DiBona, and the rest of the crew who constructed the set deserve accolades higher than can be expressed in this review. The craftsmanship and detail of the set can be stated, without exaggeration, as comparable to many on Broadway that I've seen. DiBona and the "crew" unequivocally get a five-star rating out of a possible five.

As Susie stated to Gloria in her quest for help toward the end of the play, "I don't know anyone who could do this as well as you could"...I believe the same holds true for the Cohasset Dramatic Club and its performance of "Wait Until Dark."

Performances continue from Oct. 22 through the Oct. 24 at 8 p.m. and tickets are $8 (for reserve tickets call 446-6601). The proceeds of the Thursday, Oct. 22 show will benefit the South Shore Habitat for Humanity organization. Tickets are $8 and may be obtained by calling 446-6601.

Despite a last-minute casting change brought on by an unexpected illness, Cohasset High School's "More Than Just a Joke" had them rolling in the aisles of the school auditorium Friday night.

Director and high school English teacher Ron Emmons said the play was a success.

"I'm very pleased with this performance and happy we have so many new people involved," Emmons said.

He was especially thankful for the high caliber of the performance because of the special circumstances surrounding the play.

Erin McAllister, to whom the play was dedicated, was initially cast as the lead.

Unfortunately, McAllister became ill two weeks before opening night.

Replacing McAllister was compounded by the fact that "More Than Just a Joke" is actually made up of two separate one-act comedies — "Princess Rebecca Birnbaum" and "Just a Joke."

McAllister was the lead in both.

Veteran performer Katie O'Sullivan, a senior, replaced McAllister as the lead in "Just a Joke," while junior Karen Kristiansen, made her theatrical debut as the lead in "Princess Rebecca Birnbaum."

"Adversity should bring people together — and it did," Emmons said of the casting change.

O'Sullivan said she recorded her lines onto a cassette tape and would play them whenever she was in the car.

Kristiansen said Emmons held special practices for her so she would be ready in two weeks.

"They had to work really hard. It was an adjustment for everyone," he added.

"Princess Rebecca Birnbaum" by Jerome Katts, is set in the Bronx and evolves around Rebecca's first prom.

Kristiansen's performance as Elsie, the overbearing mother of the girl, was natural and convincing.

The play was set in the Bronx and Kristiansen and the other cast members adopted accents for their roles.

Rebecca, played by freshman Allison Ritts, chooses a simple white dress for the prom, but submits to her family's wishes to make her clothing, and herself, more ornate.

After her family is through re-making her, Rebecca is a garish caricature of the natural beauty she was at the outset of the play in her simple white dress.

Ritts deserves praise for her portrayal of the weak-minded Rebecca, while senior Meredith Hansen displays her talents in the role of Shirley, Elsie's insensitive and loud friend .

Lady Skippers one-for-four on week

The girl's soccer team had a rough time as they picked up only one win in their four games this last week.

Coming into last Tuesday's game against Norwell, Cohasset already had a disadvantage because, due to injuries and sickness, they had very few subs.

The teams matched up well in the first half, coach Kennan Startszel said, and they were behind only 2-1 going into the half but lost by a final of 4-1.

"Twenty minutes into the second half, we were playing even. We had a few chances and I believe they had a few chances. Then they came in (and scored)," he said. "We were very tired by then."

At home again on Thursday against Abington, Cohasset faced an even bleaker outlook heading into the game as they had no subs and eventually lost 2-1.

Abington got on the board first with goal 20 minutes into the first half but came back to tie it up on goal credited to Erin Murphy but actually kicked by an Abington defender.

"We came in and threw a lot of pressure on them and Abington scored for us," Startszel said.

Abington came back and scored the winning goal 20 minutes into the second half, handing the Skippers their second defeat in two days.

Cohasset came into Saturday's homecoming game against Nauset looking to end the losing skid but didn't get started very well, Startszel said.

"We didn't play very well in the first half. As a matter of fact, we played horrendous."

Cohasset scored only one goal in the first half, by Murphy and set up by Katie Carroll, but it was enough for a 1-0 halftime lead.

At halftime, the team had a moment of silence for the father of co-captain Kathleen O'Brien, Jack, who passed away this summer and who Startszel said was "our number one fan."

The Skippers came out strong in the second half with a goal by Megan Rhodes off an assist by Tammy Maitlin and then about midway through the second half, O'Brien herself scored, making the game 3-0.

Cohasset picked up one more as Colleen Fitzsimmons contributed to the final score of 4-0.

Before the Skippers' final game of the week against East Bridgewater, coach Kennan Startszel said he was worried about the physical and aggressive play of East Bridgewater and apparently for good reason as Cohasset lost 5-0.

"We were physically and mentally intimidated," he said. "A couple of things can change a game and we missed two open nets in the first 20 minutes of the game."

In the second half, the Skippers matched up well, allowing only one goal, and took their aggression up a notch with a more physical game, Startszel said, but it was not enough and they were never able to capitalize on opportunities.

up the big play but we were on the field too long. That's the way the season has been."

Credit had to be given to the Crusader's Angus Leary, whose athleticism, McDermott said, "absolutely killed us."

Although they didn't win, McDermott said the team was focused before the game and had a come off a good week of practice.

"The kids were ready to play. Their effort didn't materialize into a win but they didn't quit."

There were individual bright spots, he said, such as the play of junior lineman Chris Rolandelli, who created a turnover by knocking the ball loose from a Carver rusher.

"We had breakdowns but at the same time we had outstanding performances on the same play," McDermott said. "It was just one of those games where we couldn't seem to get everybody on the same page at the same time."

"The kids are still very positive and we're really hoping to go after Abington on Friday."

FIELD HOCKEY NOTES

In field hockey notes, the Skippers played against West Bridgewater on homecoming and East Bridgewater on Monday. Coach Debbie Bostwick could not be reached after the games but stay tuned for more field hockey highlights as they take on Norwell, Carver and Scituate this week.

Don't Turn Back the Clock.

Senator Bob Hedlund Has Made Change Happen For The Better.

Senator Bob Hedlund fought hard to cut the budget. He fought to repeal the sales tax on services. He fought to stop legislators from sweetening their pensions at our expense.
And he won every fight.

But more needs to be done. The bureaucracy needs more trimming, faster response to public needs must be achieved, and democracy must be restored to the State Senate.

Bob Hedlund has made a difference. He's helped to revive our sick economy.

Your choice is clear: You can vote to turn the clock back to the days when reckless spending and higher taxes were commonplace, or you can vote to re-elect Bob Hedlund and keep the recovery going for your family's future.

Bob Hedlund. Our State Senator.

Kickmen get hat trick, homecoming prize

The boy's soccer team pulled of a hat trick this week as they beat West Bridgewater on Wednesday, Abington on Thursday, and East Bridgewater for the homecoming prize, Saturday.

Cohasset took their second of the season from West Bridgewater, their only non-league opponent, as junior Chris Goodman recorded the shutout in goal as the Skippers romped to a 6-0 victory.

Just over a minute into the game, co-captain Chris Kondrat got the action going with an unassisted goal and by halftime it was 5-0 against the co-ed West Bridgewater team.

"Kondo," as teammates call Kondrat, also was involved in the final scoring of the game as he set up the second half goal by junior Chuck Endris.

The Skippers got back into league action the next day at Abington and Chuck Endris picked up where he left off the day before and scored the game's first goal on an assist by Will Adams, 11 minutes into the first half.

A minute before halftime, senior Mike Connor scored on a penalty kick, for a 2-0 Cohasset lead at halftime.

"We came out and played really well the first half. We moved the ball well, had good scoring chances and controlled the game," coach Keith Clark said.

Things changed in the second half as Abington came out and asserted themselves, scoring 10 minutes into the half, Clark said.

"They controlled the first 20 minutes of the second half," he said. "They really pushed the pace."

With 15 minutes left in the second half, Cohasset took back the momentum as senior Dan Baird set up Jeremiah Stevenson to make the score 3-1 and 40 seconds later Jim Magner scored the final goal.

On Saturday's homecoming game against East Bridgewater, Clark said he had some problems early on with a team that wasn't thinking about soccer but about "who they were dancing with that night."

"East Bridgewater played well. They hit us with an off-side trap and that caught us by surprise but we adjusted," Clark said.

Endris picked up a goal and an assist in the 2-0 victory as the Skippers brought their record up to 10-2-1. With the 10 wins and one tie, Cohasset has 21 points for the season and, with five games left, should have no problem obtaining the 22 points needed for post-season play.

seemed to be a veteran actor with his portrayal of Maury, Rebecca's prom date.

Sophomore Mary Ellen Rayment portrayed Helen, Rebecca's overlooked sister. Rayment prevailed as a serious foil to the play's comedic characters.

The second comedy, "Just a Joke" by Michael Scanlon, is the story of Libby Chandler, a young girl who wants acceptance as a stand-up comic.

O'Sullivan was a natural in the lead as Libby, a character who must decide between the acceptance of the crowd and the love of those she is cruelly humiliating.

Hansen, who also acts in "Princess Rebecca Birnbaum," was hysterically funny in her portrayal of Libby's mother Linda.

With operatic song, Hansen contemplated the problems of milk left out of the refrigerator too long — and brought down the house.

Freshman Megan McNamara, another newcomer to Cohasset theater, played Libby's older, serious sister Andrea.

McNamara played her role well, and also provided some comic relief with her rendition of a country-western song about what she would do to her boyfriend if he came back to her.

Freshman Caitlin Connelly was convincing and funny as Libby's wacky English teacher who believes the Three Stooges are more poetic than Shakespeare.

Junior Diane Saldi acted well in her role as the superficial, but sweet, cheerleader sister to Libby.

Freshman Jessica Hurley effortlessly portrayed Libby's no nonsense, matter-of-fact friend.

And freshman Laura Slotnick opened the play by masterfully lip-synching to a song.

METCO family dinner

The Cohasset METCO Program celebrates the start of this, its 25th year, at its second annual fall dinner Sunday, Nov. 1 from 3 to 6 p.m. at Cohasset High School. (The date has been changed from Oct. 24, as previously reported.)

Last year's lasagna menu will be repeated, as will the fun events including apple bobbing and donut hanging.

Entertainment includes a street dancing event.

The METCO Committee continues to finalize its host family assignments and families are still needed. Anyone interested in the Cohasset METCO program will find opportunities to be involved in some aspect of the program and may call their class rep, listed below or Dayle Dickinson, Committee Chair. METCO Class reps are as follows: Grades 1, 2 and 4 - Sherry Anderson (0587); grades 3 and 5 - Angie Walsh (2151); grades 6, 7 and 8 - Susan Pile (6088); grades 9 and 10 - Dayle Dickinson (0892) and grades 11 and 12 - Joan Kovach (6358).

Goblin afternoon fun

Spend a hoblin, goblin afternoon at the Cohasset Community Center, from 1:15 to 3 p.m., on early-release day, Thursday, Oct. 29. Children in grades one-through-four are welcome. Cost is $15.

For more information, please call the community center at 383-0088.

Save the museums

The Jazz Pops Ensemble presents a benefit concert at Kimballs By-The-Sea, Sunday, Nov. 8 from 4 to 6 p.m.; the proceeds to go to a special fund to make needed repairs and improvements to the Captain Wilson House and Maritime Museum.

A buffet is served following the concert. Ticket sales are limited to 130, and are $50 per person.

For more information, please call 383-6930.

Tai Chi workshop

On Sat. and Sun. Oct 24, 25, Wah Lum Kung Fu Academy hosts internationally renowned Tai Chi Chuan master Wei Lun Huang.

Master Huang was featured twice in recent issues of Tai Chi magazine. His workshop focuses on the Pushing Hands aspects of tai chi and is appropriate for beginning-to-advanced level students who already have experience in tai chi.

Master Huang was the Push Hands champion for his region in China prior to emigrating to the U.S.A. For further information please call 383-6822. Wah Lum Academy is located on Rt 3A in Cohasset.

Women in politics

Join us tonight, Oct. 22 at 7:45 p.m. at the Hingham Congregational Church for a panel discussion on Women in Politics featuring Elizabeth Sherman, Director of the Program for Women in Politics and Government at UMass Boston, and Chartis Langmaid, Chair of the Cohasset Housing Partnership.

Ms. Sherman has spoken and written extensively on militarization and peace conversion. She represented the United States at the first American-Soviet Women's Policy Conference in 1989 in the Soviet Union.

Ms. Langmaid, past president of the Cohasset League of Women Voters, has worked on hazardous waste disposal and regional affordable housing boards. Her experience plus participation in Ms. Sherman's program influenced her to run for state office.

Haunted house tour

Halloween is coming. And what better way to welcome in the ghosts and goblins of the season but to have a Haunted House?

The Second Congregational Church of Cohasset Youth Group is sponsoring a Haunted House Sunday, Oct. 25 from 2 to 4 p.m. ($3 maximum per family) and everyone is welcome.

You'll have a frightfully good time.

Gardners to meet

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset holds its monthly meeting Oct. 27, 9:30 a.m. at the Walton Rodgers Hall.

Jane LaForce presents a program on the use of herbs and other common plant materials for medicinal purposes. The program includes discussion of uses and information of herbal preparations. An herbal tea will be served at the conclusion of the presentation.

Debate on cable

Tonight, (October 22) host Wigmore Pierson's guest on Pierson to Person is incumbent Republican state Senator Robert L. Iledlund (R—Weymouth) debating his Democratic challenger, former Weymouth Selectman Brian J. McDonald, for a full hour.

Joining Pierson in asking the questions is Terry Ryan, Managing Editor of the Patriot Ledger.

The Pierson to Person television show is broadcast live each Thursday, 8-9 p.m., from the North Scituate studio of Continental Cablevision. The show airs on Channel 53 in Hingham, and on Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset.

Talk on shots set

The Social Service League of Cohasset presents Lisa Berger, Epidemiology Division, Bureau of Communicative Disease, Central Massachusetts Department of Public Health, Thursday, Oct. 29 at Walton Rodgers Hall, St. Stephen's Church from 10 to 11:30 a.m.

New recommended guidelines for routine immunization requirements for children birth through college age were issued by the Mass. Department of Public Health Oct. 1. Many questions have been raised concerning the series of Hepatitis "B." Are these a requirement? How many in the series? When are they to be given? Are the DTP shots still required? What about the measles, mumps and rubella shots recommended for persons born after 1956?

Find the answers to these questions and many more through the slide show and video presentation. The program is 45 minutes followed by a question and answer period.

An adult immunization schedule for ages 18 through 65, something often overlooked, is also presented.

Babysitting can be provided, if necessary by advance reservation. Call the Social Service League at 383-0771 or 383-0821 for reservations for babysitting or for further information on the program.

Halloween fair set

The Cohasset Community Center's Halloween Fair is Sunday, Oct. 25 from 1 to 3 p.m. on the Common.

Children of all ages gather in their Halloween costumes to partake in an afternoon of ghostly fun. The fair begins with the traditional costume parade around the Common followed by many special activities and games.

Activities include cupcake decorating and apple creature creations. The games include some old and new favorites such as "Lucky Lollipop," "The Fish Pond," and "Apple Picking."

Every child receives a prize or a Halloween treat for participating in any game or activity. Face painting, balloons, and refreshment stands will complete an afternoon of fair-going!

Pumpkins decorated for the Pumpkin Decorating Contest should be dropped off in the designated spot on the Common at noon. Pumpkins are judged in many categories, with each one sure to be a winner.

Tickets for all games and activities may be purchased at the fair. Tickets are four for $1. Most games will cost 50 cents to play.

The Cohasset Community Center Nursery School sponsors this event for the enjoyment of all.

public notice

SHERIFF'S SALE COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS NORFOLK, ss.

Seized and taken on execution and will be sold by Public Auction on Wednesday the 25th day of November A.D. 1992 at 11:00 o'clock A.M. at the Deputy Sheriffs Office at 630 High Street in Dedham in said County of Norfolk, all the right, title and interest which Walter Ross had (not exempt by law from attachment or levy on execution) on the 4th day of January A.D. 1991 at 9:00 o'clock A.M., the time when the same was seized on execution in and to the following described real estate:

The land with the buildings thereon, situated in said Cohasset, being bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the Easterly corner of the granted premises, at the point in the Westerly line of South Main Street at land conveyed by Minnie P. Gilmore to Minerva C. Stone, June 27, 1923, the line runs South 74° 4' West by said land of Minerva C. Stone, one hundred ninety-seven and 70/100 (197.70) feet to a point in the stone wall at land now or formerly of one Sankey; thence line turns and runs North 16° 15'30" West by said stone wall one hundred ninety-four and 21/100 (194.21) feet to Spring Street; thence South 84° 3'10" East by said Spring Street, two hundred eleven and 93/100 (211.93) feet to said Westerly line of South Main Street; thence South 16° 57'20" East, one hundred fifteen and 21/100 (115.21) feet to the point of beginning.

Containing 29,949 square feet of land and being shown as the smaller of two lots on a subdivision plan belonging to Minnie P. Gilmore, Cohasset, Mass., recorded with Norfolk Deeds in Book 1559, Page 357, dated June 25, 1923, H.A. Litchfield, C.E.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS THE TRIAL COURT THE PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT DEPARTMENT Norfolk Division Docket No. 78F1286T3 & T4 NOTICE OF FIDUCIARY'S ACCOUNT

To all persons interested in the estate of Hazel W. Pope late of Cohasset, in said County, deceased.

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the Third and Final accounts of Katherine L. Babson, Jr., and Joseph R. Watkins (resigned) (being the 12th account of the trust) and the First and Second accounts of Katherine L. Babson, Jr. and Adrienne Smith (being the 13th and 14th accounts of the Trust) as Trustees (the fiduciary) under the will of said deceased for the benefit of Ruth Anne Cutler have been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said accounts, you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before the sixteenth day of December, 1992, the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary, or to the attorney for the fiduciary, obtain without cost a copy of said accounts. If you desire to object to any item of said accounts, you must, in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 5.

WITNESS, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court, this fifteenth day of October, 1992.

Newport trip planned

The Community Garden Club of Cohasset hosts a fall trip to beautiful Newport, Rhode Island to view three Newport mansions and have lunch at the Laforte Restaurant on Bellevue Avenue.

The mansions are: The Breakers, Rosecliff, and Marble House. The trip will be on Oct. 28. Meet at 9 a.m. at Town Hall. Tickets are $23.50 each, which will include the bus and tour of the homes. Luncheon is extra.

Reservations must be made by Saturday, Oct. 10. Call Linda for reservations at 383-0842.

Foliage, shopping trip

Interested in getting a jump on your Christmas shopping and enjoying the fall foliage at the same time? Come join the Scituate-Cohasset Newcomers Club for a day trip to Kittery, Maine, Saturday, Oct. 24. Members meet at 8:30 a.m. in the First Trinitarian Congregational Church parking lot, Country Way, Scituate, and will return by 5 p.m.

For more information please call Sarah at 383-6124.

Register for auto, crafts

The Cohasset Recreation Department accepts telephone registrations at 383-6791, for an Arts and Crafts Program designed for children in grades K through three beginning Monday, Nov. 16 at the Osgood School.

Class meets Mondays from 2:50 to 5 p.m. for five consecutive weeks, through Dec. 14, and is taught by Summer Playground Program and Volunteer Arts and Craft Program director, Rebecca Bates McArthur. The fee for the five week program is $22 per child which includes the costs of supplies and materials for all projects.

Children registering will be allowed to stay after school, but must be picked up at Osgood School at 5 p.m. promptly. Class must be limited to the first 12 children registering.

Book signing, Oct. 24

Hingham author and illustrator, Marc Brown, who has delighted children of all ages with his fictional character Arthur, signs his latest book at Buttonwood Books and Toys in Cohasset, Saturday, Oct. 24 from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

Mr. Brown's newest book, Arthur Babysits, is the 16th book in his best-selling Arthur adventure series. Brown based this book on his own childhood experiences babysitting in a spooky house which overlooked Lake Erie. Brown's many other books include: Arthur Meets the President, Finger Rhymes, Arthur's Birthday and Party Rhymes. All of these are available along with a host of other favorites by Marc Brown. For those unable to attend, signed books may be ordered ahead of time by calling Buttonwood Books and Toys at 383-2665.

Brown lives in Hingham with his wife, Lauren Krasny Brown, who has frequently collaborated with him as author.

For further information, please call Buttonwood Books and Toys at 383-2665.

Costume party planned

Ghosts, goblins and witches are stirring up a brew of fun for the annual Scituate-Cohasset Newcomers Club Halloween Party Saturday, Oct., 31 from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the First Trinitarian Congregational Church, 381 Country Way, Scituate.

Children should be dressed in costume and will enjoy a variety of creative Halloween activities and treats.

For more information, please call Lynn at 545-4747.

Maltz wins award

The South Shore Art Center announced its Blue Ribbon award winners at the recent opening of its Blue Ribbon Members Show. The show, which remains on display at 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset through Nov. 7, includes paintings, photographs, sculpture, three-dimensional, and mixed media created by SSAC members.

Blue Ribbons were awarded to Donald Dickenson of Braintree for his oil portrait entitled "Buzz Off;" Thomas Rebek of Boston for his watercolor "Main St., Concord;" and Jeremy Barnard of Georgetown for "Deerfield Fire," a black and white silver print. Frank Dolloff of Scituate was awarded for his photograph "Tidal Pool;" while Elizabeth Bourne, also of Scituate, won for her "Burning Rubber" monotype. Marshfield resident Joreen Benbenek's oil "Running River" received a Blue Ribbon as did Scituate resident Valerie Forte Vitale's acrylic "Chilled Strawberry Soup."

A special award was given to young artist Lily Maltz of Cohasset for her clay sculpture entitled "The Dude." The show was judged by Becky Haletky, an award winning painter from Rockland.

The Art Center galleries are open free to the public, Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. For more information, please call (617) 383-9548.

Big election turnout expected

By Tom Henshaw
Mariner staff

Get ready for a big turnout of voters in Cohasset next Tuesday.

Town Clerk Marion Douglas forecasts upwards of 4,210 voters — more than 80% of the 5,270 registered — will show up at the polls.

They will be drawn by three significant races:

- President, with Democrat William Clinton, the governor of Arkansas, and Independent H. Ross Perot, the Texas billionaire, challenging President George Bush.
- Congress from the 10th District, with Republican Daniel Daly of Hingham and Independent Jon Bryan of Barnstable, a one-time Republican, seeking to oust Cong. Gerry Studds of Cohasset.
- State Senate from the Norfolk-Plymouth District, a race in which Republican Sen. Robert Hedlund of Weymouth is out to repel a challenge from Democrat Brian McDonald, a former Weymouth selectman.

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at Second Congregational Church.

Selectmen clean up lead dust dilemma

By Jeff Cutler
Mariner Correspondent

At $40 an hour, cleaning the lead up at Cohasset town hall will cost about $20,000.

This expenditure, and the possibility of not having the town hall auditorium available for the election on Nov. 3, were major issues addressed Monday during the selectmen's meeting.

The lead, a result of exterior sanding of the building, had reportedly caused some employees to experience health problems and was brought to the attention of the selectmen last week.

Since that time, the board has taken steps to test the building and put the clean-up job out to bid.

Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon reported Monday

Tales of ghosts and goblins in Cohasset's past

By Alison Cohen
Mariner correspondent

Cardboard cutouts of ghoulies and ghosties and long-leggetty beasties decorate windows all over town. Hang out with the old-timers long enough and you may hear tales of ghosts and goblins of Cohasset past.

Bob Fraser of Norman Todd Road put down his paint brush and took on the role of storyteller recently. In honor of All Hallows' Eve, here are his recollections and few more haunting tales besides.

"I saw a BBC report," Fraser begins. "It said one person in every 10 will see a ghost in their lifetime."

If you live in Cohasset, you may not have to travel far to be one of the 10. Fraser won't give street addresses to protect the homeowners, but he knows of plenty of ghostly happenings in Cohasset homes and around the South Shore neighborhood.

"There are a couple of houses right handy," he says of Cohasset village. "One is haunted by a little girl ghost. Another one just a little further down the street is haunted by the carpenter who built the house."

Many ghosts seem to find it hard to leave a place they loved. That may have been true of Cohasset's most famous ghost, the ghost of the Maritime Museum.

Visitors and caretakers frequently heard footsteps coming from the second floor of the museum, but when they checked, no one was there.

"We always figured it was John Bates," Fraser said. "One day he just packed up and left."

Polls at Second Congregational Church

If absentee ballots are an indication then upwards of 80 percent of Cohasset's 5,270 registered voters will cast ballots in Tuesday's state election, said Town Clerk Marion Douglas.

Douglas said more than 400 citizens had taken absentee ballots a week before the election. Voters can still cast absentee ballots at town clerk's office in hall until noon Monday, Nov. 2.

"I hope everyone votes. They all should," Douglas said.

Tuesday, the polls are open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the Second Congregational Church, which is next to town hall, on Highland Street.

The town hall auditorium, which is the usual polling site, will not be used due to the lead paint problem. A contractor has been hired to clean up the lead paint dust that filtered into town hall two weeks ago when painters sanded the outside of the building. Currently lead levels in the auditorium exceed acceptable limits.

Douglas said she got the okay from Second Congregational Church officals to use the church hall yesterday (Oct. 28).

Real estate values

The fiscal 1993 Real Estate Assessed Valuations have been completed, and have been submitted for certification by the Massachusetts Department of Revenue.

The new values are available for public inspection at the Assessor's Office, Town Hall, 41 Highland Avenue during regular business hours. Due to staffing limitations, we are not able to accept telephone inquiries for valuations.

Additonal copies of the value listings are available for inspection at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, 106 South Main Street. Any problems regarding valuation will be handled through the abatement process. Call the staff at the assessors office for details.

Pay upgrade requested

Town treasurer/collector Elizabeth Ripley — one of three full-time, elected town officials — would like her salary upgraded.

In an article selectmen accepted Monday for the Nov. 16 Special Town Meeting warrant, Ripley asks voters to approve a $1,500 raise for the remainder of this fiscal year which brings her salary up to $37,000.

Salaries of elected town officials are set in a separate article in the annual town meeting warrant.

Appointed officials either fall under the six-step salary program in the town's personnel by-law or have a contract, which is usually three years.

Part-time, elected town officials, like selectmen, are paid a stipend which has not changed in recent years.

Ripley presented selectmen with a survey of salaries of town treasurers in surrounding towns and their length of service.

Ripley also said she would like a salary schedule "tied to the increments the accountant has each year, even without a contract."

Selectmen recently approved the new town accountant's three-year contract at a starting pay of $35,000 with one-to-four percent increases each year.

"I feel all the financial offices of the town should be treated equally," Ripley said.

Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby said she preferred to have the issue raised at the annual town meeting because special town meeting articles are usually reserved for "extraordinary problems."

Although Selectman Michael H. Sullivan said Ripley's article "has merit", he also wanted it postponed until the annual town meeting.

The board voted unanimously to accept the article into the warrant. They will decide whether to recommend the article at a later date.

Highway supervisor Harold Litchfield and Town Clerk Marion Douglas also hold full-time elected positions.

Cohasset senior citizen Betty Spaulding gets a flu shot from Judy Fitzsimmons, R.N. last Saturday. More free flu shots are available from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. this Saturday (Oct. 31) at town hall.The clinic is sponsored by the Social Service League. (Staff photo/Alan Chapman)

Brian McDonald fought long and hard to stop a toxic waste incinerator — saving South Shore property values and the environment.

It's A Question of Responsibility

UNDER REPUBLICAN LEADERSHIP

- Federal revenue sharing for the South Shore and other towns in the commonwealth has been eliminated.
- Over 420,000 jobs have been lost in Massachusetts since 1988.
- State local aid to South Shore towns has been diminshed by 40%.
- Transportation and job creation projects like the Greenbush Line and Central Artery project have been pushed aside.
- A women's right of choice has been put in jeopardy.

BRIAN McDONALD IS A FIGHTER

- While the State and Federal Governments robbed Weymouth of precious revenue sharing dollars, Brian sued the Dukakis Administration for with holding local aid payments. He won.
- When voters in Weymouth rejected the 1990 Proposition 2½ override, Brian made the tough and responsible decisions that made town govern ment work with $8.2 million less than it had the year before.
- Unlike his opponent, Brian has been fighting to restore commuter rail service on the Greenbush Line for over 8 years.
- Brian fought an attempt by Clean Harbors, Inc. to site a hazardous waste incinerator on the banks of the Fore River. He won.
- Unlike his opponent, Brian will fight to assure that a woman's right to choose is preserved.
- Unlike his opponent, Brian will fight to make sure the South Shore is taken seriously and heard in the halls of the State Senate.

Ghosts and goblins in Cohasset's past

David Wadsworth, senior curator for the historical society, knows the story as well as he knows the history of the museum.

"The building was moved up from the cove in the mid-1950s," Wadsworth said. "It was originally a ship chandlery, a store that sold shipping wares."

The store had been in the Bates family for generations. The Bates family owned a fishing fleet and sailed out of Cohasset from Bates Wharf down in the cove. The business had been in the family from the 1700s on until John Bates died in the 1880s.

Old John, who was born in 1816, walked home in a storm, caught pneumonia and died in 1886 — or so the story goes. He was the last of the Bates owners.

The building went through a variety of uses, then sat idle until William Cox and his wife donated it to the historical society in the 1950s. They arranged to move the building to its current site on Elm Street and turn it into a museum.

Sometime thereafter, the curator and his assistant began to hear footsteps coming from a small room upstairs.

"The room was John Bates' office," Wadsworth said. "Whenever anyone went up to look, no one was there."

Hans Holzer, who made quite a name for himself as a self-styled ghost hunter, came to town to check into the mysterious footsteps. Although he never saw or heard the peripatetic ghost, he wrote about the Ship Chandler's Ghost.

Holzer identified the ghost as John Bates and said he paced the floor of his old office because he was very unhappy the building had been moved from the cove.

"I think he was kind of reluctant to leave the old place," Fraser said.

Whatever the reason, Wadsworth was told the footsteps stopped abruptly in 1972.

Bates must have been a benign sort of ghost. Although he paced the floor, he was never given to mischief or maliciousness.

About the worst thing you can say about the ghost of the Maritime Museum is that he interrupted a presentation by Francis Hagerty, of Cohasset Colonials fame.

"I was there the night Francis Hagerty gave a lecture," Fraser recollects. "The ghost kept interrupting Hagerty. Everyone was laughing and he kept losing his train of thought."

Finally Hagerty just gave up.

Even though 20 years have elapsed since the ghost last paced, Wadsworth was amazed at how many times school children would come in to the building asking about the ghost.

"All the school children from Deer Hill School knew about it," he said. "I couldn't imagine how they had heard about it."

Wadsworth solved the mystery when he learned a summertime storyteller at the library used to tell the story. Although the storyteller is no longer with the library, the tale seems to be passed from sibling to sibling.

Wadsworth can't speak from direct experience.

"I've never hear the the footsteps. And I don't believe in ghosts," he confesses.

Seafaring men, lighthouses and ghost stories form the elements of a perfect equation. Minot's Light is no exception to the rule.

Fraser said the ghosts of the lighthouse keepers who perished when the first lighthouse was destroyed in a storm haunted Minot's light as long as it was manned. Up until it went automatic in 1947, keepers would find the lens mysteriously polished.

On another occasion, one of the keepers knocked his pipe on the stove around midnight. Almost immediately, he heard a tapping sound from below. The other keeper denied making the sound. Later they learned tapping on the stove pipe had been the signal to change shifts.

The ghosts of Minot's Light have been seen from time to time since the light went automatic.

"The Portuguese sailors say they see the ghost of Joseph Antoine, one of the keepers who perished, hanging from the bottom rung of the ladder, warning them away from the rocks just before a storm is due," Fraser said.

From further down the coast comes the tale of the man who robbed a drowned sea captain and paid the price.

Around the turn of the century, a ship went down off Sand Hills in Scituate. Although the crew was saved, the captain died. Among his possessions was an unusual coin, but when his wife looked for it, it could not be found.

It could not be found because it had been stolen by one of the rescuers.

"I bet the sea captain will come back after it," warned one of the rescue crew members, but the guilty party refused to heed the warning.

Time passed and the thief's turn to walk beach patrol came again. He went south carrying his lantern. When he reached the point where the ship was wrecked, the lookout noticed a second lantern appeared behind him and followed him around the corner of Sand Hills.

A week later, he walked patrol again. Again the second lantern appeared as he reached the site of the shipwreck. But this time the thief turned around.

"When he turned to wave his lantern toward the lookout tower, he froze," Fraser said. "For there, hanging in midair, was a lantern. He reached in his pocket, drew out the coin and threw it far out in the ocean and defied the ghost to go and get it.

"The lantern suddenly went out and never came back."

And there used to be a house in Sand Hills where the doors would open and close all by themselves. The house has since been torn down.

Fraser said Scituate's Lawson's Tower is also said to be haunted. After the bells have tolled, a moaning can be heard. Legend says it is the ghost of a workman who fell to his death while turning the plain old water tower into a shingle-clad extravaganza.

And farther down the coast comes the tale of the White Horse of the North River.

"They used to mow the salt marshes along the river for winter hay. The farmers would camp out at night so they could get an early start in the morning," Fraser said.

"In 1898, a farmer showed up to mow with a pure white horse. During the night, a thunderstorm came up and lightning crashed all around. The white horse ran off in fright.

"When morning came, no one could find the white horse. But every so often, in the middle of a thunderstorm, the horse will show up."

Fraser swears the story is true. He has a friend was out along the North River when a thunderstorm came up. In the middle of the lightning and thunder and rain, the friend spied a beautiful white horse rearing and plunging in terror.

"He went out to look the next morning, but he couldn't even find a hoof print in the mud," Fraser said.

Cohasset and Scituate aren't the only ghostly towns. Hingham boasts its share.

There is a house in Hingham where a ghost can be heard running.

It seems the former owner went dashing out the door

Ghosts and goblins

to pay off a debt. When he ran into to the street he was run over and killed right outside his home.

Another story Fraser tells involves a man living along a desolate lane who received a call late at night from a frightened woman. The woman cried her house was on fire and she feared she would die.

The man dashed out, ran down to the end of the street and knocked on his neighbor's door.

"What do you want?" demanded the neighbor. Theman explained about his call and said the name the woman had given him.

The neighbor scratched his head and then pointed to a clearing across the street.

It seems the clearing had been the site of a house that had burnt to the ground years ago. Two ladies living in the house, one with the name given by the frightened telephone caller, died in the fire.

The man walked back home. When he got there, he discovered his phone was not even connected.

Some say Cohasset may well be haunted by the ghost of an ancient Viking killed by Indians. The Viking is said to be buried somewhere in the vicinity.

And some Indians called Cohasset the Land of the Devil.

Fraser said it may have been so-named after renegade Indians living in the area. The Indians from Hingham and the Indians from Scituate would have nothing to do with the Cohasset encampment.

Or it may refer to the fact that virtually all the native Americans died of plague spread by the lone survivor of a French ship wrecked off Brant Rock in 1616.

"Part of Hull is called Skull Head because there was nothing left of the encampment but skeletons laying all around," he said.

The only witch tale Fraser knows comes from Scituate, too. In the middle of Salem's witch trial fever, someone accused a Scituate woman of witchcraft.

"I hear the judge told the accuser he had to prove it or they would take him out and give him the same punishment they would give a witch," Fraser said. "That stopped it right there."

Fraser's favorite story isn't of Cohasset, Scituate, Hingham or Hull. He loves to tell the story of the evil-tempered Peter Rugg of Boston.

"Peter Rugg was a merchant from Boston," Fraser begins. "He was out driving in his carriage with his daughter back around 1750. They were coming back toward the Cambridge toll bridge when a storm came up."

The bridgekeeper invited Rugg and his daughter to take shelter with him, but Rugg would hear none of it.

"I will get home tonight or the devil may have me," Fraser quotes the short-tempered Rugg as saying.

That is the last anyone ever saw of the flesh-and-blood Ruggs. But from time to time, Rugg appears, demanding rudely, "Which is the way to Boston?"

"Back in 1823, he finally found his way home, but the town had changed so much he didn't recognize it," Fraser said. "He drove off in a rage, still searching for Boston and home.

"He was last seen driving a 1910 white touring car in Northern Vermont, still demanding directions to Boston."

So if you are out and about on Halloween night, be wary. You never can tell who will blow into town if a storm comes up. It seems Jack Nicholson and his feathers weren't the first not-so-blithe spirits to come calling.

Selectmen clean up lead dust dilemma

that test results of the building had been mixed and more tests were being conducted. The trouble, he said, was that "no standards for commercial buildings" exist.

The current standards have maximums of "200 for the floors, 500 for the window sills and 800 for the window troughs," he added. "It's probably geared toward the aspect of protecting children."

The recent figures varied widely on many office surfaces. For example, a count of 2,600 micrograms of lead per square foot was found in the offices and 20,000 micrograms per square foot in the auditorium.

Michael Sullivan was allowed to give some background and pointed out "these figures are not in the air. You have to ingest this to have any (negative) affect."

It was recommended late last week that people limit their exposure to the lead and Doyon said that employees had been given the option of leaving the building.

A vote was also taken last night decide to pay workers who decided to leave the building.

Rocco Laugelle thought the issue was ludicrous. He couldn't see why the board had to vote on the matter.

"I don't see why we're even bothering, it should be automatic," he said. "Silly question, silly vote."

A problem that wasn't taken so lightly was the amount of money it might take to clean the building. The low bid of $40 an hour was received from Advanced Abatement of Marshfield with an approximate clean-up period of 500 hours.

Doyon explained that the time period was approximate and the total clean-up figure of $20,000 was not exact. He also said cleaning could be done in the offices of town hall at night and in the auditorium full time, day and night.

Doyon said Advanced Abatement would begin work Tuesday. The board voted to go with the low bid and also to appropriate $25,000 for cost overruns in the project.

Sullivan requested that a 200-hour update be given to the board so that the job's progress could be assessed. Other members agreed and it occurred to Martha Gjesteby that with an election coming up the clean-up schedule could be crucial to Cohasset's voting location.

"We do have a problem getting the auditorium clean for the election," she said.

The board decided that taking care of the lead problem was a priority and Jane Goedecke announced that the voting place would be relocated if necessary.

And, according to town clerk Marion Douglas a turnout of 80% or more could be expected on election day. The full impact of moving nearly 4,000 registered voters was not explored at Monday's meeting.

Carol Oteri-Puffer, president of the town hall employees' union, thanked the board for making a "sincere attempt" to clean up this problem.

Leo's not just another g(r)as station

Last Wednesday evening, Leo Fiori, of Leo's Exxon in Cohasset, went before the planning board to get a new canopy approved for construction.

Fiori's lawyer, Charles Humphreys, explained that time was a priority because of the upcoming winter. He said that the proposed canopy served more than one purpose.

It would protect people at the self-serve islands as well as keeping the elements off fire suppression systems and the intricate electronics in the new gas pumps.

The board concurred that the reasons for having a canopy were valid but they wanted to make sure regulations were followed. Especially that new items like pipes and wires would be shown on plans for the site.

Board Chairman Al Moore said of the proposed underground workings "Ultimately it has to be shown." And it should be made a "condition of approval" that the new items are marked.

The group also wanted to make sure that the new canopy was not an unpleasant color. Moore mentioned that in the past Sunoco came before the board and didn't have enough land for a canopy. We all "breathed a sigh of relief because none of us were particularly fond of gold and blue," he said.

But the item that seemed to rankle the board and almost caused an impasse was the condition of the station's landscape.

Bob Sturdy wanted to see the station greenery "restored to what it used to be." The variety has disappeared and "it has gone to h__ in a hand basket," he added.

Other members were not as colorful, but just as steadfast.

The previous contractor's name was mentioned and Sturdy said the original plans for the foliage should be followed.

Alan Micale of Ayoub Engineering, Inc. tried to tell the board that costs could be prohibitive. "You don't want to lock him (Fiori) into $10,000 worth of landscaping."

Eventually the board and Fiori's representatives came to an agreement that the original plans would be found, if available, and followed to the owner's "best efforts."

"I think that's all we can ask," said Moore.

The plan for the canopy was then approved subject to conditions brought up in the meeting.

The planning board convenes next on Nov. 4 at 8 p.m. at Town Hall.

Regional school system studied

By Jeff Cutler
Mariner correspondent

In what could affect the way Cohasset and Hingham youngsters are educated, the first meeting of the Regional School District Planning Committee took place last week.

Jim Kirk of Cohasset welcomed the Hingham representatives to Cohasset Town Hall and explained that the meeting was to discuss the possibility of a regional school system. He stressed that the situations proposed were "purely hypothetical" and were only for the purpose of outlining advantages and disadvantages.

Three towns are part of the planning committee although Hull did not send a representative to the meeting.

Both sides announced that the forming of their committees had been approved at town meeting with no problem. The issue just "sailed through," said Iris Daigle of the Hingham committee.

Lewis Ernst, another Hingham member, said if a regional system could save the taxpayers money, "they'd be very interested."

Nancy Sandell, vice chair of the Gohasset School Committee, added that regionalization isn't solely for cost savings, "it's more for academic broadening."

"The best thing to do is to look at the economies that can be realized," said Ernst.

The group agreed and discussed a number of variables including administrative, facilities and transportation costs as well as the potential differences in state aid given to each town.

Daigle said that residents might be surprised at the

Quarterly taxes due

The second quarterly Fiscal 1993 real estate and personal property tax bills are due in our office no later than 4:30 p.m., Monday, Nov. 2. Postmark dates will not be accepted. No exceptions.

A number of bills have been returned to our office because of improper mailing addresses. Any property owner who has not received a tax bill should contact the Collector's office at the Town Hall, 383-9900, extension 113. Failure to receive a tax bill does not waive payment of the tax and does not excuse the homeowner from interest charges on payments received after the due date.

The mailing address for tax payments is: Treasurer-Collector's Office, P. 0. Box 296, Cohasset, 02025. For those taxpayers who wish to pay their taxes in person, office hours for the week of Oct. 26 are: Monday through Wednesday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Thursday, 8:30 a.m. to 7 p.m.; and Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.. Monday, Nov. 2, the due date, our hours will be 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

If you have any questions please call 383-9900, extension 113.

figures. But, she admonished, "If the people are not interested, that's the end!"

After looking at possible student class moves to and from Cohasset, the group thought they had some answers.

"We may have a potentially viable regional school system," said Kirk. Although, he pointed out again, the session was really just brainstorming and "exploring options."

They agreed to think over some of the preliminary results of their meeting and to return in November with more pros and cons of each issue.

Kirk said the public is invited to these meetings and the next one is scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 18 at 7:30 p.m. at the Hingham Town Hall.

Absentee ballots available

Absentee ballots are now available at the town clerk's office for the State Election on Tuesday, Nov. 3. You may apply for an absentee ballot if you will be out of town, have a physical disability or because of religious beliefs.

Absentee voting may be done in the office of the town clerk during regular business hours until noon Nov. 2. A written signed request for a ballot may be sent to the town clerk and one will be mailed out. Included on the application should be your name as registered, your registration address, precinct, the address to which you wish the ballot sent and your signature. Applications may also be picked up at the office. The town clerk's office will be closed at noon Nov. 2 in preparation for the election.

If you need further information, please call the town clerk's office at 383-9900 ext. 105, 106 or 107.

COSTLY IMPROVEMENTS

QUESTION: How far should I go in making major improvements before putting our home up for sale?

ANSWER: An expensive addition or improvement can be the kind of thing that will cost you far more than you get back. True, the house should be spruced up and neat, but it's rare when a large financial undertaking will bring more than its cost in the final selling price. There is always the risk of miscalculation, too. Home improvements frequently end up costing a lot more than originally anticipated. You may end up with a faster sale and less inconvenience if you lower the price an equivalent amount.

Don't Turn Back the Clock.

Senator Bob Hedlund Has Made Change Happen For The Better.

Senator Bob Hedlund fought hard to cut the budget. He fought to repeal the sales tax on services. He fought to stop legislators from sweetening their pensions at our expense.
And he won every fight.

But more needs to be done. The bureaucracy needs more trimming, faster response to public needs must be achieved, and democracy must be restored to the State Senate.

Bob Hedlund has made a difference. He's helped to revive our sick economy.

Your choice is clear: You can vote to turn the clock back to the days when reckless spending and higher taxes were commonplace, or you can vote to re-elect Bob Hedlund and keep the recovery going for your family's future.

Bob Hedlund. Our State Senator.

Senator Bob Hedlund.

For the people of Cohasset, Duxbury, Hingham, Hull, Marshfield, Scituate, and Weymouth.

Paid for by the committee to Elect Robert Hedlund, 61 Water St., Hingham, MA 02043

around town

❑ Spencer Henderson is a happy student right now. He made the high honors for the first marking period at the Berkshire School, where he is a sophomore. In addition to studying hard, Spencer is playing football, involved with the drama club and with the student government, and you can bet Mom and Dad are pleased as punch too.

❑ Today (Oct. 29) is a grand day for a grand lady. It is Mrs. Gert Young's 90th birthday! Last Sunday, her son Clark and his wife Margaret held a birthday 'wingding' for Gert, with all of her family and many of her friends present.

If you have seen Mrs. Young lately, you would never believe that she is 90...she's a wonder! Anyway, when you see her today, wish her a happy one as we do, and we all hope that there are many more happy, healthy, fullfilling years in your future.

Anyway, Jim, keep up the good work, and let us know how you and your team do through the rest of the season. Good luck.

❑ Many of Cohasset's younger generation were upset this past weekend when a good friend of theirs passed away. Cindy Bell died at the age of 23 after a lengthy battle with cancer, expected but hard to accept. Last year around this time her friends in Cohasset got together and threw a big party in her honor, something we are sure she remembered until the end, and something they can all be proud that they did. Cindy will be missed, she was loved by all.

Cohasset residents Bill Weeks and Sarah Leggat were caught by Alison Jordan's camera as they chat after taking the commuter boat home from work recently.

❑ Had a real treat last weekend when I had the honor of meeting Delaney Fone, daughter of Nanette and Scott, granddaughter of Ken and Sue Fone. What a precious love she is. She has the looks of a "Gerber baby." Scott and Nanette stopped on their way back from Falmouth, where Scott had just run in the 26-mile roadrace...whew!!!

The weather was lousy but he did well, and we all benefitted as we got to meet Delaney!

❑ Speaking of weekends, if you are a local football buff (high school that is) don't miss Channel 53 at 9:30 Saturday nights. They give the scores of the whole league, complete with film footage and comments about the games. One of the stars and commentators is none other than Cohasset's own Krissy Pompeo, who does an admirable job and loves doing it. Tune in.

❑ I had a great conversation with John Zotos last week. He has just come home after his 17th operation and 421 days in the hospital! John was operated on a month ago, and now his foot is fine and he is home recuperating (he had a fever for almost two years!). He claims that between his doctors and his wife Libby, he feels 20 years younger!

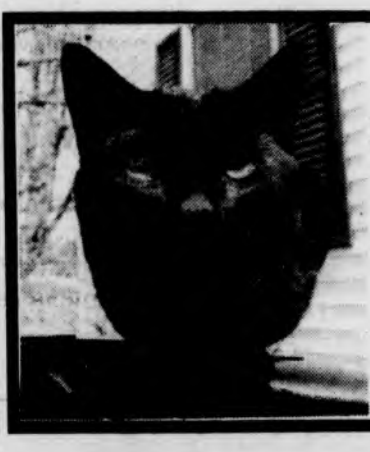
❑ Dr. Zotos had more good news. He has retired from Northeastern University and they are throwing a gigantic retirement party for him. A member of NUMEAC (Northeastern University Mechanical Engineering Alumnae Club), an organization that he founded, he will be one of four that they honor at the event (between the four, they total 104 years teaching time!). This club has done so much for Northeastern, the vehicles that they have built are known everywhere.

Northeastern will surely miss Dr. Zotos, his knowledge, his presence and his go-get 'em attitude, but we'll bet that it will be Cohasset's gain...you cannot keep a great man down, and as a 25-year resident, he loves this town!

A toast to your good health, sir.

❑ Cohasset will miss Earle Goodrich, husband of Aylsa, and father of Earle, Mark and Laurie. I remember him from my CHS days when I went to school with his son, Earle. He was a kind, gentle, involved, loving man, and all of us who knew him will miss him. The only bright light was that Earle and Aylsa had a chance to celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary last year, as you read about in Around Town.



❑ A Letter of Commendation from the National Merit Scholarship Corporation sent six Cohasset High students word that they are "Commended Students in the 1993 National Merit Scholarship Program." The students are: Harold W. Adams, Katie L. Brennock, Nathan S. Fiore, John W. Kinchla, Marc A. Mercurio and Alexander Vanderweil.

A salute to you outstanding seniors. Be proud of yourselves and keep up the grand work.

Maheras/Shooshan

At a September 6 wedding, Despina S. Maheras, daughter of Rev. John G. and Susan Maheras of Scituate, became the bride of John A. Shooshan of Scituate.

He is the son of Francis K. and Jocelyn Shooshan of Cohasset.

His Grace Methodios, Bishop of Boston, and Rev. John G. Maheras officiated the double ring, Greek Orthodox ceremony. A reception followed at the Pembroke Knights of Columbus.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her sister, Stefania Maheras of Boston, as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Joanne McCann of Plymouth, and the brides' sisters Aspasia S. Maheras of Brookline and Georgia J. Maheras of Scituate.

The flower girl was the bride's godsister, Andrea Giotopoulos of Manchester, New Hampshire. Ringbearers were Peter Booras of Hull and godbrother to the bride, James Dimos, of Manchester, New Hampshire.

The groom's brother Andrew Shooshan of Atlanta, Georgia served as best man. Ushers were Robert Fiori of Cohasset, William Kelley of Scituate, and Claude Bressard of Marshfield.

The bride attended Northeastern University and is employed at Clipper Travel in Scituate.

The groom attended Northeastern University and is employed at Web Engineering in Norwell.

After a wedding trip to Disneyworld, the couple is residing in Scituate.

Birmann/Nichols

At a September 20 wedding at St. John the Evangelist Episcopal Church in Hingham, Christine Claire Birmann, daughter of Jean and Gerhard Birmann of Cohasset, became the bride of Romaine Charles Nichols, Jr., M.D.

He is the son of Ellen Nichols Prahl and Romaine Nichols of New York, New York.

The Rev. Robert B. Edson and the Rev. John M. Gallop officiated the double-ring ceremony. A reception followed at Kimball's By-the-Sea in Cohasset.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her sister, Brenda M. Birmann of Brighton as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Alison W. Killilea of Cohasset, Elizabeth L. Murphy of Boston, and Christine F. Rogg of Wytheville, Virginia. The flower girl was Alexandria Speer and the ring bearer was Thomas Speer.

Best man was William R. Casey of Philadelphia; and the ushers were James B. Arnold of Minneapolis, Joseph Chang of Washington, D.C., and the groom's brother, Michael R. Birmann of Arlington, Massachusetts.

The bride is a graduate of Cohasset High School and Tufts University where she received a bachelor of arts with honors in international relations. She obtained her law degree with honors from the University of Florida College of Law. She is a member of the law firm of Barron, Redding, Hughes, Fite, Basset and Fensom, P.A. in Panama City, Florida.

The groom is a graduate of Phillips Exeter Academy and Georgetown University where he obtained a bachelor of arts degree in 1983 and a medical degree in 1988. He completed his residency in radiation oncology at Shands Hospital, University of Florida, Gainsville in 1992. He is medical director at the Gulf Coast Cancer Treatment Center in Panama City.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple is residing in Panama City.

'Simple' act of voting

The act of voting is a simple matter.

The registered voter shows up at his or her precinct polling place. His name is checked off on the list. He votes in secrecy in a curtained booth. He leaves and goes about his everyday business.

Yet there are those, as many as 80 or 90 per cent in some elections, who simply refuse to take the time to cast a ballot.

And that's a shame because so many people underwent so many hardships just to be able to have the opportunity to do what we will be taking as a God-given right next Tuesday.

God may have given us a lot of things but the right to vote — and all the little things that go along with it — was not one of them.

Did you know that until 1851 there was no such thing as a secret ballot in Massachusetts and it was not until 1888 that every voter in the Commonwealth had the absolute right to full anonymity in the polling place?

Until an 1851 act became law, the political parties themselves distributed their own distinctively marked ballots which told anyone who cared to watch just who the voter was voting for. This worked wonders in keeping rebellious party members in line.

The law was made optional a year later because, said its opponents, the people wanted to vote "openly in the traditional manner." It took another 37 years to bring the secret ballot back to everyone in the Bay State.

The Massachusetts Bay Colony was only a couple of dozen years old when an order was passed banning the election of any state legislator who was "unsound in judgment concerning the main points of Christian (read that Protestant) religion" and who was "scandalous in his conversation" or "unfaithful to this government."

Anyone who knowingly voted for such a person was assessed a fine of five pounds.

Before 1913, when the 17th amendment to the U. S. Constitution was ratified, voters could not cast their ballots directly for the U. S. Senate, a choice that heretofore had been better left up to the wisdom of the state legislature.

Of course, everyone knows that half the population was banned from voting until 1920 when women were given to unequivocal right to vote, a half century after Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Stanton founded the National Women's Suffrage Association.

The Founding Fathers had decided that women were too "delicate" to take part in such masculine rites as elections.

And not until 1967 was there a state law that required cities and towns to keep the polls open until 8 o'clock at night and it was another five years of constant pressure before said cities and towns were required to give voters at least 10 hours on Election Day in which to cast their ballots.

Unfortunately, it seems that every time someone works hard to make it easier to vote, the fewer voters take advantage of it.

It's been that way in the immediate past. Let's see if it's any different next Tuesday.

Firefighters respond to reprimand

Honorable Board of Selectmen,

On Oct. 6, each of the Cohasset Firefighters received what amounted to a letter of reprimand from the Board of Selectmen.

We, the Cohasset Permanent Firefighters, feel that the letter was a collection of inaccuracies and half-truths. We realize that the Board reacted to a perceived problem before investigating all sides of the issue. It would have been proper for the Board, possibly through its Fire Department liaisons, to have thoroughly researched the whole story before going as far as issuing a public reprimand.

Hopefully, in the future, we can communicate and move to solve any problems or differences with the Firefighters in a more fitting manner.

Vandalism's not a victimless crime

To the Editor:

Saturday night we were the victims of vandalism committed by several Cohasset High School teenagers. Those involved have been identified and have promised to pay restitution for the damages.

We wish to thank Officer Tom DaSilva for his thorough investigation of the matter and would like to remind the teenagers of Cohasset and their parents that vandalism is not a victimless crime.

Question 1 reduces smoking

To the Editor:

The tobacco industry, not Question 1, is unfair.

The out-of-state tobacco companies are calling themselves the Committee Against Unfair Taxes to oppose Question 1. In fact, 100 percent of the $10 million budget opposing Question 1 comes from the tobacco industry, and it's claiming that the initiative is unfair.

OK, let's talk about fairness. What's really unfair is a $40 billion industry exploiting children by getting them hooked on cigarettes when they are still too young to understand the dangers of tobacco use and how addictive it can be. Joe Camel's audience isn't senior citizens — it's our kids.

Addiction is unfair. The industry knows full well how addictive tobacco is, yet they continue to peddle their product, particularly to low-income people and children.

Cancer is unfair. Anyone who has watched a family member suffer from emphysema or lung cancer knows how emotionally and financially devastating it is.

Tobacco's burden on we the taxpayer is unfair. Every year, Massachusetts taxpayers shell out $1.5 billion for the costs of smoking-related illness and lost productivity.

The tobacco industry is unfair. Its profits have increased 150 percent in the last decade. Their claim to represent the interests of the poor is a lie, pure and simple.

When voting on Question 1, keep trust in mind as well as fairness. Who do you trust to tell the truth about Question 1, and who is creating a smokescreen? The American Cancer Society put Question 1 on the ballot to reduce smoking and save lives. The tobacco industry's phony arguments about tax burdens and sales lost to border states pale in comparison to the 434,000 lives lost prematurely every year in this country because of smoking.

South Shore voters are smart enough to cut through the smokescreen and do the fair thing, and the right thing. Vote YES on Question 1.

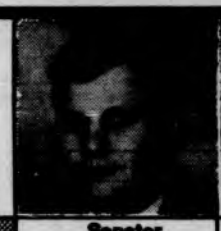
Question 3 opponents make false claims



In the past few weeks, we've been bombarded with TV ads sponsored by opponents of Question 3. They make false claims about the purpose and cost of the Recycling Initiative, estimating a $500 million dollar price tag and labeling the measure "The Repackaging Initiative."

In reality, every million tons of waste recycled employs 10,000 people and adds $700 million to the state's economy (DEP Division of Solid Waste Management, July 1992). The Recycling Initiative doesn't force manufacturers into sudden and financially devastating change. They are instead given four years and five different ways to comply. Packaging by 1996 must be: 1.) made of at least 25 percent recycled material, as are cereal boxes, 2.) reduced in size by 25 percent, such as trimming unnecessary layers of plastic, cardboard, and styrofoam, 3.) made of materials being recycled at a rate of 25 percent, such as glass jars, 4.) reusable five or more times, as are glass or plastic milk bottles, 5.) recycled itself at a rate of 50 percent. Returnable soda bottles are already in this category.

Question 3 does not require repackaging just a

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. The House and Senate met only in brief, informal sessions last week. Formal sessions are expected to begin following the November election. This week, "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local representatives' votes on two roll calls from sessions at the end of September. There were no roll calls in either branch last week.
ADULT LITERACY (H 5800) House 147-0, overrode Governor Weld's veto of a budget section requiring the Education Department to coordinate a working committee to recommend adequate funding mechanisms for adult basic education and literacy services. Override supporters, noting the committee does not require funding, said this will help ensure better literacy and education programs for AFDC recipients, the unemployed, school dropouts, immigrants and refugees. In his veto message, Governor Weld said the state has insufficient resources to spend time developing a program for which there is no funding. (A "Yea" vote is for the working committee).		Y
INDEPENDENT LIVING (H 5800) - House 148-0, overrode Governor Weld's veto reduction of $100,000 (from $3.59 million to $3.49 million) in funding for the independent living assistance program. Override supporters said this $100,000 is necessary for adequate funding of this program to help disabled people who want to live on their own. In his veto message, Governor Weld said spending on programs must be limited to the projected revenues available. (A "Yea" vote is for the $100,000).		Y

Networks, pollsters deserve comeuppance

By Charlene Vandini
Mariner correspondent

I've been getting these phone calls. The first one was a couple weeks ago. It was followed by another one a few days later. And tonight there was a third. Obviously, I'm not very quick on the uptake, because only now does it occur to me that each of these phone calls has followed the presidential debates. I guess I'm on someone's list. In each case, a poll-taker wanted to know who I'm voting for on November 3. I guess I should be flattered, to think that I fit some demographic that makes my vote a barometer of the national political climate. To think that I'm one small part of those percentage points, bar graphs, and pie-charts that keep cropping on the evening news, I should be pleased as punch.

Actually, this is a pretty scary thought.

So, what did I say?

I lied.

Each time, I gave a different response.

In the first place, I'll be damned if I'm going to share my vote with some faceless humanoid on the other end of the telephone line.

commentary

In the second place, this polling is ruining all the fun. Election night used to be a good time. For a political junkie, this is the World Series, Super Bowl, Stanley Cup Finals, the Academy Awards, and the Miss America Pageant rolled into one. Ignore the dinner dishes. (They won't get washed until the returns come in from the suburban precincts of Helena, Montana. Maybe.) A bag of chips, a bowl of dip, other assorted munchies, and hunker down to watch the dips on TV.

As George C. Scott said in "Patton," "I love it. God help me, I do love it so."

And the networks are ruining everything. They project the winners based on exit-polling. So, as soon as the polls close in each state, these chuckle-heads are proclaiming a victor.

I long for the days like the 1960 election. I was allowed to stay up late that night. Or as late as I could manage at that tender age. I remember all our household grown-ups were on pins and needles about JFK. I think we all ended up going to bed with no idea of what we'd hear when we tuned on the TV in the morning. [Now we know that it probably wasn't so much high drama as it was high finance: Old Man Joe Kennedy is rumored to have been negotiating with Chicago Mayor Daley for the Illinois electoral vote. Oh well.]

Now I read in the paper that there's this organization called the Committee for the Study of the American Electorate, which is urging people to contact the TV networks and complain. Tell 'em to knock-off the election night predictions, at least until the polls close in California. (Sorry, Hawaii).

That's not such a bad idea, at least in principle. But the networks have a point. They say that once a candidate's electoral vote tally reaches 270, there's no sense withholding that information from the public. Maybe the west coast should just go on Eastern Standard Time for Election Day.

The real problem is that the networks' election results are based on exit polling, so the networks' numbers are only verified by the actual vote count.

So, complaining to the networks isn't going to work. The only solution is to make the polls inaccurate. If the polls aren't right, then the networks won't hire any more pollsters to harass voters as they leave the polling places.

Simply put, lie to the pollsters.

It doesn't matter who you're going to vote for. You can say you're going to write-in Larry King. But it would really screw up the pollsters if Clinton voters said "Perot" and Perot voters said "Bush," and Bush voters said "Clinton." It would even be okay if you give different answers to different pollsters. Or, tell them all that you're undecided.

Once in awhile, you can even tell the truth. That would really foul up the works, as long as no one does it too often.

There's one outside hope in all this. There have been several stories in the newspapers that new voters are registering in droves. This could really send all the pollsters' statistics right into the dumper.

I keep waiting for my generation to assume its rightful place in the electoral process. In essence, there are more of us than there are of any other age group. We baby-boomers could call the shots until we start pushing up daisies (and even then we'll probably still be voting in some Boston precincts!), as long as we vote in a cohesive block. Which is pretty big leap of faith right there.

In the end, in the final analysis, I really wouldn't care who wins this election, if I knew the voter turn-out was huge. I think I could stand almost any outcome if I really believed that the election was determined by more than the usual 50-60 percent of the eligible voters.

I like progress. At least most of the time. But I really don't need to know at 8:02 p.m. EST who has won this election. And, by November 5, I'm not going to remember which network first predicted the results. And, at no time will I care which network was first.

I keep hoping for a repeat of that famous photograph of Harry Truman, holding up the newspaper proclaiming Thomas E. Dewey the victor. Wouldn't that give the networks and pollsters their comeuppance. That doesn't necessarily mean I think George Bush should be re-elected. I just want all the statisticians and pundits to be wrong. Imagine a befuddled George Will! And, I want to enjoy election night.

If anyone asks me on the way out of the polls who I voted for, I'm going to lie. Or maybe not.

I have a suspicion that on election day, I'll cast my vote, and the phone will ring—again, around dinner time. I'll tell the pollsters that I don't really know who I voted for because I closed my eyes and marked the ballot. Then, I'll park myself in front of the TV, with the dips. (And, no, I don't mean my husband and kids!)

Have a nice day, George Gallup!

Spirit of cooperation is needed

(Hingham selectmen recently voted to spend $5,000 for engineering consultants to review and respond to MBTA studies on restoration of rail service to the Greenbush Line).

To the Editor:

It was Tuesday night, Hingham people; do you know where your money went?

Five thousand dollars were transferred by your Selectmen from the Reserve Fund to the Selectmen's Unclassified Account to enable the "Old Colony Railroad Response Team" to develop a challenge to the Supplemental Draft Environmental Impact Report now being prepared by the MBTA as it examines restoration of rail service to the Greenbush Line.

Several comments are in order:

1) At a time when our schools, firefighters, police, and other public services are being forced to beg at Town Meeting for every penny, our elected officials did not hesitate to dip into the Town's scarce resources to fund the effort of a small special-interest group in pursuing its goal of denying not only Hingham, but all other communities along the Greenbush Line, a modern, efficient alternative to the daily trek up and down Route 3 and the Southeast Expressway. Townspeople have not been given any opportunity to vote on this significant allocation of our limited resources.

2) This $5,000 will go to join the $3,000 already expended by the Selectmen two years ago (again, with no public input) in preparing a response to the Draft Environmental Impact Study that consisted two-thirds of photocopies of signatures collected by opponents (with abundant duplication of names), with the balance divided between an imaginative essay on the reversion of the railroad right-of-way to an Eden populated by rare animals and plants and a discourse on the imminent peril posed by trains to abutting buildings that had seen many years of rail traffic with no evident harm. Do you believe that $8000 will be all that we are asked to expend on this quixotic crusade? If you do, I have a very attractive bridge between New York and Brooklyn that I can let you have at a very good price....

3) Several weeks ago I attended a Selectmen's meeting to express concern about the manner in which Mr. Alexander Macmillan, acting on behalf of the Town, was threatening lawsuits in public meetings on the rail restoration, and suggested that a member of the Hingham Transportation Committee be appointed to the Old Colony Response Team to provide balance. I was told that the Team was not a formal body, and so the Selectmen could not appoint any Transportation Committee members (most of whom, coincidentally, support restoration of rail service here).

Are we to conclude, then, that any group of private citizens whose aims (which in this case would result in denial of modern transportation to an entire geographical area) the Selectmen support, can approach our leaders hat in hand and receive a handout? The line forms on the right, folks!

Whether accurate or not, the image of Hingham that has taken root in our neighbors' minds has been that of a snobbish town indifferent to others' needs and unwilling to discuss solutions to the rail issue while offering only stubborn opposition and costly alternatives (a tunnel under Hingham!) aimed at weighting down the project with costs until it sinks. It is still not too late to correct this impression, but it will require a willingness on the part of opponents to sit down and discuss their concerns with the MBTA in a spirit of cooperation, not of confrontation. At the same time, I urge my fellow Hingham residents to ask our Selectmen how deeply they plan to reach into the pockets of the many to fund the efforts of the selfish few.

reduction in wasteful, excessive packaging.

The predominantly out-of-state backers of "No on 3" are companies like Exxon, Dow Chemical, and DuPont, all of whom have dismal environmental records. They have pledged to spend "whatever it takes" to defeat the Recycling Initiative.

Supporters of Question 3 are a large and diverse group including Kingston, Cohasset, Dedham, and Norwood Health Boards, dozens of town recycling committees, U.S. Reps. Joseph Kennedy and Gerry Studds, Mass. Teachers Association, MASSPIRG, Gov. William Weld, and the League of Women Voters.

We all remember the dire prediction of economic disaster and mega-beaurocracies that surrounded the Bottle Bill. They were wrong then and they are wrong now.

Big turnout expected for Tuesday's election

Just who will be the beneficiary of a big voter turnout is anybody's guess, since each of the major parties, Democrats and Republicans, have been losing members in a trickle while the number of unenrolled voters in the South Shore grows.

Leaving the Clinton-Perot-Bush contest to the national press, the big local races are for Congress and the State Senate.

STUDDS, DALY, BRYAN

Studds, who may return as Cohasset's man in Washington as a result of redistricting after an hiatus of 10 years, has campaigned strongly on his seniority in Congress which dates back 20 years.

He is now acting chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee and is assured of being named permanent chairman when the new Congress convenes in January, provided he is reelected to an 11th term.

His committee, as Studds rarely fails to point out, is legislatively involved in the Clean Water Act, under the provisions of which the MWRA (Massachusetts Water Resources Authority) is cleaning up Boston Harbor at great and, right now, almost exclusive cost to the ratepayers of the cities and towns.

Daly, who was once undersecretary of economic affairs in the Weld Administration, has cited his experience as a small business owner and family man as assets in solving the problems that face Massachusetts and the nation today.

"I've created jobs; I've met mortgage payments; I've paid education bills; and I've worried about health insurance," he says. "Those are the things people are talking about."

Bryan, running as a Republican, lost to Studds by a goodly margin in 1988 and then gave the veteran congressman a real scare two years later by coming within 17,500 votes of an upset.

Bryan was gearing up for a third run at Studds earlier this year when Gov. Weld gave his endorsement to his old ally Daly and Bryan left the party, at least temporarily, to run as an independent. How many Republicans he can draw with him may decide the election.

HEDLUND -McDONALD

The Hedlund-McDonald fight might have been a rematch of a 1990 race if longtime Rep. Robert Ambler had not stepped in to take away the Democratic nomination from McDonald. Ambler was beaten by Hedlund in the general election.

The race has split Democratic party bigwigs in Weymouth as Selectmen Peg Goudy, Joseph Piper and Donald Hunt have been actively supporting Hedlund.

Republicans have targeted Hedlund's reelection as particularly critical since loss of the seat might endanger Gov. Weld's Senate protection against an override of his vetoes of legislation dear to Democrats, who control both houses.

Elsewhere on Tuesday's ballot, interest in the race for county commission is high since two vacant seats are up for grabs for the first time in memory and six candidates are contesting for them.

They are:

Democrats John Gillis, the just retired city clerk of Quincy, and William P. O'Donnell, an assistant district attorney and a member of the Norwood Planning Board.

Republicans James G. Mullen Jr., the town clerk of Milton, and Robert A. Frazier of Canton.

Unenrolled candidates James B. Geary of Avon and Paul R. Seaman of Walpole.

The is also a contest to succeed Peter Eeley of Quincy as governor's councillor from the fourth district.

Democrat Christopher A. Ianella Jr. of Boston, son of the late Boston city councillor of the same name, is vying with Republican Kenneth G. Fortini of Duxbury, Independent John J. Horgan of Braintree and Thomas J. Corkery of Quincy, an unenrolled candidate.

Republican Paul F. Kelly of Millis is challenging Clifford Marshall of Quincy for county sheriff.

The town's state representative, Republican Mary Jeanette Murray is unopposed for reelection in the third Plymouth District.

While most of the voters in the state will be faced by four statewide referendum questions, those in Weymouth and the rest of Norfolk County will have a fifth decision to make.

THE FIFTH QUESTION

They are being asked if a commission should be formed to study the county charter and make recommendations on what, if any, changes should be made in its form of government.

They will also have a chance to vote on two members of that commission, James F. Clarke Jr. of Weymouth in one district and Francis A. Hegarty of Avon in another.

Election TV coverage

Cable TV channel 53 televises "Newsbeat 53: Decision '92" starting at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 3.

Newsbeat provides live results and analysis of the local races including live reactions from the headquarters of candidates for U.S. Congress and state offices. Volunteers from the area serve as reporters, field photographers, studio crew members, and analysts.

Pierson to Person stirs up Weymouth race

By Tom Henshaw
Mariner staff

The final week of the campaign turned into a battle of endorsements for Republican Sen. Robert Hedlund and Democratic challenger Brian McDonald.

And, as a related side show, the question was asked: How many people think the Weymouth Board of Selectmen resembles a "gong show?"

It started on a show of another kind, Cohasset's cable's "Pierson to Person," when Hedlund noted that some Weymouth selectmen and firefighters have endorsed the Republican candidate.

"Until you're a member of the Board of Selectmen in Weymouth," said McDonald, a member himself for two terms until 1991, "you can't appreciate this.

"People will tell you the board resembles a 'gong show' rather than an actual governing body."

Chairman Peg Goudy couldn't let that go by without taking a swing at it.

And neither could former Selectmen George T. Dowd Jr. Francis E. Murphy and Richard E. Ramponi.

McDonald called his "gong show" remark a "response to a loaded question in the heat of a debate."

"I was not trying to categorize anyone on the board," he said. "I was just reiterating what people tell me, that they are constantly amused at the goings on at board meetings."

"Who supports who in a senatorial campaign is one issue," said Goudy, "the hard work accomplished by the Board of Selectmen is another.

"Instead of separating the issues, it appears Mr. McDonald decided to make a comment that demeans the work accomplished by the board.

"Serving as chairman since May, I can honestly say I am proud of the work performed by this."

Goudy, one of those who supports Hedlund, said the present times may be even more difficult than those which confronted the board with McDonald a member.

She listed the board's efforts in fighting the MWRA sewer assessments in coalition with officials from other MWRA towns as well as District Attorney William Delahunt and Cong. Gerry Studds.

"Somehow," she said, "I do think that accomplishments of this nature do not warrant a remark such as Mr. McDonald made during the debate.

"The Board of Selectmen have always had good communications with past and present state senators.

"Remarks such as Mr. McDonald's, in my opinion, do not foster or lay the foundation for that type of a working relationship.

"Brian, I believe, owes the board of Selectmen an apology."

Dowd, Murphy and Ramponi called McDonald's remark "a perfect example of why his election would not be in Weymouth's best interest."

"Unlike Mr. McDonald's actions when he served on the board," they said in a joint release, "the present board encourages debate and opposing points of view in an attempt to solve Weymouth's financial problems; it's called democracy."

They noted that Hedlund "has worked hard to ensure that Weymouth received additional local aid and was responsible for pension reform that allowed Weymouth to balance last year's budget."

McDonald characterized the opposition from former and present Selectmen as more personal than political.

"If it has anything to do with politics," he asked, "how do they square their support for Gerry Studds? He's a lot closer to me ideologically than Hedlund."

He said Hedlund is attempting to give the impression that he (McDonald) does not have broad-based support from Democrats.

"He sent 35,000 pieces of mail to Democrats and Independents asking their votes in the Democratic primary," McDonald said. "He got 137. I'm the one with broad-based support."

McDonald also took a hit in a flyer distributed by the Weymouth Independent Taxpayers Association.

It charged that "Proposition 2 1/2 will be gutted if we don't maintain the balance of power on Beacon Hill."

Cable show stirs up race . . .

"At the state level," the flyer continued, "Brian McDonald wants a penny increase in the sales tax (a 20% increase) to repay the powerful teachers' union for their support."

McDonald denied it.

"I have not said I will support a penny increase in the sales tax," he said. "My position is that the federal government owes the state a fair share of the revenue stream.

"We must do everything we can to get a Democrat elected to the White House so we can get a fair share of the money we send to Washington."

He called WITA "an organization that has not reputation for truth in its flyers that grossly mislead the people."

McDonald has received endorsements from retiring Cong. Brian Donnelly and Cong. Joseph Kennedy, a onetime Marshfield resident, who promised that McDonald "will fight to get the South Shore back on track." On Tuesday he was endorsed in a Boston Globe editorial.

Hedlund countered with endorsements from the Boston Carmen's Union and from Donald Hussey of Hingham, who ran against him for the Republican nomination for senator in 1990.

"Since the elections of 1990," he said, "we have had a balanced, representative democracy. This has come about primarily because the governor has enough collective support to sustain a veto when confronted with regressive legislation."

McDonald noted that he has the support of both Weymouth Reps. Paul Haley and Ron Mariano as well as seven Massachusetts AFL-CIO locals, the South Shore Building Trades Council, the Norfolk Labor Council and Teamsters Local 504.

"The outpouring of support from public officials and groups representing the working people has been tremendous," he said.

Endorsing Hedlund, Kevin Dawyskiba, president of the Weymouth Fire Fighters Union, hailed the senator for his "strong commitment to public safety" whose post on the Committee on Public Safety gives him excellent position to help the safety needs of Weymouth.

Halloween fair scares up some fun!

Bo Peep (Paige Weisenfeld) and Snow White (Ashley Blair) arrive at the Halloween Fair Sunday sponsored by the Cohasset Community Center.

Staff photos/Alan Chapman

Scared? No way! says Corbin Faber as he clowns around with Batman (Charlie Santoro) at the Halloween Fair Sunday. Kids of all ages flocked to the Community Center to join the fun.

Above, Roxanne Theranian plays a game at the party as as very scary witch (Ashley Faber) waits her turn. Activities included cupcake decorating and apple creature creations as well as games like lucky lollipop. Right, sister act, Rachel (pirate) and Vanessa Hardin are all decked out for the Halloween Fair. Every child at the fair received a prize or Halloween treat for participating in any game or activity.

Book on elders' rights

The new Massachusetts Bar Association publication, Legal Handbook Handbook for Massachusetts Elders, is a comprehensive legal reference and resource guide for older Massachusetts residents. The bar association is sending free copies to seniors who request them.

Eight chapters in the 104-page book cover a wide range of elders' concerns including Social Security, supplemental security income, veterans' benefits, pension benefits, tax relief, age discrimination, Medicare and Medicaid entitlements, landlord/tenant law, consumer protection, abuse protection, health care proxies and wills.

Free single copies of Legal Handbook for Massachusetts Elders may be obtained by writing Elder Handbook, Massachusetts Bar Association, 20 West Street, Boston, MA 02111-1218.

Staying in shape with line dancing at town hall are Tilly Carey (front) and Priscilla Shea. The class is sponsored by the Council on Aging. Stay tuned to the Cohasset Mariner every week for lots of news of interest to the town's senior citizens.

Age of Columbus exhibit

The library has on exhibit a collection of books about the age of Columbus, and about the encounter between Europe and the New World. Included in the exhibit are:

The Worlds of Christopher Columbus, by William Phillips and Carla Phillips. Describes Europe in the 15th century, its ignorance of Africa, Asia and the Western Hemisphere; places Columbus in the context of European and world history.

World Explorers and Discoverers, edited by Richard Bohlander. A biographical dictionary of over 300 of the most extraordinary and enterprising people who ever lived. Includes maps and photographs.

America 1492: Portrait of a Continent 500 Years Ago, by Manuel Lucena Salmoral. Salmoral is professor of American history in Madrid and has taught in Panama and Columbia. This is a lavishly illustrated account of the Amerindian world of 1492.

Europe 1492: Portrait of a Continent 500 Years Ago, by Franco Cardini. A richly illustrated account of the remarkable changes taking place in Europe in the late 15th century: the age of Lorenzo de' Medici, Isabella and Ferdinand, the expulsion of Muslims and Jews from Spain, the age of Michelangelo, Leonardo da Vinci, Erasmus, Machiavelli, Savonarola.

Confronting Columbus: an Anthology. A collection of essays which challenge the popular historical accounts; bibliographies and suggestions for alternative approaches to the study of this crucial event.

In Quest of the Great White Gods: Contact Between the Old and New World from the Dawn of History, by Robert F. Marx and Jenifer G. Marx. An account of three decades of searching for and finding evidence of pre-Columbian contact between the Old World and the New. The great Mayan and Axtec civilizations had legends about the coming of white men. Marx believes that legends were founded in ancient contact with Phoenicians, Vikings, and Irish sailors.

Native American Testimony: A Chronicle of Indian-White Relations from Prophecy to the Present. 1492-1992. Edited by Peter Nabokov. this epic documentary chronicles five centuries of American Indian perspectives on the interchanges with Europeans. An alternative history of North America.

Columbus and the Age of Discovery, by Zvi Dor-Ner. This well-illustrated book is the companion volume to the PBS television series of the same name. A biography of Columbus, an account of his explorations, a survey of the social, political, and intellectual history of the age.

Jeanne Bjorkgren browses through the book selection at the library sale last weekend. Many books of all types were offered, fiction and non-fiction in hard cover and paper back. (Staff photo/Alan Chapman)

Book sale a hit

Over 200 people attended the book sale at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library last weekend.

Artist Norma McKenzie was on hand Saturday afternoon, from noon to 2 p.m., to do calligraphy on book bags. Many attending the book sale purchased books and book bags.

Volunteers Patience Towle, Jan Pierson, Anne Costello, Moira Stanton, Carole Ann Dean, Fred Garrison, Doris McNulty, Barbara Power, John Hartshorne, Estey Manning, Lucille McLoughlin and Betty Eaton staffed the book sale Friday, Saturday, and Sunday afternoons.

The event raised over $1,500 dollars for the library.

Congratulations to all who helped make the annual book sale a great success!

Fall library hours

Fall hours at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library are: Sunday, 2 to 5 p.m.; Monday and Tuesday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; closed Wednesday; Thursday and Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Substance use, abuse

The Cohasset Drug and Alcohol Committee recently made available free informational materials regarding substance use and abuse. There are pamphlets on many related topics. They are displayed on a table in the reference room at the Paul Pratt Library.

The supply changes every 2-3 weeks. The Cohasset Drug and Alcohol Committee encourages anyone with a concern about these issues to stop by and take any brochures they want.

Additional materials are also available. For specific information or comments, please call Ellie Waal, 383-6882.

Cohasset's young authors

Books that were created last year by the third grade students at the Joseph Osgood School as part of their writing curriculum, can be found on the shelves of the Paul Pratt Library.

With the help of their teachers and parent volunteers, the children typed their completed stories on computers, and then added original illustrations.

The manuscripts were sent to the Publishing Center of Osgood where parent volunteers either bound them into spiral books, or cut them into hardcover "bare" books.

Free passes available

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Woolf of Cohasset generously donated two complimentary passes to the Historic Deerfield Museum Houses in Deerfield where there are 12 handsome 18th and 19th century houses open to the public. Inside are wonderful tall clocks and high chests, silver tankards and bright embroideries, looking glasses and imported Chinese porcelains once used and enjoyed by residents of the Connecticut River Valley.

The passes are available at the library.

September student of the month: Michelle Le Mar

"This is my second year teaching Michelle, and I am highly impressed by her eagerness to learn and her very positive input into each and every class. She has demonstrated an exceptional insight into the deeper conflicts of the human spirit, and has willingly shared this awareness in many of my English electives. Michelle is also a beautiful person, and indeed I am blessed to have her as my student."

— nominated by: Mrs. Burbank.

"What a pleasure it is to recognize Michelle as 'Student of the Month' for September. Michelle is a diligent and determined individual who sets high standards and goals for herself and then aspires to reach them.

Michelle overcomes any obstacles in her way and strives for perfection in all her business classes. This year she is enrolled in three (3) business courses: accounting II, computer applications, and keyboarding — in all of which she is doing exceptionally well. She spends her time out of the academic school setting working in the high school cafeteria as well as Burger King while studying for an enterprising business career.

Michelle always finds the time to help her classmates and is a mature young lady who is a terrific role model for her peers.

Cohasset is indeed lucky to have a student such as Michelle. her hard work, dedication, and caring has endeared her to many who know her."

— nominated by: Mrs. White.

Safe homes needed

SAFE HOMES is a network for parents who are concerned about substance abuse in Cohasset. All parents of children in grades 6 through 12 are encouraged to participate.

SAFE HOMES parents agree that they will not provide or condone the use of drugs or alcohol in their homes or on their property; that they will not allow parties in their home or on their property when they are not present.

Concerned parents can make a difference!

SAFE HOMES contracts have been mailed out and must be returned by Nov. 1 in order to be included in the booklet of participating families.

For additional information please call Ellie Waal, 383-6882.

'Avant Garde,' tonight

"Avant Garde Night" is happening Thursday, Oct. 29, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Cohasset Jr./Sr. High School.

Music and art students present projects that will engage all five of your senses! These "happenings" include:

- An underwater environment.
- A Native American environment.
- An enchanted forest.

This program will expand your definitions of art and music and will celebrate the creative spirit!

Early Release Day

Nov. 5 is an early release day in the Cohasset Public Schools. There will be no afternoon kindergarten sessions and other students will be dismissed according to the following schedule:

School	Buses Depart
Junior/Senior H.S.	12 p.m.
Deer Hill School	12:40 p.m.
Joseph Osgood School	12:50 p.m.

Lunch will be served in the elementary schools and food service will be available at the Junior/Senior High School.

This early release day has been approved by the Cohasset School Committee to allow the staff at the elementary schools and the Junior/Senior High School to attend inservice programs on knowledge bases and collegiality and also for parent conferences at Joseph Osgood School.

METCO family dinner

The Cohasset METCO Program celebrates the start of this, its 25th year, at its second annual fall dinner Sunday, Nov. 1 from 3 to 6 p.m. at Cohasset High School.

Last year's lasagna menu will be repeated, as will the fun events including apple bobbing and donut hanging.

Entertainment includes a street dancing event.

The METCO Committee continues to finalize its host family assignments and families are still needed. Anyone interested in the Cohasset METCO program will find opportunities to be involved in some aspect of the program and may call their class rep, listed below or Dayle Dickinson, Committee Chair. METCO Class reps are as follows: Grades 1, 2 and 4 - Sherry Anderson (0587); grades 3 and 5 - Angie Walsh (2151); grades 6, 7 and 8 - Susan Pile (6088); grades 9 and 10 - Dayle Dickinson (0892) and grades 11 and 12 - Joan Kovach (6358).

Girls' soccer advances to tourney but loses Murphy

By Paul McAleer
Mariner correspondent

The Lady Skippers clinched a spot in the post-season tournament this week as they picked up two victories but suffered a major loss as sophomore Erin Murphy, the team's leading scorer as well as the third leading scorer in the league, broke her collar bone in a game on Friday against Carver.

Cohasset started off the week against a tough opponent, Norwell, ranked fifth in Eastern Massachusetts, and played extremely well, coach Kennan Startzell said, but took a loss on a "fluke" goal.

The game had been even as the teams matched each other in play until,15 minutes left to go in the game, as a Norwell attacker charged and goalie Allison Ludlow rushed to meet her, the Norwell attacker kicked the ball and it deflected off a Cohasset player and into the net.

"We were mentally ready and physically ready. We had some good shots on them," Startzell said. "They were very happy to win."

The next day, back home against Carver, Cohasset ended their two game losing streak as they won 3-0, with all three goals scored in the first half.

Just two minutes into the game, Erin Murphy scored after being set up by Katie Carroll and Kathleen O'Brien, who scored 10 minutes later after being set up by Carroll.

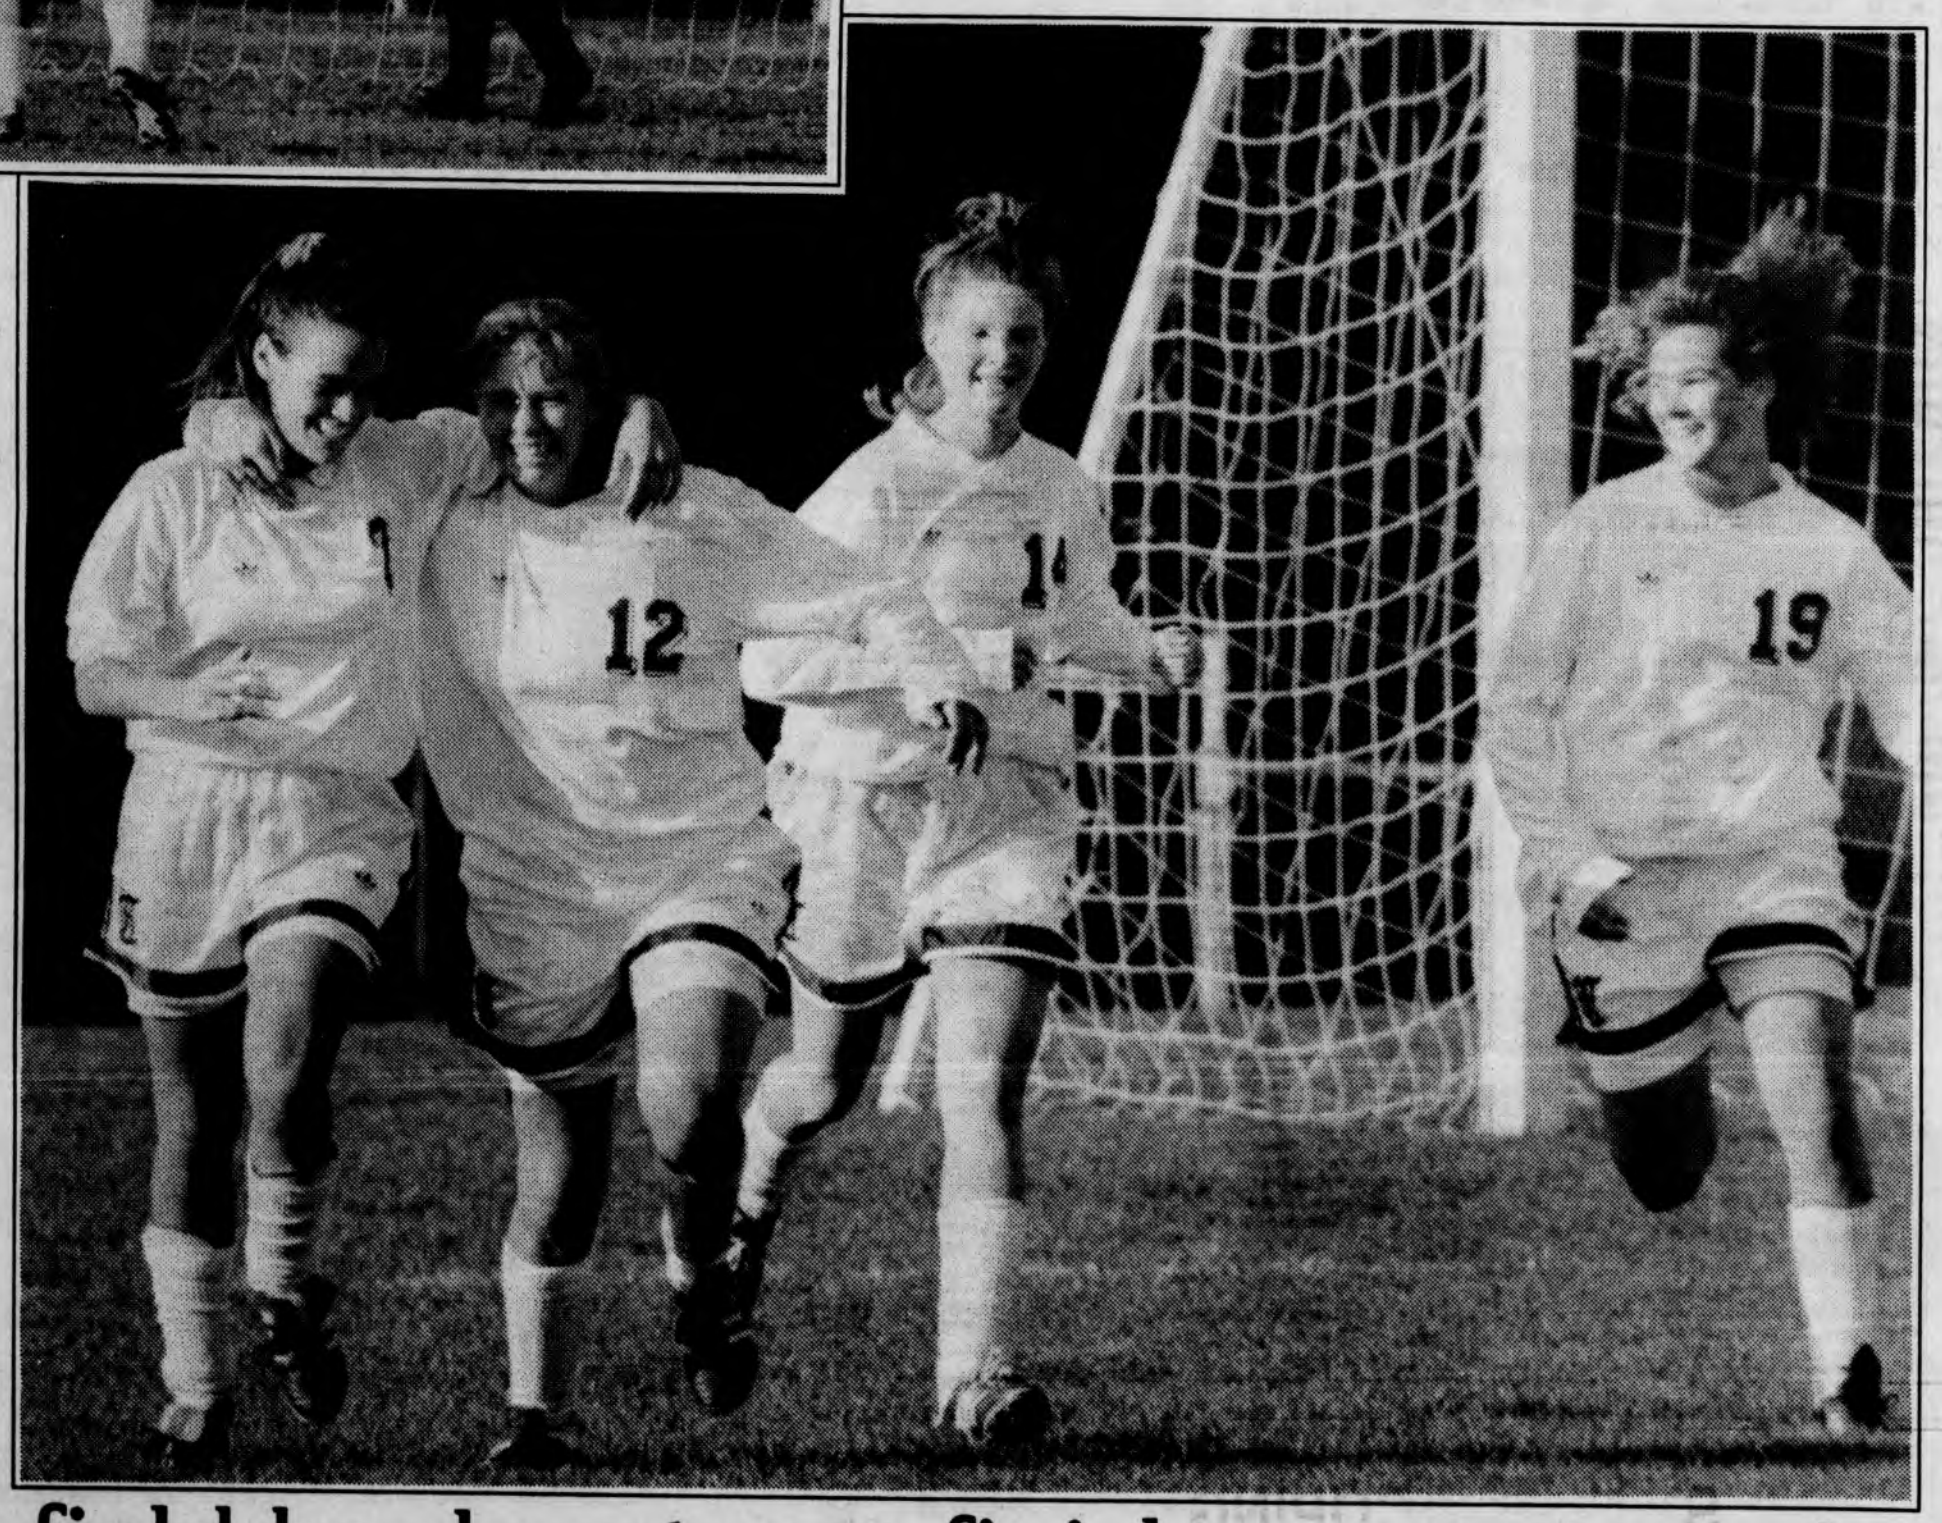
Unfortunately, Murphy's goal was her last of the season.

About 15 minutes into the first half, Murphy collided with a Carver player and, Startzell said, landed the wrong way.

Cohasset came back after losing Murphy and senior Jen Anstead scored her first varsity goal with about 10 minutes left in the first half.

"They weren't too tough. I just think that we're that much better," Startzell said. "They're a young team and I think they felt dejected after going down 3-0."

On Monday, at home again, the Skippers clinched their tournament spot by pulling out a close 2-1 victory against Scituate.



For the first 10 minutes, Scituate could not get the ball out of their end as Cohasset completely dominated the game before Kathleen O'Brien scored unassisted.

Twenty five minutes into the first half, Katie Carroll set up eighth grader Kathleen Fitzsimmons, who was making her varsity start because of the injury to Murphy, making the score 2-0.

Fitzsimmons, who was called on to the varsity squad because of her speed and ball sense, was told 20 minutes before the game started that she would be on varsity that day, Startzell said.

Fitzsimmons' goal was not only the game winner, as Scituate scored late in the second half, but the goal that guaranteed Cohasset a spot in the tournament.

She shoots, she scores! Kathy O'Brien (#2) is congratulated by Jen Knowles (#12) and Katie Carroll (#14) after scoring with a header (insert) against arch rival Norwell in varsity girls' soccer action.

CHS field hockey team finishes great week

The field hockey team avoided defeat this week as they picked up two victories and a tie as they moved closer to getting enough points to qualify for the post-season.

On Friday afternoon, the Skippers got their first victory of the week at home against Carver by a score of 3-1.

Junior Jemilah Afshar scored her first goal on an assist by Bridgette Corkery in the first half to get things moving for Cohasset.

Cohasset added two more in the second half by Danielle Shaughnessy, the first assisted by Cilla Goff, the second by Nikki Peterson, Katie Ridge and Goff.

On Saturday, they played at Norwell in a game that had been postponed Wednesday because of rain and because of the postponement, senior co-captain Bridgette Corkery was not able to make this "must win game for the tournament" because of a college interview, coach Debbie Bostwick said.

Bostwick had junior Katie Norris replace Corkery for the game and she played well, Bostwick said, and set up Caryn Murray for Cohasset's first goal of the game.

In the second half Shaughnessy scored on a goal set up by Goff and Murray scored the final goal on a pass by Peterson.

Bostwick said this was a very intense game and there were contributions from many players but Julie Good may have saved the game as she stopped two shots that goalie Gina Rosano had charged but missed.

Cohasset made another great performance on Monday against Scituate, a team that has always given Cohasset a tough time because of their rough style of play but were stalemated in a scoreless game.

"The kids outplayed Scituate for the first time. Scituate is a tough, physical team. They take no prisoners," Bostwick said.

"We could taste that we had a win and if we had a few more minutes or even seconds, we could've won," she said. "It was a total team effort. Every girl gave everything."

Goalie Gina Rosano made some really great saves, including one late save on a free hit, but Scituate's goalie also turned in an outstanding performance and the Skippers had to settle for a tie.

The field hockey team has their two final games this week, against Hanover and Hull, and the outcome of these games will determine their tournament hopes.

Clipper gridmen sail past Abington

It was a night of firsts for many on the football team Friday as they picked up their first win of the season over a South Shore League opponent, Abington, by a score of 34-20.

"This win starts the second half in the right direction," coach Ted McDermott said. "We carried over a good team effort, physically, from the Carver game (the week before), where we made a lot of mental mistakes."

Senior John Maynard, five of six passing, 91 yards, two touchdowns, started his second consecutive game at quarterback and threw his first and second touchdown passes of his career.

The first went to senior Sheldon Morgan, who picked up his first career touchdown reception with three seconds left in the first half to give Cohasset, 2-4, a 14-7 lead.

The Skippers got things started on their first drive of the game when senior tailback Ray Jones, 25 carries, 159 yards, two touchdowns, ran the ball in from five yards.

Abington came back and tied the game at seven before Morgan gave Cohasset the half time lead.

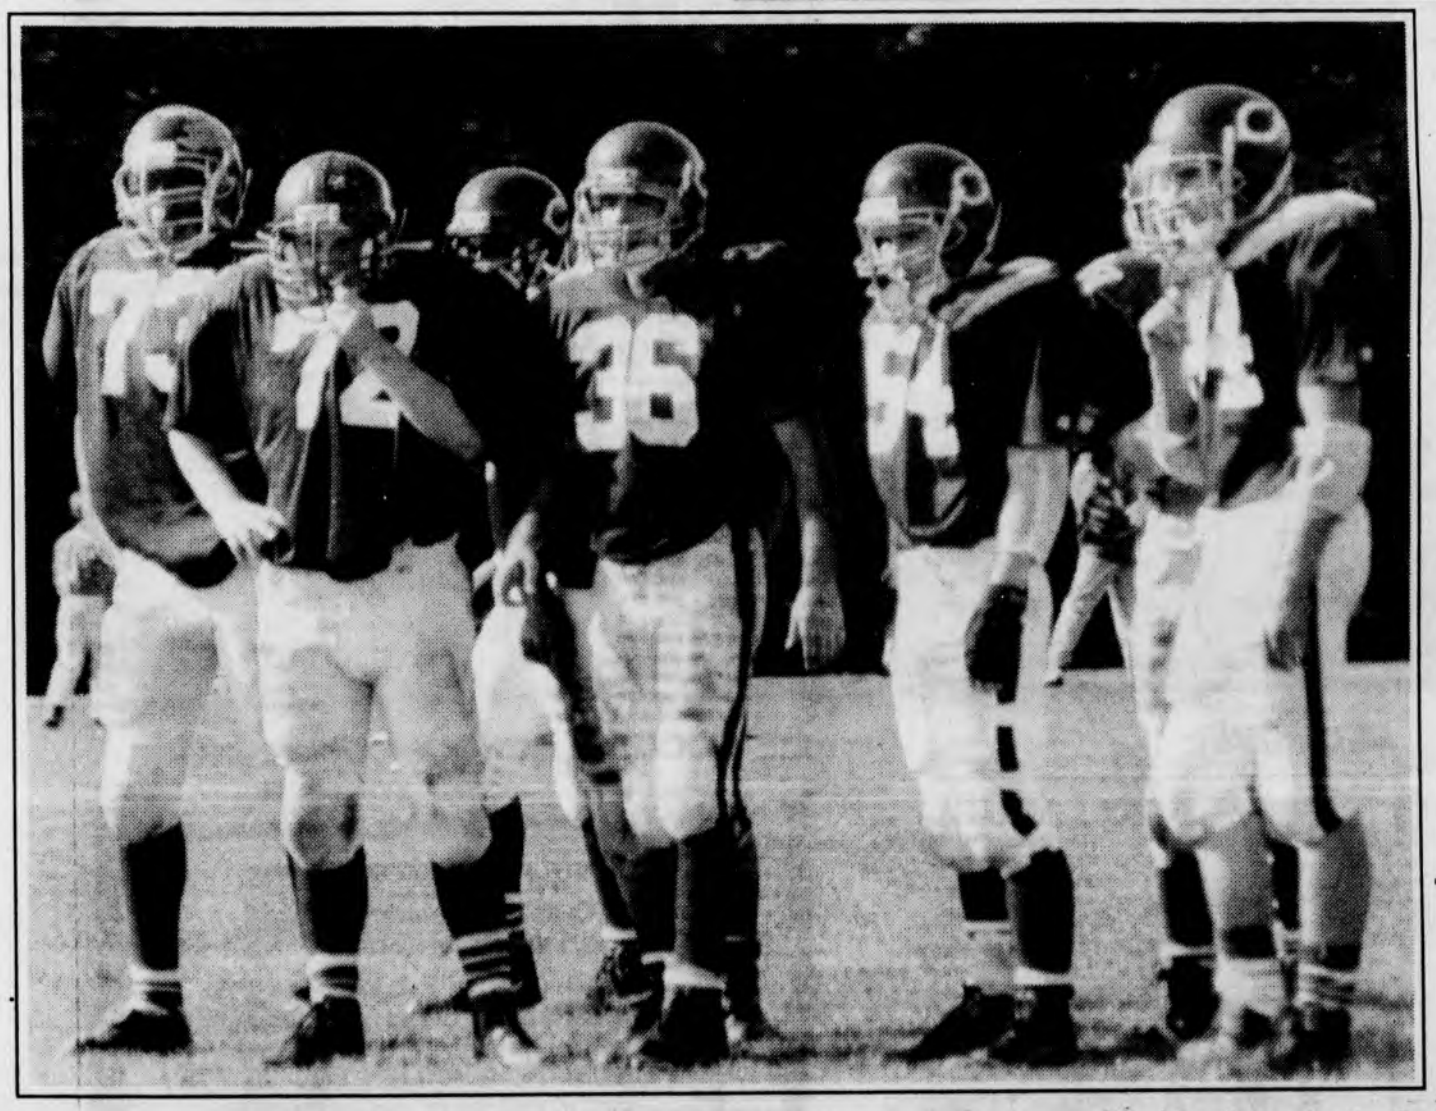
In the second half, another new name made its way into the scorebook as junior Brian Pattison caught a 25-yard pass for his first touchdown.

"As much as Sheldon's (touchdown) pumped us up at the half, this (Pattison's touchdown) put us up by two touchdowns," McDermott said. "It really broke their (Abington) back."

After Jones ran in his second touchdown of the night, Abington came back to score twice and bring the game to 27-20.

Chris Rolandelli then scored his first touchdown to give the Skippers a 33-20 lead before Scott Theirault, who had one kickoff go through the end zone, kicked the extra point, his fourth of the night.

Cohasset will have some tough competition this Friday as they go up against Old Rochester, 6-0.



"We're looking for overall better execution on the offense, which we did against Abington on Friday," McDermott said.

He said he hopes to control the game on offense with short passes and runs, score some early points and let them "play catch up."

Save the museums!

The celebrated Jazz Pops Ensemble presents a benefit concert at Kimball's By-The-Sea, at 6 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 8. A buffet will be served following the concert. Tickets are $50 per person and may be obtained by calling 383-6930.

The proceeds go to a special fund to make needed repairs and improvements to the Captain Wilson House and the Maritime Museum.

Much of the deterioration which is evident in these two fine old structures stems from their location in a ledgy area where poor drainage and ever present dampness have taken their toll. Roof leaks and the resulting plaster damage, rotting gutters and sills are evident as are other dampness problems. The lack of heat in either building is also a contributing factor. In addition, there is a need to upgrade the fire and burglar alarm systems.

These unique museums attracted hundreds of visitors this year and are among the town's finest assets.

Cohasset citizens are urged to support the jazz concert, or if that's not possible, to make a donation to "Save the Museums", c/o Cohasset Historical Society, 14 Summer St.

All aboard!

"All Aboard" the J.J. Monte Carlo as the Cohasset PSO sponsors the seventh annual Monte Carlo Goes To Sea! Saturday, Nov. 7 from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Cohasset Community Center.

Come rock and roll on the high seas and play blackjack, craps, roulette, and bid on fabulous auction items at the live and silent auction throughout the evening.

Choose from catered parties to resort weekend getaways or boat cruises. Enjoy cruise line cuisine and cash bar. Dress can be nautical or just fun and casual. Use your imagination.

Tickets are $20 per person which include a $5 start-up stake.

Tickets are available at the Cohasset Community Center, the Children's Exchange in Cohasset or at the door. Please call Patty Smith with any additional auction items at 383-2773. Don't miss this great opportunity to support your PSO!

Chamber auction Nov. 14

The annual Chamber of Commerce Auction is Saturday, Nov. 14, at the Community Center. Once again the Chamber serves a free beans n' franks dinner starting at 6:30 p.m.. The dinner hour also serves as a chance to preview the items to be auctioned prior to the 7:30 p.m. start. The auction is once again televised on Cable Ch. 3, providing people with an opportunity to be part of the bidding by phone, if they cannot join the fun in person.

This year's auction can best be described as a "Community Auction", as 60 percent of the proceeds will be divided equally among three community groups: the Cohasset Lightkeepers Corp., The Council on Aging, and the VFW. By attending the auction and bidding on the many fine items available, people support not only the Chamber and its many community activities, but also these three worthy organizations.

There are bargains galore to choose from, as well as holiday items, "Get Away" weekends, autographed Bruins hockey sticks, an autographed Patriots football, and other items too numerous to mention.

Set designer Dwight DiBona; Cohasset Drama Club director Gayl Varallo, and show director Bob Champagne talk about upcoming performances of the club's hit show "Wait Until Dark!" The show had to be cancelled last week due to problems with lead paint dust at town hall but has been rescheduled for the evenings of Nov. 13 and 14. For tickets or information, please call 446-6601. Those holding tickets can use them for either performance. The Thursday Oct. 22 show benefitting Habitat for Humanity went on as scheduled and raised $1,600 for the non-profit organization which is currently renovating the Bates House into two units of affordable housing. Debate on cable

Thursday, October 29, Host Wigmore Pierson's guests on Pierson to Person are candidates for the tenth Congressional District seat currently held by Gerry Studds (D-Cohasset).

Invited are Cong. Studds, Republican Dan Daly from Hingham, unenrolled candidate Jon Bryan, Marston Mills, and Independent candidate Michael Umina from Hopkinton.

Joining Pierson in asking the questions is Terry Ryan, the managing editor of The Patriot Ledger.

The Pierson to Person television show is broadcast live Thursdays, 8-9 p.m., from the North Scituate studio of Continental Cablevision. The show airs on Channel 53 in Hingham, on Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset and Scituate.

public notice

SHERIFF'S SALE
COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
NORFOLK, ss.

Seized and taken on execution and will be sold by Public Auction on Wednesday the 25th day of November A.D. 1992 at 11:00 o'clock A.M. at the Deputy Sheriffs Office at 630 High Street in Dedham in said County of Norfolk, all the right, title and interest which Walter Ross had (not exempt by law from attachment or levy on execution) on the 4th day of January A.D. 1991 at 9:00 o'clock A.M., the time when the same was seized on execution in and to the following described real estate:

The land with the buildings thereon, situated in said Cohasset, being bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at the Easterly corner of the granted premises, at the point in the Westerly line of South Main Street at land conveyed by Minnie P. Gilmore to Minerva C. Stone, June 27, 1923, the line runs South 74° 4' West by said land of Minerva C. Stone, one hundred ninety-seven and 70/100 (197.70) feet to a point in the stone wall at land now or formerly of one Sankey; thence line turns and runs North 16° 15'30" West by said stone wall one hundred ninety-four and 21/100 (194.21) feet to Spring Street; thence South 84° 3'10" East by said Spring Street, two hundred eleven and 93/100 (211.93) feet to said Westerly line of South Main Street; thence South 16° 57'20" East, one hundred fifteen and 21/100 (115.21) feet to the point of beginning.

Containing 29,949 square feet of land and being shown as the smaller of two lots on a subdivision plan belonging to Minnie P. Gilmore, Cohasset, Mass., recorded with Norfolk Deeds in Book 1559, Page 357, dated June 25, 1923, H.A. Litchfield, C.E.

The Carriage House School receives 20 percent of any purchase made at Buttonwood Books Thursday, Nov. 5, from 7 to 9 p.m.. This special shopping evening is open to everyone — friends and relatives.

If you need to do holiday or birthday shopping soon, make a list and bring it to Buttonwood Thursday night, Nov. 5. You'll avoid the holiday shopping crowds and benefit the Carriage House School at the same time.

Buttonwood Books has an excellent selection of toys and books for all ages. At 7:30 p.m., Betsey Detwiler will make a presentation of the latest and best books for children at every age level.

No one needs to make advance reservations, just show up Nov. 5. If you'd like more information call Jan Weisenfeld, 383-0466.

The "Little Piece of Home" Packages for the 1992 Graduate were mailed Friday, Oct. 16. The packages included many items donated by Kimballs By The Sea, Bank of Boston, C. Spirito, Inc., King Jewelers, The Goodale Co., The South Shore Art Center, Reebok International Ltd., a calendar from the PSO, a subscription to the Cohasset Mariner, a Chamber Tote Bag and the Gillette Co. through the good efforts of Linton Young.

Also included is a list of the graduates with latest addresses in case they wish to keep in touch. The idea behind the packages is to give a little boost to the graduates as they start on a new phase of their lives. The many responses which the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce receives from the graduates and their parents attest to the success little project.

Domenic Micarelli chats with Joseph McElroy during the recent 'Business After Hours' at the Artist's Son Gallery. The popular event was sponsored by the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce. The gallery presents "Landscapes: Three Interpretations, featuring the work of Victoria C. Justice, Scott Ketcham, and Martin Weinstein, Nov. 5-28. An opening reception to kick off "Landscapes" is from 6 to 8 p.m., Nov. 5. For more information, please call the gallery at 383-1841. (Staff photo/Buzz Wadsworth)

Leo J. Fiori, Sr.

Name: Leo J. Fiori, Sr.

Occupation: Owner, Leo's Exxon.

Best day of your life: All the days my kids were born. I have four boys and a girl — they're all married and they're all lovely.

Most embarrassing moment: Being interviewed by the Mariner. I hate interviews!

Goal: To see the Red Sox win a World Series.

Favorite season: Fall.

Best vacation: A trip to Northern Italy visiting my relatives whom I had never seen in my whole lifetime.

Favorite holiday: Christmas.

Pet peeve: Too many commercials on TV and the radio during ball games.

Favorite book: "The Science of Hitting" by Ted Williams.

Favorite movie: "The Lou Gehrig Story."

Biggest worry: Not having the answers to Ken Coleman's baseball trivia questions! (Cohasset's Ken Coleman, a Red Sox announcer for many years, was getting gas at Leo's Exxon during the Mariner interview.)

Favorite place: Right here in Cohasset. Wherever I've been in the world — there's no place that compares to Cohasset.

Favorite junk food: McDonald's french fries.

Studds scores big in 10th District

By Andrew MacLellan
Mariner staff

Defying a national perception of anti-incumbency, U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds (D-Cohasset) was re-elected Tuesday to an 11th term in Congress.

Anchoring his new territory, Studds carried the recently added 10th District towns of Weymouth, Quincy, Brockton and Rockland, winning in some cases by more than 60 percent of the vote.

"Isn't it wonderful," he asked of a room-full of Democratic supporters gathered

Selectmen mull bills, booze, and bridges

By Jeff Cutler
Mariner Correspondent

Monday evening proved to be very eventful for the Cohasset selectmen.

The action started during discussion about a new ambulance and didn't let up until the board of selectmen went into executive session.

In pursuit of a new ambulance for the town Fire Chief John Nadeau tried to explain why he wanted the town to buy the most expensive on the list.

Although he smelled like a smoldering

"If you build it, they will come."

Just as Kevin Costner heard a voice say this in the movie, "Field of Dreams," the school committee heard those same words John Carr, coordinator for the proposed project of a lighted Deer Hill Little League field.

Linda Wakeman (with Murray sign) and Pat Buckley (with Hedlund sign) wave to voters as they head to the Second Congregational Church to cast their ballots, instead of the usual polling place — the town hall auditorium — which was off limits because of a possible lead paint dust hazard. Cohasset Military Memorial to be one of a kind

Austin L. Ahearn Jr. is a man with a mission.

The World War II veteran isn't about to let his comrades in arms be forgotten.

Ahearn, who fought with the 9th Army in Europe, is spearheading the effort to build a military memorial in Cohasset.

The planned memorial will extend the present honor roll at Veteran's Memorial Park in the harbor to include Cohasset participants in all the nation's wars from the Revolution to Desert Storm.

It will be the only memorial in the country to include veterans of all wars in one spot.

Plans for the memorial started at VFW Post 9146 about four years ago. Last year, Ahearn made an appearance before selectmen to get approval for the project.

Ahearn initially hoped to get the World War II section of the memorial completed by Veterans' Day but encountered snags in compiling the list of names.

Ahearn searched through town and county records, the Boston archives and even the 50th anniversary list at the Cohasset Yacht Club for names of World War II veterans. Lists were also published at town hall, the library, post office, and in the Cohasset Mariner asking for more names.

The World War II section will house 15 plaques with 502 names.

The Cohasset Historical Military Memorial, Inc., of which Ahern is president, has collected $22,000 in donations. Granite for the World War II plaques have been ordered from Barre, Vermont for $7,760.

"No tax money is being used for the project, absolutely none," Ahearn adds.

The total cost of the project is estimated to be about $40,000.

Cohasset's week

Award of excellence

Kathleen O'Sullivan was awarded the Superintendent's Certificate of Academic Excellence for achieving and maintaining the highest scholastic average in the senior class at the school committee meeting last week.

O'Sullivan is also known for her outstanding performance as the lead character in the school's play, "More Than Just a Joke."

School board chairman Barbara Bliss praised O'Sullivan's efforts.

"Her performance reinforced her reputation as a quick study," she said. (O'Sullivan was thrust into the lead role due to the last minute illness of the original lead).

CHS joins library network

Participation in the year long pilot program known as the Old Colony Library Network was given approval by the school committee. At the cost of $1,340, Cohasset High School will be provided a computer station that will allow students to access a data base of 23 municipal libraries. Cohasset will participate as a trial member until this coming June in which the committee will decide if involvement in the program is worth continuing. The station will be in the Cohasset High School library and will provide students with the ability to search through the computerized card catalogs of the 23 municipal libraries involved.

Laugelle lashes out

Executive Secretary Greg Doyon came under fire for his perceived recent inaction on the lead dust problem at town hall. He was asked by Rocco Laugelle why he hadn't responded sooner and did not give an answer. Evidently Chairman Jane Goedecke felt that Doyon's silence was the correct tack because she scolded Laugelle into silence. She said the discussion was "not appropriate" according to town counsel.

Shredding demo set

On Saturday, Nov. 14 at 10 a.m., Jack Hubbard is at the Cohasset Transfer Station to demonstrate leaf shredding equipment and answer questions about home composting. Back yard composting containers are on display.

In other recycling news, please remember that aluminum food and beverage containers should be placed in with the tin cans. Any redeemable beverage cans should be dropped in the Boy Scout Shed near the Boutique.

Shiny cover catalogs like those from L.L. Bean and Land's End, etc. should be recycled and can be placed in the magazine container.

Please—no telephone books.

Real estate values

The fiscal 1993 Real Estate Assessed Valuations have been completed, and have been submitted for certification by the Massachusetts Department of Revenue.

The new values are available for public inspection at the Assessor's Office, Town Hall, 41 Highland Avenue during regular business hours. Due to staffing limitations, we are not able to accept telephone inquiries for valuations.

Additonal copies of the value listings are available for inspection at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, 106 South Main Street. Any problems regarding valuation will be handled through the abatement process. Call the staff at the assessors office for details.

No-close decision upsets union

By David Wolcott
Mariner correspondent

The Board of Health recently voted to reject a request by the town hall workers to close the building until it has been cleaned of the lead paint dust from the recent attempt at repainting its exterior.

Speaking for the Konohasset Clerical and Custodial Union, Pat Walsh was outraged at the decision.

"It's amazing that the board has the authority to close the building in this situation, and they won't do it," she said.

Selectmen voted last week to give the cleanup job to Advanced Abatement of Marshfield, with the fee being taken coming from the reserve fund.

Walsh said that she and four other town hall employees have refused to go back to work within the building until the cleanup has been completed.

Union president Carol Oteri-Puffer, administrative secretary to the health board, said she was still very concerned about the health effects.

"The only reason that I attended this meeting was because it was being held in the selectmen's office, which has registered a low lead count," she said.

Oteri-Puffer then asked the board that they specifically have the ledge of her office checked for lead dust, and even offered to pay for the testing herself. She has complained since the outset of the sanding of headaches and a persistent cough.

The board voted to honor this request at the town's expense, and Chairman William Baird went on to say that, "at this time I personally do not feel that anybody is at risk in this building, but if it puts Carol at ease to have her area checked, we will do so."

The board also said that no town hall employee would be punished for not going to the office before the cleanup is completed.

Baird also warned that if an employee is tested at a high level of lead, then it must be made certain that it was not due to a source outside of the building.

"If a large number of people have high levels of lead in the test we have a problem, but if only one or two do, it might be from someplace else," he said.

The board voted not to allow children under the age of 12 in the building until it is cleaned and to post larger signs on the front doors of town hall to inform people of the situation.

Beacon Rock graffitti cleaned up

Thanks to a generous donor, the graffiti on Beacon Rock was cleaned up prior to the Oct. 4 groundbreaking ceremony at the Cohasset lightkeeper's residence.

"We wanted to get it off before the groundbreaking ceremony and we were determined to see that happened," said Joseph McElroy, president of the Cohasset Lightkeepers Corporation (CLC).

A week before the ceremony, McElroy and John Hartshorne, president of the Gulf Association, asked selectmen if the town could appropriate the funds for the cleanup.

But due to the logistics involved in obtaining the necessary approvals, the money could not be freed up in time, selectmen said, although they unanimously voted to ask for a $500 transfer from the town's reserve fund for the cleanup.

As a deterrent, the town may decide to increase fees for graffiti vandals. Selectmen have asked town counsel to see if the penalty now at $200 can be increased to cover the cost of cleaning the graffiti up.

McElroy said when Government Island where the lightkeeper's residence is located reaches its potential as an historic park there is "a greater likelihood that we'll be able to control the graffiti problem on Beacon Rock."

Now the area is isolated and attracts vandals, he said.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE
Philip Murphy, CRS, GRI

SETTING THE STAGE

QUESTION: Do you have any suggestions on how to prepare a home for its best showing?

ANSWER: Don't just sell a house — sell a home! For evening inspection, brighten your home from the front porch light on through all the rooms in the house. Little decorator touches — a vase of flowers, a plant, small pillows — can add much to the comfortable feeling. If it's winter, a crackling fire adds irresistible charm. A working fireplace is a major attraction to home buyers. A large mirror can make a room look larger, reflect and magnify many of your best selling points. Create that subtle, lived-in atmosphere.

Selectmen discuss billing, booze . . .

building, having attended to a three-alarm fire in Hull earlier that night, Nadeau made his points clear to the board.

The company he proposed awarding the job to had the high bid but "took the fewest exceptions," said Nadeau. "The quality of patient ride" was also an important consideration, he added, and that was one of the specific reasons for choosing the high bidder.

According to the bid comparison Nadeau provided to the board, the company he proposed had the best quality product and the best compliance with the necessary specifications. Specialty Vehicles - Road Rescue also has a complete garage and body shop in Attleboro, MA. And some others are not even authorized Massachusetts auto dealers.

Town counsel Richard Henderson agreed that the high bid was "the most in compliance." The board talked about the issue and agreed that even though Specialty Vehicles was nearly $12,000 higher than the low bid, they felt comfortable with Nadeau's arguments.

Jane Goedecke grinned and said, "We have an ambulance, almost."

AMBULANCE BILLING

The fire chief continued his presentation to the board with a number of ambulance service billing proposals. Each was accepted as proposed although some spirited discussion took place.

The areas that concerned the board the most were a suggested 'write-off' policy and how outstanding bills for ambulance service would be paid.

Nadeau proposed a few situations in which he could write off prior balances as uncollectible. Such a situation would exist, for example, when records on ambulance service were unavailable or if a person had since died.

He also wanted authority to go back into earlier records and collect what he could from people who still had outstanding balances. According to the town accountant, the outstanding balance of these bills is $168,000.

"I am opposed to letting them off," Goedecke said. "Because we had no stated policy" previously. The group was also divided in their vote and it came back also divided at 3-2 in favor of giving Nadeau 'write-off' authority.

Recent collection efforts have been successful, according to Nadeau, and $8,200 was collected in October.

"That is the best ever," said Goedecke. The fire chief said he would like to make $90,000 his collection goal for this year.

Additionally, the town of Cohasset's current rates for ambulance service were not increased.

Rocco Laugelle was very pleased with the fact he could say, "We are the lowest." And, at a mere $125 per ride out of an allowed insurance figure of $190, the service in town is very inexpensive, Nadeau pointed out.

Eleanor Smith, representing the council on aging, attended Monday's meeting and did not see the price as a problem, but the way services were billed. For older individuals, the whole system could be "very confusing if they had to file claims," she insisted.

Merle Brown agreed with her and said when a company pays the elderly for their filed claim "they'll think it's a windfall" and spend the money.

The chairman said she was concerned for everyone and wanted notification of all charges sent to those affected.

"We can't really afford to do third party billing," said Goedecke.

"Isn't it cleaner," asked Nadeau, "if I send you a bill, you pay the bill, and medicare pays you?"

Smith disagreed and wanted the board to know that the process would also be more confusing with another step added to it.

Goedecke argued that the proposed system "is a whole lot better than not getting paid."

"You haven't got paid because you haven't made any claims for two years!" countered Smith.

Goedecke allowed that she was sympathetic to the problems but people were waiting for payment and this issue couldn't wait much longer.

Board member Martha Gjesteby suggested that the board take the issue under advisement until next week's meeting.

"We have to make a decision by next week!" added Goedecke.

LIQUOR HEARING HELD

A hearing about an alleged disturbance at With Richard restaurant was the next agenda item, and it was undertaken with more rigidity than the earlier issues. Chairman Goedecke read a list of procedures to the attendees and then watched as the office turned into a mini courtroom.

James Barkas and his wife were present to officially file a complaint with the board and act as witnesses to the situation they allegedly observed. They live across from the restaurant on Hull St. in Hingham.

Barkas said on the evening of Oct. 3 he heard loud noises and profanity coming from the restaurant across the street and he looked out the window to see what was happening. He said he saw a number of people drinking beer out of cans and then observed some people emerge from the restaurant with glasses in their hands.

The complaint Barkas had was "mainly with the noise" and profanity. And before the incident on the 3rd, Barkas said "we've had a few things resolved with the restaurant."

Barkas felt his concerns were justified because he has young children in the house. With Richard had put benches out in the parking lot for unspecified reasons and the yelling that evening was loud enough for Barkas to hear in his room on the other side of the house.

He said he called the police twice because he could hear the swearing "clear as day."

Barkas finished with his version of the events and an attorney for the restaurant began what amounted to a cross examination of Barkas.

Sidney Gorovitz asked many questions of Barkas and had an issue with one of the items. According to their records, the police were only called once by Barkas.

After his quiet prodding Gorovitz said the restaurant management wanted him to express their extreme concern over the matter. He said "as a result of the incident, several steps had been taken" to assure nothing of the nature of Barkas' allegations would happen again at the restaurant.

The first move was the removal of the benches outside the restaurant. They had been placed there "as a matter of convenience" for patrons during high traffic times at With Richard.

In addition, table alignment had been changed inside to provide "more people the opportunity to sit" at the bar area. Another advantage of the new arrangement was "a better line of sight" throughout for the on-site manager and the bar manager.

Gorovitz said additional training was scheduled for the entire staff to make them more aware of problems that could occur in an environment that serves alcohol. He closed by saying that restaurant management is "quite hopeful that this incident will never be repeated."

The board decided to make a determination on the charges at the next meeting.

Betsey Detwiler

Name: Betsey Detwiler

Occupation: Owner, Buttonwood Books and Toys.

Best day of your life: The most 'exciting' day was when my first son was born. I couldn't come down. I babbled for hours.

Most embarrassing moment: A high school friend whom I had just seen at our class reunion came into the bookstore and I didn't recognize her out of context. She had to say, "Betsey, it's me."

Goal: When I'm gone that I will have done something that mattered, that I will have counted for something in my life both through my family and my work.

Favorite season: There is something I like about every one — but I guess you could take out February and March maybe, everything but the dark winter.

Best vacation: The two weeks last June that my husband and I drove through France. It was wonderful — we had no deadline, no reservations, no place we had to be. We hadn't had a vacation in three years since the store opened.

Favorite holiday: Thanksgiving, because it's a family day with a little less pressure. My husband, Bob, does the turkey, the kids do the vegetables, friends make the pies, and I do the linen!

Pet peeve: I get annoyed with myself because I bite off more than I can chew. I have a hard time saying no.

Favorite book: "Gift from the Sea," by Anne Morrow Lindbergh.

Favorite movie: I don't get to movies very often but the best movie I've seen recently is "Enchanted April."

Biggest worry: That I won't live long enough to do all I want to do; to see all the places I'd like to see; and to read all that I want to read.

Favorite place: France.

Favorite junk food: Homemade chocolate chip cookies.

An architect's rendering of the Cohasset Military Memorial which will include the names of Cohasset veterans from all wars and will be the first of its kind in the country.

Military Memorial to be one of a kind

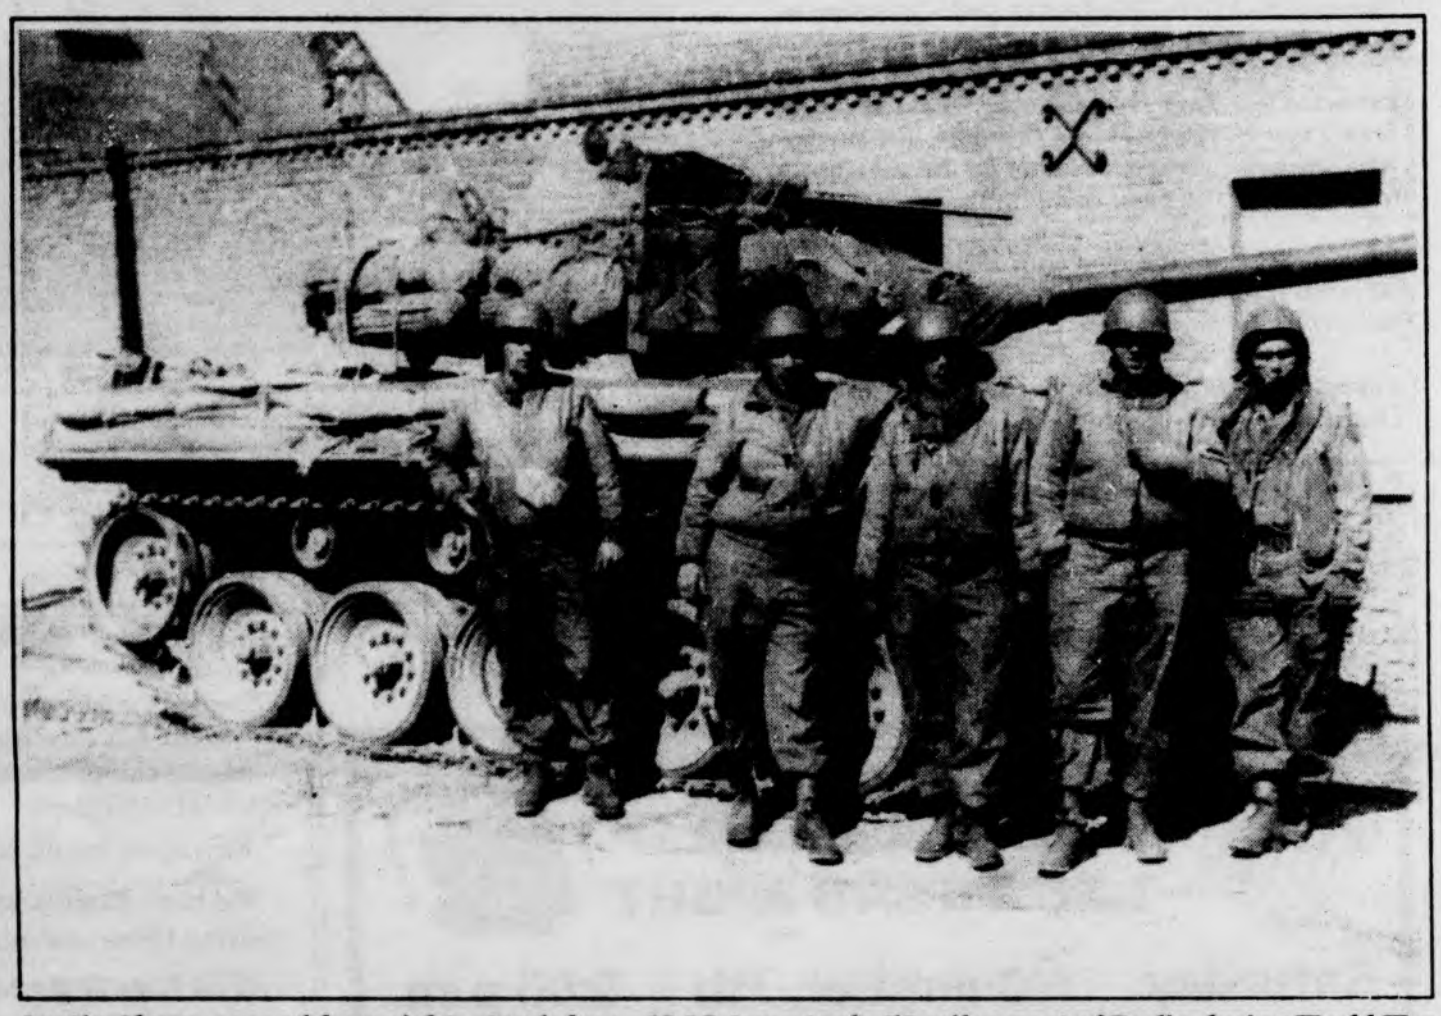
Once the World War II section is complete, work will start on the World War I section.

Completion of the entire memorial depends on money, Ahearn notes.



Sixty-four ton of field stone has been collected from old walls and the school facilities property. As a cost saving measure, Ahearn, a retired jeweler, plans to lay the field stones himself.

Ahearn isn't going to stop until the entire memorial is completed.

"This is where my heart is," he says. "People aren't that fond of vets — people forget."

BOH shuts the tap on bubblers

By David Wolcott
Mariner correspondent

The Cohasset Board of Health voted to draft a letter to School Supt. Stephen Hart to have any school water outlets that have been tested above the MCL, (Maximum Contaminant Level), of lead to be shut off immediately.

Each of the three schools in town have had various water outlets such as bubblers and bathroom and kitchen sinks testing above the MCL of .015 milligrams per liter for lead in a water system.

Town Health Agent Dr. Joseph Godzik stated that virtually all of the High School and Deer Hill Schools outlets have been tested, but the Osgood School has been tougher since, "from day to day, some of the bubblers work, and some don't."

The tests were taken at three times during the day: first thing in the morning, five minutes after the system has been flushed out, and at the end of the school day. The most complete recent testing was done on August 24 of this year.

Tests done on that date found that five-out-of-10 outlets at Osgood above the MCL level, as well as nine-out-of -5 at Deer Hill, and four-out-of-12 at the high school were above the legal limits.

Board member Robert V. Davenport emphasized that quick action will be taken on this measure, as he said, "this situation has been going on for too long already."

The board asked in the letter to Hart that he attend their next meeting on Nov. 17 for a follow-up on the situation.

Art-to-wear show planned at art center

"Wear Your Art On Your Sleeve" is the theme of the Art-to-Wear Fashion Show to be held Friday, Nov. 13, at the South Shore Art Center, 119 Ripley Road. The fashion show is part of the opening reception for the Contextures III: Art To Wear Exhibition, on display at the Art Center Nov. 12 through Dec. 22.

Curator Melanie Meeker Jones of Kingston has gathered 20 fabric and textile artists from around the country to participate in the exhibition. Everything in the exhibit and fashion show is a hand-created, wearable work of art. Local artists featured in the exhibition and fashion show include Deborah Herlihy of Hingham, Nanci Jaye of Hull, Linda Mackey and Jeanne Runewicz of Plymouth, and Jones of Kingston.

The fashion show/opening reception is a benefit for the Art Center, with tickets at $30 each. The reception opens at 7 p.m. with the fashion show starting at 8 p.m. Due to limited seating, purchase tickets in advance by calling (617) 383-9548 is recommended.

❑ We have a celebrity in our midst...Dr. Steven Golden that is! The November issue of Boston Magazine there was an article entitled "The Best Medicine," where they took a survey from 14,135 physicians. They call this the same inside information that doctors draw on when they need the best in Boston medicine. It was a 15-question survey asking the doctors which doctor they would go to if they or a loved one needed medical care. Dr Golden placed number five out of the top 12!

Congratulations to you, and aren't we all lucky!

❑ The DeSisto family celebrates the birth of their baby girl, Paige Powers DeSisto, born Oct. 21. Paige's Mom and Dad, Laura (Noone) and Todd, are thrilled and so is her brother, Kyle!

Bet they had a Halloween to remember this year!

❑ Two 1992 CHS grads are happily ensconced at Saint Anselm College: Catherine A. Beggan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beggan, and Lisabeth J. Kondrat, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Richard M. Kondrat. Here's hoping they send us some news about college life!

❑ A few weeks ago a small delegation from Japan visited our small town...16 interested small businessmen were interested in visiting American homes and seeing typical life-styles in a Boston suburb. Two homes were involved, the Cellucci home where Judy was their hostess, and the Moyer home, where Suzanne was their hostess. This was sponsored through the CHI (Cultural Home-stay Institute), whose program takes students and teachers interested in learning English and staying with an American family for three to four weeks in the spring and summer.

Anyway, the delegation was made up of 16 men who had also been to New York and Washington...all involved reported that the men were really interested in everything they saw, from lifestyles to appliances to food, etc. They were grateful to CHI and Judy and Suzanne for the opportunity to see all, and they extended a return invitation so that they can see life in Japan. This program promises to get more involved with this sort of thing, as well as their summer program. If you are interested, call Margot Cheel at 383-9184 for more information.

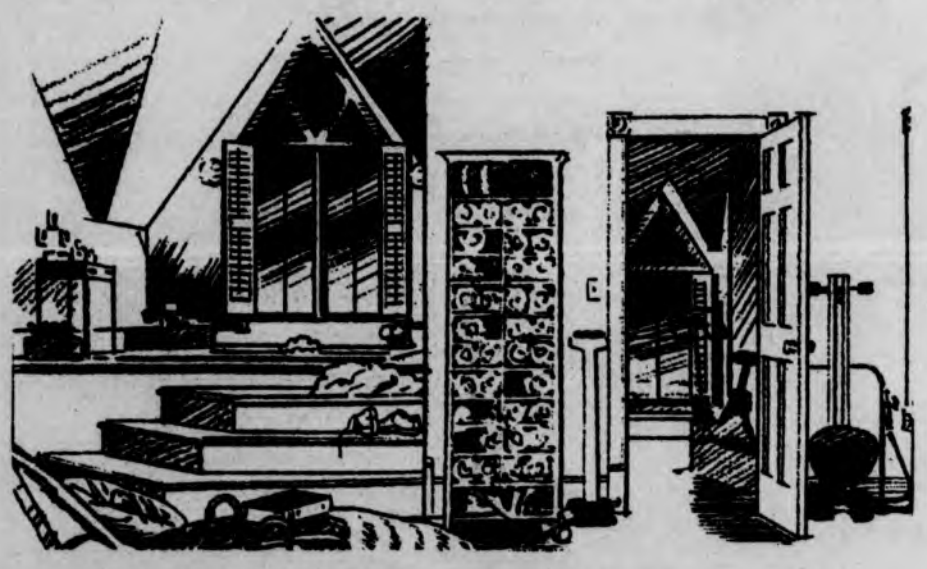
❑ Had a nice chat with Andi Merrill last week. As most know, she is in charge of the Cohasset Consignment Shop with and for the Social Service League. Andi reports that business is "booming," so much so that they are desperately looking for volunteers. She reminded me that it is only three hours a week, and any age is welcome. It sure must be a fun place to work, you certainly get to see everyone...and, it's certainly a most worthy cause!



Call Andi at 383-0687 and tell her you will donate your three hours a week. You'll be happy to do for others and she will be thrilled with your help. The shop is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

❑ Erin Sutherland, daughter of Susan and Ted Cox, has settled in at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst studying international relations. Erin's former gymnastic students at the Cohasset Community Center will be interested to know she has been accepted by the university athletic department as an instructor teaching gymnastics at the college level. She teaches three days a week and loves staying involved in her favorite sport.

Erin is looking forward to seeing "her kids" when she comes home for the holidays!

A Weld initiative

Governor Weld wants to implement an economic recovery plan that would create more jobs — and more businesses — in Massachusetts.

In recent remarks before the Joint Legislative Committee on Commerce and Labor, he said many of the young, growing companies in Massachusetts are being propositioned by other states to leave the Bay State and do business elsewhere.

Obviously, he wants to stop that.

In two recently filed bills, he has proposed establishing a $30 million emerging technology fund that would ensure that companies with high-growth potential could have sufficient financing to build manufacturing facilities in Massachusetts.

Massachusetts' strength relies on its brainpower, and Weld does not want to see what happened in the computer industry occur in the young biotechnology and so-called enviro-tech field.

He also has proposed creating a $10 million small business capital access fund that would provide loan-loss reserves for participating banks so that they would be encouraged to lend to startup companies and small businesses.

A $10 million export finance program, which is also included in his proposed job creation package, would guarantee loans to small businesses that want to enter the overseas markets.

These programs would leverage more than $500 million in private financing, he estimated.

Weld also would like to see enterprise zones in Massachusetts.

Describing them as economic opportunity areas, Weld said communities must be willing to participate.

A combination of state and local tax incentives and a reduction of red tape could encourage investment in business sectors that had been overlooked in the past.

Weld noted that several big industrial states — California, Texas, Florida, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania — have enterprise zones and vie for Massachusetts business.

But even our tiny neighbors, New Hampshire and Rhode Island, are trying to lure our companies away.

When the unemployment rate reached 8.6 percent in September — which represents 266,000 unemployed workers — he concluded that the Commonwealth cannot wait for the lending community to provide working capital to business.

Instead, the state must initiate innovative methods to provide business opportunities which in turn would create — and preserve — jobs.

Coinciding with these proposals is another which would form an umbrella Massachusetts Development Agency that would coordinate 10 existing agencies that sound like an alphabet soup — MIFA, MHFA etc. — with one board of directors.

Massachusetts' economy relies on small business. Two out of three new jobs in the Commonwealth during the past decade were created by small business, and 95 percent of Massachusetts' businesses employ fewer than 50 people.

Passage of his program would help small businesses and provide the best climate for investment in the nation, he says.

And that translates into long-term, well-paying jobs right here, including the South Shore.

letters

To the Editor:

I can't believe I walked by that beautiful store so many times and never went in! Today in passing, I stopped and admired the lovely early Federal house with its old-fashioned wooden screen doors, its two large windows tastefully decorated with wonderful books...one window with Halloween goodies for children and a big stuffed Pumpkin-man.

Looking up, I noticed the sign over the front entrance, "The Bates House," and up on the white chimney the date 1811. It all suddenly struck me as so warm and inviting and I noticed the attractive wooden carved sign hanging by the walk, "The Little Harbor Book Store." It was long past time I went in, and I did.

Equally charming was the interior — still divided into rooms but very open and filled with great books on shelves and display tables. Everything from paper-backs to elegant specialty books on the arts, environment, architecture, etc.

One delightful room in the back with a large, round table in the middle and chairs around it, gave one the feeling of being in a library. It really beckoned you to come and sit down with a book.

For children there were special rooms with huggable animals, dolls, an art department, trinkets and a fantastic array of captivating books.

Added to all this, very appealing draperies at some of the windows gave a warm, homey feeling to the store. In all, it had an atmosphere refreshingly uncommercial.

I spoke with the owner, Joan Call, an attractive young woman who lives in Hingham with her husband, an attorney, and a nine-year-old daughter, and learned that she had always dreamed of having a book store and this was it, her dream come true! She brings to her shop a taste for art, plus a background of literature, editing and writing of her own. How nice for us that she picked Cohasset!

I had to write this letter because I wanted to remind everyone, in Cohasset especially, how fortunate we are to have a new shop like this in our Village and to say I do hope we'll appreciate it enough to patronize it so it can flourish and stay here. This goes for all our village stores.

It's so pleasant and convenient and friendly to have a small town shopping center, but unless we really make an effort to support the merchants, they might not make it and we'll be among the hundreds of Villages throughout America that are sadly losing theirs.

Let's save ours for posterity! It's pretty unique...even Hollywood loves it!

From a former Village "Merchant" still in love with Cohasset.

Community involvement called for

Affirming their fundraising role, Cohasset Education Foundation directors last week described their mission to support innovative academic initiatives and to broaden public involvement with those programs in the Cohasset school system.

Meeting for the second time, the 24-member local education foundation — one of more than 100 created throughout Massachusetts since 1988 — appointed a subcommittee headed by directors David Keefe and Cohasset School Committee member Chris Ford to review plans for a proposed $25,000 technology room at the Joseph Osgood School.

"Our intent is to raise funds for projects that are important to a broad spectrum of students," said CEF chairman Brian McKenney. "We will concentrate on projects that fall outside the traditional school budget, but are deemed important both by school administrators and by ourselves."

"What we're trying to accomplish," added Michael Kennedy, chairman of Citizens Energy Corporation and a CEF director," is greater community involvement. We are not supplanting tax-based support, we are supplementing it. And the innovation we can foster won't be in the way teachers teach. It'll be in the growth of community participation with school faculty and programs."

In five years, suggested Kennedy, the Foundation's success could serve as a model for towns throughout the United States.

CEF chairman McKenney said the Foundation mission statement — which he expected to be drafted next month — would emphasize the group's intent to concentrate its fundraising efforts in several areas: direct mail, grantwriting, bequests and, possibly, local events.

The Cohasset Parent-Student Organization, which also sponsors local fundraising events, will work closely with the Foundation, PSO director Sue McNamara told the CEF board. McNamara will act as liaison between the two groups.

Cohasset School Superintendent Stephen Hart recommended the Foundation consider supporting programs that promote staff growth, too, mentioning the need for a new teacher evaluation process.

Educational resource is available

Representative Mary Jeanette Murray, (R) Third Plymouth District, announced that the 1992-93 edition of Educational Opportunities of Greater Boston has been published.

This resource is the only directory of its kind listing over 8,000 continuing and adult education courses offered by Boston area schools and organizations.

Educational Opportunities provides information on adult learning opportunities available throughout metropolitan Boston and eastern Massachusetts. It also includes information on financial aid for adult learners and other special opportunities such as what schools give college credit for life experiences, and where people can earn college degrees on the weekend.

"Educational Opportunities is an especially valuable tool for individuals seeking to improve their employment opportunities," said Representative Murray. "This directory provides important information about where people can find courses to upgrade their job skills and achieve their career goals".

The directory, published by The Education Resources Institute in conjunction with the Higher Education Information Center, is $15.95 plus $2 shipping and handling and can be ordered from The Education Resources Institute, 330 Stuart Street, Suite 500, Boston, MA 02116, Attn: Educational Opportunities, or by calling 1-800-255-8374, ext. 240.

People interested in a particular course or school can call the Higher Education Information Center. The center, located at the Boston Public Library, provides free information and advice to people planning for education beyond high school. People can call the center at (617) 536-0200.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

QUESTIONS

QUESTIONS	Senator Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth) 722-1646 Room 416B	Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Cohasset) 722-2800 ext.7057 Room 134
THE HOUSE AND SENATE: The House and Senate met only informally last week and there were no roll call votes. Formal sessions are expected to resume following the November elections. This week, "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local representatives' votes on three previously unrecorded roll calls from House action on the fiscal 1993 state budget.
HEALTH INSURANCE (H 5600): House 118-35, rejected an amendment requiring any newly-hired state employees to pay 25 percent of the cost of their health insurance. Current state employees pay only 10 percent. Amendment supporters said this will not affect current employees, but will save the state millions of dollars by making future employees' contributions more in line with the private sector. Opponents said the increase is unfair to new employees who are struggling during the recession. (A "Yea" vote is for the 25 percent contribution. A "Nay" vote is against it.)		Y
REVENUE DEPARTMENT (H 5600): House 91-58, rejected an amendment reducing funding for the Revenue Department by $9 million (From $104 million to $95 million). Amendment supporters said the reduction will help balance the budget and argued the $9 million was not requested by the Governor. Opponents said the $9 million is necessary and argued this funding is cost effective and will enhance tax collections. (A "Yea" vote is for the $9 million cut. A "Nay" vote is against the cut.)		Y
ENTERPRISE ZONES (H 5600): House 104-90, rejected a lengthy amendment allowing for the creation and implementation of enterprise zones in the state. Amendment supporters said this amendment creates a mutually beneficial partnership between business and government. They noted it will provide various tax incentives to attract private sector investment in depressed areas and help create jobs and stimulate business, neighborhood and housing growth. Opponents said the legislature is working on a better plan and argued major legislation like this should be the subject of a separate bill and public hearings. (A "Yea" vote is for the enterprise zone amendment. A "Nay" vote is against it.)		Y

Studds scores big win in 10th District . . .

at the Rockland Holiday Inn. "I guess you know that we don't just have a victory tonight, we have an enormous celebration."

As of midnight, with six of 14 precincts reporting, Studds was winning in Weymouth by a 60 percent margin, overcoming opponent Republican Dan Daly of Hingham, who received 29 percent of the vote and Independent candidate Jon Bryan of Mashpee who received 11 of the vote.

Studds had 60 percent of the total district vote. Daly had 27 percent and Bryan had 13 percent.

In Brockton, Studds was winning overwhelmingly with 66 percent of the ballots cast, surpassing efforts by Daly, who recorded 25 percent, and Bryan, who tallied nine percent of votes.

With 28 of 30 precincts recorded in Quincy, Studds was ahead with 60 percent of the vote. Daly had 27 percent, and Bryan had 13 percent.

In Cohasset, Studds tok 56 percent of the vote to 32 percent cast for Republican Dan Daly and 10 percent for Jon Bryan, an unenrolled candidated.

On Cape Cod, Studds won 66 percent in the final results in Brewster, compared to 21 percent for Daly and 14 percent for Bryan.

Probably the greatest victory for Studds outside of the traditionally strong communities on Cape Cod and the Islands came in Hull. Voters there cast 70 percent of their ballots for the incumbent.

Studds was ecstatic at the unanimous consent throughout his newly re-configured district, which previously had included New Bedford and Fall River.

"The wedding, the match, the fitting together of the South Shore from the Neponset River and the Fore River Bridge and extending all the way down to the Cape and the Islands is something this representative is going to be very proud of," he said.

Challenger Dan Daly conceded to Studds at 10:30 p.m. when 28 percent of the recorded voted gave Studds a lead of 60.6 percent to Daly's 26.9 percent.

Daly recorded no victories as of midnight, although he was expected to do well in his home town of Hingham.

"I can't seeing doing anything differently," Daly said. "This was just not our race to win." He thanked his supporters for providing "more laughs than tears" and pointed to the reward he reaped in working on the campaign with son Daniel.

Studds thanked Daly for running a campaign with respect and dignity and for sticking to the issues.

Bryan similarly had no regrets, telling reporters at the Howard Johnson's in Kingston that he will not run for Congress again. Twice before he challenged Studds as a Republican.

"Dan Daly's candidacy hurt because Studds obviously had a plurality of the vote," he said. "I have no excuses, no regrets. I made a lot of friends."

Indeed, in Bryan's last attempt to unseat Studds, he received 47 percent of the 10th District vote. It appears that Daly's entrance into the race — with the governor's endorsement before the primary — stole much of Bryan's thunder, giving Republicans a focus and splitting the opposition vote.

In Orleans, Bryan received just seven percent of the vote with Studds claiming a 65 percent margin of victory.

As the "new kid on the block" to the north Studds pledged to fight for "the new and wonderful district that has been created."

"I promise to work hard," he said. "I want the people of the new district to be as proud of me as we are of them."

Democratic tidal wave sweeps Hedlund away

By Tom Henshaw
Mariner staff

Arkansas Gov. William Clinton and Cong. Gerry Studds won big in Tuesday's election and their victories helped to pull Brian McDonald into the State Senate along with them.

"I got swept away in a tsunami," said Sen. Robert Hedlund. "There was a tremendous coattails vote and Republicans felt the effect of it.

"This is a Democratic state and a Democratic district and the Democrats came out to vote.

"I'm flattered by the fact that I saw some of my Republican colleagues fall and we went down to the wire. I look forward to go back to the real world."

McDonald noted that he lost the towns of Hingham, Duxbury and Cohasset but won unexpectedly in Scituate by 147 votes.

"Scituate is a tough town," he said, "but things went well for us. I appreciate what Scituate did for us. We'll carry those other towns in 1994."

Hedlund had built up a 20,875 to 17,609 lead when the votes were in from Hingham, Hull, Cohasset, Scituate and Duxbury but Weymouth and Marshfield turned the victory over to McDonald.

Hedlund took Hingham by 6,928 to 4,708; Cohasset by 2,324 to 1,819; and Duxbury by 4,837 to 2,957.

McDonald won in Hull 3,152 to 1,960.

The victory in Weymouth was particularly sweet because some of his Democratic colleagues had campaigned for his opponent.

The turnout in Weymouth was at or near the 86% predicted by Town Clerk Franklin Fryer since 85% of those registered had voted in Precinct 2, where 33% had defied the drizzling rain to cast their votes before 12 noon.

Clinton, now the President-elect, took 43% of the vote in Weymouth with President George Bush taking 31% and maverick candidate Ross Perot attracting a surprising 26%.

He was projected to be the winner nationally shortly after most of the polls closed in the east.

Studds, the 20-year Congressman whose district lines were redrawn scant months before the election, won in Weymouth by about a 2-1 margin over Republican Dan Daly with Jon Bryan, a Republican turned independent, trailing far in the rear.

"So much for the new cartographers," chortled Studds, who captured 60% of the vote in Weymouth, 61% in Quincy and 67% in Brockton, the three major communities in his new district.

Lighted Deer Hill School ballfield on deck

on behalf of a loose knit organization of Little League, softball, and soccer enthusiasts of all ages, appeared before the school committee to try to give his best "pitch" for the lighted field to be built on the school land.

However, Carr's pitch struck out with varsity players.

"Will the varsity be able to use the field?" Mike Connor, a student at Cohasset High School, asked.

Carr replied, "no" and said the Beechwood ball field could easily be upgraded for varsity use.

Connor then said that it seemed backward that the Little Leaguers would have a lighted field and that the varsity would not.

"It should be the opposite way. The Little Leaguers should be looking forward to be playing under the lights and not seniors wishing they were playing in Little League," he said.

Because the problem was not fully addressed it could remain a topic of discussion as the Deer Hill field project continues to develop.

Although Carr proposed that the field be built on the school land next to the Deer Hill school, he said "the field would be constructed by private funds."

The projected cost for constructing the field, which includes lights (for night games), dugouts, toilet facilities, water fountains, and even a concession stand ranges between $25,000 and $50,000.

Carr stated that the funding would be a mixture of both corporate and individual donations.

"Although other areas around the state do not have the 'resources' we have, they have better facilities for the kids to use. I want to change that," he said.

According to Carr, the Deer Hill facility would act as a multipurpose field in that both the boys' Little League and the girls' softball programs could use.

Likewise, the lights could also be used for the adjoining soccer field for possible night games.

With 325 children participating in Little League, 125 girls playing softball, and an expanding soccer program in town, Carr explained that "a first class facility should be with first class programs to keep the kids involved and out of trouble."

Although the school committee was generally supportive of Carr's initiative, the members said that he would have to do further research into zoning regulations, conservation laws, as well as to involve other groups that have tried to upgrade and construct new playing fields in town before providing any type of official approval.

Carr wants the field to get beyond the talk stage.

"Since I have been in the town for eight years, there has been talk of upgrading fields...but just talk," he said.

school's in

by Ed Leary

I've just returned from a football game in which the Skippers came within inches of defeating a much bigger, unbeaten Old Rochester team. Inspired by the extraordinary efforts of Ray Jones, Chris Rolandelli and Charlie Smith, I'm definitely in the mood to "blow the horn" for the Cohasset schools. Just as we celebrate the accomplishments of individuals working as a team, it's also necessary to celebrate the types of partnerships and teamwork that exist throughout our schools.

At Joseph Osgood, for example, Fire Chief John Nadeau exemplified the sense of partnership between the schools and the community during a program in which Fire Department personnel and the Chief demonstrated various fire survival skills. They taught the "Stop, Drop, and Roll" procedure as a rock number and then the students practiced crawling under a "blanket" of smoke to escape a burning room.

After a visit by storyteller Valerie Tutson, the students in Ms. Collins' class at Osgood began a study of folk tales and fairy tales. Enthusiasm for the tales has sparked an interest in performing three plays, and rehearsals have begun for "The Gingerbread Man," "The Princess and the Pea," and "Rumpelstiltskin." In collaboration with the playmakers, second-graders will paint murals with assistance from their parents. On an historical note, the third grades celebrated the Columbus Quincentennial through literature, music with Mr. McInnis, and the visual arts. With Ms. Stevens, students discovered the world of cartography and produced maps of their own worlds, which have been displayed for all to appreciate.

Exploring the world of technology, Ms. Clark's second-graders worked with Joan Condon, the system technology aide, to plan and produce their own video, in which they introduced themselves for broadcast at the Osgood open house. (Remember when the most challenging media project in the second grade involved the tough choice between a magenta and crimson crayola?)

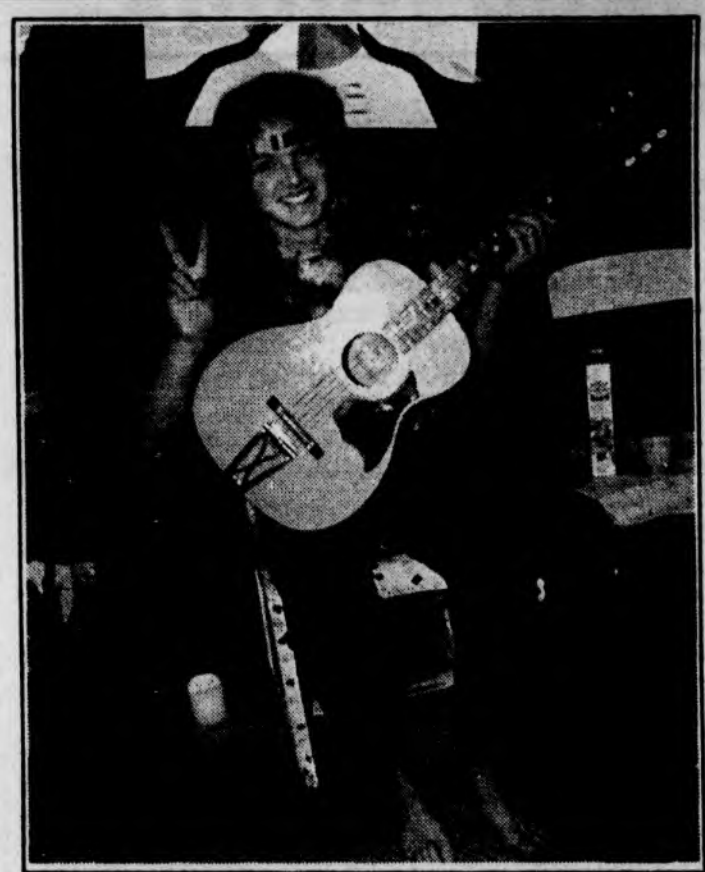
In an example of partnership between the schools, the sixth-graders at Deer Hill planned and organized a variety of Halloween activities for the first-graders at Osgood. In order to develop problem-solving skills, students had to select an appropriate activity, list materials and equipment that they would need, sequence the steps to complete the project, predict a variety of problems that they might encounter and the solutions to the anticipated problems. When students arrived at Deer Hill, the "big kids" treated them to a variety of skits, crafts, games, and storytelling. Significantly, most activities involved a one-on-one partnership between a sixth-grader and a first-grader.

In tune with the season, the fifth-grade team challenged the creativity of their students with the third annual pumpkin project, with a political theme. Students had to design a pumpkin based on an issue or a person representing local, state, or national politics. The winners in three categories were Danielle Kupsc and Meghan Corry for Best Political Theme; Craig Parker and Caitlin Stansell for Best Use of Materials; and Grace Gardner and Sarah Bertovich for Most Original.

At the jr./sr. high school, things have really been happening also. Oct. 21 the entire tenth grade went on a field trip to the distant, exotic environs of Cohasset Common to make use of two historic community resources. In order to understand how the different religious philosophies of two historic groups influenced the architecture of their places of worship, the classes visited St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, representing the Church of England, and First Parish Meeting House, representing the Puritan tradition. After presentations by the Reverend Mr. Atkinson and the Reverend Mr. Cutler, the students saw that the buildings were not merely structures, but symbols of the congregations' beliefs.

Many school systems are taking the heat for not offering opportunities for girls to pursue their interests in math and the sciences. This is obviously not so at the jr./sr. high school, and the math department deserves recognition for its efforts in this area.

For example, Oct. 23, 19 girls, accompanied by Margaret Lee and Maureen Lalumiere, attended "Women in Technology Day" at Wentworth University. More than 800 girls from across the state participated in the program jointly sponsored by New England Telephone and Wentworth University. Seminars on career opportunities ran the gamut from biotechnology to interior design.



The following week, a team of 20 junior and senior high school students competed in the Math Olympiad. Members of the group had to solve a series of complex, multi-leveled mathematics challenges. Of particular note is the fact that girls outnumbered boys on the team! Results of the competition are forthcoming within the next couple of weeks.

Oct. 26 Mr. Robert Egan of the Cohasset Building Department spoke to the combined Architecture and Business Management classes to offer his advice on a series of projects that both classes are working on. The architecture class has already laid out a site plan with the aid of Mr. Dunn of the math department and is continuing through the development of site plans, architectural drawings and a scale model for a proposed house. On the other hand, the business management class has been working on a project involving the "Legal Environment of Business" including topics on licensing, planning of business sites and zoning regulations. Mr. Egan's experience and expertise were an invaluable resource as he displayed zoning maps and discussed the impact of by-laws.

Climbing through the trees at dizzying heights, surmounting obstacle courses, cooperating to ensure each other's survival — all these take place at the Alternative School's Ropes Course in the woods behind the high school. Purchased with a variety of state grants and private contributions, the ropes course teaches a variety of confidence-building, cooperative learning, and physical fitness skills to those who accept the challenges that the course offers.

Students in the Alternative School are completing the first of a three-part training program as Ropes Course technical assistants. Through a written exam, as well as a practical exam, students must demonstrate proficiency in knots, belaying, climbing, use of personal safety gear, and safety precautions.

Mr. Buckley has asked me to invite the whole town to an "Open House in the Woods" Nov. 14, from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m., rain or shine, in order to introduce everyone to the facility as a community resource. If you want to experience adventure, teamwork, trust, and fun, please call Jack Buckley at 383-6100 for more details.

Welcome back to the 1960s, says Faye Menis at "Avant Garde Night," last Thursday at the Cohasset Junior/Senior High last week, where music and art students presented projects that engaged the senses! (Staff photo/Buzz Wadsworth)

As I read over this article, I'm struck by the many "partnerships" that make for excellence in the schools: partnerships between individuals, departments, schools, programs, and resource people within the community. The point is that the schools are not apart from the community, but a part of the community!

Previews of Coming Attractions:

• The Alt School provides a unique educational opportunity for a wide range of students.

• The Peer Counselors offer many support services for the younger students, often in a one-to-one relationship that benefits themselves as well as others.

• The junior and senior girls are beginning to prepare for the annual Powderpuff Football Game, which is three short weeks away.

KUDOS FOR THE KIDS

Both the boys' and girls' soccer teams have made the MIAA state tournament. The first games will be played this weekend.

Michelle LeMar has been chosen as Student of the Month in recognition of her hard work and positive attitude in class as well as an assistant in the cafeteria.

Katie O'Sullivan has received the Superintendant's Award for the senior with the highest cumulative average.

At the Homecoming Football Game the King Ray Jones and Queen Kate Murray were accompanied by their court: Ali Gallant, Lori Gallant, Karyn Murray, Ben Chittick, Doug Ellinger and Nate Fiori.

An apology: In the last article I mentioned that Mike Equi had participated in a summer project producing a documentary on the construction of an Irish curragh. I should have noted that Sarena Quemere and Martina Snyder also received plaques for their work on the project.

Re-play Nov. 13-14

Cohasset Dramatic Club provides thrills and suspense—again—with continuation of its production of Frederick Knott's "Wait Until Dark!" Nov. 13-14, at 8 p.m., at Cohasset Town Hall. Final weekend performances were canceled Oct. 23-24 due to high levels of lead paint dust occasioned by an outside painting project. Cleanup has been undertaken and is expected to be completed by election weekend.

The Thursday, Oct. 22, performance was a smash hit, bringing in $1,600 for the South Shore Habitat for Humanity, and a review by the Cohasset Mariner's Christopher Kukk praised the high-class work by the Cohasset Dramatic Club.

Tickets for October 23-24 shows will be honored for the Nov. 13-14 performances. All tickets are $8 and may be bought at the door or reserved by calling Lynn Eisenhauer at 446-6601.

The show is great entertainment, and is appropriate for children approximately eight and over.

Register for hoop

The Cohasset Recreation Department/Booster's Basketball registrations are for girls and boys in grades one through nine at Town Hall Saturday, Nov. 7, from 9 to 11 a.m. The fee for the program is $20.

Checks should be made payable to "Town of Cohasset," and the shirt fee charge is included in the fee.

Details on the basketball program will be available at registration.

Learn to skate

Any resident aged five through adult who may be interested in ice skating lessons, to be offered at the MDC Skating Rink in Weymouth, may call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791 for further details.

Lessons are taught by Bay State Ice Skating School instructors at the Weymouth Rink, for both children and adults as follows: Sundays at 5 p.m. beginning Nov. 15; Tuesdays at 6 p.m. beginning Nov. 17.

Each class is 50 minutes in duration, meeting for a seven-week session. The fee for the children's program is $59 and the adult program is $70. Fees also cover the cost of rink admission.

Registrations will be held at the Weymouth MDC Rink as follows: Sunday classes: register at noon, Nov. 8. Tuesday classes: register at 6 p.m. Nov. 10.

Ski lessons offered

The Cohasset Recreation Department conducts Blue Hill Ski Lesson registration Thursday, Nov. 19, at the Recreation Office, Cohasset Town Hall, between the hours of 2:30 and 4 p.m. and again in the evening from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m.

Registration forms must be signed by a parent or guardian for participation in this five-week program. Beginner through advanced level instruction is available for children and youth, aged seven and over.

Lessons are scheduled to begin Thursday, Jan. 7, and meet for five consecutive weeks, through Thursday, Feb. 5. The bus leaves each week from Town Hall parking lot at 3:30 p.m. and returns from Blue Hills at about 6:45 p.m.

The fee for ski lessons and transportation for the five weeks is $95 and checks should be made payable to: Town of Cohasset.

Those participants who require equipment rentals may rent at Blue Hills and the cost for the five-week rental package is $40 per person.

The rental fee can be included in the check for the program fee.

Dog obedience class

The Cohasset Recreation Department accepts telephone registrations for beginner and intermediate dog training classes to be taught by Mrs. Laurie Cleveland. Classes are Tuesday evenings, at the G.A.R. Hall, Scituate, beginning Tuesday, Nov. 10.

Beginner classes are from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. and intermediate/advanced classes are from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. Both levels of instruction are Tuesday evenings. The fee for the eight-week program will be $44.

Checks made payable to the Town of Cohasset, may be brought to the first class.

Participating dogs should be a minimum of three months of age.

Adult program notes

Men and women interested in playing recreational basketball may call the Cohasset Recreation Department office, at 383-6791 for details. Schedules are: men's basketball for ages 35 and over, Tuesday evenings, 5:30 to 7:15 p.m. and Thursday evenings, 5:30 to 9 p.m.

Men's basketball for ages 35 and under: Monday evenings and Wednesday evenings, 5:30 to 9 p.m. Both men's groups meet at the Gates School, Scituate.

Women's basketball for all ages meets at the Wampatuck Elementary School, Scituate Friday evenings, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Adult volleyball meets Tuesday evenings from 7:15 to 9:30 p.m. also at the Gates School and any Cohasset resident interested, may call the recreation office at 383-6791 for registration and details.

Results are reviewed

Thursday, Nov. 5, Wigmore Pierson's guests on Pierson to Person are William B. Ketter, Editor, The Patriot Ledger, and David B. Wilson, former political columnist with The Boston Globe, who will analyze national, state, and local election results.

The show is broadcast live Thursdays, 8 to 9 p.m., and airs on Channel 53 in Hingham, and on Channels 3 and 53 in Cohasset.

Register for arts, crafts

The Cohasset Recreation Department accepts telephone registrations at 383-6791, for an Arts and Crafts Program designed for children in grades K-through-three beginning Monday, Nov. 16 at the Osgood School.

Class meets Mondays from 2:50 to 5 p.m. for five consecutive weeks, through Dec. 14, and is taught by Summer Playground Program and Volunteer Arts and Craft Program director, Rebecca Bates McArthur. The fee for the five week program is $22 per child which includes the costs of supplies and materials for all projects.

Children registering will be allowed to stay after school, but must be picked up at Osgood School at 5 p.m. promptly. Class must be limited to the first 12 children registering.

Lauren Mally, Kim Welby, and Patrick O'Hayre shake it during Street Dancing, a popular class offered by the Cohasset Community Center. Please call the community center at 383-0088 for details.

Save the museums

The Jazz Pops Ensemble presents a benefit concert at Kimballs By-The-Sea, Sunday, Nov. 8 from 4 to 6 p.m.; the proceeds to go to a special fund to make needed repairs and improvements to the Captain Wilson House and Maritime Museum.

A buffet is served following the concert. Ticket sales are limited to 130, and are $50 per person.

For more information, please call 383-6930.

Fashion Show, Nov. 15

The Junior League of Boston hosts a Talbots Holiday Fashion Show and Luncheon Sunday, Nov. 15, at the Chart House Restaurant in Cohasset. The event begins at 12:30 p.m. and tickets are $15 per person. For more information, please call Debbie Hoffman at 749-7973 before Nov. 10.

The Junior League of Boston, Inc. is an organization of young women who demonstrate an interest in and a commitment to volunteerism. Membership is open to women of all races, colors, religions, and national origins.

Antique show, Nov. 7

The Deer Hill School is the setting for the 16th Annual Antique Show & Sale, Saturday, Nov. 7, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The show benefits the Beechwood Congregational Church in Cohasset. Dealers from near and far will display and sell their antiques. Admission is $2; discount tickets are available through the dealers, the Church, or with newspaper ad.

There is plenty of free parking, and public snack bar — which includes Flossie's cornchowder and Don Harold's clam chowder, homemade sandwiches, and coffee and cold drinks — is available.

Choral Evensong, Nov. 8

Don't miss the Organ Recital and Choral Evensong, at 5 p.m. Sunday (Nov. 8) at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church.

Robert Barney is the organist and choirmaster. Music of Franck, Bach, Howells, Stanford, and Brahms is featured.

Book, bake sale

Although the big Village Fair is not taking place this year, there are several Christmas sale events in Cohasset Village, Saturday, Dec. 5

One is a book sale at Walton Rogers Hall at St. Stephen's to benefit the Church's Outreach program, which includes Habitat for Humanity, Wellspring, the Mary Martha Learning Center, Quincy Crisis Center, and Cohasset Fish. The book sale committee, headed by Helen Hooper and Betty Enders, is collecting both hard cover and paperback books.

Donations may be left in boxes or bags inside the door nearest to Highland Ave., at the back of the church, Wednesdays and Thursdays, from 8 to 11 a.m. and 2 to 5 p.m. The committee is grateful for gifts of both adult and children's books, but please omit out-of-date textbooks and Readers' Digest condensed books.

Donors may call 383-6840 with questions.

Kung Fu open house

Wah Lum Kung Fu Academy offers open houses in traditional Chinese kung fu Saturday, Nov. 14 and in Tai Chi Chuan Sunday, Nov. 15. Each of these events is scheduled for 2 to 3:30 p.m. and includes a free trial lesson for ages 14 and up. Space is limited to pre-registrants, who should call the school at 383-6822 to reserve a spot. Wah Lum Academy is on Route 3A in Cohasset.

Lucille McLoughlin

Books and Lucille McLoughlin go back a long way.

"I have always loved reading," says the energetic octogenarian. "I remember when I was a little less than four, sitting myself down with a book opposite my mother while she was ironing — I loved reading even then."

Lucille hasn't let the demands of being both a grandmother and a member of Cohasset's active senior citizen community get in the way of her favorite pastime.

"I have four books going at the moment — each in a different room in the house," she says. "I always leave in a good place so when I come back — I say 'Oh yes, now what happened.'

"Each book is an ongoing joy," she says.

Lucille explains that her ability to keep several stories going at once comes from her youth when movie houses ran films continually.

"You could go in get the sorrowful climax — and see the beginning when it came around again. It didn't seem to bother anyone," she recalls.

Although Lucille reads all types of books — biographies are her favorites.

Right now she's in the middle of the four-inch thick — 1,156-page epic Sacajawea by Anna Lee Waldo.

Lucille enthusiastically describes Sacajawea's stoic courage when she went into labor. So important was Sacajawea, a Shoshone Indian, to the Lewis and Clark westward expedition that the 50 explorers on the journey waited two days for her.

Special friends

Lucille is also reading The Bride of the Wind — the Life of Alma Mahler by Suzanne Keegan, Thomas Merton, a vow of conversation journals, 1964-65, edited by Naomi Burton Stone, and Dog Talk, (training your dog through a canine point of view), by John Ross and Barbara McKinney.

At the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, Lucille — who is also a library trustee — can often be found behind the scenes at the library Friday mornings when she helps out by covering books with clear plastic film.

She says her volunteer work has its advantages.

"The joy of it is, there are all these brand-new books. I can read rapidly and if there's anything I'm attracted to, I can get my name high on the waiting list (to take them out)," she notes.

To Lucille — there's no contest between television and reading.

"I find television so unsatisfactory," she says. "Reading is so much fun and so satisfying."

(Editor's note: in the weeks ahead as part of the Paul Pratt Library Corner, the Cohasset Mariner will highlight the volunteers, who play a crucial role at the library. Susan Watrous, staff librarian, notes, "We couldn't exist without them.")

Lady Skippers fight hard in final week of season

Coming into last week needing three points to qualify for tournament play, the field hockey played their final three games in three days with a cloud of pressure hanging over them.

On Wednesday, the Clippers played Hanover, the league's first place team, in their final home game but couldn't gain any ground despite a great effort, coach Debbie Bostwick said.

"It was an awesome game and the kids were really pumped up. The girls played very well," Bostwick said.

Cohasset's main concern in this game was trying to shut Jen Gilardi, voted to the Globe's all scholastic team, and thanks to the play of Nikki Peterson and Chloe Chittick, they basically neutralized her, Bostwick said.

Freshman goalie Gina Rosano continued her fine play this season and turned away all five shots she faced in the first half and at the half, the score was deadlocked at zero.

In the second half, Cohasset came out and really dominated the game for the most part and had a excellent chance on a penalty shot made by Liz Deveney, Bostwick said.

"Liz made this incredible shot to the upper left hand corner and the goalie just happened to jump up and tip the shot with two fingers."

With less than 15 minutes to go in the half, Hanover's Gilardi managed to break free and went in with a breakaway.

Bostwick said the shot she made was a lucky shot that trickled right into the net.

"After the game parents came up and said they couldn't believe the shot went in. It was like the ball had eyes."

That was the only scoring in the game and so the Clippers had to look for at least a victory and a tie on the road for the three points they needed for tournament play.

The next day at East Bridgewater, a game rained out earlier, the Clippers picked up a tie in a game that Bostwick was hoping they would have won, she said.

For the first 25 minutes, the girls looked very tired and as though they were going through the motions, Bostwick said.

Cilla Goff scored for Cohasset, with an assist by Danielle Shaughnessy, when there was a scuffle in front of the net and she dumped it by the goalie on a reverse stick.

East Bridgewater came back to tie it up at 1-1, the final, leaving Cohasset needing a win in their final game.

The next day, Cohasset travelled to Hull, where they had to deal with the pressure of not only a must win situation but also horrible field conditions.

"It was the worst field I've ever seen in my whole life. It was like playing on sand and gravel in a parking lot," Bostwick said.

Hull got off to an early lead on a goal that was kicked by one their players, Bostwick said, but the referee still allowed it to count despite protest from Cohasset coaches.

By halftime, they were down 2-0 and had 30 minutes left to save their season, so Bostwick said she really tried to psyche the girls up.

The score stayed the same until late in the half when Cilla Goff scored on an assist by Katie Ridge but that was all they could muster and the Clippers finished their season in fourth place with a 4-3-5 league record and a 6-5-5 overall record.

After the game, Bostwick said she gave her four captains, Bridgette Corkery, Kate Murray, Caryn Murray and Danielle Shaughnessy, a long stem rose and a card as she bid them, her only seniors, farewell.

Caryn Murray and Corkery still have one more duty to fill before leaving as they pulled down spots in the all star game, which Shaughnessy, who was the team's top scorer with 13 goals, missed by one vote.

CHS gridmen edged by Old Rochester

After a victory the week before over Abington, the football team was looking to continue its winning ways in the second half of the season as they took on an impressive Old Rochester, 7-0, last Saturday but came up on the short side of a 14-13 score.

"Undoubtedly, this was our best game of the season. We just didn't win," coach Ted McDermott said. "The kids did a great job on both sides against a good team."

The defense had a very strong game not only individually but also as a unit, McDermott said.

Many players had impressive outings on the defense including Andy Church, who was solid at both offensive and defensive tackle, and Chris Rolandelli, who lead the team with 10 tackles as well picking up a fumble recovery and taking four carries for 31 yards.

Senior Charlie Smith, defensive end linebacker, came up big with two quarterback sacks, a fumble recovery and eight tackles. Sheldon Morgan, nine tackles, Steven Cahill, eight tackles, and Dorian Bryant, seven tackles, also put up strong efforts.

Defensively, a lot of people came up with great days, McDermott said, but more importantly, the entire unit played well.

Release day update

The Cohasset Jr./Sr. High School staff met Oct. 22 for a workshop based on the school culture's theme reaching out to the knowledge bases. At that time, teachers began a five-part program that explores innovative instructional techniques and alternative assessment strategies.

There were several presentations that afternoon given by members of the faculty. Patricia Keenan and Colleen Lucas talked about portfolio assessment. Usually thought of as a display of art work, a portfolio can be used in other academic areas as well. It allows a student the opportunity to show mastery of a topic in a non-traditional way.

Other presenters included Bill Kite who discussed the "Writing as a Process" workshop in which the English Department participated. Jody Wood talked about peer observation and Dave Magnussen on restructuring a course.

Monte Carlo night, Nov. 7

The annual Cohasset Parent School Organization (PSO) Monte Carlo Night takes place Saturday, Nov. 7, from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Cohasset Community Center.

This is one of the major fund-raising events of the year for the PSO to support a variety of curriculum enrichment programs at all Cohasset schools including the Joseph Osgood, Deer Hill and the Junior and Senior High schools. This past year, PSO funds were used to support visiting speakers and lecturers for students and parents, provide for teacher grants, purchase computer hardware and software, and meet other needs of the schools and faculties.

Both live and silent auctions are also held during the evening offering bidders a variety of items including: weekend get-a-way hotel and resort packages; tickets to theater, musical and professional sporting events; autographed sports equipment and memorabilia from local professional teams, some dating back to the 60s and 70s; restaurant and shopping gift certificates from local and Boston establishments; catered affairs; and use of local tennis, golf and boating facilities for parties and group outings. The evening is catered by Laura Atherton of The Allen House, local legend of cuisine creations, promising to make the evening very "tasteful" as well as fun.

Tickets are $20 per person which includes food for the evening and a $5 start-up stake. The Community Center provides a cash bar for the evening.

Please call Dave and Ronnie McMorris at 383-1219 or Kevin and Ann O'Connor at 383-1290 for advanced tickets. Tickets can also be purchased at the door.

This year, Monte Carlo Night has a nautical theme. Casual dress with a pair of boat shoes is fine, but if you care to come dressed as an admiral, pirate, sailor, surfer, sunbather, or anything in between, the PSO hopes to see you there for an evening of fun and for the benefit of Cohasset's students and their schools.

Rocket scientist visits

Dave Heshion to visit Osgood School Wednesday, Nov. 4, and Deer Hill School Nov. 6. Heshion's history of Rockets and Space Flight is designed to get the students thinking about their future...their goals in life. The theme of the program is, "There's no limit to what you can do."

Heshion also hosts a rocket camp Saturday, Nov. 14, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. where the children will learn more about rockets, how they work and fly. Then they will build and launch their own rocket.

A prize will be given to the boy and girl whose rocket lands closest to the launch pad. Cost is $20 per student. (minimum of 100 students).

Chole Chittick and Heather Littlehale try to make this Greek statue (Mary Ellen Rayment) move to no avail during 'Avant Garde Night' at the high school last week. Happenings at the art/music night included an underwater environment, a Native American environment, and an enchanted forest.

senior scene

Several years ago the Town Capital Budget Committee asked your Council on Aging to submit a plan and cost figures for a new facility, which might be needed in the future, to house the Council on Aging. After consulting with various state agencies, builders and other councils to accumulate as much information as possible and project growth figures for Cohasset, we estimated the cost to be $850,000.

Realistically thinking, we said such cost could never be undertaken by the town, so let's face reality and come up with the next best thing, some building suitably located, that won't be too expensive to renovate.

Sometimes the unexpected happens. The Community Center Directors, aware of our concerns for the future and understanding our need for expansion, offered us a long-term lease, rent free, if we would help raise money for some additional space at our present location. Agreeing this should be a joint venture, on July 31 we started moving out furniture and equipment from the soon-to-be renovated area and one week later excavation started at 3 No. Main St. The construction and renovation has continued since then without any major problems.

Representing the Community Center during this expansion period were Glen Pratt and Philip Lehr and from the Council on Aging were Joe Buckley and Austin O'Toole. These four gentlemen met on a regular basis and discussed various phases of the construction as it progressed. Their mutual resolution of a number of minor problems and the complete cooperation of both boards have been a model of how two groups working cooperatively, and for the benefit of the citizens, can overcome what appears to be an impossibility, "a suitable facility serving all ages in one location."

We have added a 30 x 26 foot addition on the northeast side on both the ground and lower levels. The kitchen has been relocated for greater use, office space has been created for the SHINE and OUTREACH workers. The floor in the function room has been completely replaced and an additional stairway provides easier access to the lower level. A new sprinkler and fire alarm system add increased safety and a new heating system will add greater comfort. The original walls that would be considered exterior walls have now become interior walls and they have been replaced.

We thank the Directors of the Community Center for inviting us to join with them in this venture, which is to benefit all age groups. Our thanks to all those who contributed money, both seniors and future seniors, to the banks and merchants, and particularly Mrs. Jane Cook who so enthusiastically supported this facility with a generous financial contribution. To the many tradesmen who worked weekends and evenings without any reimbursement, please know that your support is deeply appreciated. To Karin Bartow, President of the Friends of the Council on Aging, a million thanks for handling the financing.

As a result of the above changes, we will now be able to offer meals to seniors more frequently than once a week, centralize more of our activities and improve programming and services to our senior population. The Senior Center is jumping with activity with 45 members in our exercise or aerobic class, 26 in our bridge class and another 18 programs buzzing with activity. At the same time, the Community Center programs are more heavily enrolled than ever. It is an answer to what the late Nate Hurwitz once visualized, a central facility for everyone. How happy, too, would our own Dave Chittim be to know that the expansion plans he once worked on have become a reality.

An open house will be held soon when we become fully operational. Please watch for the notice in your local newspapers.

T. Gerard Keating,
Chairman

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage given by Philip H. Smith, Trustee of Main Street Trust, under Declaration of Trust dated July 22, 1986 and filed with Norfolk County Registry District of the Land Court as Document No. 501549 on Certificate of Title No. 124575, of 103 Ripley Road, Cohasset, Norfolk County, Massachusetts 02025 to COHASSET SAVINGS BANK, 13 Elm Street, Cohasset, Norfolk County, Massachusetts 02025, dated April 6, 1988, and recorded in the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds Book 7926, Page 537, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing, the same will be sold at public auction on December 2, 1992 at 10:00 A.M. on the premises, all and singular the premises, described in said mortgage as follows:

PARCEL 1:

A certain parcel of land, with the building thereon, situated in Cohasset, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, shown as Lot A on a plan entitled "Subdivision Plan of Land in Cohasset, Mass., made for E. Clayton Hyland and Sumner McGaw," dated September 28, 1954 by Lewis W. Perkins & Son, Eng'rs., Hingham, Mass., said plan being duly recorded with Norfolk Deeds in Book 3309, Page 99, and more particularly bounded and described as follows:

NORTHEASTERLY: by Ripley Road, as shown on said plan, 50.73 feet;

SOUTHEASTERLY: by Lot B as shown on said plan, 39.13 feet;

SOUTHWESTERLY: by land of William E. Poland and Irwin M. Golden, as shown on said plan 77.65 feet;

NORTHWESTERLY: by Smith Lane as shown on said plan 61.03 feet.

Containing according to said plan 2,902 square feet of land.

PARCEL 2:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in Cohasset, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, shown as Lot B on a plan entitled, "Subdivision Plan of Land in Cohasset, Mass., made for E. Clayton Hyland and Sumner McGaw," dated September 28, 1954 by Lewis W. Perkins & Son, Eng'rs., Hingham, MA said plan being duly recorded with Norfolk Deeds in Book 3309, Page 99, and more particularly bounded and described as follows:

NORTHEASTERLY: by Ripley Road, as shown on said plan, 107.82 feet;

SOUTHERLY: by land of William E. Poland and Irwin M. Golden as shown on said plan 4.90 feet;

SOUTHEASTERLY: by land of said Poland and Golden as shown on said plan, 20.30 feet;

SOUTHWESTERLY: by land of said Poland and Golden as shown on said plan, 103.76 feet;

NORTHWESTERLY: by Lot A as shown on said plan, 39.19 feet.

Containing according to said plan 3,057 square feet of land.

For title reference see deed from South Shore Art Center, Inc. dated December, 1986 and recorded in Book 7374, Page 551.

Property Address: 103 Ripley Road, Cohasset, Massachusetts.

The premises will be sold subject to any and all unpaid taxes, tax titles, assessments and municipal liens, unpaid common charges of the homeowners association, so far as the same may legally exist, restrictions, easements, and covenants of record and to the rights of all parties in possession.

Terms of the Sale: Cash, cashier's or certified check in the sum of $5,000.00 as a deposit must be shown at the time and place of the sale in order to qualify as a bidder; high bidder to sign written Memorandum of Sale upon acceptance of bid; balance of purchase price payable in cash or current funds in twenty (20) days from the date of the sale at the offices of mortgagee's attorney, Delaney & Muncey, P.C., 136 Court Street, Plymouth, MA 02360 or such other time as may be designated by mortgagee.

In the event the successful bidder fails to complete the purchase of the premises, then said deposit shall be retained by mortgagee as liquidated damages and in addition thereto mortgagee reserves the right to assign the bid to itself, or to contact the second highest bidder and offer the premises to him/her. If said party does not agree to purchase, then mortgagee may contact each prior bidder to offer similarly said premises. By executing Memorandum of Terms and Conditions of Purchase at Foreclosure Sale, the successful bidder specifically authorizes mortgagee to so assign the bid.

Other terms to be announced at the sale.

THE TRIAL COURT
PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT DEPARTMENT
Norfolk Division
Docket No. 91P0922E1
Notice of Fiduciary's Account

To all persons interested in the estate of Eleanor G. Power late of Cohasset Norfolk.

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the first and final account(s) of John Power and Mary Monaghan as Co-Executor (the fiduciary) of said estate have been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said account(s), you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before the twenty-fifth day of November, 1992 the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary, or to the attorney for the fiduciary, obtain without cost a copy of said account(s). If you desire to object to any item of said account(s), you must, in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 5.

WITNESS, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham this twenty-third day of October, 1992.

SHARE New England (a self help and resource exchange) successfully obtained a loan from the South Shore Bank recently for a new refrigerator/cooler.

SHARE is a community building, neighborhood based, self-help program which distributes food packages in exchange for two hours of community service and a nominal fee.

The short term loan obtained from South Shore Bank has enabled SHARE to construct a 50'x60' cool room and the purchase of refrigerated trailers for the storage of perishable foods, eliminating the costly necessity of relying on rented refrigerated trailers only.

Robert B. James of Cohasset has scored a hole-in-one at Cohasset Golf Club in Cohasset, and entered the 32nd annual Drambuie Rusty Nail Hole-in-One Sweepstakes. The 139 yard ace was scored at hole # 2 on September 6, 1992.

James and Gene R. Peterson, II, the golf professional who validated the sweepstakes entry, are both eligible to win the grand prize, a one-week trip for two to Scotland, VIP tour of the Drambuie Liqueur Co. Ltd. and $1,000 cash. Fabulous second and third place prizes include five personalized, professional golf bags and 100 sets of a dozen Titleist golf balls.

Nearly 10,000 lucky people score a hole-in-one and enter the sweepstakes each year, which has become one of the country's most successful sports promotions of its kind. Drambuie is also proud to announce the support of Golf magazine.

The sweepstakes run from January 1 to December 31, 1992. All entrants will receive a customized Hole-in-One bag tag from the Drambuie Liqueur Company Ltd. in Edinburgh, Scotland.

Marlette to preside at Monday's town meeting

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

There's going to be at least one new face behind the podium at the special town meeting Monday.

And if the 19 articles on the warrant don't draw the 100 needed for a quorum then maybe curiosity will.

At 7:30 p.m., Monday (Nov. 16) at the high school auditorium, George L. Marlette takes over the reins as Cohasset's interim town moderator. His is the first new face to hold the post in 12 years.

Although selectmen appointed Marlette to the position last month to fill the vacancy created when former town moderator William Weeks stepped down — Monday's town meeting is Marlette's first opportunity to publicly show his skills.

It's an important step for Marlette, who plans to seek election to a three-year term as town moderator in April.

Appeals board chairman Myrna Putziger also applied for the interim post. In a majority vote selectmen appointed Marlette after postponing their decision until town counsel determined the board had the authority to pick a replacement for Weeks, who served nearly four terms.

Marlette's style differs from his predecessor who picked the order of articles at random in an effort to hold citizens' attention.

Marlette said he will take the articles in the order they appear in the warrant. He also favors gavel-to-gavel TV live coverage. Although Weeks allowed live TV coverage, he felt it hurt attendance.

In both instances, Marlette said people should not be held at town meeting if they're not interested.

"In my view, we should not expect

Proposed mooring fines rock Laugelle

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

An article before the special town meeting that is sure to draw a crowd deals with changes to the town's harbor by-law.

Harbor Committee members propose enacting a 15-day grace period for late payment of mooring fees coupled with a $100 fine. There would also be a grace period to renew one's place on the mooring waiting list with a $15 fine for those who miss the April 1 deadline.

Although the fines could save the town money in legal fees — at least one selectman is dead set against the amount recommended by the harbor committee.

"A $100 fine! My nephew with a 12-foot whaler pays $48 a year (mooring fee). He's paying double if he doesn't pay on time. I think that's going overboard with fines," said Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle.

Under the current by-law, mooring holders must pay by April 1 or lose their

New law puts the lock on bail for abusers

By David McKee
Mariner staff

New domestic abuse legislation, signed into law by Governor William Weld Oct. 7, sets a bail precedent which could help curb the violence so often associated with restraining order violations, state officials say.

Police Sgt. Brian Noonan said the legislation is needed in Cohasset.

"That (domestic abuse) is a big problem here," he said.

First, someone accused of a serious crime, such as domestic assault and battery or violation of a restraining order, cannot be bailed until the alleged offender is arraigned in court by a judge.

Previously, a town's bail magistrate could set bail for an accused criminal and that person could be back on the streets before seeing a judge.

And second, the law allows judges to take into account whether the accused person is a threat to the community in setting bail.

Previously, a judge could only consider an accused risk of flight in setting bail.

While the Cohasset Police haven't had to use the new legislation yet, Noonan, who is court prosecutor, is optimistic about its effect.

"The main theory behind it is that crimes are committed in the heat of the moment," he said.

"That the person committing the crime hasn't had

Liquor stores to open Sundays

Cohasset won't say never on Sunday to liquor sales.

Selectmen exercised the town's option by giving the go ahead to local Sunday package store openings from Nov. 22 through New Year's as allowed under state law.

The state expanded the law this year to include the Sunday before Thanksgiving through the Sunday before New Year's.

Stores may not open before noon and must close not later than 11 p.m.

Andy Hailer, manager of Curtis Liquors, asked selectmen to approve the Sunday openings.

"I'm not big on working on Sundays but I do think if neighboring towns do pass approval, I'd like the option of opening to remain competitive," he said.

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan sympathized with employees who might give up their Sundays.

"It's too bad for the people who work (in package stores). I'd just as soon vote against it," he said.

Cohasset Chamber of Commerce president Robert Martin said the openings would help business.

"The business community would certainly support it (Sunday openings)," he said.

Under state law, no employee shall be required to work and employees must be paid at a rate not less than 1-1/2 times the employee's regular rate.

Cohasset's week

No all-night parking

Starting Nov. 15 and running through March 15, overnight parking is prohibited on any Cohasset street.

It is unlawful to park any vehicle on any street for longer than one hour between the hours of 2 and 6 a.m. during this period, police said.

Shredding demo set

On Saturday, Nov. 14 at 10 a.m., Jack Hubbard is at the Cohasset Transfer Station to demonstrate leaf shredding equipment and answer questions about home composting. Back yard composting containers are on display.

In other recycling news, please remember that aluminum food and beverage containers should be placed in with the tin cans. Any redeemable beverage cans should be dropped in the Boy Scout Shed near the Boutique.

Shiny cover catalogs like those from L.L. Bean and Land's End, etc. should be recycled and can be placed in the magazine container.

Please—no telephone books.

Senior volunteers thanked

The Treasurer-Collector's Office staff thanks the volunteers from the Senior Center and their coordinator, Kathy Bryanton, for the tremendous job they did stuffing, sealing and counting over 3,000 real estate and personal property tax bills.

This is the fourth year that the seniors have helped out. The Treasurer-Collector's Office appreciates their spirit and their sense of dedication to their community. The following volunteers helped September 28 and 29: Olga Sawchuck, Elizabeth Abell, Ann Leonard, Mary Migliaccio, Jacqueline Moores, Lillian Lincoln, Phyllis Acebo, Virginia Anderson, Sheila Kelly, Mary Andracchio, Pauline Keating, Betty Enders, Libby Pompeo, Mary Coffey, Dot Bjorkgren, Tilly Nardo.

Total work hours: 60 hours times D-min. rate $7.92 equals $475.20 (dollar value of volunteer).

Board issues warning

Selectmen gave an official warning to With Richards restaurant concerning alleged Oct. 3 liquor license violations when a number of people were spotted drinking outside the restaurant.

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle favored dismissing the matter without a warning.

But Laugelle was out voted by the rest of the board who want the alleged violations on the record.

"The warning in writing acknowledges the violation. We are not suspending the license and there's no penalty this time. We feel a violation did occur and we want it on the record," said Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke.

Since the alleged Oct. 3 incident, With Richards has taken measures to see that there are no future problems. The benches outside have been removed, and table alignment has been changed inside to provide more seating in the bar area and a better line of sight throughout the restaurant for the manager and bartender.

Walkway is named

The walkway that runs between the town parking lot and Main Street is now officially "The James Brook Walkway."

Selectmen approved the name and the installation of three cast-iron street lights for the walkway which is being renovated by the Village Renaissance Committee. The lights will be paid for through donated funds but the town will pay for the electricity.

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle worried that other parts of town might want street lights.

"People want lights and we have to refuse them," he said. "With Prop. 2-1/2 we've done away with many. It will be hard for some to stay in the dark and we're going to light up downtown more."

Jacqueline Dormitzer of the Renaissance Committee said the lights were needed for safety.

"It is really a safety factor and it will encourage business," she said.

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan agreed.

"People are using stores and it gets dark early. With that many using something, we should make it as safe as possible," he said.

Lead dust bills

Selectmen approved payment of $3,030 to Certified Engineering for testing samples and monitoring the clean up of the lead dust in town hall.

Further testing is expected to cost an additional $2,500.

The advisory committee recently authorized a transfer of $25,000 to cover the cost of the entire cleanup.

Sanding of old paint off the exterior of town hall last month caused lead dust to seep into the interior of the building.

Executive secretary Gregory Doyon said the town offices are testing "very clean" with levels "under 100" but several of the common areas are still registering slightly higher levels.

Doyon said only one employee had not returned to work as of Monday.

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke said she expected that all employees would be back in their offices Tuesday (Nov. 10).

Goedecke also said she was satisfied that the auditorium, which has been cleaned once, does not present a health hazard and is safe for the Cohasset Dramatic Club performance of "Wait Until Dark" on stage this weekend.

"I feel perfectly safe holding the event in town hall seeing where we are in the process," she said.

New law puts lock on offenders . . .

time to cool off, or get the alcohol out of their system (before they are released)."

Noonan said the newly enacted bail-release legislation will probably keep some victims of abuse alive after they have called the police.

"It's that one life you can save with this" that makes it worthwhile, Noonan said.

Attorney General Scott Harshbarger, the state's top law enforcement official, said the law represents an important step forward in the battle to protect victims of abuse.

"It sends a quick message to stop the escalating pattern of violence," Harshbarger said.

The new legislation will help prevent domestic abuse problems, which have resulted in the deaths of several women in Massachusetts over the last year, according to the Governor's legal office.

"Batterers will be in jail and not on the streets," said David Lowy, Weld's deputy legal counsel.

"There will be a cooling off period for the most dangerous time, which is right after an order is issued or an arrest is made. This will definitely have an impact on this problem. Now domestic batterers will have to face a judge before bail is even mentioned."

Domestic problems have caused headlines all over the state and Cohasset is not immune to the problem.

In fact, Noonan said, it was the May 29, 1978 domestic shooting in Cohasset, in which two adults were killed and three children wounded, which led to the creation of restraining orders the same year. (See box.)

Lowy said the law will also help straighten out a system that was not fully protecting Massachusetts residents.

"Studies show that 18 percent of all crimes were committed by people on bail for prior crimes," he said. "It is incalculable how much crime this will prevent. The recent murder of a musician at a chicken restaurant in Boston is an example of a crime that occurred while someone was out on bail. Maybe with this legislation, we can help prevent more tragedies like that from occurring. Not just domestics will be impacted. People charged with larceny, rape, armed robbery or anything serious, will not just be judged on if they are a flight risk when bail is set."

(Staff writer Dori Dwyer also contributed to this report).

Tragic Cohasset case prompts change

It was the gruesome murders at Forest Notch Rd. May 29, 1978 which compelled law enforcement officials to treat domestic abuse as a violent crime, instead of a disagreement between couples.

According to the Cohasset Police there had never been any reported disturbance from the Quirk family of Forest Notch Rd. — until Memorial Day 1978.

On that day Joan Quirk sought out police protection from her abusive husband.

She was informed she could make a formal complaint in court, but would have to wait until the next day because the courts were closed on Memorial Day.

Sgt. Brian Noonan said the officer who spoke with Mrs. Quirk recognized the inadequacy of the legal response to her plight and offered to intervene for her and calm her husband down.

She refused, Noonan said, because she would have to spend the night at home and she feared his retribution for calling the police.

After meeting with her, Noonan said, the officer dropped Mrs. Quirk off at the end of her street at her request.

Several hours later, at 5:30 p.m., every member of the Quirk family had been shot by the troubled husband and father.

While the children, who were three, six and eight at the time survived, their parents died.

A month after the incident the 1978 Abuse Prevention Act was signed into law, which afforded domestic violence victims the right to take out a restraining order against an abuser any time, any day.

The law also allowed police to arrest suspected abusers on the spot.

In a Boston Globe interview, the Norfolk District Attorney William Delahunt said one of the reasons for the swift response by law enforcement officials was that the Quirks shattered a stereotype about domestic violence.

"Everybody really related to it. This was the All-American family with the trellises, the rose bushes, the cottage, in a beautiful Cape Cod town," he said.

Marlette to preside

everyone to dutifully sit if they're not concerned as long as they're not thereafter concerned about the outcome," he said.

Marlette also said that live TV coverage provides the elderly with the opportunity to see town meeting first hand.

Marlette appointed Arthur Lehr, Raymond Buckley, Janet MacLure and Grace Tuckerman as counters — all have served in the past, he said.

When a hand count is called for, Marlette plans to ask citizens to stand row by row to facilitate counting. The checkers will report not only to town moderator but also to the microphone to announce their individual counts, he said.

Computer panel charge

The town's computer study committee will consist of five citizens plus the town accountant and a representative from the school department, selectmen said.

The committee's charge is to evaluate the town's computer system.

Video games at Depot

Nov. 2 selectmen approved installation of a video game and pinball machine at the Teen Depot and waived the permit fee of $25 per machine.

Selectmen Rocco F. Laugelle voted against allowing installation of the machines, which take quarters, because he said teenagers would spend whatever money they have on them.

Mooring fines rock Laugelle . . .

mooring; and those on the waiting list must reaffirm their position by April 1 or they are removed from the list.

The town's tough by-law has resulted in a flood of appeals before the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP). Of the 18 mooring appeals cases before the DEP, 14 are from Cohasset.

The appeals cases at some point involve town counsel, who is paid $75 an hour.

Laugelle also disputed that the fines would pay for additional paper work required in sending out warning letters by certified mail.

"That's going overboard. The harbormaster is there working, it's not going to cost us any more money expect for paper.

"I think it's high," he said.

The harbor committee proposed the by-law change at the suggestion of the DEP. Harbor Committee Chairman John "Fritz" Pfaffman tried to make the rationale clear.

"In 1988, 18 people did not pay on time and eight appealed and that continues to happen," he said.

In an interview in September, Pfaffman said the state would look more favorably on the new by-law and rule in favor of the town if anyone does appeal — so the change would be in the town's best interest.

Selectmen unanimously voted to recommend town meeting pass the new by-law which does not state the amount of the fees to allow for flexibility. That way the actual by-law doesn't have to change if the fees do, Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke said.

But selectmen must disclose the fees they propose at town meeting.

The board took the matter of fees under advisement and will decide on what fees to recommend at their board meeting just before the special town meeting Monday.

Last spring, selectmen authorized a change in harbor regulations giving the harbormaster the right to reassign moorings conditionally pending the outcome of an appeal. In the past, the town allowed the mooring holder to keep the mooring through the appeals process.

There are about 300 people on the mooring waiting list. Cohasset Harbor has 302 moorings in service, 40 of which are for commercial vessels.

Medicare to be billed directly

There's good news for Medicare recipients.

The town will bill the program directly for ambulance runs and EMT services.

Fire Chief John Nadeau gave selectmen the good news Monday. Effective Oct. 28, Medicare changed its reimbursement structure to to approve up to $190 on the base rate of an ambulance run and pay 80 percent of the approved amount.

"My recommendation is to continue first party billing except to Medicare," Nadeau said.

Under the previous reimbursement percentage, the town stood to lose $35 if it accepted assignment for Medicare eligible users, Nadeau said.

At last week's selectmen's meeting Joe Buckley and Eleanor Smith of the Council on Aging said billing seniors directly might be confusing if they had to file claims.

In a letter following that meeting, Buckley said he felt so strongly that the town accept Medicare assignments that he volunteered his time to help file any secondary claims that might arise.

"I think accepting assignments is the best way and if the town accepts assignments for seniors, I will volunteer to work with the chief and his staff to do the third party billing," he wrote.

Many seniors hold insurance to cover the 20 percent that Medicare does not pay.

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke praised Buckley's volunteer spirit.

"I must say he's an extremely generous citizen," she said.

Children's Ballet Workshop celebrates 20 years

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Concentration, determination, hard work along with a good dose of natural athleticism — are any coach's dream in a player.

But what you may not realize is — the same qualities are required in the sport of classical ballet.

"Dancers are athletes," says Nan Cogswell Keating, founder and director of the Children's Ballet Workshop in Hingham.

The workshop — in its 20th season — is the only professional ballet school on the South Shore.

And while it offers a strict curriculum for the serious student — the workshop is open to all who want to study ballet.

"There's a place for everyone," Keating says. "We don't refuse anyone admission to the school."

About 400 students from pre-school aged through 18 years are enrolled in the workshop, which draws from across the South Shore and Cape Cod.

Keating says there is open enrollment for the rhythm-and-movement classes through primary level.

But students must audition for Level 1 and up before placement in a class.

"It is all done according to one's strength and weaknesses and physical facility, which is the ability to do ballet," Keating explains. "Someone may not have the (needed) rotation in the hip to study at the pre-professional level but may still love to dance.

"We place them according to their physical ability or potential," she adds. "But we don't place a student in the top level without careful consideration. We don't want a child to be unsuccessful."

The top students can become part of the Children's Repertory Ballet Company, the non-profit performing ballet company affiliated with the workshop. The company is made up of the 17 most advanced students at the school who are likely to follow the professional track.

Dancers in the company take ballet six days a week and study even more intensely over the summer.

Cost is directly related to commitment.

By age 12, a serious student is studying ballet every day; and with additional training at a ballet camp in the summer months, expenses rival those of figure skater, running as high as $5,000 a year.

Keating adds that about 50 percent of the dancers at the top level are on some form of scholarship.

But the long hours and demanding schedule can pay off.

With daily lessons that often go until 8 p.m., dancers learn to become more organized in their school work.

Good grades coupled with the intense training can lead to a college scholarship in dance. Many colleges today have their own reputable dance companies.

Although dance studios are burgeoning on the South Shore, the Children's Ballet Workshop offers a key difference.

Teachers at the workshop all have professional backgrounds. And there is no tap or jazz taught – the focus is on ballet, Keating says.

"We train (the dancers) in a curriculum.

"When an athlete runs around a corner, (he or she) runs a certain way — it's the same with a dancer.

"Ballet is the foundation of all dance, where the body is trained to look like a dancer," she adds.

Dancers at the workshop also conform to a stringent dress code. The girls put their hair in a bun and all wear the same type of leotards.

"There no hair in the face; no distractions for either the student or teacher," says Keating, who is a former member of the American Ballet Theatre Company.

Unemployment is down

In September, unemployment numbers in Cohasset were down from the previous month.

According to figures from the state Department of Employment and Training, Cohasset's unemployment rate in September was 4.8 percent, a drop from the August rate of 5.7 percent.

In Cohasset, 174 residents received unemployment benefits from a total labor force of 3,635.

Meanwhile, the state's employment picture appeared brighter with the rate dropping to 8.4 percent in October from the September rate of 8.6 percent.

Unemployment figures for municipalities lag a month behind the state numbers.

According to state Employment and Training Commissioner Nils L. Nordberg, "In spite of layoffs in some large companies, there still appears to be hiring activity in small to medium size companies, absorbing many unemployed workers."

The invitations are in the mail! The Friends of the Cohasset Library would like you to become a Friend. Next week, every resident of Cohasset receives an invitation to become a Friend of the Cohasset Library. For the past 24 years the Friends of the Cohasset Library has provided many services to the library. Each week, the library benefits from the volunteer services of an ever-growing number of Friends. Volunteers at the library (valued in excess of $30,000 annually) help the library provide you with better services. Friends' financial support helps to purchase books, to sponsor programs which enhance the reading skills of children, and to purchase family passes to the Aquarium, the Museum of Science, the Museum of Fine Arts, and the Children's Museum.

Make a difference

In 1992, the Friends developed, at no cost, a professional logo for use on stationery, the new book bags, the "Library Corner" column in the Cohasset Mariner, and, most dramatically, the new library user card. This card provides access through the Old Colony Library Network to 21 libraries and more than 1.5 million library items.

❑ Madeline and Chuck Olney and children Chris and Margaret have moved to North Edgecomb, Maine, (it's near Boothbay), where they live in a lovely large house and have a great barn.

Visitors from Cohasset have included Heidi and Ken Maitland and their family, Ruth and Ken Wilcox with their family, and Sally and Ed Atkinson.

What a great spot to visit (or live). We'll bet more Cohassetites will get up there with the ski season fast approaching.

Cohasset's Laurie Bronstein is a first-year student at Colby College.

❑ Laurie B. Bronstein, a first-year student at Colby College in Waterville, Maine, started her college career with an adventure in the great Maine outdoors on a Colby Outdoor Orientation Trips (COOT). The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barry M. Bronstein, Laurie spent four days exploring Maine on the home community service trip.

More than 95 percent of all new students joined in Colby's unique orientation program this year, a Colby record that the college believes may be the highest level of participation for such programs at any campus in the nation. COOT was designed to give students an opportunity to explore the breathtaking state in which they will attend college and get to know a few other students in a relaxed atmosphere.

❑ The Cohasset Community Center Gymnastics Program extends a gracious thank you to "Victoria's Cohasset" for donating pizzas to the "Center's Girls' Night Out."

Gina Brown should be applauded for giving up her Friday night and volunteering to help with the event. The gymnastic staff surely thanks you!

Some of the boutiques are fine jewelry, clothing, antiques, plants, baked goods, etc. There are going to be 30 tables in all. What a grand idea, and what fun!

The hours are as follows: The 12th, 1 to 5 p.m., the 13th, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and the 14th, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

When you go, be sure to congratulate Jane and remember all of her efforts!

❑ There's a new plumbing business in town, "Cohasset Plumbing and Heating." Congratulations and all the best to Howie Mekler for taking the plunge (couldn't resist!)! Friends and customers have been urging Howie to go out on his own for years. We wish him great success!

❑ Don't forget that this Saturday, Nov. 14, is the annual Chamber of Commerce Auction at the Community Center. The free beans and franks dinner starts at 6:30 p.m. (you can also preview the items to be auctioned at that time), the auction starts at 7:30 p.m. Once again the auction is on Cable Channel 3, which enables you to take part in the auction by phone. There are lots of bargains and the proceeds will be divided equally among three community groups: The VFW, The Cohasset Lightkeepers Corporation and the Council on Aging.

So, it isn't just the Chamber that benefits, its almost everyone! Be sure to support it.

❑ This weekend is also the time for the Cohasset Dramatic Club's production of "Wait Until Dark," Nov. 13 and 14 at 8 p.m., at the Cohasset Town Hall. If you hold tickets dated Oct. 23 and 24, they will be honored (the show had to be postponed due to the lead paint problem that occurred in the town hall last month).

Former Cohasseters Madeline and Chuck Olney and kids, Chris and Margaret, pose in front of their lovely, large house in Edgecomb, Maine.

Everyone who went to the first show loved it! Tickets are $8 and may be bought at the door or reserved by calling Lynn Eisenhauer at 446-6601.

❑ All of Michelle LeMar's hard work has certainly paid off. She was chosen Student of the Month at CHS. You can imagine how thrilled Michelle must be; there are a lot of students to choose from and she tops the list for the month of September.

❑ Another hard-working CHS student deserves applause this week, and that's Katie O'Sullivan. Katie received the Superintendent's Award for the senior class member with the highest cumulative average.

Be proud of yourself, Katie, and keep up the good work.

❑ Many people are shocked at the hard time Leo's Exxon is having getting a permit to beautify it some more. It's the same station that has won awards for being one of the best looking in the state, and they want to upgrade it further. What seems to be the problem, they wonder? Well, here's to you, Fiori men; keep on fighting and know that we all appreciate you and your efforts.

❑ That's all of the news for this week. Don't forget to let us know any news from your house!

❑ Before we end though, a bit of news about a Scituate resident that most of Cohasset knows...Ralph Roberts, former greenskeeper at Hatherly Country Club, and Scituate High's staunchest fan, was injured at last week's Scituate football game. Just to let you know, Ralph, we are all thinking of you and hope your injury wasn't too severe.

❑ Norbert Reardon underwent hip-replacement surgery last week, and we sure hope he is feeling better as he reads this. One thing we know that helped, finding out that his daughter Emily was chosen to take part in the Nationals (the NCAA National Collegiate Rolex Tennis Tournament) held this month in Philadelphia. If pride in one's off-spring can heal pain, Norbert will be doing sprints in no time!

Congratulations, Em, you must really be enjoying your sophomore year at Fairfield.

❑ John Kuntz, son of Dennis and Midge Kuntz, has won himself a supporting role in a comedy-drama, "Waiting for Gaudet." He is busy at rehearsals now readying for a January opening. This is all part of the Boston Center for the Performing Arts. We hope to get more news as January approaches.

❑ CHS news flash: the yearbook is on sale now through Thanksgiving. The price is $35; checks can be made payable to Cohasset High school yearbook. The committee appreciates the ads that have come in and hopes for more support through sales.

❑ In the "oops department"...two weeks ago I told you all about Dr. John Zotos and his retirement from Northeastern University along with three associates...I reported that between the four gents there was 104 years total teaching time, when in fact the number should have been 135 years. Sorry, gentlemen.

Ciciotte/MacLean

At a September 12 wedding in St. Anthony's Church, Tracy Anne Ciciotte, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Ciciotte of Linden Drive, became the bride of Ian Hanson MacLean.

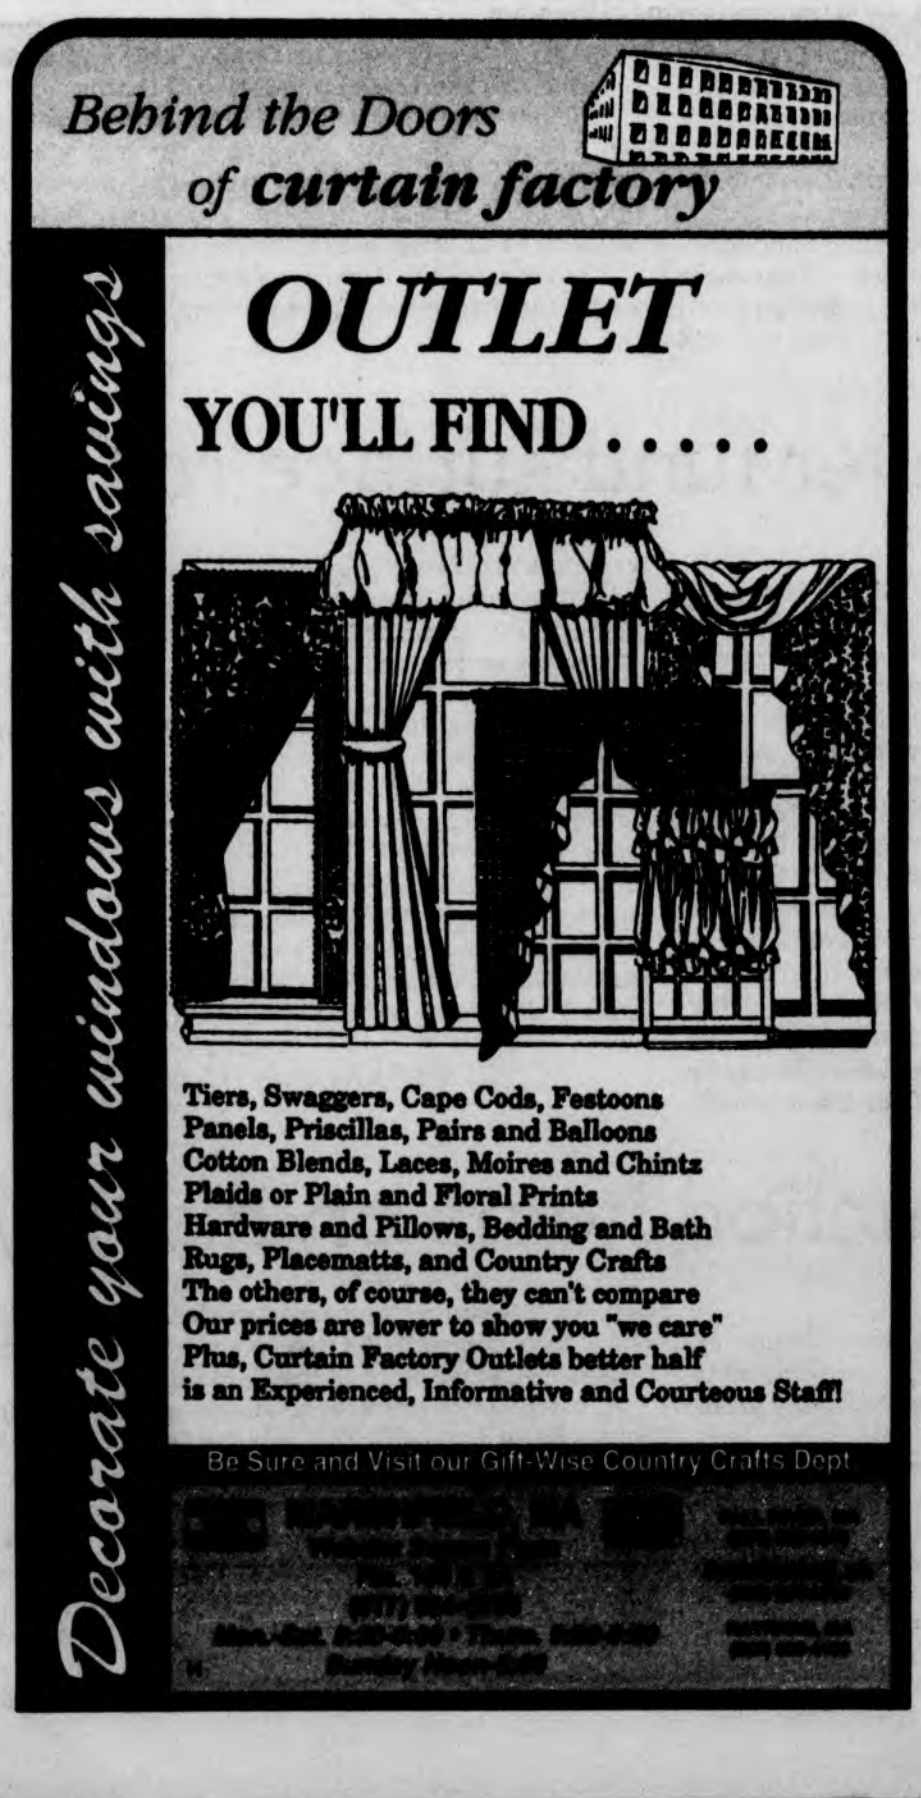
He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. MacLean of Waccabuc, New York and Wilson, Wyoming.

The Rev. John Keohane officiated. A reception followed at the Chart House.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her twin sister, Susan E. Ciciotte of Boston, as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Ellen M. Ciciotte of Boulder, Colorado, and Lee Anne Ciciotte of Cohasset, the bride's sisters; and Cathryn L. MacLean of Marion, Mass. and Elizabeth R. McCormick of Hingham.

Brother of the groom, Christopher R. MacLean of Marion served as best man. Ushers were the groom's brother, Mark W. MacLean of Waccabuc, New York; Timothy E. Kane of New York, New York; Bleecker P. Seaman of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania; and Timothy M. Stoddart of New York, New York.

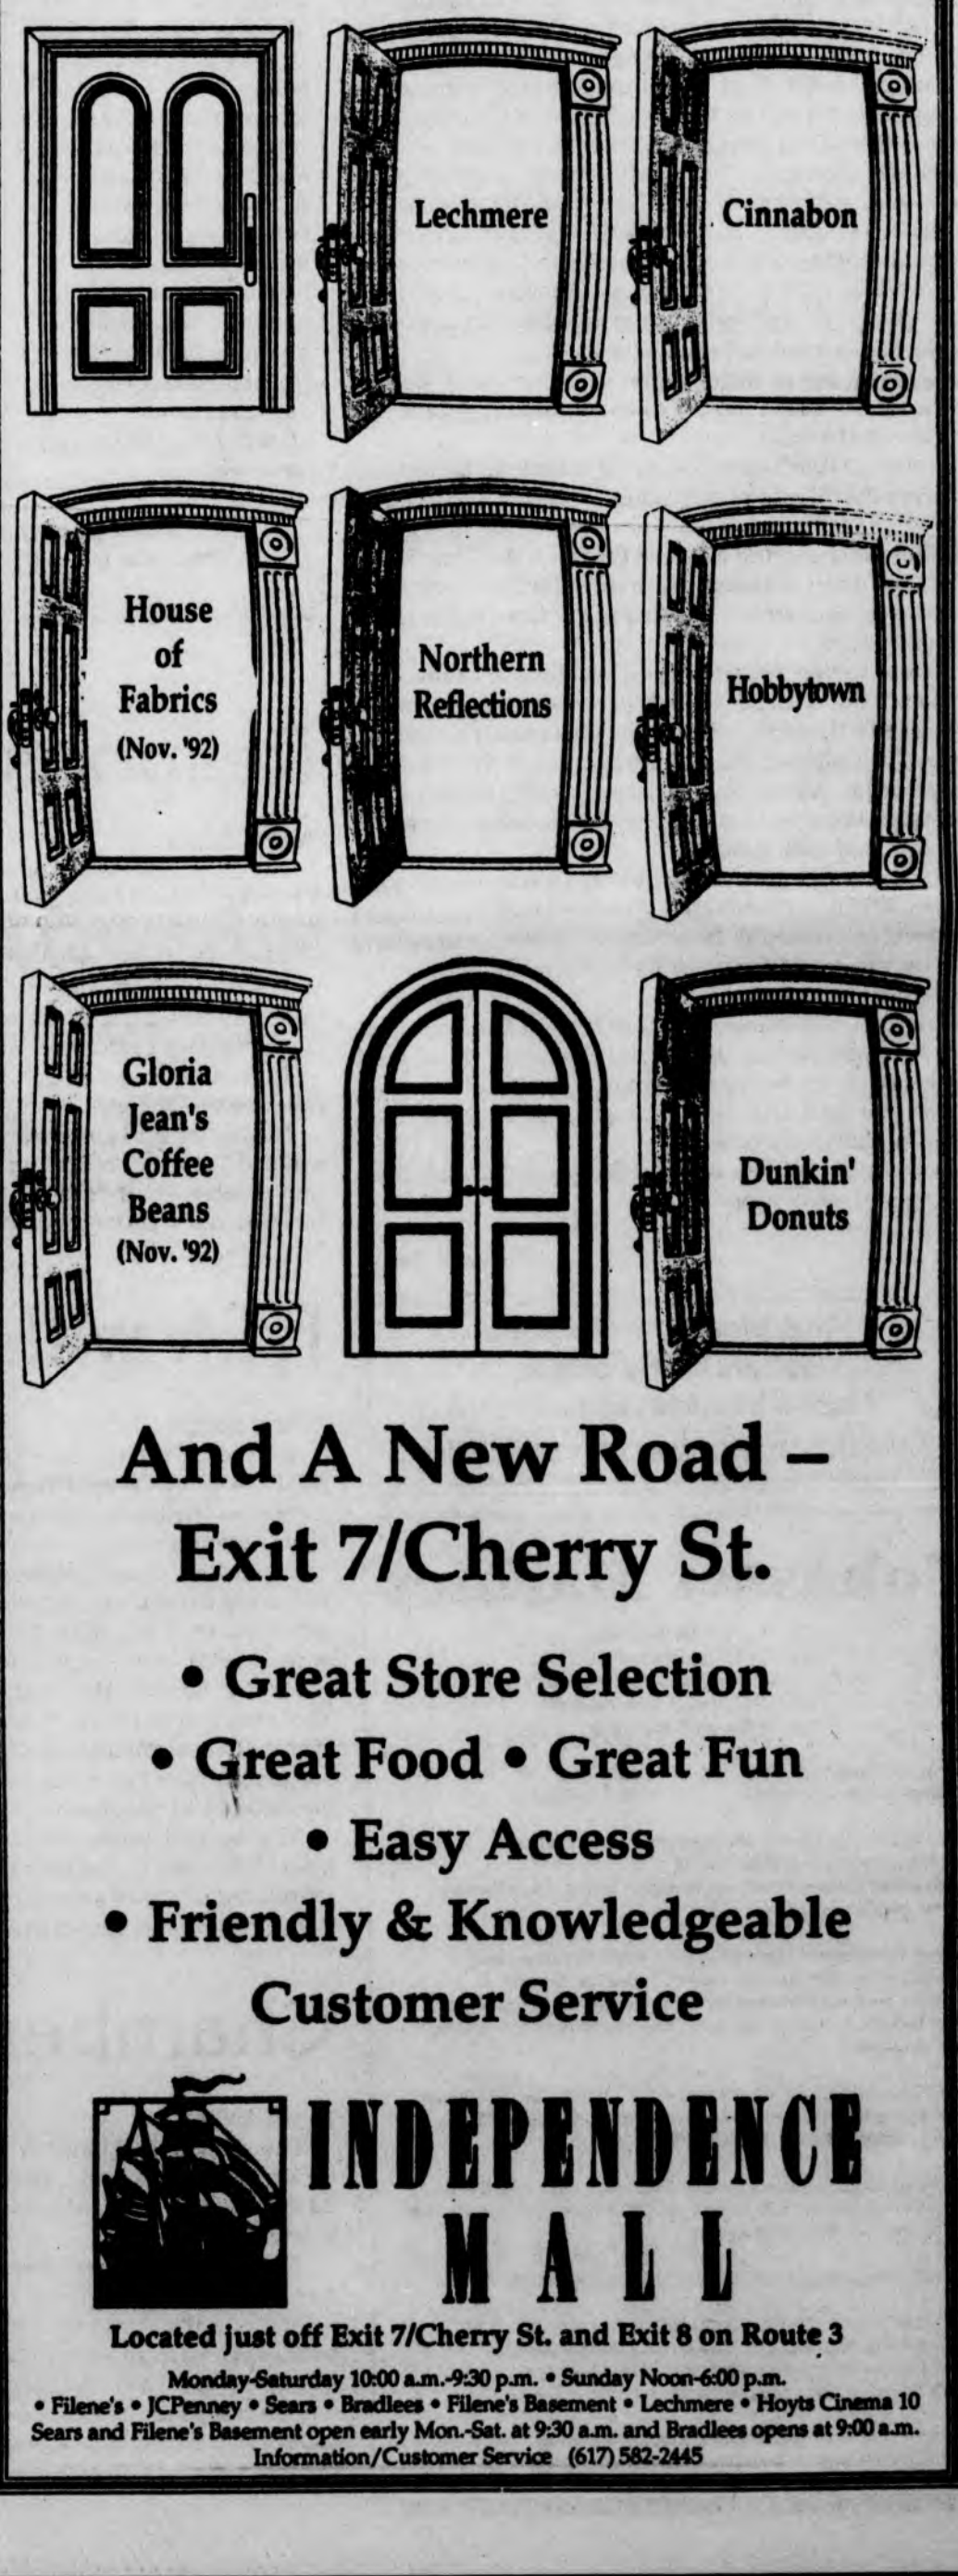
Program attendants were Lindy A. Holloway and Kelly L. Holloway.



The bride is a graduate of Cohasset High School and Green Mountain College in Poultney, Vermont. She was formerly employed as a teacher at the Deer Hill School in Cohasset.

The groom is a graduate of the University of Colorado, Boulder. He was formerly employed as an account executive with the Lufkin Group, a sports marketing company in LaJolla, California and Marion, Mass.

After a wedding trip to St. Barthelemy, FWI, and New Zealand, the couple will reside in Boulder.



Mr. and Mrs. Ian Hanson MacLean

1918

In the eleventh month, on the eleventh day, at the eleventh hour the field commanders on both sides noted in their logs: All quiet on the western front . .

Scholars tell us that the 20th century did not begin culturally until 1914 and the Great War.

In the early summer of that year, the South Shore was like most of the United States rural and peaceful—many Americans had never heard of Sarajevo, the backwater provincial capital of Bosnia in the Austro-Hungarian empire. But the assassins' bullets and bombs of Serbian nationalists exploded across the frontiers and seas, eventually crashing our shores.

It would be WW I that dragged the world into an era of near unremitting techno-horrors; established the United States as a leader of nations; and nearly erased the hope for the scientific progress of mankind.

But in 1914 that strapling among countries—America—was still growing on dreams of promise. Then memories of war ran back to the Civil War and the Spanish American War. The former ennobling the American experience and the latter the jingoist expression of adolescent militarism. WW I introduced the ultimate ugliness of unrestrained modern warfare.

Armistice Day, now known as Veteran's Day which honors all vets of all wars, was created to commemorate those who served in World War I.

All over the South Shore, Soldiers and Sailors monuments stand tribute to sons and daughters who answered the call.

In our own dark times Sarajevo is again in flames and it seems that World War II, Korea, Vietnam and the Cold War were just long horrific footnotes to that first global conflict among dying empires that was the First World War. The blind nationalism that birthed the century in blood, seems destined to usher in the third millennium with like fury.

While today, America does not face a unified adversary, we will be tested in ways unforeseen or predicted—this may yet be our civilization's eleventh hour. The Balkans, the crumbled ruins of the U.S.S.R., the Mideast, Africa, East Asia and South America will sprout challenges to our sense of purpose in the world and our national stability.

One of the great lessons of WW I's more horrifying spawn, WW II, is to stay strong in foreign affairs. Bullies are never interested in the strong—the weak or unwilling are the victims of opportunity and choice.

Yesterday, Veteran's Day, we honored America's servicemen and women of all battles in the hope that courage and justice guide our leaders, we should resolve to never be weak enough to invite attack. Nor should we lack the moral integrity to stand for the rights of man—universally.

We owe no less to the memories of the fallen and those who served with honor.

—Richard Small

Responsible duck hunting needed

To the Editor:

Sea duck shooters need to learn responsible hunting! Years ago I used to do a lot of scoter shooting—back in the days when shooting from a motor boat was not allowed. Hunters prevailed upon the State Division of Fisheries and Wildlife to rescind this law as they probably thought it would encourage hunters to retrieve their crippled birds more easily.

It does not seem to be working out that way. Or do hunters really care?

Soon after the hunting season starts, bays and inlets around Cohasset collect a ragged bunch of Elder duck and scoters—half dead—that are able to dive and feed but not, nor will they ever, be able to fly. What is a wild bird if it can't fly?

letters

So far this year because of poor weekend weather hunting has been down. Until Nov. 7 that is.

The next day three crippled birds have made it into Little Harbor, Cohasset to sit on rocks and wait their fate—a slow death by starvation and exposure—some may make it until March. Other years there have been as many as 12 cripples in Little Harbor during winters.

Come on, fellers, if you are going to shoot sea ducks, spend the little extra time and complete the job.

FTA will never fund surface rail

To the Editor:

As recent events have made manifestly clear, the MBTA and the Federal Transportation Administration have shot themselves in the foot, not once, but twice in their determination to revive the Greenbush rail line.

First, they chose deliberately to ignore Federal law requiring careful examination of prudent and feasible alternatives to running the line along its old right-of-way, which now happens to bisect the Federally protected Lincoln National Register Historic District. This resulted in the decision to go ahead with only the Plymouth and Middleborough lines of the Old Colony rail project. The Federal government would not approve Greenbush as proposed without study of alternatives.

The second bullet went right to the heart of the matter, but not in the way the MBTA anticipated. The mandated study of alternatives established decisively that a rail tunnel under the Town of Hingham is both feasible and patently prudent in that it would eliminate most if not all of the serious drawbacks to the original at-grade proposal. The only really relevant issue at this juncture was cost.

So now it is back to square one with the recent Scoping meeting in Cohasset on Oct. 15 for a whole new look at a range of transit improvements for the Greenbush Corridor (as it is now officially called). Let us hope that this new effort does not end up as a third and potentially fatal shot to the hopes of all Greenbush towns and commuters for cost effective public transit improvements. The MBTA should speak the truth to local residents: an at-grade diesel rail line through the Lincoln National Register Historic District will never be funded by the Federal Transportation Administration.

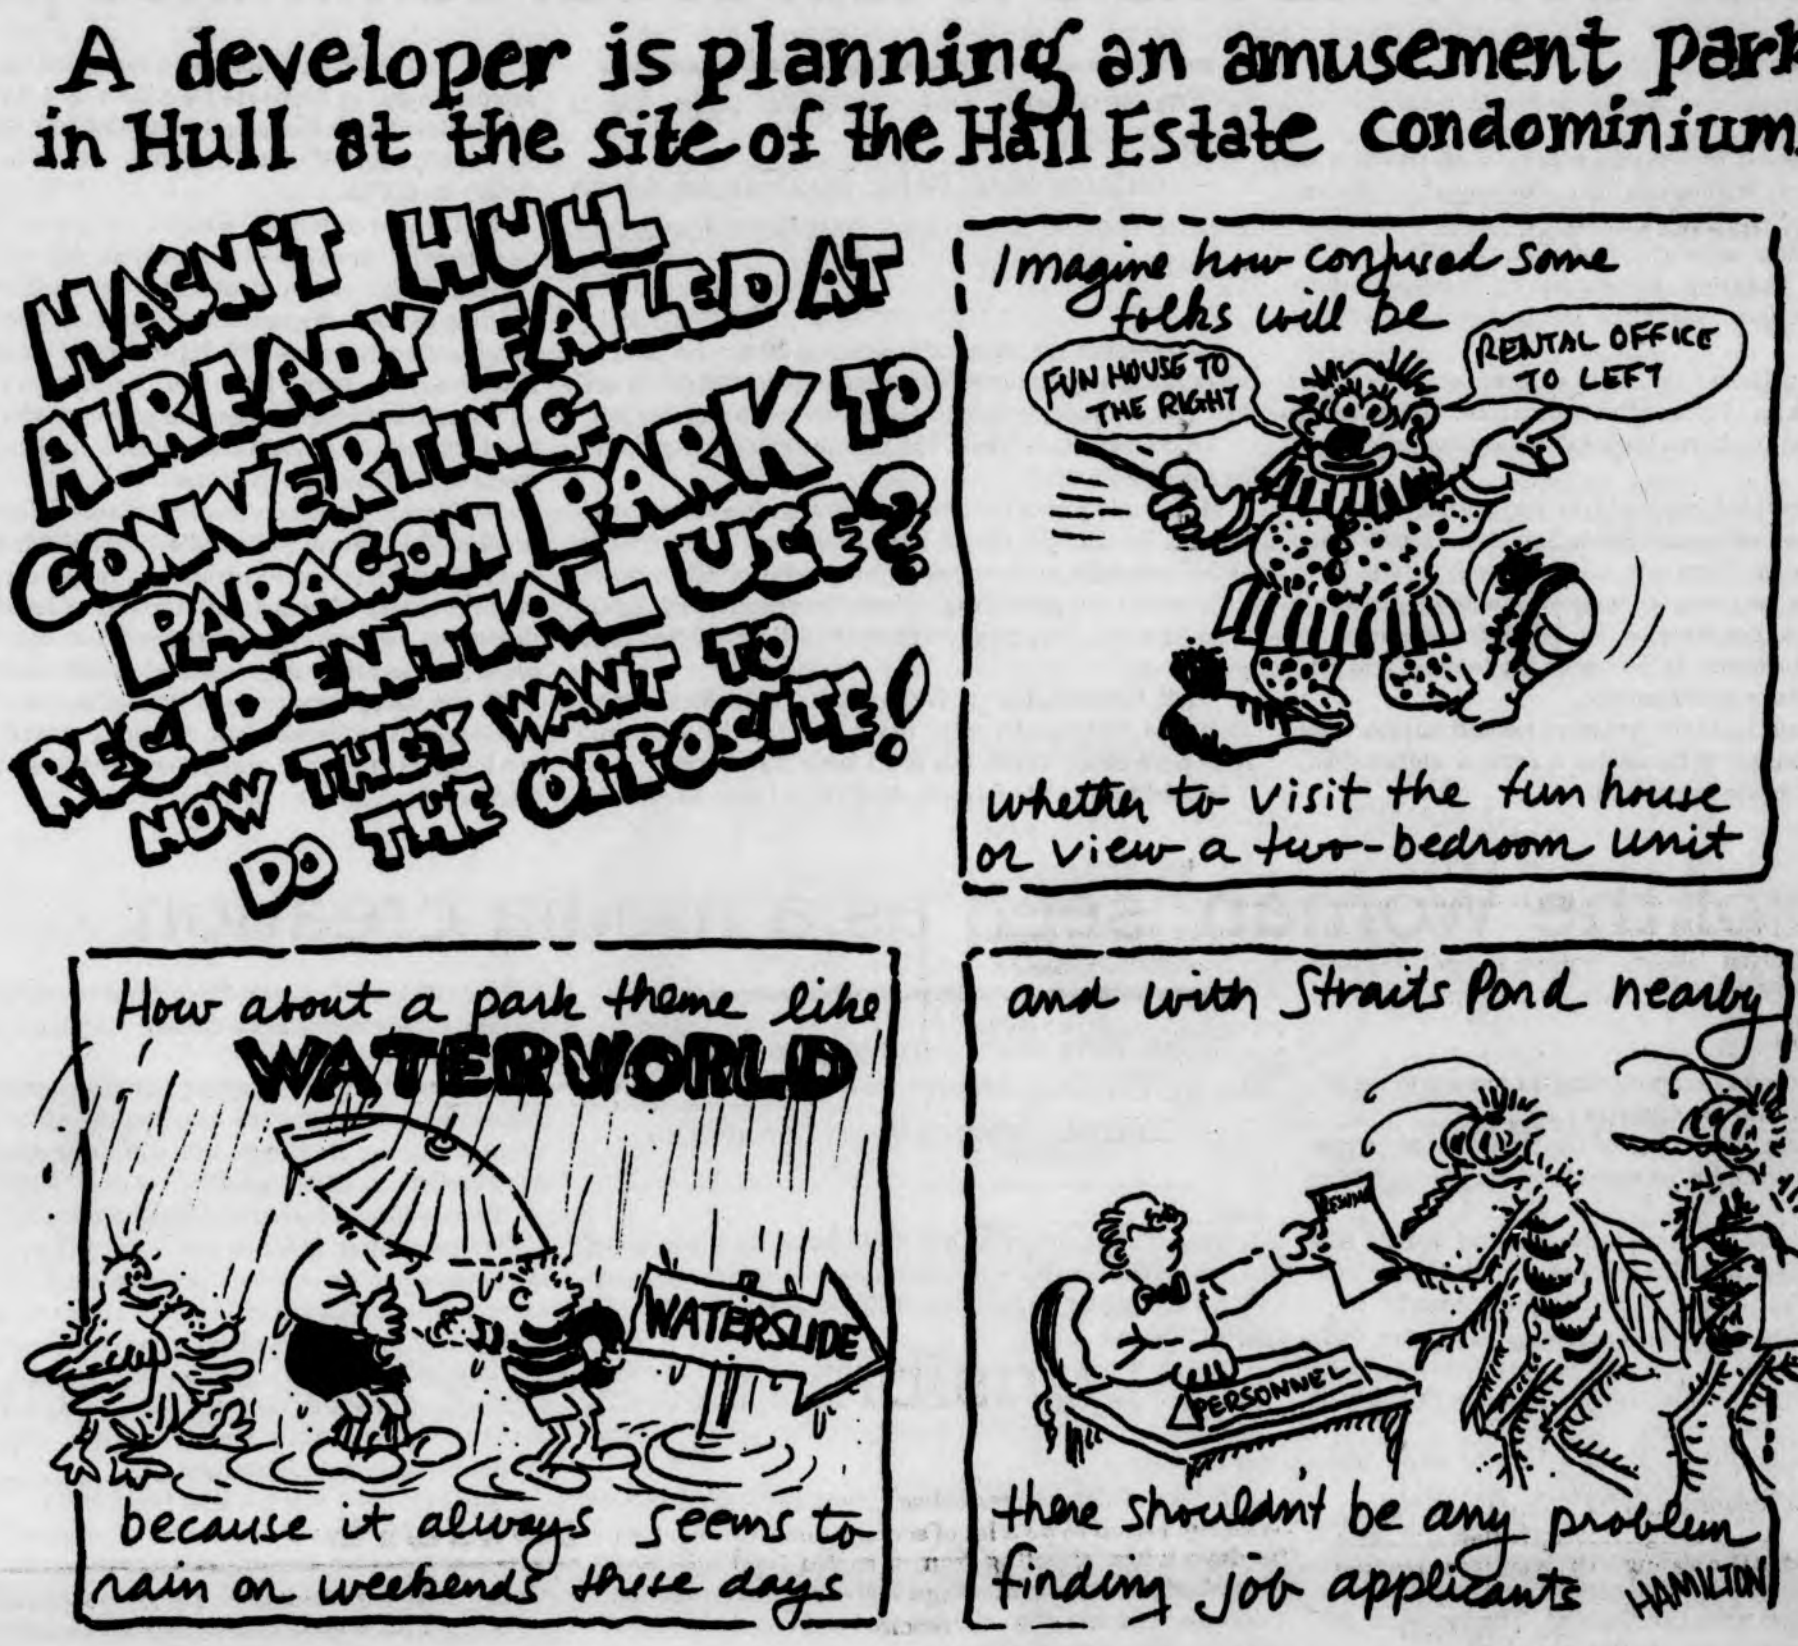
Chamber auction items on display

To the Editor:

The Cohasset Chamber of Commerce thanks all those businesses and individuals who contributed to its Community Auction to be held this Saturday at the Community Center.



The free franks and beans dinner begins at 6:30 p.m., followed promptly at 7:30 p.m. by the auction.

Some of the items up for bid include autographed hockey sticks from Bruins Cam Neely, Ray Bourke and Adam Oates; an autographed Patriots football; memberships to the Cohasset Swim Center; and adult sailing lessons from the Cohasset Sailing Club. Some of the more than 100 items available will be on display at Goodale Insurance Company until Saturday morning, and a more complete list can be seen there and at the Council on Aging office at the Community Center.

A complete preview is available during the free dinner Saturday night. The public is invited to attend, and further info is available by calling the Chamber at 383-1010 or Keith or Paula Knowles at 383-1331.

Sixty percent of the proceeds of this year's auction will be donated to the Council on Aging, the Cohasset Lightkeepers Corp. and the Cohasset V.F.W.

Sincerely,
Keith Knowles, Chairman
Chamber Community Auction

Beacon Hill Roll Call

Senator Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth) 722-1646 Room 416B

Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Cohasset) 723-2800 ext.7957 Room 134

QUESTIONS

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. The House and Senate met only in brief, informal sessions last week and there were no roll call votes. Formal sessions and roll call votes are expected to resume in a week or two.

Last week's election results have altered the balance of power on Beacon Hill and left the Senate with only nine Republicans. The GOP lost six of their 15 seats which means Governor Weld no longer has enough Republican senators to sustain a veto. The Senate has overridden 38 of 44 vetoes since Weld became governor. However, the Senate leadership acknowledges that some Weld vetoes, including proposals to change Proposition 2 1/2 and raise taxes, were never brought to the floor because the Democrats lacked the two-thirds majority to override.

The 160-member House will have 31 new members in January. The current House membership includes 116 Democrats, 36 Republicans, one unenrolled and seven vacancies. The new House in January will include 124 Democrats, 35 Republicans and one unenrolled.

At a press conference following the election, Governor Weld said he hopes the legislature does not look at the results as an invitation to push through tax hikes and excessive spending in 1993. In response, House Speaker Charles Flaherty said Democrats are also fiscally responsible but will continue to push for their agenda including some changes in Proposition 2 1/2. He indicated some of these changes may be included in an education reform bill which will be addressed before the end of the year.

This week, "Beacon Hill Roll Call" reviews local legislators' votes on proposed changes in Proposition 2 1/2 during the 1991 and 1992 session. While none of the changes were signed into law, the new makeup of the legislature leaves passage of these proposals and override of an expected Weld veto a possibility in 1993.

AUTO EXCISE TAX (H5600)—In 1991, the House 114-39, Senate 25-10 rejected an amendment striking a budget section allowing voters in local communities to double the auto excise tax from $25 to $50 per $1,000 of valuation. Proposition 2-1/2 reduced this tax from $66 per $1,000. Amendment supporters said this is another tax hike which will hurt taxpayers and the car industry. Opponents said this is a local option to allow communities to raise money for necessary services. Although there seemed to be enough votes to override a veto, the provision was later dropped from the final budget. The hike was not included in this year's budget. If the proposed hike is revived in 1993, there may well be enough votes to override an expected veto. (A "Yea" vote is against allowing communities to raise the tax. A "Nay" vote is for allowing communities to raise the tax).	Y	Y
OVERLAY (H 5600)—In 1992, the House 82-68, (no Senate roll call) rejected an amendment striking a budget section providing that all cities and towns exempt their overlay accounts from the limits of Proposition 2-1/2. Overlay accounts include funds set aside for tax rebates and abatements. Amendment supporters said this exemption is an assault on Prop 2-1/2 and is simply a $140 million property tax increase. Opponents said this change will help cash-starved cities and towns maintain services and argued it is a long overdue change in a law which is too stringent. They noted the local appropriating authority will still decide whether to appropriate the money. The exemption was included in this year's final budget and was vetoed by Governor Weld. The legislature has not yet acted on the veto. The 68 votes in the House against the exemption combined with the current makeup of the Senate seem to indicate the legislature does not have enough votes to override this year. The fate of the proposal next year is difficult to predict. (A "Yea" vote is against exempting overlay accounts. A "Nay" vote is for exempting overlay accounts).		Y
INFLATION INCREASE (H 5252)—In 1991, the House 109-47, (no Senate roll call) rejected an amendment striking a provision allowing communities, if approved by voters, to adopt a system which allows annual increases in property tax levies at a rate equal to inflation, up to five percent. Amendment supporters said this section begins to dismantle Prop 2-1/2 and will hurt homeowners. They noted current law already provides for a reasonable override of Prop 2-1/2. Some said they would support this increase mechanism if it included a provision allowing voters to lower property below the 2.5 percent cap. Opponents said the section still gives voters final control but offers them new tools to go beyond the outdated and arbitrary constraints in order to face new fiscal realities. The "inflation increase" provision was not included in last year's final budget, but was included, without a roll call vote, in this year's final budget. It was vetoed by Governor Weld and the legislature has not yet acted on the veto which would likely be sustained in the Senate. There may well be enough votes next year to override a veto. (A "Yea" vote is against the amendment allowing increases up to 5 percent. A "Nay" vote is for allowing increases up to 5 percent).		Y

Senator-elect McDonald to talk about committee posts

By Tom Henshaw
Mariner staff

Sen.-elect Brian McDonald plans to sit down with Senate President William Bulger Monday at 9:30 a.m. to discuss what committee assignments are available for the brand new legislator from Weymouth.

"I'd like the Taxation, Education or Transportation Committee," he said, "but I'll be happy to take anything I can get."

McDonald, a Democrat, was elected state senator from the Norfolk and Plymouth District Nov. 3, displacing Republican Sen. Robert Hedlund, who was seeking a second term.

The 39-year-old McDonald is no stranger to the Senate, having served as an aide to Sen. Allan McKinnon, also of Weymouth, from late 1978 to early 1981.

Nevertheless, he joins other newly elected legislators this week at a conference at Williams College in Williamstown to listen to lectures on issues and the mechanics of state government.

McDonald said he is not yet sure he will support the controversial Bulger if he seeks a record eighth two-year term as Senate president.

'I'm certainly not going to vote for a Republican.'

—Senator-elect Brian McDonald, when asked whom he might support for state senate president

"It depends on who runs against him," he said. "I never make up my until I know who the candidates are. Whoever I vote for will have to be able to do a better job."

"Of course," he added, "I'm certainly not going to vote for a Republican."

McDonald prevailed over Hedlund in the seven-town district by 38,750 to 37,158, including a 14,959 to 11,330 margin in their joint hometown of Weymouth.

"It was very gratifying to win Weymouth by 3,600 votes," he said, "especially with four of the five Selectmen against us."

"I felt comfortable in Weymouth," said McDonald. "Bob had Weymouth after his name but he has only lived here since 1989. I've lived here 39 years."

In addition to Weymouth, McDonald won in Hull by 3,152 to 1,960; in Marshfield by 6,061 to 4,819; and, surprisingly, in Scituate by 5,043 to 4,887.

Hedlund took Cohasset by 2,324 to 1,819; Duxbury by 4,837 to 2,957; and Hingham, where he grew up, by 7,001 to 4,759.

McDonald called Marshfield "a big win," and Scituate "a nice win, even just to have won it."

"Duxbury was a problem," he said. "We got the mailing list on a disc and it was a mess. We were unable to address envelopes which prevented us from mailing. If we had, we would have cut the loss in half."

He attributed the large margin of loss in Hingham to the fact that the town "tends to be Republican and then there's the Greenbush issue."

McDonald favors restoration of commuter rail service on the Old Colony Railroad's Greenbush line.

Hedlund, the first Republican to represent the district in more than 20 years, attributed at least part of his defeat to the strong sentiment for the Democratic presidential and congressional candidates.

"I got swept away in a tsunami," said Hedlund, comparing the Democratic sweep to a tidal wave. "This is a Democratic state and a Democratic district and the Democrats came to the vote."

'Year of the Woman' seen as a media creation

By Tom Henshaw
Mariner staff

Several months of campaigning for the state senate confirmed one thing for Chartis Langmaid.

The much-heralded "Year of the Woman" is largely the creation of a media in search of an eye-catching phrase.

"The media tend to want a five-second sound bite description," she said in an interview. "Was there ever going to be a "Year of the Burly, Balding Man?"

Langmaid, who is from Cohasset, said she feels gender played little or no role in her loss to Brian McDonald of Weymouth in the Democratic primary in her first try for public office.

"The more significant things in my race were geography and political connections," she said.

"I raised more money than the other candidates combined. But money is not the most important thing.

"Brian was supported by an existing political network of Allan McKinnon and Bill Golden. The network felt obligated to him for what he did in the past.

"Brian deserved their support. Women lack that old boy network of support. I was supported on an individual basis.

'Was there ever going to be a Year of the Burly, Balding Man?'

— Chartis Langmaid on the media.

"And it's important to live in Weymouth. If you want to run on the South Shore you have to move to the town with the biggest population. Bill Golden did it. So did Bob Hedlund.

"Brian being a hometown boy helped him. The fact that he had been a selectman might have been a detriment but there is a loyalty to the people in the community.

"A lot of people in Weymouth may have gone out to vote in the Harold-Studds race. They didn't know anything about the other races. They said: 'Here is somebody from Weymouth. I'll give him my vote.'"

Rather than a year of the woman, Langmaid prefers the phrase "a year of change."

"Some women will be elected as part of that change," she said.

"I'm not convinced that women my age (51) see public office as a career. They tend to participate more on issues. My experience came from years and years of working on issues.

"Ultimately, more women will see politics as a good career. Women in the 20s and 30s are now into careers. Women my age had to go in a different direction when we were in our 20s and 30s.

"People like me are not being replicated.

"When women start to win — and they will — it will be because more women are running. There will be more women who see politics as an interesting career path. They are not involved in advocacy groups."

Langmaid recalled that on the Sunday before the primary, Claudine Schneider, former Republican congresswoman from Rhode Island, appeared at a women's brunch in Hingham.

"She told us a story," said Langmaid.

"When she was a freshman in Congress, she asked the other three women in the House why they ran. Each of them had an issue.

"Then she asked her male colleagues and their reasons ranged from "My father was a congressman" to "I served in the legislature and made a career move." None had to do with issues.

"Eventually, women will think the same way."

Mediation needed in rail dispute, Macmillan says

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Although he's been called an obstructionist, Alexander Macmillan wants to come to the table over the proposed restoration of the Greenbush Line of the Old Colony Railroad.

At the Oct. 15 scoping meeting for the supplemental environmental impact statement report in Cohasset, Macmillan said it is time to talk.

He suggested the MBTA obtain environmental mediation services.

Comments on the scope of the SEIS/R were due at the state Executive Office of Environmental Affairs Nov. 6. In his comments Macmillan, who is chairman of the Hingham Historical Commission, recommended mediation between Hingham's preservationists and those citizens who would like to see surface rail restored.

Macmillan backs the construction of a deep bore tunnel, one of several alternatives to surface rail suggested by the consultants hired by the MBTA. The deep bore tunnel would not impact Hingham's fragile downtown area, called the Lincoln National Register Historic District.

And since the lion's share of the cost of the railroad will be paid for through federal grants — under federal law — the MBTA has to investigate national register or national register eligible properties to determine if there are any protected resources ranging from the spawning ground of fish to historic properties.

Consultants hired by the MBTA determined the Fort Hill Street area, which is near the South Shore Country Club and along the Greenbush right-of-way, is eligible for nomination to the National Register and therefore is also a protected resource, Macmillan says.

"The MBTA has to do the project according to federal standards" — and its consultants determined Fort Hill Street is eligible for nomination, he says.

"I wouldn't pretend we didn't assist" in pointing the area out, Macmillan adds.

So whether the railroad area is deemed eligible for nomination, like Fort Hill Street, or is already designated as a National Register Historic District, like downtown Hingham, under federal law, planners must show there is no prudent or feasible alternative to surface rail to protect those areas.

If surface rail were to be restored, then areas in protected districts would be entitled to mitigation measures which at the very least could include air conditioners, plantings and noise walls.

So no matter how much finger pointing or shouting on both sides of the train issue takes place — the MBTA must examine alternatives.

"I still think if we can get people to focus on the fact we have a problem here and "is there a solution we can agree on?" Macmillan asks.

The EOEA has 60 days to decide on the scope of the SEIS/R.

"I hope in their decision on the scope, they'll encourage parties to consider mediation," he says.

But Macmillan isn't sure both sides are ready.

"People have to decide if they're ready to talk about peace...both sides have to understand the facts, so they can evaluate their positions.

"It does no good to say 'We'll steam roll over Hingham and flatten them.' "

Doane St. bid awarded

Construction on the Doane St. bridge could start in early December, Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said.

Selectmen awarded the job Monday to J. B. D'Allesandro, which was the low bidder at $130,221.72.

Doyon said D'Allesandro's bid and references were analyzed by the Mass. Highway Department.

This was the second go-round with bids for Doane Street.

Selectmen decided to re-bid project in October because of an irregularity in the low bid submitted.

Assoc. members needed

The conservation commission needs two associate members. Interested citizens should contact the selectmen's office in town hall, at 383-9900.

Town counsel paid

Selectmen approved payment of $4,147.50 to town counsel Richard A. Henderson for professional services for the month of October. There is $34,280 remaining in the budget for Henderson's services for fiscal year 1993, selectmen said.

Accounting clerk ok'ed

Selectmen approved the hiring of a part-time clerk for the accounting office.

At the request of town accountant, Michael Buckley, the board approved allowing the clerk's hours to be flexible ranging from 17 hours in light weeks to 24 hours in busy weeks.

The funds for a part-time clerk are in the town's FY'93 budget.

ALL NIGHT PARKING BAN

In accordance with the Town of Cohasset's Traffic Rules and Orders:

"SECTION 7. No All Night Parking. It shall be unlawful for the driver of any vehicle other than one acting in an emergency, to park said vehicle on any street for a period of time longer than one (1) hour between the hours of 2:00 A.M. and 6:00 A.M. of any day, beginning November 15th and ending March 15th, inclusive."

Osgood's mail room

In an effort to get her students to enjoy writing, Jean Free, a first-grade teacher at the Joseph Osgood School, has a "Mail Room." Right from the first day of school each child had his/her own mail slot to receive mail. Students need to stamp and date their letter then place it in the mail box. They can send a letter to another classmate, Mrs. Whitney, the principal, Mr. Leonard, the counselor, or to Mrs. Free.

The boys and girls each have a turn at being the mail person, to sort and deliver the letters. Mrs. Free says her students are excited to receive mail and want to answer the notes back right away. The Mail Room is a fun way to learn to write, she says.

Crisis Intervention talk

Nov. 5 the staffs from the Jr./Sr. High and Deer Hill Schools met at Deer Hill for a release day program. The topic was Crisis Intervention — What Can Teachers Do? The school culture theme is reaching out to the knowledge bases.

The presenters, Maryellen Pambookian and Tim Handorf, are professionals from the South Shore Mental Health Center in Hingham. They work with several school systems on this topic. Specific information on how two of those schools respond to crisis situations were evaluated. Additionally, some discussion of how a school (students, teachers, administrators) can respond to the death of a student was provided.

The format included a presentation, activities in small groups then reporting back to the large group. The small groups focused on specific crisis situations and what some "school" responses could be. Our goal for this workshop was to figure out what our needs are in this area. Further discussion of those needs and training in some areas will be ongoing throughout the year.

Inclusion talk set

The Cohasset PSO hosts an evening with Dr. Kathleen Amico, founder and director of the Learning Institute Holten Richmond Center in Danvers, who will talk on "Inclusion," at 7:30 p.m., Nov. 18 in the high school cafeteria.

Inclusion is an approach to special eduction that involves bringing the specialist to meet the needs of the child within the confines of the classroom.

See South Pacific!

Mark your calendar for the Cohasset High School All-School Musical "South Pacific," at 7 p.m., Dec. 4 and 5, and at 1:30 p.m., Dec. 6 in the high school auditorium. Ticket sales begin soon.

Please consider supporting the arts at Cohasset High School by placing an ad in the program for "South Pacific". For details, please call Sue McNamara 383-6945.

Volunteer food drive

The Cohasset High School Community Volunteer (CVS) food drive takes place Nov. 16-20. Cans of food can be dropped off at the Osgood School and the high school. The food goes to help people through Wellspring.

Over-confidence a factor in sinking Skipper kickmen

By David Wolcott
Mariner correspondent

The Cohasset High boys' soccer squad was eliminated this past week from the first-round of the state tournament as they were defeated by Abington 3-1. The team finishes the year at 14-3-1.

Keith Clark, who finished his first year as coach of the Skippers, claimed that the keys to the game included emotion and scoring opportunities that Cohasset just couldn't convert.

"Abington seemed to be a little more emotionally up than we were. This was the best game I'd seen them play this year," he said. "Also, we had some great chances in the first half that we just couldn't finish off."

As the teams squared-off on the sun-drenched field, the players could not help but have a sense of deja-vu, as the division rivals had met twice before this year, splitting the contests. The Green Wave took a 2-1 decision but Cohasset came back late in the year with a 4-1 victory.

Both teams started the tourney match cautiously, but the Skippers jumped out first when Chuck Endris took a pass from Dan Baird and drilled a shot to the right corner past Green Wave goalie Mark Williamson at 8:39 of the first-half to go ahead 1-0.

The Skippers had numerous chances to extend that lead , including assorted missiles off the posts and crossbar, but were unable to take advantage of their good fortune, which would ultimately lead to their exit from this tournament.

Abington tied the game at 1-1 when with 8:00 left in the first half Todd Yazbek converted a Jeff Williamson cross into a gravity defying vertical header while hovering two feet above the ground past the Skipper goalie.

The Green Wave took over in the second half as they clamped down on the Cohasset forwards anywhere near the offensive end and even managed to tally twice themselves to make the final score 3-1 for Abington.

Coach Clark found advantages and disadvantages to playing a team in the tournament that you had already seen twice before in the regular season. "An advantage is that you already know the entity on the other side of the field, and their is really no scouting needed," he said. "On the other hand, we might have been a little over-confident coming into this game after the way we beat them in our last game."

Gridmen win with ferocious ground attack

By David Wolcott
Mariner correspondent

The high school gridiron squad improved its record to 3-5 this week with a convincing 27-0 white-washing of the Charlestown High Townies.

Tailback Ray Jones led the way with touchdown jaunts of 16 and 10 yards, while Nate Fiore and Chris Rollandelli also hit pay-dirt for the Skippers.

Defense was a key for the Skippers as they controlled the Charlestown passing attack, and forced the Townies into repeated turnover situations. Coach Ted McDermott said that the defense, "has been getting better and better each week. This week we got a great effort from the whole squad."

McDermott had special praise for junior two-way player Brandon Devoe, who he says, "just keeps getting better and better. He plays offensive guard and outside linebacker, and this week came up with two fumble recoveries, an interception, four tackles, and three assists on special teams."

Also having outstanding two-way games for the Skippers were Jones and Rollandelli. Rollandelli carried the ball 10 times for 62 yards , while making six tackles and causing fumble on the defensive side of the game. Jones ran wild for 185 yards on 17 carries, and had three solo tackles and seven assists on defense.

Coach McDermott gave high marks to the offensive line for their performance in the victory, saying that "we controlled the line of scrimmage and that allowed us to use a basic offence and do really whatever we wanted." The Skippers rolled up 300 yards in total offense, 270 coming from the ferocious ground attack.

A large benefit from the win was that McDermott was able to play underclassmen for most of the second half, and all of the fourth quarter.

"It was very beneficial to get them some actual game experience," he said. "We have one of the smaller squads your going to see with only 120 boys in the three upper-classes, so we only dress 46 players."

Cohasset now moves on to challenge Catholic Central League power Marian (7-1-0), at home on Saturday at 1 p.m., and will try and stop their power-house running-back Peter Anspach, who is currently third in Division 6 with 14 touchdowns.

"If the intensity and effort is there for us, it should be an interesting game," McDermott said.

Girls' soccer zapped by Holliston

The CHS girls' soccer team was eliminated this week in the quarter-finals of the state soccer tourney by a 3-0 loss to an overpowering Holliston squad.

Cohasset was also eliminated from this tournament by the same squad last year, and according to head coach Kennan Startzell, "Holliston looked to be just as good as they were last year."

The Lady Skippers started off the first round of the tournament with a 2-0 win over Bishop Connolly. Sophomore Katie Carroll tallied both scores in the first half, while senior goalie Allison Ludlow took it the rest of the way to preserve the shutout and the win.

Coach Startzell was happy with the win, but saw need for an improvement from his team.

"We seemed a little rusty", said Startzell. "We had 10 days off before the game, and our passes weren't sharp. But we played well enough to win, which is what you have to do in the tournament."

Cohasset next went up against Holliston, the fourth rated team in the tournament, and had their season ended with a 3-0 defeat.

Startzell had kind words for his teams effort, but singled out senior stopper Lisa Schram for special praise after the game

"Lisa played very well against our opponents top scorer," he said. "She played a very physical game and would not allow her to control the ball."

This class will be offered for four weeks and the cost is $20. Children ages 12 months to 3-years-old are welcome. Please call the community center at 383-0088 to register.

Mom's Morning Out

The Community Center offers a Mom's Morning Out babysitting program for children all ages during the holiday season. Beginning Saturday morning, Nov. 14, and through the months of November and December, children can enjoy a morning of craft projects, storytime, indoor and outdoor play and other supervised activities. The babysitting is provided from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The children should bring a snack and their lunch. The cost is $13 per day. Pre-registration is required.

Please call the center at 383-0088 to register or for further information.

Flag, table at auction

Rep. Gerry Studds donated a 5'x8' U.S. flag, complete with certificate stating that it has flown over the U.S. Capitol in Washington, to the Chamber of Commerce Auction at the Community Center Nov. 14.

Also up for bids at the Auction is an authentic Chart House table, donated by the Chart House in Cohasset, built around a nautical chart of Oahu Island. These two donations and some of the more than 100 other gift, sports, travel, food, art and service items available Saturday night are on display in the window of Goodale Insurance Company in Cohasset Village.

Silent bids, from those unable to attend the auction, are accepted for all items until noon Saturday. Call 383-1010 or Keith Knowles at 383-1331 for details.

Gardeners to meet

Members of the Amateur Gardeners of Cohasset meet Tuesday, Nov. 17, at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Lynn Eisenhauer with Mrs. Sue Fone assisting as co-hostess.

The program, a book review on Clemetis, is presented by Connie Kurtz and Sue Fone.

Holiday bazaar set

Cohasset Knoll Nursing Facility, 1 Chief Justice Cushing Highway, hosts a holiday bazaar, Dec. 4 and 5 from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Raffle table, handcrafted sale table, baked goods table, and white elephant table are featured.

Proceeds from the Holiday Bazaar benefit Residents Council Fund.

Everyone is invited!

Sign up for trips

Having traveled in past years to Presque Isle, Maine (1988); Hindman, Kentucky (1989); Orland, Maine (1990), Iaeger, West Virginia (1991) and Rogersville, Tennessee (1992), the ASP Group (Appalachia Service Project) will soon be hard at work preparing for their summer 1993 trip.

Any Cohasset teenager or adult interested in traveling to Appalachia next summer should attend the orientation meeting Sunday, Nov. 15, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the Second Congregational Church (spaces on the trip are limited - those attending this meeting will receive first priority).

And, financial support is needed! Two fund-raisers currently under way are a "Servant-For-Hire," where members of the group offer their services (raking leaves, babysitting, pet care, etc.) in exchange for a donation to the project; and coming just in time for Thanksgiving are homemade pies (pumpkin, apple and pecan). Servants and/or pies can be ordered by calling project coordinator Gary Ritts at 383-0345. Coming in January — a Super-Sub sale, just in time for Super Bowl Sunday!

Learn to skate

Any resident aged five through adult who may be interested in ice skating lessons, to be offered at the MDC Skating Rink in Weymouth, may call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791 for further details.

Lessons are taught by Bay State Ice Skating School instructors at the Weymouth Rink, for both children and adults as follows: Sundays at 5 p.m. beginning Nov. 15; Tuesdays at 6 p.m. beginning Nov. 17.

Each class is 50 minutes in duration, meeting for a seven-week session. The fee for the children's program is $59 and the adult program is $70. Fees also cover the cost of rink admission.

Registrations will be held at the Weymouth MDC Rink as follows: Sunday classes: register at noon, Nov. 8. Tuesday classes: register at 6 p.m. Nov. 10.

Re-play Nov. 13-14

Cohasset Dramatic Club provides thrills and suspense — again — with continuation of its production of Frederick Knott's "Wait Until Dark!" Nov. 13-14, at 8 p.m., at Cohasset Town Hall.

Tickets for October 23-24 shows will be honored for the Nov. 13-14 performances. All tickets are $8 and may be bought at the door or reserved by calling Lynn Eisenhauer at 446-6601.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage given by Philip H. Smith, Trustee of Main Street Trust, under Declaration of Trust dated July 22, 1986 and filed with Norfolk County Registry District of the Land Court as Document No. 501549 on Certificate of Title No. 124575, of 103 Ripley Road, Cohasset, Norfolk County, Massachusetts 02025 to COHASSET SAVINGS BANK, 13 Elm Street, Cohasset, Norfolk County, Massachusetts 02025, dated April 6, 1988, and recorded in the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds Book 7926, Page 537, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing, the same will be sold at public auction on December 2, 1992 at 10:00 A.M. on the premises, all and singular the premises, described in said mortgage as follows:

PARCEL 1:

A certain parcel of land, with the building thereon, situated in Cohasset, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, shown as Lot A on a plan entitled "Subdivision Plan of Land in Cohasset, Mass., made for E. Clayton Hyland and Sumner McGaw," dated September 28, 1954 by Lewis W. Perkins & Son, Engrs., Hingham, Mass., said plan being duly recorded with Norfolk Deeds in Book 3309, Page 99, and more particularly bounded and described as follows:

NORTHEASTERLY: by Ripley Road, as shown on said plan, 50.73 feet;

SOUTHEASTERLY: by Lot B as shown on said plan, 39.13 feet;

SOUTHWESTERLY: by land of William E. Poland and Irwin M. Golden, as shown on said plan 77.65 feet;

NORTHWESTERLY: by Smith Lane as shown on said plan 61.03 feet.

Containing according to said plan 2,902 square feet of land.

PARCEL 2:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated in Cohasset, Norfolk County, Massachusetts, shown as Lot B on a plan entitled, "Subdivision Plan of Land in Cohasset, Mass., made for E. Clayton Hyland and Sumner McGaw," dated September 28, 1954 by Lewis W. Perkins & Son, Engrs., Hingham, MA said plan being duly recorded with Norfolk Deeds in Book 3309, Page 99, and more particularly bounded and described as follows:

NORTHEASTERLY: by Ripley Road, as shown on said plan, 107.82 feet;

SOUTHERLY: by land of William E. Poland and Irwin M. Golden as shown on said plan 4.90 feet;

For title reference see deed from South Shore Art Center, Inc. dated December, 1986 and recorded in Book 7374, Page 551.

Property Address: 103 Ripley Road, Cohasset, Massachusetts.

The premises will be sold subject to any and all unpaid taxes, tax titles, assessments and municipal liens, unpaid common charges of the homeowners association, so far as the same may legally exist, restrictions, easements, and covenants of record and to the rights of all parties in possession.

Terms of the Sale: Cash, cashier's or certified check in the sum of $5,000.00 as a deposit must be shown at the time and place of the sale in order to qualify as a bidder; high bidder to sign written Memorandum of Sale upon acceptance of bid; balance of purchase price payable in cash or current funds in twenty (20) days from the date of the sale at the offices of mortgagee's attorney, Delaney & Muncey, P.C., 136 Court Street, Plymouth, MA 02360 or such other time as may be designated by mortgagee.

In the event the successful bidder fails to complete the purchase of the premises, then said deposit shall be retained by mortgagee as liquidated damages and in addition thereto mortgagee reserves the right to assign the bid to itself, or to contact the second highest bidder and offer the premises to him/her. If said party does not agree to purchase, then mortgagee may contact each prior bidder to offer similarly said premises. By executing Memorandum of Terms and Conditions of Purchase at Foreclosure Sale, the successful bidder specifically authorizes mortgagee to so assign the bid.

Other terms to be announced at the sale.

Book on elders' rights

The new Massachusetts Bar Association publication, Legal Handbook Handbook for Massachusetts Elders, is a comprehensive legal reference and resource guide for older Massachusetts residents. The bar association is sending free copies to seniors who request them.

Eight chapters in the 104-page book cover a wide range of elders' concerns including Social Security, supplemental security income, veterans' benefits, pension benefits, tax relief, age discrimination, Medicare and Medicaid entitlements, landlord/tenant law, consumer protection, abuse protection, health care proxies and wills. A special feature of Legal Handbook for Massachusetts Elders is a 15-page state-wide directory of agencies and service of importance to elders.

Free single copies of Legal Handbook for Massachusetts Elders may be obtained by writing Elder Handbook, Massachusetts Bar Association, 20 West Street, Boston, MA 02111-1218.

Louise Donovan admires her handiwork in a craft class sponsored by the Council on Aging. Stay tuned to the Cohasset Mariner every week for lots of news of interest to Cohasset's active senior community.

Alzheimer's support group

Sherry E. Johnson, R.N., Ph.D. addresses dealing with grief which accompanies the Alzheimer victim's "loss of self" Wednesday, Nov. 18, at 7:30 p.m. at the Hersey House, 229 North St., Hingham.

Dr. Johnson is a grief therapist at the South Shore Counseling Center and is author of After a Child Dies: Counseling Bereaved Families. Johnson suggests strategies for coping with the particular stress of dealing with Alzheimer's disease which causes progressive, intellectual impairment. Alzheimer's disease affects an estimated four million Americans.

The Alzheimer's Disease Support Group of the South Shore meets monthly to provide information and peer support. It provides referrals for physicians, attorneys, diagnostic centers, day care and nursing homes as well as offering a monthly newsletter and a library of current information. All meetings are free and open to the public. For more information, call (617) 749-5417.

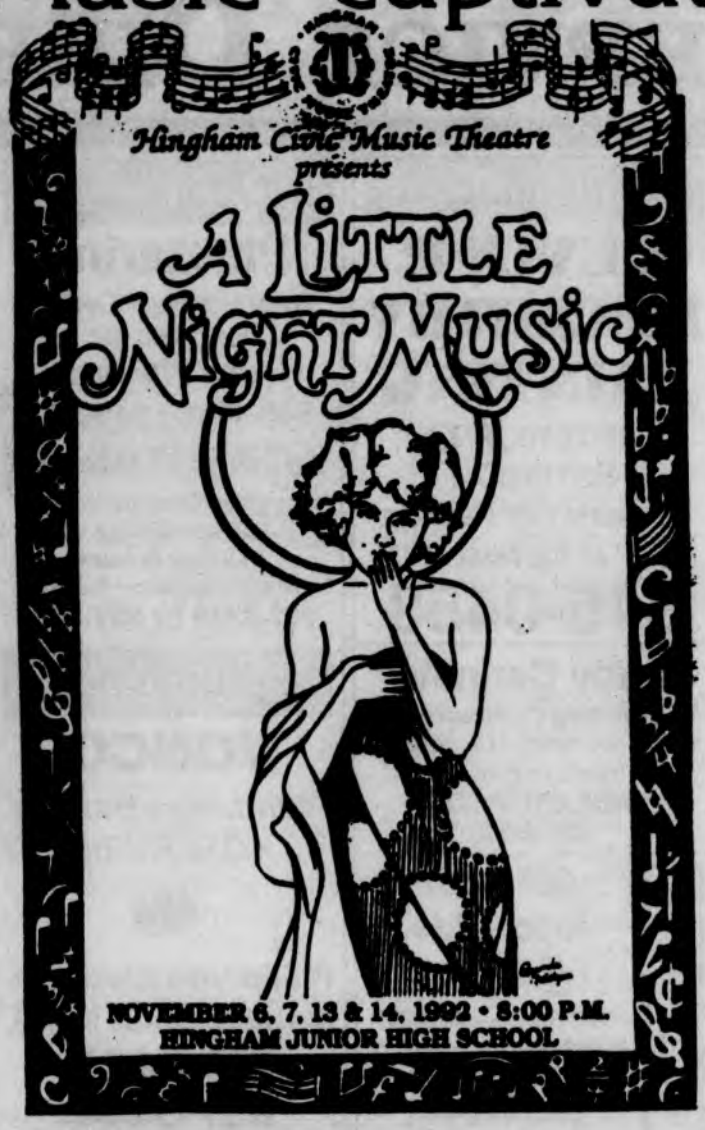
'A Little Night Music' captivates the senses

By Patty Hayes
Mariner Correspondent



If you're looking for quality entertainment this weekend, look no further than the Hingham Civic Music Theatre's "A Little Night Music" playing Nov. 13 and 14 at Hingham Junior High School, off Rte. 228.

The musical, based on Ingmar Bergman's "Smiles of a Summer Night," is a delightful tale of love and deception, revolving around three couples. Each is eventually united with his or her true love.

The play is set in Sweden, around the turn of the century and begins when lawyer Frederik Egerman (John Sawyer) renews his love affair with actress/seductress Desiree Armfeldt (Patricia Kleiber) when he takes his young bride (Melinda Joseph) to see the famous actress's latest production. What follows is a series of trysts and cover-ups which all lead to a weekend in the country where Egerman, his wife and son, Desiree, her lover and his wife are trapped together for the weekend.

The musical also features Cohasset's Barb Baumgarten as Mrs. Andersseen, part of a vocal quintet that acts as a Greek chorus, keeping the audience informed of what's happening in the plot.

"A Little Night Music" is captivating. The acting is superb, and Stephen Sondheim's musical score, under the direction of Bruce Herrick of Boston, is interwoven throughout. The play features the well known song "Send in the Clowns" (delivered beautifully by Sawyer and Kleiber) as well as many other songs which the listener will remember long after the performance.

The production is pleasing to all the senses: a simple yet workable and authentic set (directed by Charlie Dillaway); elegant costumes (designed by Bonnie Duval); talented acting; and continuous and varied music performed by Bruce Herrick, Judy Cobbles and Tim Maynard.

Perhaps what makes the Hingham Civic Music Theatre's production such a success is the direction, that of Martha Sawyer of Scituate. Scenes are played simultaneously on different parts of the stage but the dialogue and actions are so perfectly timed, the audience doesn't miss a thing. The lighting and music attract and detract the audience's attention where it is supposed to be, making a complicated plot easy to follow and easy to get caught up in.

"A Little Night Music" is an incredibly talented production and well worth seeing. Remaining show times are Nov. 13 and 14 at 8 p.m. at Hingham Junior High School off Route 228. Tickets are $9 in advance, $10 at the door, and $8 for students and senior citizens. For tickets and information call 749-0934 or 740-1016 for other ticket sale locations.

Future productions being planned by the Theatre are "Come Blow Your Horn" in February and "Music Man" in April.

The Hingham Civic Music Theatre awards two separate scholarships to graduating seniors from Hingham High School who are furthering their education in music, theatre or stagecraft.

Skippers ready to resume T-Day tradition

By David Wolcott
Mariner correspondent

The last football game of 1992 for the seniors of the Cohasset squad will be long remembered by the group because this is the first time they are able to experience the ultimate in high-school football.

The squad resumes the Thanksgiving Day traditional battle with the Hull Pirates at home at 10 am.

"This one is going to be really special for the kids", said coach Ted McDermott. "This will be the seniors first Thanksgiving Day game, and it will be something that they'll remember for the rest of their lives, win, lose or draw."

Cohasset did not field a varsity team two years ago, and last year played a shortened schedule which ended in late October.

The Thanksgiving Day football game is not just an average game on the schedule for most high-schools, in fact at almost all it is considered to be THE GAME of the season.

It is no different in this town, as coach McDermott exclaimed that "..this day is basically what football on the high-school level is all about. There is a definite feeling in the air that brings the town, alumni, and the students all together into a community."

The Hull Pirates, 8-1, are coming into this battle as the champions of the South Shore League, and are currently rated at third in the Division 4 poll. They are lead by the leading scorer in the division in Eric Matthews who has so far amassed 20 touchdowns to his credit this season.

(See page 16)

Overlay account could become a household word

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

The words overlay account may not mean much to the average Cohasset citizen.

But in the months ahead, property owners are bound to become more familiar with the lingo that's normally associated with tax assessors.

House Speaker Charles Flaherty says it's time to revamp Prop. 2-1/2.

And the first assault on the decade-old law could be to exempt the overlay account from the tax cap, officials say.

The overlay account is the amount of money that a town sets aside for property tax abatements and exemptions. Towns are allowed by law to set aside five percent of the property taxes collected annually for that purpose.

Cohasset's overlay account averages $200,000 a year or slightly less than two percent of the property tax levy.

So if the overlay account is excluded from the levy limit, Cohasset taxpayers would feel the equivalent impact of a $200,000 override, explained Assistant Assessor/Appraiser Joseph A. DiVito, Jr.

Adding $200,000 to the levy limit increases taxes on a $300,000 home by about $66 a year, DiVito said.

Special town meeting moves along

Cohasset voters were in a yes mood Monday.

They approved 14 of 19 articles ranging from a tough new harbor by-law to a pay raise for the town treasurer/collector.

Four articles were indefinitely postponed.

And in a 63-65 hand-count, voters nixed a by-law change that would give the town the power to suspend local licenses or permits for non-payment of taxes — the only article not given a nod or postponement.

Interim town moderator George Marlette kept the meeting running without a hitch.

And judging from the number of citizens in line to shake his hand at adjournment, Marlette scored some points with voters. The 32-year-old attorney plans to run for a three-year term as town moderator in the April election.

Marlette only had to wait 20 minutes for a quorum of 100. Numbers meeting swelled as the evening progressed reaching a high of about 200.

The article getting the most discussion appropriated $1,500 for traffic safety improvements including placement of signs in the village crosswalks.

And voters passed quickly a new, tough harbor by-law giving selectmen the power to levy fines for late

Classy signs to dot Cohasset crosswalks

Hingham's ears were burning Monday.

Cohasset officials had a lot to say about Hingham's ugly traffic cones and painted green crosswalks that dot that town's square.

They're ugly, they said. So Cohasset will go one better.

New state-of-the-art, iridescent signs made to fall down when hit will be placed in Cohasset Village crosswalks, thanks to part of the $1,500 appropriated at special town meeting.

So visually pleasing are the new signs that they even won over Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle, previously a

Clean-up costs $32K

What started out as a $12,000 paint job is turning into a very expensive proposition for the town.

Monday selectmen increased the authorization from $25,000 to $32,000 to cover the cost of cleaning up and testing for lead dust in town hall.

So far testing and clean-up has cost $15,000.

The cleanup is approaching 600 hours at $40 an hour, Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said.

"Lead cleanup is continuing in there tonight," Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon told the board.

He said that initial tests backstage and down stage in the auditorium still reveal unacceptable levels of lead dust.

Earlier this fall, selectmen awarded a$12,000 contract to paint the exterior of the old section of town hall.

Lead dust seeped into the inside of the building when painters used power sanders to strip some of the old paint.

The following Monday, town hall workers, concerned about their health, came before selectmen. Some employees complained about sneezing, blowing blood, and catäarh as a result of lead dust exposure.

Proclamations are made

Town meeting formally recognized the contribution several Cohasset citizens have made to Cohasset.

Selectmen issued proclamations to its former member Diana Kornet, who has also served on the school committee; former town moderator William Weeks; and retiring police chief Joseph M. Kealey.

The conservation commission recognized Patricia Buckley with a proclamation honoring her 15 years of service on that board.

Direct deposit tabled

Town meeting voters postponed action on an article that would have allowed the town to deposit employees' checks directly into their bank accounts.

Selectmen said they would authorize a survey of town employees to see how many would take advantage of direct deposit before recommending the town expend the $5,000 needed to start up the program.

Overlay surplus returned

Town meeting voters okay'ed the return to the town of of $34,560 — the amount left in the FY'92 overlay account.

The overlay account is money the town sets aside each year to pay property tax abatements and exemptions.

No all-night parking

Starting Nov. 15 and running through March 15, overnight parking is prohibited on any Cohasset street.

It is unlawful to park any vehicle on any street for longer than one hour between the hours of 2 and 6 a.m. during this period, police said.

Assoc. members needed

The conservation commission needs two associate members. Interested citizens should contact the selectmen's office in town hall, at 383-9900.

Real estate values

The fiscal 1993 Real Estate Assessed Valuations have been completed, and have been submitted for certification by the Massachusetts Department of Revenue.

The new values are available for public inspection at the Assessor's Office, Town Hall, 41 Highland Avenue during regular business hours. Due to staffing limitations, we are not able to accept telephone inquiries for valuations.

Additonal copies of the value listings are available for inspection at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, 106 South Main Street. Any problems regarding valuation will be handled through the abatement process. Call the staff at the assessors office for details.

Appliance fee set

There is a $10 fee per appliance for all residents disposing appliances containing chlorofluorocarbons (CFC's) in their cooling units. Examples of such appliances are refrigerators, air-conditioners and dehumidifiers.

New regulations require removal of CFC's before they are sent to the scrap dealer.

Overlay could become household word . . .

As with overrides, taxpayers will only notice the increase in the first year although the tax increase is permanent. In other words, the property taxes on the average home would increase $66 the first year and would remain at that level plus the usual increase associated with Prop. 2-1/2 in subsequent years.

"They're not portraying it as as tax — but it is a tax,"

— State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray

Barbara Anderson, executive director of Citizens for Limited Taxation, referred to the exemption as "Prop. 5."

Exempting the overlay account passed the legislature earlier this year but was vetoed by Governor Weld.

The legislature has not acted on the veto and could wait until the changing of the guard in January.

"The reason it was not taken up by the legislature is the leadership determined they don't have enough votes (to override)," state Senator Robert Hedlund explained.

"They'll be tinkering with the edges of Prop. 1-1/2 and the overlay is the best example."

— State Sen. Robert Hedlund

He says the exemption will probably come as an attachment to the budget for debate next year.

In the Nov. 3 state election, Massachusetts voters ousted six incumbent Republican state senators — including Hedlund who represents Cohasset — slashing the governor's power to sustain a veto.

Whether the overlay exemption comes up as part of the budget or as a separate bill — Hedlund says the governor's veto has virtually no chance of being sustained next year.

"I almost guarantee it (passage of the exemption)," he said. "They'll be tinkering with the edges of Prop. 1-1/2 and the overlay is the best example."

State Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray doesn't think the legislature will bring up the overlay in what's left of 1992.

But she says she'll stick with the governor when the issue does come up again.

"They're not portraying it as as tax — but it is a tax," Murray said about the overlay exemption. She agreed with Hedlund that next year's legislature will have the votes to override the governor's veto.

DiVito pointed out there are checks and balances in place so that towns cannot pad their overlay accounts to boost tax receipts.

He explained the state approves the overlay account every year and looks at the five-year average.

"The recap sheet shows a five-year average, so towns can't just go crazy increasing the overlay account to five percent," he said.

All budgets are approved at town meeting, DiVito noted, so ultimately it is up to the taxpayers whether or not they feel the bite of the overlay exemption.

"Towns don't have to raise their levy limit," DiVito said.

If Cohasset voters don't like the overlay exemption, they could vote to raise $200,000 less and negate its impact, he said.

Special town meeting moves along payment of mooring fees and for failure to reaffirm one's spot on the waiting list.

Voters narrowly approved giving town Treasurer/Collector Elizabeth Ripley a $1,500 raise for the balance of this fiscal year. The voice vote was too close to call, so Marlette asked for a hand count and the measure passed with a vote of 81-72.

Richard Barrow, a former police officer, tried to have the article authorizing selectmen to donate surplus police revolvers to the police union indefinitely postponed.

Quoting chapter and verse of the town by-laws and state laws, Barrow said he was opposed to the procedure because it violated those laws.

Selectmen Chairman Jane Goedecke said town meeting was not a forum for legal debate and after seeking legal counsel, selectmen were convinced the procedure was legal.

Barrow's motion to have the matter postponed failed on a voice vote.

Sewer Commission Chairman Edward M. Guild received applause after his detailed explanation of the need for a transfer of funds to pay about $23,000 in legal bills relating to sewer improvements.

Guild's talk included a concise history of the town's struggles with the state dating back to Feb. 1982 when the town was slapped with a court order to expand its sewer service area and increase its sewer plant capacity.

The article, which included about $800 more in unpaid bills from other town departments, passed unanimously.

vocal opponent.

"I was opposed to the ugly barrels, buy there's a big difference between this and a barrel," he said.

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan presented the article and pleaded with voters to think about the safety of the 150 preschoolers who attend nursery school and other programs in the village every day.

"Anything we can do to improve safety is in everyone's best interest," he said. "And these signs are so much more aesthetically pleasing than the signs in Hingham."

At Laugelle's prompting, Sullivan grabbed his keys and dashed out into the cold to retrieve a sign from his trunk, which he placed on the stage.

"They are 25 lbs. and made of recycled rubber," Sullivan explained. "They are the safest, aesthetic signs I could find."

Some of the money will go toward signs, some toward painting crosswalks, some toward traffic education programs in the schools, and some toward a special duty police officer to patrol the village, selectmen said.

Although one resident praised Hingham's green crosswalks as attention-getting, Sullivan said "zebra" crossings would be almost as good.

"This (painting crosswalks) was incorporated in the original recommendation, but for aesthetics it was decided to change to zebra crossings which work almost as well as those painted green," he said.

Gerard Keating of Black Horse Lane said the village is a "busy pedestrian area."

"It's a good thing I don't have a badge, you'd be slowing down," he said.

Herbert Towle of Beechwood St. noted that the parking areas at Stop & Shop and other shopping centers need attention.

Jacqueline Park of Highland Ave. said she was alarmed at how cars speed through the village.

"I've been in the middle of the crosswalk when cars have whizzed by," she said. "We need to educate the driving public who don't seem to know the state law (to stop for pedestrians in crosswalks).

"Barrels may be ugly ....but I submit to you that tragedy is not very pretty."

Be a friend

The invitations are in the mail! The Friends of the Cohasset Library would like you to become a Friend.

This week, every resident of Cohasset receives an invitation to become a Friend of the Cohasset Library.

For the past 24 years the Friends of the Cohasset Library has provided many services to the library. Each week, the library benefits from the volunteer services of an ever-growing number of Friends. Volunteers at the library (valued in excess of $30,000 annually) help the library provide you with better services. Friends' financial support helps to purchase books, to sponsor programs which enhance the reading skills of children, and to purchase family passes to the Aquarium, the Museum of Science, the Museum of Fine Arts, and the Children's Museum.

Make a difference

In 1992, the Friends developed, at no cost, a professional logo for use on stationery, the new book bags, the "Library Corner" column in the Cohasset Mariner, and, most dramatically, the new library user card. This card provides access through the Old Colony Library Network to 21 libraries and more than 1.5 million library items.

Be a Friend! The Cohasset Library is important to you! Your tax-deductible contribution will make you a Friend of the Library and enables the library to continue to offer resources and services well beyond what your tax dollars provide.

Trustees share news

The Trustees of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, their November board meeting, discussed the recent completed agreement with the library employees' union, C.L.A.S.S. The trustees authorized the chairman, Sheila S. Evans, to sign the contract on their behalf, and voted to recommend appropriation of $5,033 by the town to fund additional pay provided in the contract for FY '92 and FY '93. The contract, if approved by town meeting, would cover the period from July 1, 1991 to June 30, 1995.

Richard E. Hayes, chief librarian, reported to the board that he expected that book circulation would begin being handled by computer in early December. All material in the library's collection will have been entered into the Old Colony Library Network (OCLN) database by the end of November. Plastic library user-cards, with identifying bar codes, are being issued in exchange for long-time, traditional cardboard library cards, as individuals request them. These attractive white cards with the new library logo are printed with blue ink and were designed and purchased by the Friends of the Cohasset Library, Inc.

The trustees discussed the OCLN budget for FY '94 which its governing board has recently approved. Cohasset's share of this 21-town organization will become part of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library budget on which the trustees will begin deliberations at its December meeting.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE
Philip Murphy, CRS, GRI

LET THERE BE LIGHT

QUESTION: Do you have any suggestions on how much a home should be lighted when being shown to a prospective buyer?

ANSWER: In my opinion – the brighter the better! Give the prospect the best image you can of the comfort, beauty and livability you are offering. In other words, you want to sell a home not a house. Full illumination is the best way to give your home the "lived-in" look. Furniture, rugs, fixtures take on a warm glow from the proper lighting. Kitchens should always be bright, turn on lights in all rooms and especially in closets and storage room. The brighter – the better.

Bob Belliveau coordinates cable volunteers

By Fred Robertson
Special to the Mariner

With its all-volunteer host and crew, 'Pierson to Person' celebrated its fifth year of community television on the Continental Cablevision network.

"Broadcasting from the studios in North Scituate, the program is telecast to more than 30 cities and towns in southeastern Massachusetts. The host of the talk show is Wigmore Pierson.

Looking up from the press release he just finished, Bob Belliveau smiles. "I'm happy for him."

Belliveau is executive producer of "Pierson to Person" and program director for Scituate.

He's also a workaholic, a friendly, fast-paced man with a broad grin, firm handshake and an engaging, rapid-fire conversation.

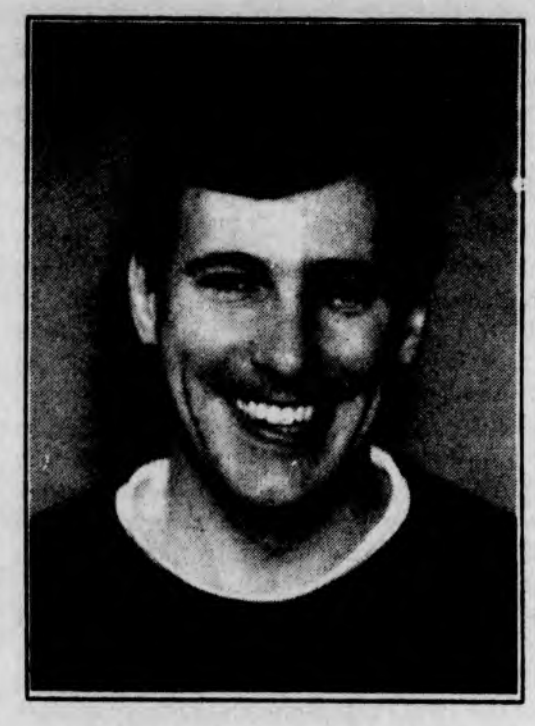
Darting from one room to another at the cable studio, he checks the technical aspects of running the volunteer operation as he answers numerous phone calls about a variety of subjects.

Belliveau reflects on the work of the volunteers. "These folks are that far away," he says, holding his thumb and forefinger about a quarter inch apart, "from competing with the 'big boys' in Boston.

"They're that good."

In the beginning Belliveau would "get in the trenches" with the volunteers to smooth over the rough spots on the telecast, but now he usually leans back against the control room glass and guides the production crew through the paces.

"When you can keep people motivated after teaching them the essentials of good programming, you've established a rapport that will last a lifetime.



"Some crew members have faded away for business and personal reasons, but they remember their associaiton with Continental and the good feelings they had with the folks at the studio."

This week Belliveau marked his fifth anniversary with the company.

He cut his teeth in business in the sales and mechanical engineering departments of the family-owned business based in Weymouth, John-Beau Inc., which manufactures police products and communication equipment.

In 1987 he attended the Northeast School of Broadcasting and later began teaching classes in television production with an average class size of 25.

He worked as an intern at the major Boston television stations and acquired additional skills and expertise that would bode him well as community TV-access coordinator of a volunteer-based operation.

He began working part-time as a volunteer in Hingham and helped develop the then-two-month-old program "Newsbeat 53" with Bill McColgan.

Belliveau then moved over to Cohasset where he helped with the televising of town meeting and selectmen's meetings live.

He also worked with the South Shore Art Center and with Marion and Ralph Barnes in developing "Arts Calendar," which now is aired in 19 communities.

After he put together an award-winning program that garnered recognition at the Golden Tape Awards, he was offered a full-time position with the company, which then was American Cablesystems.

Belliveau's office reflects the man — walls of photographs and newspaper clippings along with citations in recognition of excellence in programming and public relations.

"This is a hoot!" he grins.

On his desk are stacks of video tapes, phone messages and unread magazines. On the floor are boxes of more tapes, papers, cable and equipment.

The phone rings. It's Wigmore. "How are you, squire," says Belliveau with a chuckle. "I've got someone in the office. Hold that thought, and I'll get back to you."

Belliveau's relationship with Wigmore goes back five years too. What started with cablecasting the town selectmen has grown to featuring subjects of a national and worldwide interest that has a local angle.

"He saw a need and filled it," Belliveau commented on Pierson.

These folks are that far away from competing with the "big boys" in Boston. They're that good.

— Bob Belliveau

"He created a conduit for the good of the cable audience, constantly supplying them with quality information while attracting some of the biggest names in all walks oflife that want a 'shot at the show.'

"He's a focused professional who provides his guests with a window to speak their minds."

Last year Senate President William Bulger was a guest on Pierson's show, much to the surprise of many, for Bulger's dislike for the media is legendary.

However, says Belliveau, after the show Bulger told Pierson how much he enjoyed being on the program and said he would like to have him for breakfast — next St. Patrick's Day!

"That's what 'Pierson to Person' is all about,' says Belliveau as he sips his coffee, "people that have something to discuss, an exchange of views for the betterment of the citizens and their way of life."

Last season, Belliveau says, "we decided to do a car show, something vastly different from politics.

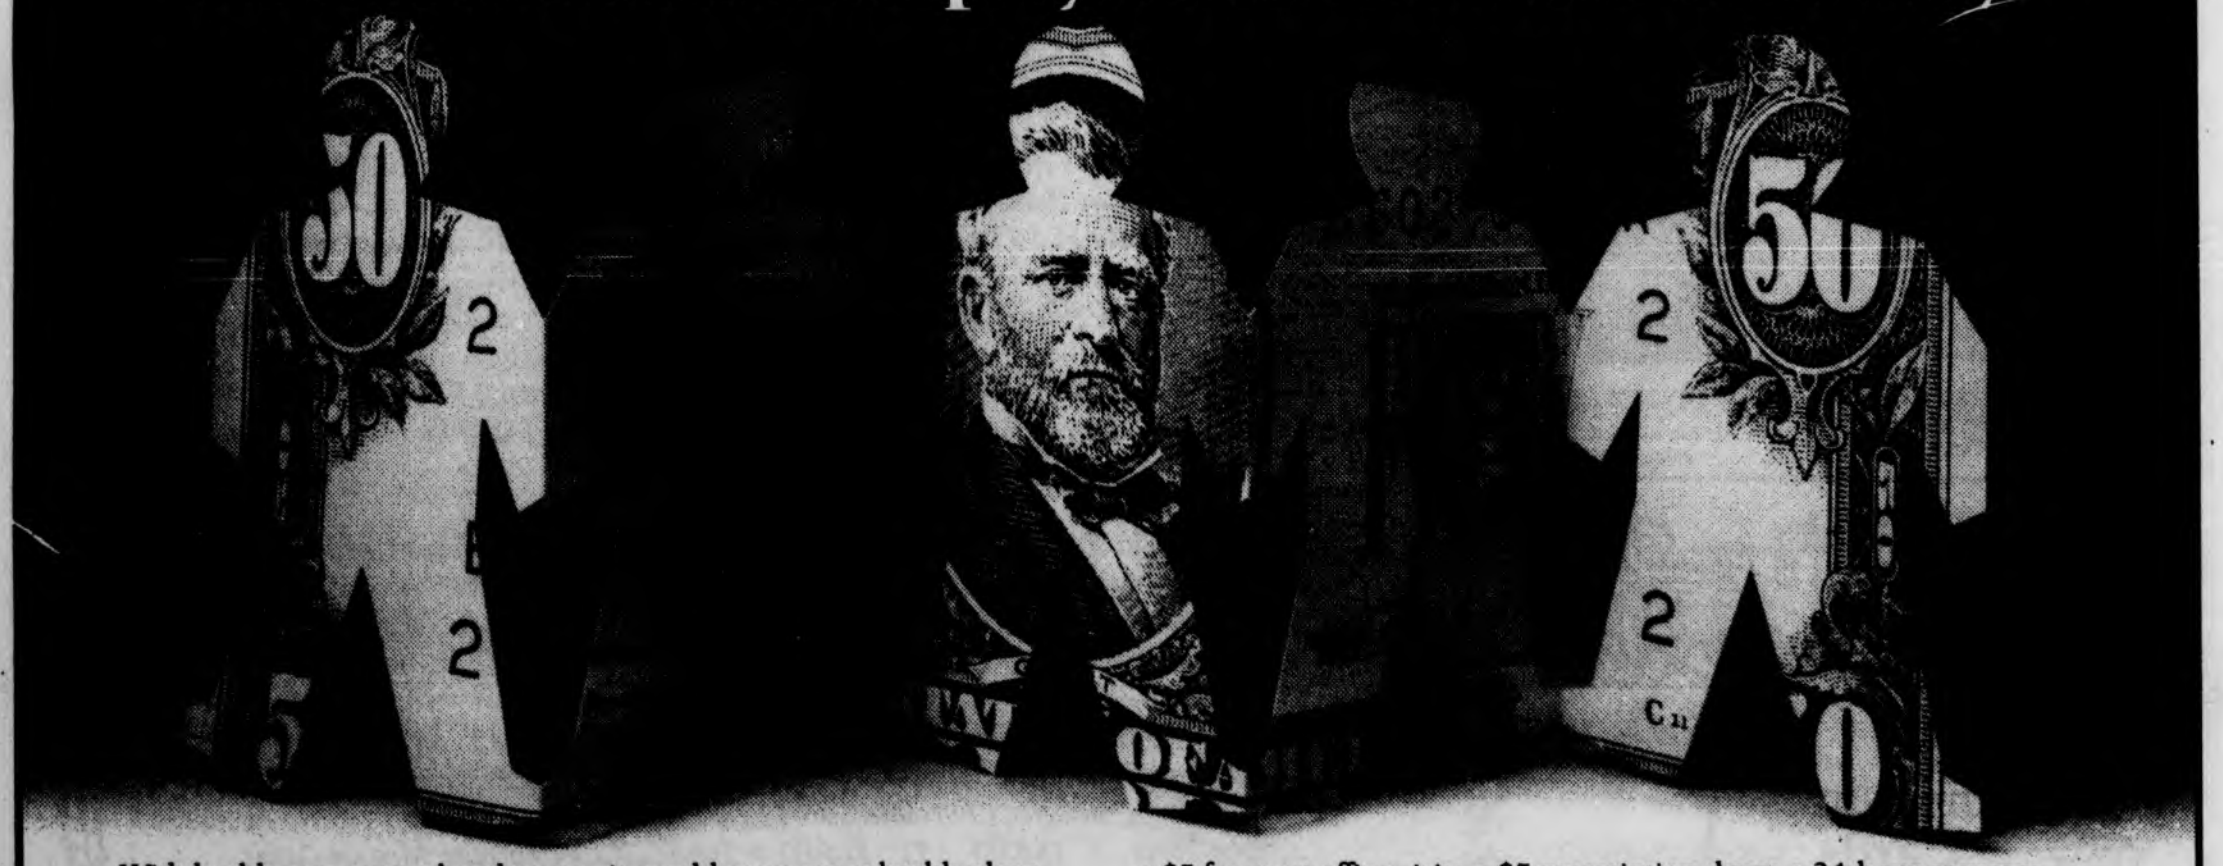
"We put Wig in the passenger side of a racing car and squeezed a camera crew in the back.

"We never let on just how fast the machine would go down a quarter-mile track.

"Pierson found out real quick. He took it all in stride, like the consummate pro that he is. But he looked funny sitting in that car with a business suit."

Belliveau is much like that car show — a mixture of unpredictable excitement and haste, someone heading pell mell to a finish line and, in the process, creating an enjoyable experience for all to see.

Gates' to help charities



S.S. Gates and Sons Clothing in North Scituate Village is sponsoring the third annual "10 & 10" charity drive and clothing sale for three days following Thanksgiving.

All purchases will be 10 percent off Nov. 27, 28 and Nov. 29, according to owner Harvey Gates.

Additionally, the store, located at 372 Gannett Road, will donate another 10 percent of the total cost of the clothing to a favorite local charity.

This year, Gates, said, he would like to benefit local charities and is encouraging donations to the Scituate and Marshfield Community Christmas funds, the Cohasset Community Center, S.H.O.R.E. (Scituate High Opportunities for Resources and Education) and the Norwell Visiting Nurse Association, although donations to national and worldwide organizations are welcome.

We know Federal employees aren't made of money.

With health care costs what they are, it would seem some health plans might mistake what you're made of. That's why Harvard Community Health Plan offers Federal employees among the lowest rates available. But don't take our word for it—compare and judge for yourself.

And while we know you'll be pleased with our low rates, we think you'll like our comprehensive benefits. • 100% hospitalization coverage • $5 for most office visits • $5 prescription drugs • 24-hour coverage, home or away. Plus a choice of fine doctors, convenient locations, and affiliation with some of the best hospitals.

If you're a Federal employee, call Harvard Health today at 1-800-431-1070 for a brochure. These rates available only to Federal employees. Sign up during Open Season November 9 through December 14, 1992.

Andy Hailer

Name: Andy Hailer.

Occupation: Manager, Curtis Liquors.

Best day of your life: Today, because it's the only day I have. The past is past and the future hasn't come.

Most embarrassing moment: When I had to call all my relatives to tell them I was mistaken when I called them the first time believing I won the lottery. I read the number incorrectly.

Goal: To make the most of every day and be the best person I can be.

Favorite season: Winter.

Best vacation: I've never taken a vacation.

Favorite holiday: Christmas — I'm a total Christmas guy. When it's not Christmas, I'm thinking about Christmas.

Pet Peeve: Fair weather Red Sox fans.

Favorite book: "The Baseball Encyclopedia."

Favorite movie: "To Kill A Mockingbird."

Biggest worry: You name it, I worry about it — from Saturday's work schedule to the world our children will inherit.

Favorite place: My parents' house on Christmas Day.

Favorite junk-food: Quarter-pounder with cheese and the rest of Leo's french fries.

around town

❑ Jennifer Plante, daughter of Pat and Maria Plante, makes the news this week. Jennifer starred in the Tufts Tom Ticket II presentation of "Godspell" from Nov. 10 through 14. Last year, Jennifer made her Tufts theatre debut in the Greek comedy, "The Birds," and "Separation Dozen." She also stage managed "Waiting for Godot" this fall.

Jennifer is a 1991 graduate of Cohasset High School (where she performed in the leading role of Jesus in Cohasset's "Godspell") and is a sophomore at Tufts University, majoring in English and drama. The Plante family all went to see "Godspell" last Friday night and said that the performance was wonderful.

Maybe we'll get advance notice before the next Tufts presentation so that we may attend!

❑ Heidi M. Lincoln, a freshman at Framingham State and former Lady Skipper, South Shore League All-Star, has completed a successful soccer season at Framingham. Heidi was the starting sweeper for the Lady Rams and was nominated for the MASCAC All-Star team by her coach. She is majoring in Fashion Merchandising and minoring in Spanish. Heidi is the daughter of Larry and Linda Lincoln.

❑ How about this "it's a small world" story, subtitled "Cohasset to the Rescue"...Mary (Lagrotteria) Sease had a baby girl, Katherine Merrick Sease, Sept. 25 in Naples, Italy. She is with her husband, Lt. Cmdr. Hugh Sease at US Navy Sigonella, Sicily. Mary, class of 1979 at CHS, was flown to Naples by Lt. Michael Fichtner, class of 1978 CHS. Michael is also stationed at US Navy Sigonella, Sicily, as a VIP pilot. Imagine that!!

❑ Had a wonderful chat with Ken Coleman last week, and he is certainly full of news!! Today, (Thursday, Nov. 19) Ken will be inducted into the Cleveland Press Club Hall of Fame (if you think about it, Ken is probably one of the few people to see all of Jim Brown's games!). Ken then has the honor of announcing the Harvard Yale game on the 21st, the seventh time that he has broadcast it! Ken has also announced the Ohio State-Michigan game five times!! You know he will attend another celebration this year; it's the 25th anniversary of the Red Sox and their "Impossible Dream."

What a life that man has had; tons of hard work but lots of super memories and stories too!

❑ Circle your calendar right now so that you won't miss the Cohasset High School All-School Musical Dec. 4 and 5 (at 7 p.m.) and Dec. 6 (at 1:30 p.m). The kiddos perform "South Pacific," a fun show! They would also request that businesses and private people place an ad in their program. You will be supporting the arts at Cohasset High School. For details, call Sue McNamara at 383-6945.

And, we will let you know about ticket sales next week, so plan on going and having a wonderful time.

❑ This is the time of year when every Mom is looking for an extra pair of hands, and the Cohasset Community Center has the answer for you. They are having a "Mom's Morning Out" babysitting program for children all ages during the holiday season. The program began last week, and the babysitting is provided from 9 a.m., to 1 p.m. The children should bring a snack and their lunch. The cost is $13 per day, and you must pre-register, so call the center at 383-0088 for more information or to register.

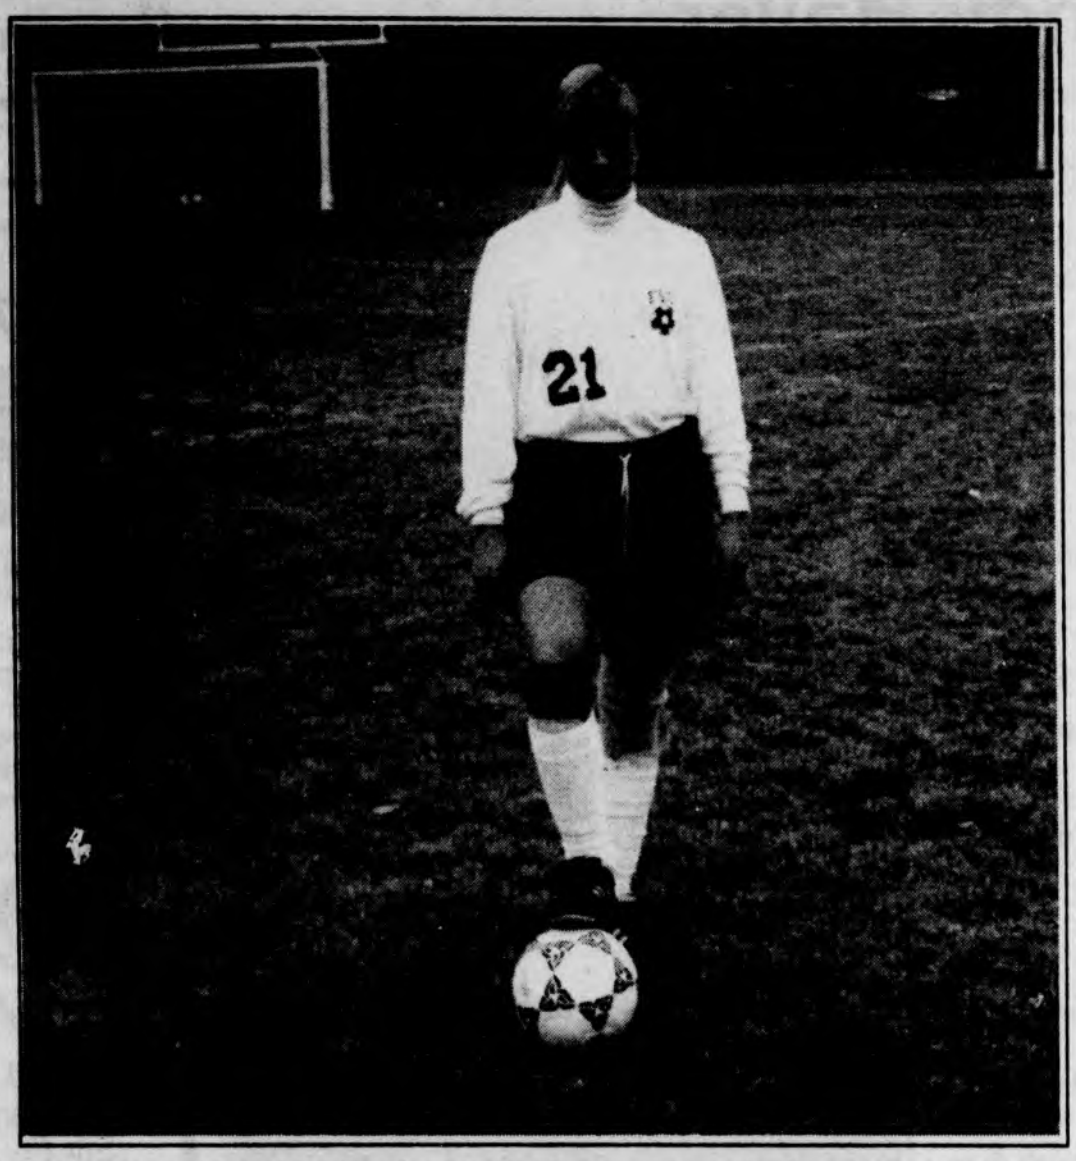
Sounds like fun for everyone.

❑ Most of you probably read about John Kuntz and his upcoming supporting role in the production of "Waiting for Godot" for the Boston Center for the Performing Arts. We just put two and two together...Jennifer Plante stage managed Tufts' presentation of same; she and John can get together and compare notes.

❑ It is sad to have to report the passing of Woody Kaye, the golf pro at Hatherly Country Club. Woody was quite a man, and most have a story or two to relate regarding him. He was well-liked and worked hard and surely will be missed. Our sympathies to his family.

❑ That reminds us to update you on Ralph Roberts. At the time this is being written, Ralph is still in the hospital. He is in a cast up to his waist. Ralph, as everyone knows, is a real trooper and we are sure he will be fine in no time.

Thanksgiving game, right Ralph??



❑ Thanksgiving game...don't forget that the "arch-rivalry," Cohasset vs Hull, is back! You'll see a great game (our boys are tough and good) and lots of people you haven't seen in a long time. And every grad from last year's CHS class will be there, full of college tales. Plan on going.

❑ William and Marianne Cole of 6 Cedar Ledge Lane, Cohasset are parents of a daughter, Elise Alden, born October 24 at Brigham and Women's Hospital.

Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Dale Helmer of Chula Vista, California and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cole of Highland St., North Marshfield.

❑ Please let me know what's happening in your life, we all love to hear it.

Lyons/LeVangie

At an August 22 wedding in St. Anthony's Church, Susan E. Lyons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Williams R. Lyons of Cohasset, became the bride of John J. LeVangie.

He is the son of Martin LeVangie of Scituate.

The Rev. John Keohane officiated. A reception followed at the Pembroke Country Club.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her sister, Lisa Sydlowski as matron of honor.

The bride's brother-in-law, Mark Sydlowski of Scituate served as best man.

The bride is a graduate of Cohasset High School and Mansfield Beauty Academy. She is employed as a hairstylist on Cape Cod.

The groom is a graduate of South Shore Vocational High School. He is president of Sea View Construction, Cape Cod.

After a honeymoon cruise aboard the Royal Caribbean Lines "Monarch of the Seas," the couple is residing in Sandwich.

Thumbs up and down

Cohasset voters were in a positive mood Monday as they went to town on the Special Town Meeting Warrant approving 14 of 19 articles under the guidance of rookie Moderator George Marlette.

But despite the all the "yeas", there were some negatives for the night.

• Thumbs down to selectmen and the harbor committee for choosing not to share their thinking on fees soon-to-be-enacted under the town's tough new harbor by-law.

Harbor Committee Chairman John "Fritz" Pfaffman told voters that "fees are not germane to the issue at all."

Mr. Herbert Towle was on the mark when the said that didn't make sense to him.

"We're not defining what we're preparing to agree to," Mr. Towle said.

And the fact of the matter is fees have been discussed — but not at town meeting where a large number of citizens could hear the reasoning.

The harbor committee has recommended specific amounts of $100 and $50 to selectmen.

While we appreciate the fact that selectmen want to keep the town's by-laws a policy document and not lock specific fee amounts into the law — that's no reason not to tell voters what has been proposed and how they feel about it.

At their meeting before town meeting got underway, selectmen said talking about fines would "confuse things."

There's nothing confusing about fines and we think Cohasset voters deserve more credit.

• Thumbs up to Treasurer/Collector Elizabeth Ripley, who showed how democracy can work.

She took her rationale for a higher salary to the floor and won in spite of the fact that both the advisory committee and selectmen recommended against approval.

• Thumbs down to Cohasset High School for not requiring that at least some history/government classes attend town meeting.

How best to learn about government than right in your own backyard?

We've seen history teachers in other towns taking attendance at town meeting. And we've seen students get involved by serving as ushers or providing voters with roving microphones.

Mr. Marlette changed his mind after it was pointed out to him that asking people to stand row-by-row to facilitate counting votes when needed, is unsuitable because it may be difficult for some citizens to stand up.

It occure to us that it may also be difficult if not impossible for some citizens to climb over other folk to get to the microphones at town meeting. So a roving 'mike' is needed to ensure that no one is intimidated from speaking out because of the daunting task of reaching an aisle.

A young, agile CHS student or two could certainly help out here and earn some community service points as well.

• Thumbs up to the members of Cohasset's senior citizen community who continue to participate in democracy by turning out in large numbers for town meeting.

• And thumbs up to Mr. Marlette who did a fine job his first time out as moderator.

An architect's rendering of what the Bates House on Elm Street will look like after its renovated into two units of affordable housing by volunteers for the non-profit organization, South Shore Habitat for Humanity.

Families wanted for Bates House

South Shore Habitat for Humanity Inc., an ecumenical Christian housing ministry, is looking for two families who meet Habitat guidelines for two three-bedroom condominiums to be built in Cohasset.

Habitat serves families who are unable to purchase homes through traditional means and who are currently inadequately housed or are devoting a disproportionate amount of their income to housing.

Applications are limited to those families who (1) presently live in the Town of Cohasset and have lived there for at least one year or (2) are former residents who can prove residency for at least five years, or (3) are current town employees who have worked for the town for at least one year.

All candidates should meet the following gross annual income guidelines: family of three (one parent, two children), $15,000 to $24,000; family of four, $15,000 to $25,000; family of five, $15,000 to $27,000; and, family of six or more, $15,000 to $28,000. The aforementioned are guidelines only and all extenuating circumstances will be considered.

Habitat guidelines require that families work on the construction of their own homes and help others as well so that Habitat can continue its ministry. This sweat equity requirement is 500 hours per family.

To apply, please write to South Shore Habitat for Humanity Inc., P.O. Box 127, Norwell, MA 02061, or call 617-659-1440. Applications are also available to be picked up at most of the churches in Cohasset. Applications must be received by Dec. 31, 1992. Families are selected on a non-discriminatory basis with respect to age, sex, sexual preference, disability, race, religion, or national origin.

Lead shot needed for duck hunting

To the Editor:

As a duck hunter I read Jack Hubbard's letter concerning crippled sea ducks showing up in Little Harbor with interest.

I agree that every hunter has a responsibility to assure no duck experiences the fate described in Jack's letter.

I hunt with trained dogs and a boat at the ready to retrieve any duck which falls beyond the range of my dogs. However, Jack has overlooked the main cause of why so many injured ducks escape into Little Harbor.

Several years ago Federal and State authorities succumbed to the "hew and cry" of non-hunters that ducks were being poisoned by lead shot which finds its way into their food supply. Despite the superior stopping power of lead it was mandated that hunters must use steel shot. Steel shot has less impact than lead, resulting in a greater number of crippled ducks which dive and make it virtually impossible to "complete the job." In my view, the small amount of lead discharged into a vast ocean is not hazardous to a sea duck's food supply and would limit the number of crippled ducks in Little Harbor due to lead's superior stopping power.

I would be more than delighted to co-sign a letter with Jack to Federal and State game officials urging them to allow the use of lead shot for duck hunting in the ocean. This change would reduce the number of crippled birds showing up in Little Harbor.

Town clerk's election effort praised

(Editor's Note: The following letter was sent to the selectmen.)

Dear Board Members:

The 1992 election cycle has been the most extraordinary in recent history. Thanks to the professional efforts of town clerks such as Marion Douglas, the election was a virtually flawless effort.

The presidential election year cycle is always a difficult one. In addition to President and other federal offices, all state legislative seats and county offices are on the ballot. Besides the four regularly-scheduled election days, there was an unprecedented number of special local and state elections creating real challenges for clerks in those municipalities which had to conduct a fifth or sixth election day. Further adding to the burden on clerks this year, there was a formal third party participating in primaries for the first time since 1976. The name chosen by the new party, the Independent Voters Party, created mass confusion for the more than one million voters who have always referred to their voting status as "independent." Again, it was the municipal clerks who were left to resolve the resulting chaos and confusion. In addition, this year the certification process was complicated by new laws allowing voters to sign for any number of candidates running for the same seat, and a need to allow congressional candidates to obtain signatures from outside the district from which they were seeking election.

In my 14 years in office, I have never seen an election cycle which challenged town clerks and state election officers as they were challenged this year. Given their remarkable performance, I felt compelled to make this public commendation.

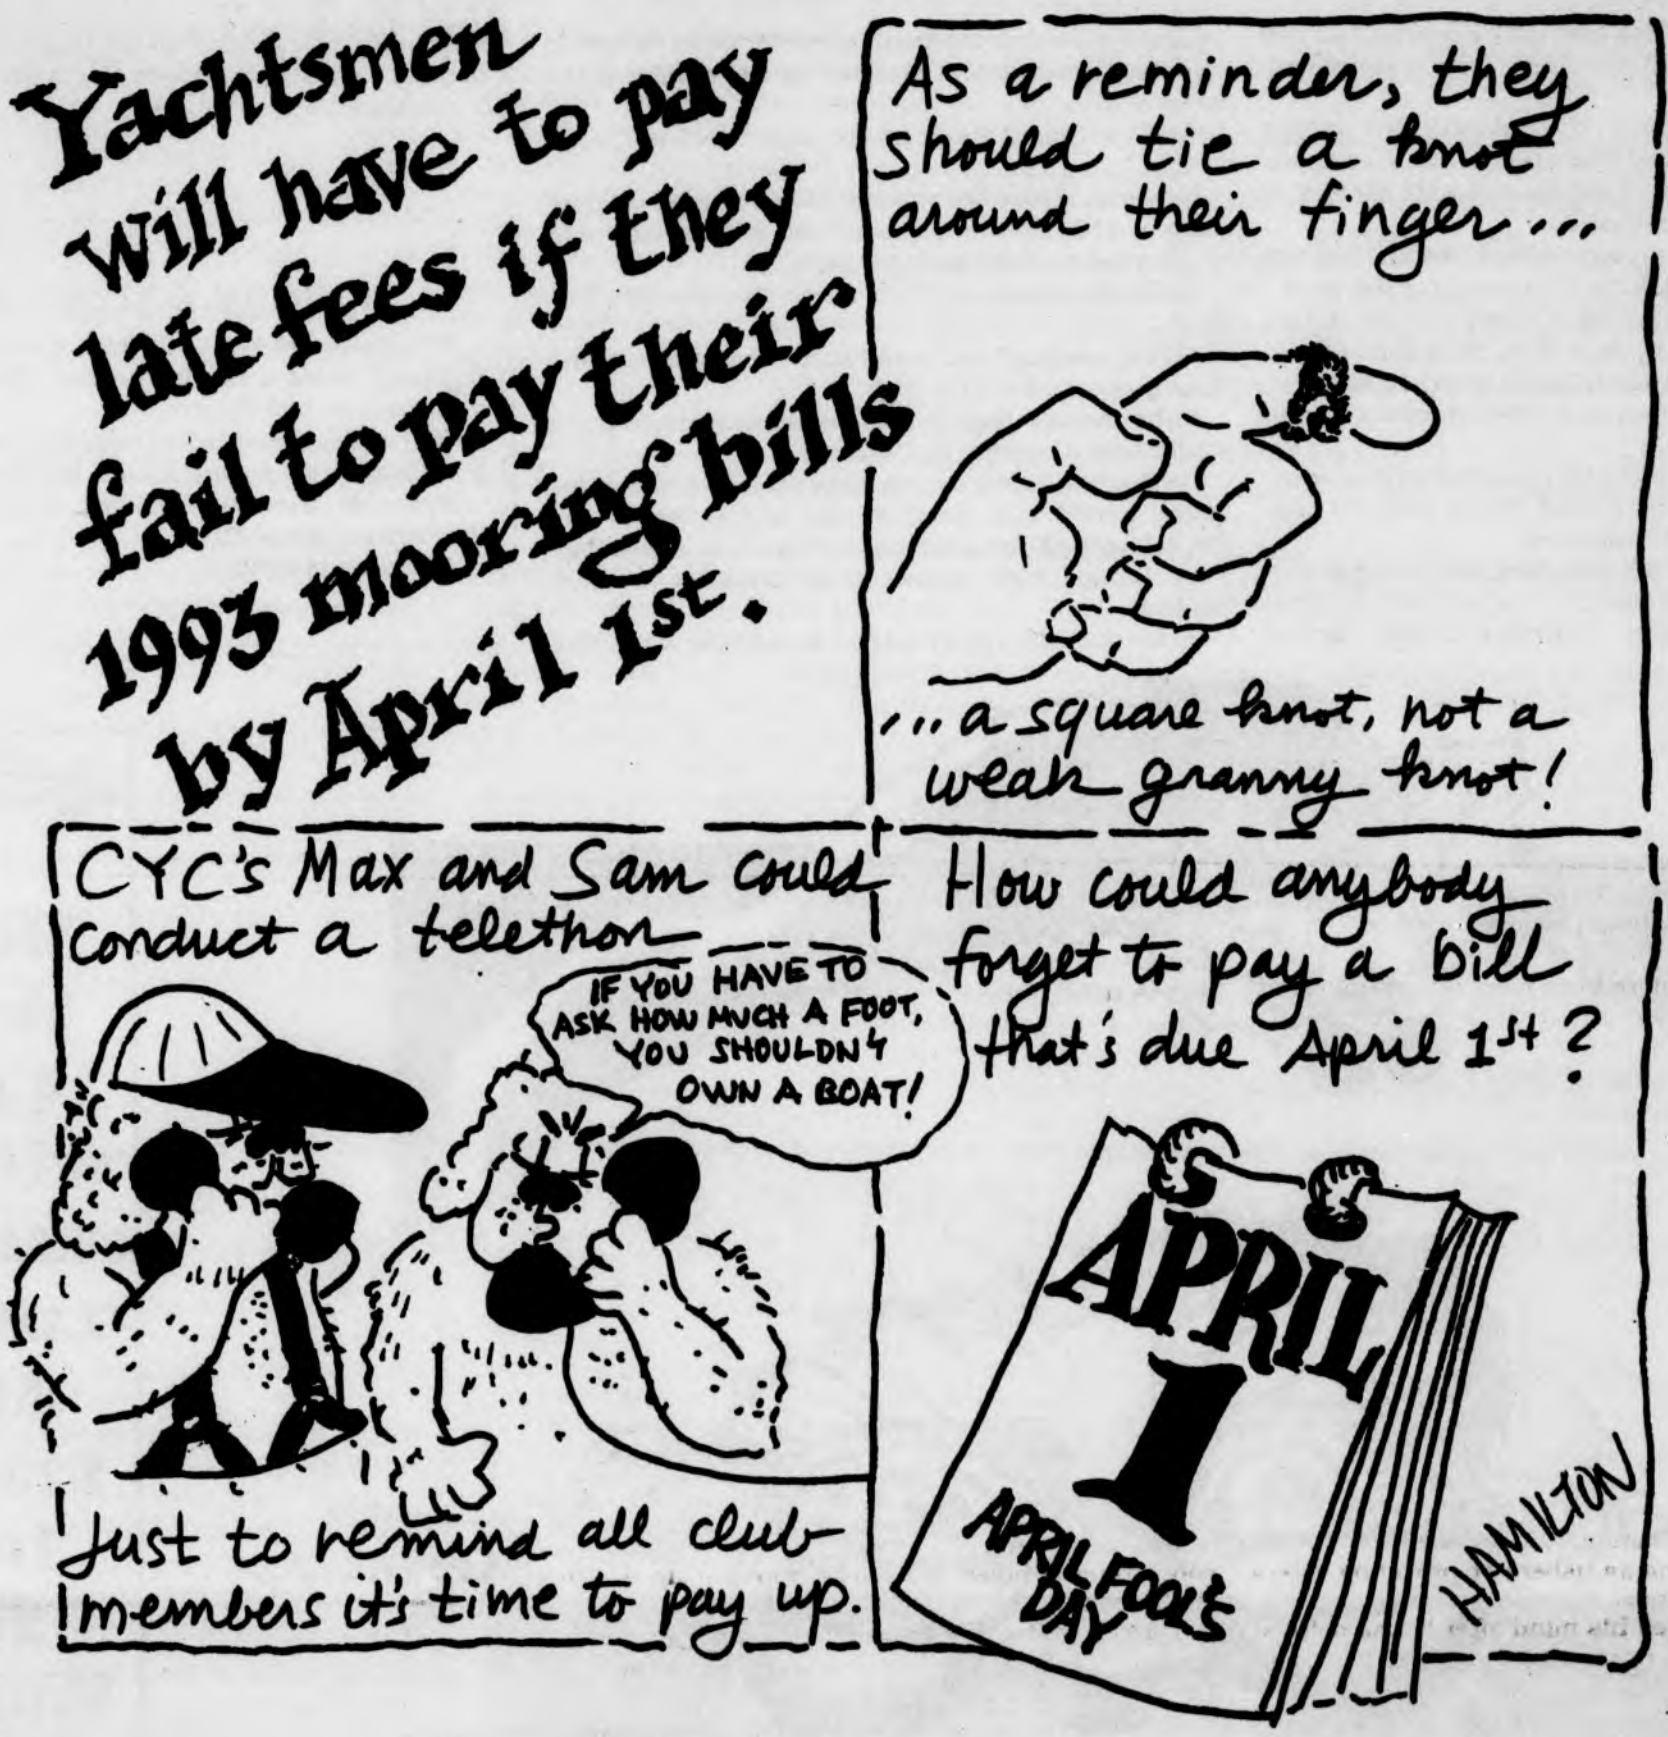
An open letter to soccer helpers

Dear soccer coaches and coordinators:



On behalf of the recreation commission, I would like to thank each of you for your time, effort and expertise, helping conduct fall soccer.

A program of this magnitude simply could not be provided without the active participation of many parents and adults. It is both the individual and collective efforts that have allowed for the continuation of this very fine and popular program. In a more general sense, it is the parental dedication that helps make Cohasset the very fine community it is.

For your very generous donation of time and effort, it is our hope that you have experienced the gratification that is most often associated with working with children and youth.

Again, our many thanks to each of you and I feel certain that I am able to speak for the 250 plus children who participated in the 1992 Soccer League, thanking you on their behalf as well.

Jack Worley
Recreation Director

Beacon Hill Roll Call

Senator Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth) 722-1646 Room 416B

Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Cohasset) 722-2800 ext.7957 Room 134

QUESTIONS

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. There were no roll calls in the House and Senate last week. Formal sessions and roll call votes are scheduled to resume Nov. 16.

Among the major pieces of legislation likely to be considered before the conclusion of the current legislative session in January is Governor Weld's economic development package. Weld unveiled the package in an address to the legislature shortly after the September primaries. The governor believes the plan will trigger some $1 billion in new investment in Massachusetts.

Key provisions of the Weld package include a phase out of the capital gains tax; an increase in the investment tax credit from one percent to three percent; establishment of "enterprise zones" in poor urban areas to offer economic incentives to businesses investing in the area; creation of revolving funds to help businesses build manufacturing plants in the state and to help small businesses expand their operations; and spending $100 million in each of the next five years for roads, bridges and other projects.

The Democratic leadership has recently indicated it supports the concept of some of these initiatives and will likely propose its own version of some of them while rejecting others.

During the 1992 session, several amendments dealing with similar or related economic proposals were considered by the House. This week, "Beacon Hill Roll Call" reviews local representatives' votes on these roll calls. All the proposals were in the form of amendments to budgets.

CAPITAL GAINS (H 5317 and H 5600) — House 113-39 and 105-46 rejected amendments reducing the capital gains tax. The amendments link the tax rate to how long an asset is held before it is sold and establishes a range from 12 percent for an asset held for less than a year to no tax for one held for more than six years. Amendment supporters said this reduction will stimulate the economy, encourage individuals to invest in businesses and finally help the state shed its old anti-business and anti-job growth label. Some opponents said the cut will cost $138 million over the long run and will benefit only a handful of people. Others said this is a graduated tax which is unconstitutional. (Both roll calls are listed. A "Yea" vote is for the capital gains tax reduction. A "Nay" vote is against it).		1.Y 2.Y
INVESTMENT CREDIT (H 5317) — House 109-42, rejected an amendment providing for an additional 20 percent investment tax credit for businesses. Amendment supporters said this will stimulate the economy by offering an incentive for companies to buy new buildings, machinery and other equipment. Some opponents argued the amendment is complicated and should be the subject of a public hearing. Others said there are better versions of the same bill which will be considered in the near future. (A "Yea" vote is for the 20 percent credit. A "Nay" vote is against it).		Y
ENTERPRISE ZONES (H 5600) — House 109-40, rejected an amendment allowing for the creation and implementation of "enterprise zones." Amendment supporters said this will create jobs in depressed urban areas by offering various tax incentives to attract private investment. Opponents said this major program should be the subject of public hearings and noted the legislature is working on a better version of the legislation. (A "Yea" vote is for the "enterprise zone" amendment. A "Nay" vote is against it).		Y
TAX INCENTIVE (H 5317) — House 105-44, rejected an amendment giving a tax credit to corporations which increase their payroll costs. The credits range from five percent for a payroll increase between 15 and 30 percent to 90 percent for an increase of 100 percent or more. Amendment supporters said this will stimulate the economy and create jobs by reducing the cost of hiring new workers without lowering wages. Some opponents said the amendment contains too many loopholes and will do little for the economy. Others said the amendment should not be rushed through without a public hearing. (A "Yea" vote is for the tax credit. A "Nay" vote is against it).		N
EMPLOYEE TAX CREDIT (H 5600) — House 147-2, approved an amendment providing a $500 tax credit for every full-time new employee hired by a business. Amendment supporters said this will help stabilize the state's business climate and encourage new job creation. Opponents said the state cannot afford this tax revenue loss. (A "Yea" vote is for the $500 credit. A "Nay" vote is against it).		Y

No fees attached to new harbor by-law

If mooring holders miss the April 1 deadline to pay their fees, they'll get a 15-day grace period coupled with a fine.

Those who fail to reaffirm their place on the waiting list will also get a 15-day grace period and face fines.

However, the amount of the fines was not decided at Monday's special town meeting.

Voters approved the change in the town's harbor by-law, which does not include the amount of the fines.

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke said if fees and fines are put into by-laws then every time there's a change — the by-law itself has to be changed.

"Let's keep (the by-laws) as a policy document," she said.

Selectmen did not say what fines are being proposed.

Herbert Towle of Beechwood Street said he was "puzzled" by the lack of numbers.

"We're not defining what we're preparing to agree to," he said.

John "Fritz" Pfaffman, chairman of the harbor committee, said voters should concentrate on the article and that the amount of the fines "is not germane to the issue at all."

Towle added, "It doesn't make sense to me, but that's alright."

However, the harbor committee has voted to propose fines of $100 for late payment and $50 for failure to reaffirm one's name on the waiting list.

Pfaffman presented those fines to selectmen last week.

At that meeting Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle said the fines proposed were too high.

At the town meeting Monday, Goedecke said selectmen would hold a hearing on the issue.

The harbor committee proposed the by-law change (grace period and fines) at the suggestion of the Department of Environmental Protection which has been flooded with appeals from Cohasset mooring holders.

Under the town's previous by-law, a holder's mooring was revoked if payment was not made by April 1; and a hopeful's name was removed from the waiting list if not reaffirmed by April 1.

Cohasset voters take CLASS action

The town's seven-member library union (C.L.A.S.S.) has a brand-new contract.

The town will expend an extra $5,032 this year to pay time-and-a-half to library employees who work Sunday, and two percent increases for FY'93. The overtime pay is retroactive over FY'92.

The contract also includes 3-1/2 percent increases for FY'93 and FY'94.

At the special town meeting John O'Toole, 55 Linden Drive, questioned why it took two years to negotiate the contract.

"I really think when you're dealing with seven people, it shouldn't take two years to negotiate a contract in good faith," he said.

Speaking for the personnel committee, Barbara J. Moore explained that C.L.A.S.S. is a new union and issues had to be worked out from the "bottom up."

The Konohasset Clerical and Custodial Association and the Cohasset Permanent Firefighters, Local 2804 had not reached contract agreement in time for Monday's town meeting.

Ripley takes case to the people

Standing alone at the podium, treasurer/collector Elizabeth Ripley asked voters for a raise Monday and won over objections of selectmen that her request was not appropriate for a special town meeting.

"I stand here before you to ask your consideration to increase my salary," she said.

"I feel the financial officers of the town should be treated the same," Ripley said.

Ripley cannot negotiate her salary because she is an elected official. The personnel committee reviews the salaries of elected officials and makes recommendations to selectmen.

Ripley compared her salary level to those of other town officials.

Before the raise, Ripley's salary was $34,596. In the 1991 town report, the recreation director's earnings were $35,826; and the health agent's were $40,418.

The new town accountant was hired at an annual salary of $35,000.

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan said that while his board appreciated Ripley's work, selectmen felt the issue should be raised at the annual town meeting rather than be decided midway through a fiscal year.

Advisory Committee Chairman Nan Roth said that board recognized Ripley's hard work, but felt it was important for salaries to be reviewed by the personnel committee and be recommended at the annual town meeting.

Interim Town Moderator George Marlette asked for a hand count because the voice vote was too close to call.

Ripley's request passed by a vote of 81-72.

Book, bake sale

Although the big Village Fair is not taking place this year, there are several Christmas sale events in Cohasset Village, Saturday, Dec. 5

One is a book sale at Walton Rogers Hall at St. Stephen's to benefit the Church's Outreach program, which includes Habitat for Humanity, Wellspring, the Mary Martha Learning Center, Quincy Crisis Center, and Cohasset Fish. The book sale committee, headed by Helen Hooper and Betty Enders, is collecting both hard cover and paperback books.

Donations may be left in boxes or bags inside the door nearest to Highland Ave., at the back of the church, Wednesdays and Thursdays, from 8 to 11 a.m. and 2 to 5 p.m. The committee is grateful for gifts of both adult and children's books, but please omit out-of-date textbooks and Readers' Digest condensed books.

Donors may call 383-6840 with questions.

Skippers ready to resume T-Day tradition

Although they are heated rivals for this day, McDermott holds nothing but respect for the Hull football program. As a matter of fact, he was once the coach of the Pirates in the late 1960's.

"I have the highest respect for Hull and what they have done", said the coach.

"The Hull coach John Anderson and his team have had a tremendous year, and I wish them well in their play-off hopes," he said. "But, our kids are going to go with their best effort, and I want my boys to win this game in front of their fans. We will not get beat due to lack of effort."

Thanksgiving Day is not only a homecoming for alumni and the community, but it also marks the last game for the graduating seniors. So Coach McDermott has special words for each of his departing gridiron warriors.

Sheldon Morgan, Flanker/Defensive Back:

"Sheldon laments the fact that he only played football his senior year. He is a superb athlete whose playing time kept increasing over the year, and was very enjoyable to coach."

John Maynard and Peter Collins, Quarterbacks:

"They both contributed greatly from the quarterback position. John is a converted soccer player who has really worked hard for me. Peter has attended a camp the last couple of years to try and sharpen his skills, and has really shown confidence in running the offence."

Steve Harrington, Flanker/Defensive Back:

"Steve was our jack-of-all-trades. He did whatever we asked and filled in wherever he was needed. No matter what pain or bruises he had, he simply gave 100%% each and every time he was on the field."

Nate Fiore, Fullback/Linebacker:

"Nate is simply 140 lbs. of dynamite. He was our defensive signal-caller, and just does not know how to retreat or back-down."

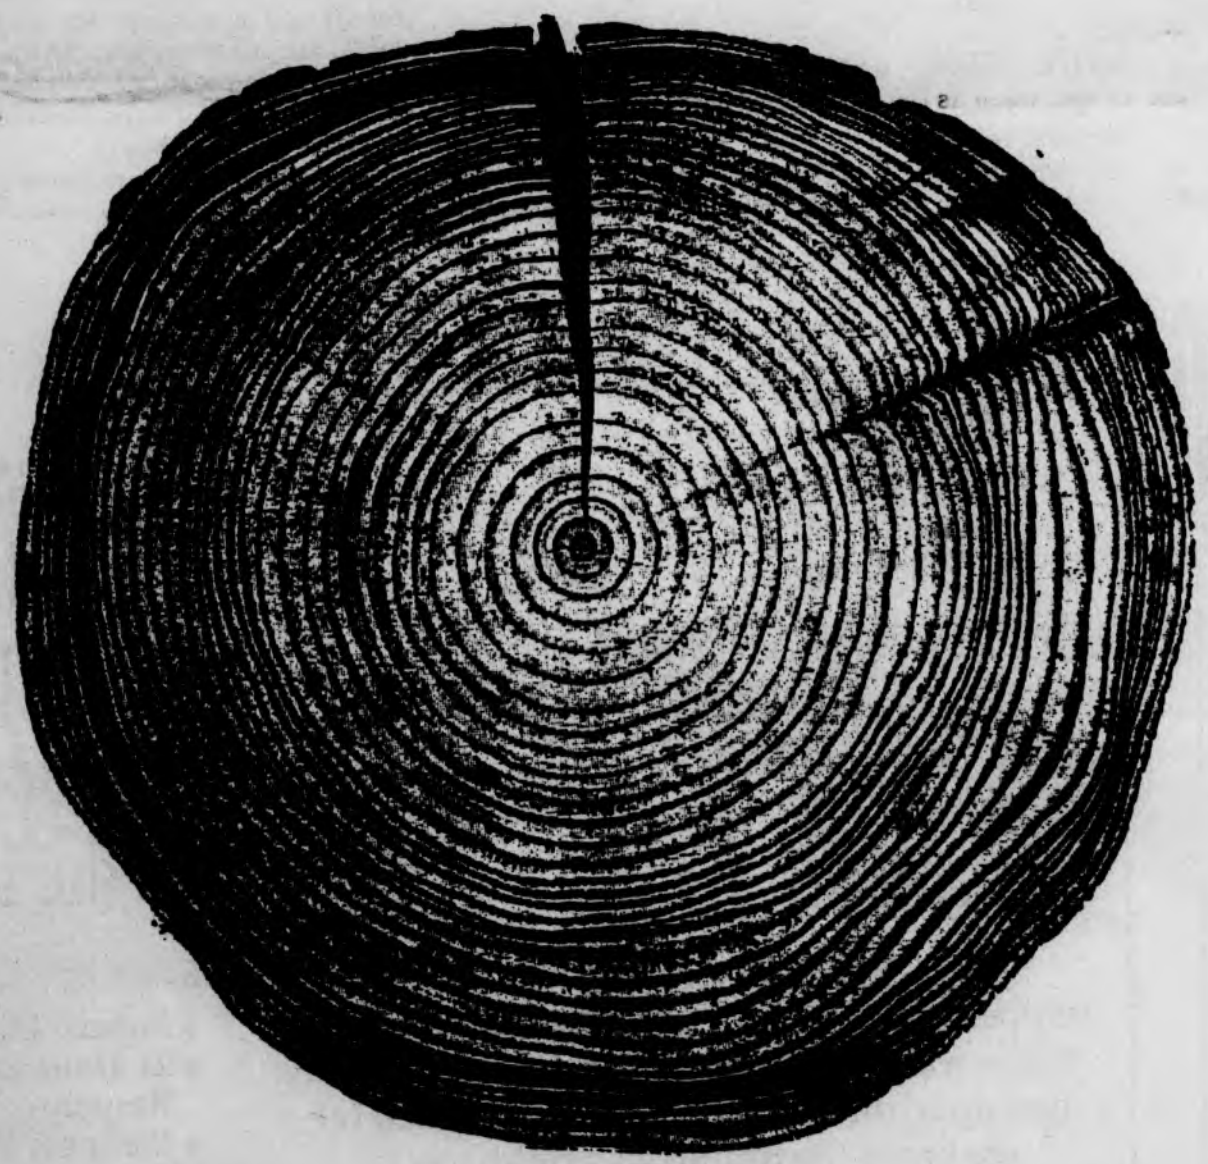
Roy Jones, Tailback/Defensive Back:

"The MVP of our offense. Ray's a gifted athlete in track, wrestling, and football, and has unlimited athletic potential. He's the consummate student, has a 'B' average, has an art portfolio, has recently done well in an essay contest, and above all is a great young man. He is the total package."

Charlie Smith, Tight End/Linebacker:

"Charlie came back after missing last year with injuries and has really come on strong late in the year. He has been a pleasant surprise this year for the team."



Steve Cahill, Lineman/Linebacker:

"Steve is only 155 lbs and he has done a great job on our line anyway, and has been a key to our outside running game. Makes up for his lack of size with technique and quickness."

Paris Cook, Lineman:

"Paris has done a good job for us on special teams this year, and has been playing a role for us offensively and defensively."

Skipper gridmen tame Marion Mustangs

By David Wolcott
Mariner correspondent

The high-school football squad ran their winning streak to two in a row this week with an impressive 22-14 win over Catholic Central League leader Marion.

The Skippers worked their record up to 4-5, while the Mustangs of Marion are now 7-2.

Cohasset coach Ted McDermott was happy with the team effort.

"I really don't consider this game an upset. We thought that with a good game-plan and a good effort we would be able to take the victory," he said.

Senior sensation Ray Jones led the way for the Skippers with another superb effort as he helped tame the Mustang defense as he ran wild for 249 yards with two touchdowns and a two-point conversion to boot.

Sheldon Morgan stepped up and scored the other Skipper touchdown on a 32-yard pass from Peter Collins.

Jones also chipped in on the defensive side of the ball as he came up with 11 tackles and an important interception late in the fourth quarter.

Meriting special appreciation from coach McDermott on this impressive team effort was senior TE Charlie Smith who according to the coach, "Did a tremendous job on establishing a corner on the line so the fullback and the guards could lead Ray through."

Right from the kick-off it seemed that the fans in attendance would be in for a fun event as the two squads treated them to three hours of olde-time two-way down-in-the-dirt football.

The Mustangs started off quick on their first two drives as they inched towards the the Cohasset end-zone, but each time were repelled by a Skipper that would bend, but would not break.

After being inspired by the defensive stand of his teammates, the Ray Jones afternoon special began as he took a second down hand-off from Peter Collins and proceeded to twist and turn his way through the Marion defenders on his way to an 82-yard touchdown jaunt to put his team up 7-0..

The Mustangs came galloping right back though as they put together an impressive drive of their own which culminated in a 30-yard TD to Scott Coffman. A second pass to Coffman secured the two-point conversion and Marion took an 8-7 lead into half-time.

The Skippers regained the lead in the third quarter when Jones went over the left side of the line for a 10-yard TD. Cohasset likes that play so much that they ran it again with the same effect for the two-point conversion to put the Skippers up to stay at 15-8.

The Collins-to-Morgan touchdown connection lengthened the Skipper lead to 22-8 in the fourth quarter, but Marion came right back after that as Peter Anspach plunged over from one-yard out to close the gap to 22-16.

The Mustangs had one last try to tie the score when they got a turnover with just 1:10 remaining in the contest, but they were turned back when Dorian Bryant stuffed an attempted run to secure the Cohasset victory.

Stellar season leads to all-star spots

By David Wolcott
Mariner correspondent

Although their respective years have now come to a close, the Cohasset High boys' and girls' soccer team individual members are now starting to reap the benefits of their impressive seasons.

The girls' squad placed four members of the team on the recently announced South Shore League all-star team, while the boys placed three members on their all-star team.

Leading the parade for the Lady Skippers squadron were seniors Allison Ludlow and Kathleen O'Brien.

Coach Kennan Startzell had praise for both ladies, saying that "Allison was our star player this year, and even though she just switched to goalie recently she didn't miss a beat. She's been with us since grade 8 and is well-respected by her teammates," he said.

"Kathleen O'Brien is our co-captain along with Allison and she too had a great year", Startzell added. "Even though she played on defense this year she still chipped in with a couple of game-winning goals to help the squad."

Two names to remember for the future of Cohasset girls' soccer are the other representatives to the all-star team for the Skippers; sophomores Erin Murphy and Katie Carroll.

Carroll was the heroine of the Skippers post-season efforts as she scored both goals in their opening round victory over Bishop Connolly.

"Erin Murphy was our big scorer this year", said Startzell. "She wasn't available for the play-offs because of a broken collarbone, but she still ended up being the second leading scorer in the league."

The boys' soccer team was also well represented on the all-star team as Doug Ellinger, Mike Connors, and Chris Condrat were all named to the team.

Team coach Keith Clark had high praise for all of his all-stars.

Doug Ellinger was described by Clark as "the best one-on-one defender in the league.

"He really didn't play much last year, but he really came into his own this season. He played all the best forwards in the league and he not only took the ball away from them, he helped get the offense started by working it up to them," he said.

Coach Clark said Mike Connors, "is the player with the best individual ball skills on the team. He's a really intelligent player who made great decisions on the field."

Clark praised Chris Kondrat by saying that he, "is our field general up-front. He sees all the field, and also distributes the ball well among his teammates."

Signups scheduled for spring soccer

All interested soccer players, both girls and boys, from the ages of under eight (birthdays after August 1, 1984) to the ages of under 19 (birthdays after Aug. 1, 1973) can sign-up for the 1993 spring soccer season which starts next April.

Registration for the spring soccer is Thursday Dec. 3, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Deer Hill School.

For those who cannot register then, the Cohasset Soccer Club has representatives available during the recreation league basketball games the following Saturday, Dec. 5, between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. at both the high school and the Deer Hill School.

If you plan to register by mail; you can obtain forms at the main office of the Junior/Senior High School or the Deer Hill School.

Send the completed forms and the registration fees to the Cohasset Soccer Club; 38 Lindon Drive; Cohasset, MA 02025.

The deadline is Dec. 5. The reason for the deadline is an accurate count of players is needed to submit to the Coastal Soccer League by the first of the year.

The fee is $30 for the first child, $25 for the second and third child, and no charge for any additional family member. Make checks payable to: The Cohasset Soccer Club. Registrations are accepted on a first come, first served basis. Registrations mailed in will not be recorded before Dec. 3.

Please note: only those players who are registered as of Dec. 3 are guaranteed a spot on a team. After December 5, however, there is an additional late registration fee of $10 per player.

The Cohasset Soccer Club makes every effort to accommodate any child who wishes to play spring soccer and may not be able to pay the full registration fee by the Dec. 5 deadline.

If you have any questions, please call 383-0579.

Wah Lum Academy hosts homeopathic workshop

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

This weekend at the Wah Lum Kung Fu Academy a different kind of course will be taught.

Instead of learning martial arts, the center will teach a healing art.

Homeopathy, described by instructor Jane Cicchetti as a 200-year-old healing art, is the subject of the Nov. 21 and 22 weekend workshop.

Cicchetti said homeopathy is a natural health-care system which employs highly diluted doses of naturally occuring substances in treating non-acute illnesses, such as headaches and the flu.

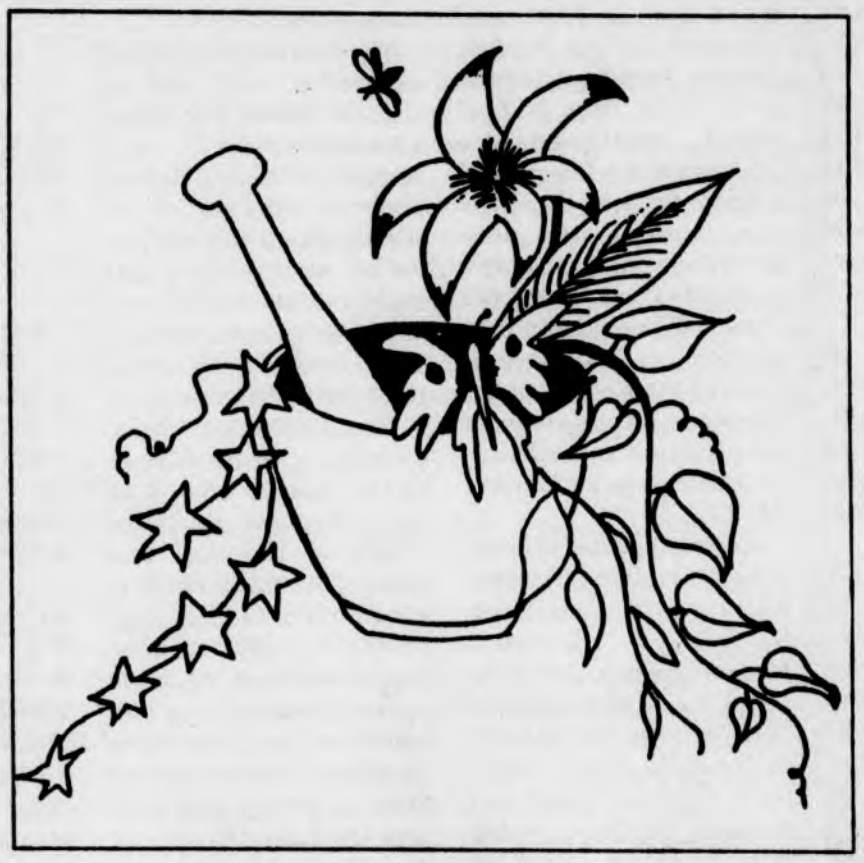
"Homeopathic remedies are safe and non-toxic because the original substance is diluted until the actual amount of matter in the remedy is infinitesimal," Cicchetti writes in her book, "Homeopathy for Injuries and Trauma."

Cicchetti said in some of the higher potencies, there is not any substance left at all.

In fact, Cicchetti said, there have been cases of children getting into and eating most of a homeopathic trauma kit, without any side affects.

"Although we don't recommend that," she said.

Asked how the law of "less is more" works in homeopathy, Cicchetti candidly said she did not know.



"We don't know how it works, but homeopaths have been using this system for 200 years and they have evidence it works," she said.

"Nature is so vast and we are so pompous about (understanding) it."

Cicchetti conceded that nature usually doesn't work along the homeopathic "less is more" lines.

The more alcohol a person drinks, the more drunk the effect, she said.

However, homeopathy is based on the antithesis of that logic.

Cicchetti said a key factor in the efficacy of homeopathic treatments is the "succussion" of the remedy.

She defines succussion in homeopathy as the two-fold action of shaking a liquid and then violently pounding it on a table.

"The premise is that when we dilute a substance and succuss it, it releases the healing potential within the plant or herb," Cicchetti said.

"Ancient texts refer to the healing properties of succussion," she said.

John C. Loupos, owner of the Wah Lum Kung Fu Academy at Jonathan Livingston Square, off Route 3A, said he invited Cicchetti to speak because of the success he has had using homeopathy.

"I had a student who complained of an earache, and said he hadn't been able to get any relief," he said.

Loupos, after consulting a reference book, prescribed a remedy.

"He said the earache disappeared."

The cost of the workshop is $130, and those interested should call Loupos at 383-6822.

Loupos explained that homeopathy is based on the law of similars.

For instance, he said, the substance used to cure a burn is made from a spiny plant which would sting you if you were to touch it.

The substance is ground up and diluted as the remedy for burns, he said.

Loupos, who will enter the New England School of Homeopathy next year, and Cicchetti agree that homeopathic treatments should be confined to mild ailments.

"The first rule of medicine is to do no harm," Loupos said.

"I'll send someone to the doctor," he added.

Cicchetti, who has been studying homeopathy for the past 12 years, operates the Five Elements Center in Mountain Lakes New Jersey.

She said while the concept of homeopathy is hard to accept for Americans, it is widely practiced throughout France and Germany and has been the choice of treatment for the British royal family for several generations.

Discovered in the late 1700s by German Samuel Hahnemmann, Cicchetti said homeopathy has experienced a surge in interest lately by those seeking a holistic alternative to conventional medicine.

The Cohasset Community Center is gearing up for its New Year's Eve Festival Celebrate '93. This is Cohasset's own rendition of the popular First Night in Boston. Events for all ages make it the perfect family activity. 1993 marks the 50th anniversary of the center and this is sure to be a great beginning to a year of special activities.

The evening begins at 5:30 p.m. and ends with a countdown to a pretend midnight at 10 p.m. followed by an Aerotechnic "Confetti Firework" Finale at the corner of the Community Center. The 'earlier midnight' allows for children of all ages to enjoy the finale and people will still have time to go home and celebrate for several hours til midnight with friends and family.

The events take place in the Community Center, the Art Center, Teen Depot, the churches and halls of First Parish, Second Congregational, St. Stevens and on the common.

Professional musical entertainment includes a jazz concert, classical music, songwriter and folksinger, community sing-a-longs, flute and organ recitals, rock 'n roll band, a d.j. and more! Other entertainment includes a comedian/singer who has opened for the Righteous Brothers, professional magicians, jugglers, acrobats, dancers, palm and card readers, sleigh/hay rides and more!

The churches and other non-profit organizations are selling everything from Olde English Dinner complete with plum pudding and wassail to chili, clam chowder, and hot dogs. The Teen Depot will raise funds by selling hot chocolate on the common and the Gymnastic Team glow necklaces. Any local non-profit group is invited to participate by calling the Center. These items are purchased separately from the admission price.

Entry into all musical and entertainment shows only require a Celebrate '93 button. Buttons are on sale at the Community Center beginning Nov. 30 for $5. Children under five are free. From Dec. 21 to 30 buttons are available but will be $10 each.

To alleviate parking and provide a safe environment around the common, please park at the Deer Hill, Music Circus and Osgood parking lots. Continuous free shuttle bus service is available to the common area to anyone wearing a Celebrate '93 button.

Ticket sales are limited, so make your plans now and call your family and friends. What a great way to ring in the New Year. There are simultaneous concerts and events from 5:30 to 10 p.m. with something for everyone. Join us as we kick off '93 with plenty of community spirit.

Xmas pageant performed

America's favorite Christmas story, The Best Christmas Pageant Ever, written by Barbara Robinson, presented by the Cohasset Dramatic Club, promises to be outrageous, lively, funny and wonderful.

The music, sets and costumes add appealing dimensions to this festive production. Don't miss the opportunity to join in the fun of the season with this cheery family show!

A combination of emerging and established artists from local communities bring their experience to the stage. Intense rehearsals have been in progress for the past month. This production is under the direction of the well-known Deborah Carleton. You'll love the surprises and fun!

Performances are Dec. 4, 5, 10, 11 and 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the Second Congregational Church on the Common, Cohasset.

Tickets are $8 for adults; $5 for children under 12 and seniors. For tickets call Lynn Eisenhauer, 446-6601, or purchase at the door.

Loon Mountain trip

The Cohasset Recreation Department accepts registrations for the season's first ski trip, scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 13, to Loon Mountain, Lincoln, NH.

The cost of this trip is $45 per person and the trip is limited to the first 45 registered.

Bus will leave from Cohasset Town Hall at 5:15 a.m., Sunday, Dec. 13, and return at approximately 7 p.m. that evening to Town Hall.

Special beginner packages are available to first-time skiers and those who require equipment rentals should include this at the time of registration. Rental of equipment is $14 and cash should be brought the day of the trip for rental payment. Those who are interested in taking a ski lesson may do so and lessons cost $12 and cash for payment should be brought the day of the trip.

To register for this early season special, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791.

Ski lessons offered

The Cohasset Recreation Department conducts Blue Hill Ski Lesson Registration Thursday, Nov. 19, at the Recreation Office, Cohasset Town Hall, between the hours of 2:30 and 4 p.m. and again in the evening, from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m.

Registration forms must be signed by a parent or guardian for participation in this five-week program. Beginner-thru-advanced-level instruction is available

Small art show

The barn at Bound Brook in Cohasset opens the holiday season with a small art show.

A Wassail Bowl Reception "To Meet the Artists" is at the barn on Sunday, Nov. 22, from 2 to 5 p.m.

Small paintings will be shown by the following artists:

One and all are invited to the barn to begin the holiday celebration Sunday, Nov. 22.

The show continues through Jan. 17.

Monitor Strait's Pond

Observe seasonal changes in marine habitats and join a team led by a trained leader to observe, collect, and analyze the physical, chemical, and biological changes at Strait's Pond for Nov. '92.

Meet at the Weir River Estuary Park on Washington Boulevard, Hull, Saturday, Nov. 21, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., includes a buffet lunch. Dress for field work.

This is the last program in a series of five presented at the Fall Environmental Institute, sponsored by the Hull Public Schools and funded by The Mass Bays Program. The Fall 1992 Institute invites participants from the three watershed towns of Hull, Hingham, Cohasset, and other concerned citizens to learn more about our shared water resources.

The Weir River Estuary at Strait's Pond is in its fourth season of a two-year collecting period. The monitoring program includes 15 stations located within the towns of Hull, Cohasset, and Hingham. The Weir River Estuary project is designed to establish water quality, aquatic life, and physical baseline data for research interpretation, remediative actions, and a long-range management plan for this Area of Critical Environmental Concern (ACEC).

Please register by calling Faith Burbank, 617-740-4913; Linda Beres, 617-925-5693; or Tim Anderson, 617-925-3078.

Fall Job Bank available

Put a student to work! Cohasset High School students will:

Rake leaves, clean your car, babysit, walk your dog, feed your cat, mow your grass, shovel snow and misc. odd jobs. Reasonable rates!

The Social Service League of Cohasset has a new Fall List. Please call 383-0821 or 0771 for names and phone numbers.

Adventure day set

Come join us, Saturday, Nov. 28, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in a fun, challenging and adventurous day at the Cohasset High School Ropes Course.

Rocks & Pine by Joanne Regan is now on display at The Barn at Bound Book. Barn hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. Sundays, till Christmas. For more information, please call 383-2010.

The Ropes Course offers games, problem solving initiatives, trust activities and the excitement of the ropes as a means to develop teamwork, strengthen skills, increase one's self-confidence and expand ones limits — as well as the sheer exhilaration of working with the ropes.

A small donation will be asked.

For further information and to pre-register call Jack Buckley at CHS, 383-6100.

Talk of Alzheimer's

Thursday, Nov. 19, host Wigmore Pierson's guests on Pierson to Person review Alzheimer's Disease: current treatment, research, and impact on families.

Guests are Lois H. Weltman of Cohasset and founder of the Creative Arts Club for Alzheimer's; Kit Brandt, Occupational Therapist; Dr. John R. Delfs, Head of Elder Care at Deaconness Hospital; and Dr. Christopher West, Brigham & Women's Hospital.

In sexual assault case

Police allege more charges may be made

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

Cohasset police believe a former Music Circus official's pending arraignment on sexual assault charges may prompt more victims to come forward.

Edward R. Kasses, who took a leave of absence two days after the alleged assault and later resigned, is charged with indecent assault and battery of a person 18 years or older.

An 18-year-year-old Cohasset man alleges Kasses, who was general manager of the South Shore Music Circus, attacked him June 27 in a Hyannis hotel room after plying him, and another male teenager, with alcohol.

The youths had just completed working at the Cape Cod Melody Tent.

The Tent and the Cohasset Music Circus are operated by the same organization, the South Shore Playhouse Associates.

To SHARE is a family affair

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

For the Kierces of Cohasset, sharing extends well beyond familial bonds.

One Saturday a month, seven of the eight Kierce children and their parents rise at 4:45 a.m. to distribute food through SHARE.

SHARE, a self-help and resource exchange, promotes community volunteerism by providing a bonus everyone can use — food.

Christopher and Rose Kierce, parents of the philanthropic brood, were among those who established a SHARE chapter in town nearly 18 months ago.

Since that time nearly every member of the Kierce family, and at least one in-law, has joined the effort to Chatterton said the impetus to form "cooperative teams" came from both schools because of declining enrollments. He added that Scituate and Cohasset cross country programs may also join.

He explained that approvals must be obtained from the South Shore League and both school committees before the paperwork can be submitted to the

Coleman lives the impossible dream

mariner visits

The year 1967 brings back fond memories for many a New Englander.

Along with Yaz, Lonborg, and Petrocelli — the name Ken Coleman became synonymous with Red Sox baseball, as well as broadcasting excellence.

Coleman's broadcasting ambition started when as a young boy growing up in North Quincy. He was hit with a BB pellet which caused him to lose the sight in his left eye.

While recuperating, he started to play a baseball game with dice. He used to broadcast those games outloud to himself.

"I can can honestly say that since the eighth grade, I've known that I wanted to be a broadcaster," he recalls.

There would be one challenge though before he would be able to follow his dream — stage fright struck whenever he got near a microphone.

"When I graduated from high-school in 1943 I went into the armed forces and served in the China/Burma/India theatre of war," he says. "While there, I was offered a position broadcasting to only a few thousand troops, but I didn't accept it. The idea of speaking into

Cohasset's week

Unpaid taxes due

Statements have been mailed to those property owners who still owe their Fiscal 1992 real estate taxes.

Demands were sent from the treasurer-collector's office June 30, and Deputy Collector John P. Riley served warrants on those delinquent accounts during the week of July 20.

In some cases, these taxes remain unpaid due to a change in ownership. Any new homeowners since Jan. 1, 1991, who fail to receive a notice should contact the office immediately.

Payment must be received in full, in the form of a bank check, money order or cash, on or before Friday, Dec. 18. Any properties that remain unpaid at that time will be processed for a tax taking and the town will place a lien on the property.

For further information please call the treasurer-collector's office at 383-9900, extension 113.

Budget season opens

Union members with contractually guaranteed raises may be the only town employees to receive salary hikes during fiscal year 1994.

The news came Tuesday, Nov. 24 at the first of what will be a series of sessions to prepare next year's town budget.

Chairman of the advisory committee, Nancy A. Roth, distributed budget preparation instructions to department heads at the meeting.

"Our overall goal is to create a budget without an override and without dramatic service reductions," she said.

She noted that the town passed several overrides last spring.

Members of the advisory committee, Roth said, met with the town accountant on the '94 budget and believe it can be put together satisfactorily without an override.

"Projections were based on level-funding from the state and level-funding of local receipts," she added.

While the advisory committee has adopted a fiscally conservative approach to formulating the FY'94 budget, Roth said requests for capital items will not be automatically denied.

"There is some flexibility with capital expenditures," she said.

"We would have to hear what they are."

She noted that the outcome of several unresolved contracts, however, could adversely impact the advisory committee projections.

"Like the fire contract," she said.

Department heads were asked to give their proposed FY'94 budgets to town accountant Michael Buckley by Dec. 18.

Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said warrant articles for the annual town meeting must be received by him by Jan. 11.

Village parking enforced

Selectmen will ask police to enforce the posted one-hour parking limit in the village rather than slash the allowed time by half or more.

Ralph Harrison, owner of Cohasset Colonial Pharmacy, asked the board last night to cut parking time from the currently posted one-hour limit to 15 minutes.

He explained that cars are parked for several hours in front of the pharmacy.

"A lot of elderly come in and they can't find a parking space. I've never had so many complaints," he said.

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke said parking rules must be enforced.

"If there's not increased enforcement, it doesn't matter what signs we have," she said.

Goedecke said 15 minutes was not reasonable but the board might consider a 30-minute limit if policing didn't work.

Forest Street crash

Police cited Salvatore P. Cefalu, 19, of Hull with operating to endanger, failure to stay in marked lanes, and speeding after the car he was driving hit another car head-on last week.

Cefalu was traveling west on Forest Street when his car struck the Honda driven by Erin M. Hunt, 21, of Cohasset, Thursday (Nov. 19) at 7:47 p.m., police said.

Suffering from injuries to her face, knee, and ankle, Hunt was transported to South Shore Hospital where she was transferred to Brigham and Women's. She was released Sunday and is recuperating at home, Police Sgt. Brian Noonan said.

Cefalu, and his passengers, Jennifer Delise, 17, and Michael Gilbrook, 18, all of Hull were treated at South Shore Hospital.

None of the occupants were wearing seat belts, police said.

Godzik says 'thanks'

Health Agent Dr. Joseph Godzik wrote to selectmen to thank the personnel in the building department and selectmen's office for "doing extra duty answering the telephone and taking messages during the absence of the board of health administrative secretary."

He said the cooperation was not only a real help to him but facilitated citizens' reaching the health department which allowed business to be conducted in a timely fashion.

Health board administrative secretary Carol Oteri-Puffer was among other employees who did not work in their offices at town hall until lead-dust samples reached acceptable levels.

Lead-dust recently seeped into town hall after painters used power sanders to remove old paint from the building's exterior.

Cohasset kids do well on state tests

By Sean P. Sweeney
Mariner correspondent

Results for Cohasset kids compare favorably with those across the state on 1992 assessment tests, Supt. Stephen Hart says.

Assessment testing helps schools evaluate their curriculum. No individual scores are calculated and results are compiled and reported on a system-wide basis for students in the fourth, eighth, and 12th grades.

Testing is conducted every two years and scores are based on a scale ranging from 1000 to 1600 points.

This year the state added a writing test to the traditional testing areas of mathematics, science, reading, and social studies.

At the fourth-grade level, the state average was 1330 and Cohasset's scores in the four standard areas ranged from 1370 to 1410. At the eighth-grade level, Cohasset's scores, ranging from 1400 to 1470, were well above the state average of 1320.

And the state average for the 12th grade was between 1310 and 1320. Cohasset seniors scored from 1385 to 1450 in the four standard categories.

Cohasset's science scores were the highest of the four categories at both the eighth and 12th-grade levels. At the fourth-grade level, reading and mathematics were the strongest areas.

Cohasset kids finished slightly behind the average for residential suburbs. The state average for residential suburbs for all grade levels tested was 1428 while Cohasset's average was 1418.

Hart said the 10-point differential is not significant enough to suggest a problem. A gap of 50 or more points would be reason for concern, he said.

He also pointed out that Cohasset results from the past three years show little statistical change. Because the three years represent different students being tested, this shows stability within the system, Hart said.

Along with the testing, students filled out questionnaires. They were encouraged to answer the question on homework candidly and results indicated that more homework does lead to higher scores on the test, Hart said.

He explained the next step for teachers is to evaluate the results and how they pertain to the curriculum.

"There is always room for improvement. Our goal is to improve — and you do that by improving the curriculum," Hart said.

In addition to assessment tests, the state testing program until recently included Basic Skills Testing, which was nixed due to cost and the view that individual achievement tests are sufficient, Hart added.

Sexual assault case . . .

Kasses was the general manager in charge of operations and booking of both theaters, according to Playhouse Associates President Bruce Cameron, who lives in Cohasset.

The victim told Hyannis Police that Kasses had booked a hotel room in Hyannis for him and the other male worker so they would not have to drive home that night after the performance.

Police Sgt. Brian Noonan said Cohasset Police, in conjunction with the State Police, conducted lengthy interviews this summer with former and current Circus workers as a result of the charges.

"The whole purpose was to see if there were other victims," Noonan said.

"We feel there is a good possibility that other victims are out there and hope that it will make them feel more comfortable coming forward now that there is court action," Noonan explained.

On Friday, Nov. 20 a clerk-magistrate in Barnstable District Court determined there was sufficient evidence against Kasses to issue a complaint.

According to Hyannis Sgt. Joseph Hudick, Kasses will be arraigned in Barnstable District Court Jan. 7.

Kasses' attorney, Bruce Gilmore of Hyannis, was unavailable for comment.

Det. Reid Hall of the Hyannis Police said the victim and his parents went to the Barnstable District Attorney's office July 1 with the charges.

The victim's father said the incident has been traumatic for the whole family.

"We have been through a lot in the past five months," he said.

His son is attending college out of state, he said.

Several weeks later he resigned from the position, which paid him approximately $125,000 annually.

Cameron said he was not aware of any complaints against Kasses until recently.

The charges against Kasses, Cameron added, should not reflect poorly on the South Shore Music Circus.

"It has nothing to do with the Circus, it is between two people," he said.

"That man (Kasses) is no longer associated with the Circus," Cameron added.

Burt Pratt, vice president of trustees of the South Shore Playhouse Associates, declined to comment on the charges.

Ken Coleman . . .

a microphone just frightened me."

But as soon as he left the service, Coleman took matters into his own hands. He entered Curry College, then in downtown Boston, and worked to overcome his shyness in front of a microphone.

His first job out of college was sportscaster for WSYB in Rutland, Vermont where he announced the Rutland Royals baseball games. The Royals were part of the old Northern League, which was much like the local Cape Cod League of today.

From there, Ken moved on shortly afterwards to WJDA in his home area of Quincy, where he announced high-school football games. He eventually became a program director at that station, before moving on to the sports department of WNEB in August of 1951.

Almost a year to the day after that, Ken was received his first major-market break when he was offered the job of announcer for the Cleveland Browns of the National Football League.

He quickly became a jack-of-all-trades in the Cleveland media as he would eventually in his 14 years: announce both the Browns and the Cleveland Indians on television; work the 6 and 11 o'clock sportscast at a local station; have his own radio show; and also accept other outside commercial work.

It was his involvement with the Cleveland Indians that would bring him to the Cohasset area in 1962. A love affair was formed then that still lasts today.

"Dick Donovan, an Indians' pitcher and childhood friend of mine, invited Herb Score and I to his house in Cohasset for a cookout," he recalls. "I'd seen the town before in my childhood while going to Paragon Park at Nantasket Beach, but this was my first real chance to see the area.

"It was a simply gorgeous day", he remembers. "And Dick showed me all around the sights of town. I remember going back to Cleveland and telling my wife, Ellen, that if we ever got a chance to get back to Boston, I have found the place where we are going to live."

Four years later in 1966, Coleman got his chance. A broadcasting job opened up with the Red Sox when Curt Gowdy decided to take a job with NBC.

"Even though I was firmly established in Cleveland at the time, all thing being equal, there was no way I could pass up this opportunity," he says.

The year 1966 was anything but a dream year for the Red Sox as they finished 1/2 game out of last place — the closest the Red Sox had come to being a 'cellar-dwellar' until this past season's exercise in futility.

Neither Ken nor the Red Sox realized how close they actually were to having the most fondly remembered Red Sox season on record.

But the Impossible Dream season of 1967 did not start out to be that much of a dream.

"On opening day against Chicago, the stands were only half-full. Then we took on the Yankees in their home opener, and Billy Rohr threw that amazing one-hitter in his first appearance. And still only 13,000 people got to see it in person," Coleman says.

mariner visits

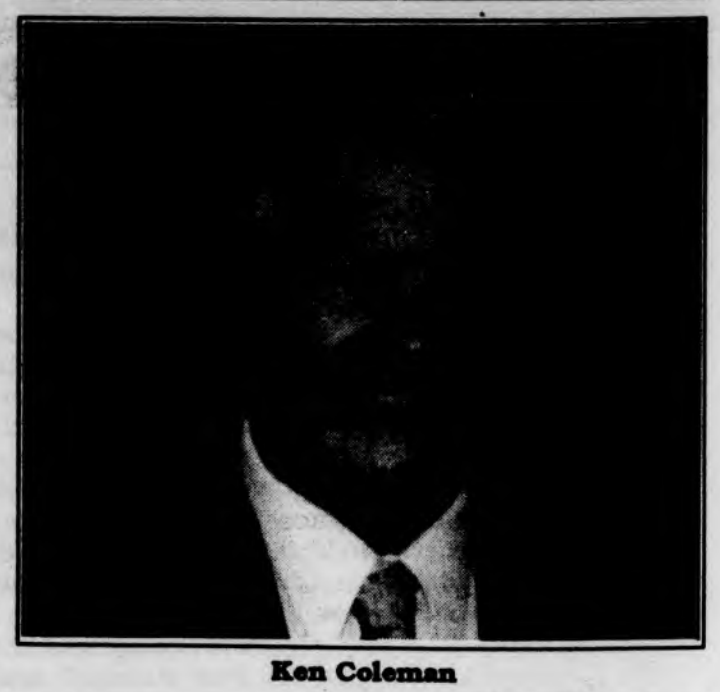
He expounded on the season in his 1987 book "The Impossible Dream Remembered".

Coleman says in the forward to the book: "In 1967 I enjoyed the finest year of my career. As I look back, I still feel a satisfying sense of accomplishment for what we did as a team; but the thing that most strongly remains from me about 1967 is the familiarity I feel with so many people."

Coleman would continue with the Red Sox until 1974 when a change in radio stations carrying the games led him to accept a job with the Cincinnati Reds until 1978.

They would indeed be productive years as the Reds won World Championships in 1975 and 1976. The 1975 series was against his old friends the Red Sox, and has gone down as one of the greatest battles in World Series play ever.

Coleman would eventually return to the Red Sox radio booth in 1979, where he stayed until 1989.



In total, Coleman has broadcast baseball for 34 years and pro football for 14.

"I have felt that on a professional level I have been very lucky with my life," he says. "I've had the opportunity to do something that I love for a living, and that is something that not many can say."

Coleman is still keeping busy to this day with his "Ken's Corner" segments on radio station WJDA, as well as broadcasting Harvard football, and he is also in constant demand as an after-dinner and motivational speaker.

Although he has thoroughly enjoyed doing both, Coleman professes that he has always had a preference of doing radio over television.

"In today's world, television is seen as the place to be.

Ken Coleman

But I really don't think that TV is the announcer's medium, as all announcers really should be doing is putting a caption on a picture like a good photographer.

"Radio, on the other hand allows you to paint your own word pictures, and gives the announcer much more room to be creative. In a way the ball field is your canvas and you are allowed to be the artist for the listeners."

Ken Coleman can still be seen by all as a visible member of this community whether taking walks around town or snorkeling near Sandy or Black Rock Beach.

"Cohasset is just a wonderful place for me and my wife to live," he says. "When I'd go on road trips with the team, I couldn't wait to get to smell the breeze of the ocean, and then I knew I was home again. This is a great, great community and I am happy to be part of it."

Coleman bats for the Jimmy Fund

Ken Coleman and the Jimmy Fund go as far back and Ken Coleman and the Red Sox.

"Almost as soon as I joined the club in 1966, I got involved," he recalls. "I knew about the Jimmy Fund back in 1947 when it was involved with the Boston Braves baseball club.

"But I didn't become a volunteer until 1966, and then found that I loved working with the people."

He became a leader and a spokesman within the volunteer group, and was eventually asked in 1978 to become the Executive Director. Former director Bill Koster, was ill with cancer at the time and could no longer fulfil his duties when Ken was asked to take over.

The Jimmy Fund was started as the Children's Cancer Research Foundation for research and treatment of childhood cancer.

The fund became the official charity of the Boston Braves and the Variety Club of New England. It became part of a mass appeal aired on the show "Truth or Consequences", where donations were solicited so that a young boy with cancer, named "Jimmy" to protect his identity, could buy a television set to watch his beloved Boston Braves from his hospital bed. When the Braves left town in 1953, the Red Sox stepped in and supported the charity.

"My association with the Jimmy Fund has been the most rewarding part of my professional life," Coleman says.

"This is not a game, this part is life and death. It has been a marvelous privilege for me to be able to see the fine work that the doctors have done at the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, which is now recognized as the leading comprehensive cancer institute in the world.

"I've been to weddings of former patients and seen them grow to become parents themselves.

"But I've also seen the sad side and attended funerals of former patients I have known. It hasn't all been a bed of roses, but you can see that advances are being made in the search for a cure."

CHS, Hull hockey may combine

Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association (MIAA), which oversees high school athletics.

The MIAA deadline is May 1 for the 1992-93 school year.

Chatterton said that several small schools in the central part of the state have successfully combined athletic programs.

"It's really the start toward regionalization," he says.

Chatterton said plans are for Cohasset to be the host school for hockey and Scituate for cross country.

He said about 25 Cohasset kids in grades seven-through-12 at the junior/senior high will try out for the Skippers' hockey team this year.

Many Cohasset and Hull hockey players have already played together in the South Shore Seahawks, the local youth hockey program that draws from five area towns.

It's the modulator

Wendy Copithorne, program director for Continental Cablevision said a new modulator will be permanently installed at town hall in early 1993.

In a letter to selectmen, Copithorne explained that the modulator has been the source of recent problems with live coverage of selectmen's meetings.

"I believe that is due to the fact that we transport that equipment back and forth from different locations," she said.

Copithorne said general manager Joseph Hayes has okay'ed the purchase of the new modulator.

Assoc. members needed

The conservation commission needs two associate members. Interested citizens should contact the selectmen's office in town hall, at 383-9900.

60 Minutes to film

Cohasset could be featured in an upcoming '60 Minutes' segment on restraining orders and domestic abuse.

Police Sgt. Brian Noonan said he was contacted Tuesday by a probation officer at the Quincy District Court.

"He asked me if I would be willing to talk to 60 Minutes," Noonan said.

Producers of the show plan to interview officials from several South Shore towns, including Weymouth, Quincy and Cohasset.

The May 1978 domestic shooting in Cohasset — in which two adults were killed and three children wounded — lead to the development of restraining orders in the state.

A month after the incident, the Abuse Prevention Act was signed into law.

❑ Robert and Lucy Leonard were guests of honor at a celebration marking their golden wedding anniversary. An open house for more than 75 well-wishers bearing innumerable tokens of friendship was hosted by their two sons, Bob Jr., and Roger, along with help from their lovely wives, Mary and Karen. The couple was married Nov. 15, 1942.

Robert Leonard, in his 77th year, is still employed. He is the plumbing and gas inspector for the Town of Cohasset.

Lucy Leonard fills her time as a volunteer at the Cohasset Consignment Shop. One innovative gift was a one-year paid subscription to cable T.V.

The Leonards will be brand new customers...happy viewing folks!!

❑ John H. Mullett of Cohasset has scored a hole-in-one at Cohasset Golf Club and entered the 32nd annual Drambuie Rusty Nail Home-in-One Sweepstakes. The 165-yard ace was scored at hole #15 Sept. 25. Mullett and Gene R. Peterson, II, the golf professional who validated the sweepstakes entry, are both eligible to win the grand prize, a one-week trip for two to Scotland, VIP tour of the Drambuie Liqueur Co. Ltd. and $1,000 cash. Fabulous second- and third-place prizes include five personalized, professional golf bags and 100 sets of a dozen Titleist golf balls.

We sure wish you the best of luck!!!

❑ Herb and Isabell Gleason must be in seventh heaven; they have a wonderful great-grandson named Cody Lawrence Gleason, son of Michele (Brini) and Robert Gleason of Carver. Cody was born Oct. 16 at Jordan Hospital.

His grandparents are Nancy Brini of Plymouth, Emily Gleason of Scituate, Clyde Brini of Springfield and Bob Gleason of Hanover. Heartiest congratulations to you all!

❑ Speaking of baby boys, let's extend a grand welcome to Jacob William McAuliffe, son of William D. and Carole McAuliffe, grandson of Jeanne and William McAuliffe and Sylvester and Barbara Martin, and great-grandson of Shirley Laidlaw.

You can bet that Jacob will receive tons of love from that family; they have tons to give. Jacob was born Oct. 28 at South Shore Hospital. Enjoy that baby everyone!!

❑ Timothy J. Maroney Jr. of Cohasset has been appointed chairman for the '93 Boston Walk America. In his role as chairman, Maroney, a managing partner at Sterling Partnership Inc., will coordinate and organize the fund-raising event which takes place April 25. The March of Dimes writes they will benefit from Maroney's expert knowledge of the Greater Boston business community. In addition to undertaking Walk America, he will be an active member of the Board of Directors for the Massachusetts March of Dimes.

❑ Brett W. Cogill, son of Brian and Joanne Cogill, has enlisted in the Army under the provisions of the Delayed Entry Program. Brett reported Nov. 25 to Fort Jackson, S.C., for completion of the Army's eight-week basic training course. Upon completion of basic, he reports to Fort Sam Houston, Texas, for completion of the Army's advanced specialized training course in the selected career field of Medical Supply Specialist. Through the GI Bill, Cogill is eligible for $10,800 toward a college or vocational education.

❑ America's favorite Christmas story, "The Best Christmas Pageant Ever," written by Barbara Robinson, presented by the Cohasset Dramatic Club, promises to be outrageous, lively, funny and wonderful. The music, sets and costumes will add appealing dimensions to this festive production. A combination of emerging and established artists from local communities bring their experience to the stage. Under the direction of Deborah Carleton this production promises surprises and fun. They will be held Dec. 4, 5, 10, 11 and 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the Second Congregational Church on the Common. Tickets are $8 adults, $5 kiddos under 12 and seniors.

For tickets call Lynn Eisenhauer at 446-6601 or purchase at the door.

❑ Speaking of Dec. 5, don't forget the Snowflake Fair, held at the Beechwood Congregational Church from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Lunch (corn or clam chowder) starts at 11:30 a.m., Santa is there from 1 to 2 p.m., and they have their famous Beachglass candy, homemade items, baked goods, ornaments and wreaths.

Don't miss it.

❑ Finally, want to wish our son-in-law, John, a happy birthday, and Clark a happy anniversary (thanks for 29 wonderful years, here's to the next 29...) and hope that all of you have a wonderful Thanksgiving holiday (let me know if anything exciting happens).

Rau/Kierce

At an Oct. 15 wedding in St. Anthony's Church, June Rau, daughter of Ernest and Virginia Rau of Milton, became the bride of Robert Kierce.

He is the son of Christopher and Rose Kierce of Cohasset.

The Rev. John Keohane officiated. A reception followed at the Sons of Italy in Quincy.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her best friend, Judy Beaulieu of Milton as maid of honor.

Serving as best man was the groom's brother, Paul Kierce of Hull.

The bride is a graduate of Milton High School and Quincy Junior College. She is employed at the Bank of Boston.

The groom is a graduate of Lakota High School in Westchester, Ohio and Northeastern University. He is employed at Curry College.

After a wedding trip to Virginia, the couple is residing in Cohasset.

obituaries

Catherine G. Donohue

Catherine G. (Clougher) Donohue, 89, of Cohasset, a native of Ireland, died Nov. 19 at the home of her daughter, Nancy Cahill of Brockton, after a months-long battle with cancer.

Mrs. Donohue was born and educated in County Roscommon, Ireland.

She came to the United States when she was 17 years old and lived at first with an aunt in Boston's Jamaica Plain section, later moving in with a sister who had come to the United States earlier.

She was a nanny, taking care of young children.

In 1931, she married Dennis Donohue, a native of Killarney, County Kerry, Ireland.

They bought a new house in Roslindale, and she lived there 40 years. Mr. Donohue died in 1970.

Mrs. Donohue moved to Cohasset 18 years ago.

Mrs. Donohue leaves two daughters, Eileen Buckley of Cohasset, and Nancy Cahill of Brockton, and two sons, Dennis Donohue of Dedham and Kevin Donohue of Whitman; 12 grandchildren; and five great-grandchildren.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Nov. 23 in St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in St. Joseph's Cemetery, West Roxbury.

The McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer St., Cohasset handled the arrangements.

Donations may be made to the Old Colony Hospice, 14 Page Terrace, Stoughton 02072.

Courage & generosity

Newcomers to the United States are often struck with the uniqueness of our quintessential holiday—Thanksgiving.

It bespeaks a vision that sees the hand of Providence in America's destiny—a notion foreign to most other peoples.

Beginning with the 17th century settlement of Plimoth, the recognition of, and the appreciation for, the beneficence of the Creator toward America are manifest.

Today standing on the heights of the replicated version of that first rude New England settlement, of a chill November evening, looking out to the cold ocean beyond, one can scarcely imagine the strangeness and darkness of this new world. How small this village was on the edge of a vast wilderness to one side and a cruel sea on the other.

In their courage to seek a new world, in order to worship as their consciences dictated, the pilgrims brought ashore the hope of religious freedom. This courage, from the beginning, is the source of all of our national virtues—without the first virtue of courage, there are no others.

While the settlement was in part composed of those seeking religious freedom, there were also a number of "strangers" (so called by the pilgrims) come to the colony with entrepreneurial hopes. This group of religious and economic visionaries represent the promise of American life—freedom.

Could any of the new immigrants imagine that this village of wood and straw would be the threshold to the future for a great civilization?

Through their charity to the new settlers the Wampanoags (People of the Dawn) represent the best that is in any people—generosity to strangers. They personify the bounty and open handedness that is part of America's heritage from its first inhabitants.

The harvest after that first hard winter on the rocky New England coast was a cause for celebration that has echoed down through the generations.

It was President Lincoln, in 1863 amid the tragedy and glory that was the Civil War, who proclaimed Thanksgiving as an official state holiday.

The imagination turns to this great man, beset with a war bleeding his nation, taking time between sorrows, to give thanks to his God—and recommending the same to his countrymen, friend and foe alike.

Again, Lincoln represents generosity and courage tempered by wisdom—the best that is in our people.

The particular genius of the experiment known as the United States, lies in allowing the individual to define (or not) his relationship with the Deity through individual choice of religion.

For a nation without a state religion, Americans are among the most devotional people on the earth.

In the patterned quilt that reflects our religious diversity, is a notion that is common to all Americans—a commitment to the "American way of life." While none of us can define this sentiment in so many words—all of us know what it means.

Thanksgiving is the holiday that reflects this meaning—each in our own way—different and yet somehow the same.

Gridiron Club thanks residents

The Cohasset Gridiron Club wants to extend our sincere thanks to all residents and business owners who contributed to its annual fund-raising drive Sunday, Nov. 22.

Members of Cohasset High School football team went door-to-door through town in a driving rainstorm to solicit donations for the Cohasset Gridiron Club scholarship funds.

The drive was successful and once again the Gridiron Club will continue its tradition of providing scholarship funds to qualified Cohasset High School seniors.

Thank you to everyone for your continued support of the Cohasset Gridiron Club and the Cohasset football program.

Ropes day offers high adventure

letters

To the Editor:

Last weekend we participated in the "Ropes Course Open Woods" morning coordinated by Alternative School Director Jack Buckley. Eager for a new adventure on a pleasant fall day, we did not expect that we would challenge our minds and bodies as far as we did. Little we knew of the muscles that would be called into use!

After some warm-up games, trust exercises with partners, and a group problem-solving activity, safety procedures were thoroughly explained. We harnessed ourselves into safety belts, clipped onto safety lines, donned hard hats, and, then, it was time to ascend. With the encouragement of all members of the group, particularly the trained Alternative School students, we hesitantly began to climb the narrow, wobbly ladders leading to the various elements of the obstacle course 30 feet up in the trees.

Some more reluctant than others, all nervously poised at the start of one or more high-wire activities, a few, perhaps, thinking about descending the ladder, we nonetheless all experienced one or more of the course obstacles.

Fear of heights was overcome, trust in others was learned or reenforced, self-confidence was enhanced, and pleasure in group work was experienced. We also had a lot of fun.

We were very impressed with and thankful for the expertise, maturity and helpfulness of the students who assisted Jack Buckley. There were also other enthusiastic adult volunteers who kept us up on the ropes.

Because of Jack Buckley's vision, and financial support from the school, PSO and others, the school department has a unique resource that can benefit students and adults in many ways. It is obvious that the course works as a common experience for Alternative School students, who also have the ability to give back to the school and community what they've learned. We hope you will continue to support the ropes course program for them, for other students as a curriculum offering, and as a community program.

We encourage those who haven't experienced the thrill of balancing on a high wire, or jumping into the air on the zapline, or traversing the pirate's cross, or belaying themselves to the ground, to come to another adventure day on the high school ropes course, Friday, Nov. 27, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Be sure to call Jack Buckley at 383-6100 to let him know you're ready for a special challenge!

More on hunting with steel vs. lead

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to Stephen Bartow's letter which appeared in the Nov. 19 edition of the Mariner concerning the effect of the lead shot/steel shot controversy on the number of crippled sea ducks seen along our Cohasset coast.

I am sure most hunters agree with Stephen's opinion that the outlawing of lead shot has made a major negative impact on their sport.

However, I don't believe this is the issue in the broad sense. If the rules of the game change, one has to adapt to the new rules. I don't believe hunters can just keep hunting the way they did using lead shot when they have to use steel shot.

To me a responsible hunter takes the new requirement of shot material into consideration when hunting. He learns how the new shot effects the kill range of his gun, especially under the often severe conditions when rocking around in a small boat in the ocean.

The decision on the part of Federal and State officials to change to steel shot was not taken without a tremendous amount of investigation and scientific study. The Fish and Wildlife departments depend on hunters and fishermen for their very existence and the last thing they want to do is unnecessarily upset hunters unless they are convinced it was the right thing to do.

I believe, most cripples can be chased in a motor boat and shot if the hunters will make the effort to do so.

Volunteers and donors sought

(Editor's note: The following is an open letter to the citizens of Cohasset.)

To The Citizens of Cohasset:

With the approach of the season for annual giving to charities of our choice, we ask for your consideration of FISH.

FISH is a group of townspeople organized to help their neighbors in need. For over 20 years we have provided transportation for people unable to get to medical appointments by the usual means. Many of our clients are elderly or cannot drive and have no other services available to them.

Our volunteers give one day a month and often extra time if other drivers are needed. We usually make two or three trips a day, including trips to Boston and other area hospitals and doctors.

To maintain this service costs money, primarily for our answering service and mailings. We depend on the support of community organizations, churches and individuals. We do need your support if this neighbor-to-neighbor service is to continue. We think that our small town engenders a feeling of caring and responsibility for our neighbors in need, and we ask you to help us with your contributions.

Volunteers are needed in three categories:

Regular drivers — drive one day a month on a regular schedule; back-ups — on duty one morning a month to find an emergency driver if necessary; and emergency drivers — drive when regular driver has more calls than he/she can handle.

Some drivers prefer not to drive to Boston and are so scheduled.

Call Doris McNulty, 383-1886, or Gertrude Hooper, 383-1111, for further information or to sign up.

Contributions may be sent to FISH/treasurer, Mrs. Catherine Kearns, 11 James Lane, Cohasset, 02025.

Doris R. McNulty, President

South Shore Republicans to meet

South Shore leaders from Bristol, Barnstable, Plymouth and Norfolk counties meet Monday, Nov. 30 at Isaac's on the Waterfront, Plymouth, to salute all Republican candidates, Division Chairman Polly Logan of Cohasset said.

The meeting that follows the social hour and dinner begins at 8 p.m. In addition to candidates, the highlight of the meeting is a review of media and polling data reviewed by David Williams of Salem who provided services for Congressional candidates Peter Blute of Worcester, Peter Torkildsen of Danvers and Daniel Daly of Hingham.

Other elections reviewed are presented by Tom Vallee of Waltham, consultant for Michael J. Sullivan of Abington who won over 60 per center of the vote. All Republican leaders will be urged to recruit candidates for up-coming town and city offices.

Logan noted that Rhode Island Republicans won Secretary of State, Treasurer and Attorney General as well as made gains in the General Court, and they utilized their "farm team" candidates who had won previous town and city elections. Leon Lombardi receives special commendation for the outstanding service he has given as Party Chairman.

Reservations may be made by contacting Polly Logan 383-0031, Donna Bowman 398-3079, Larry Novak 508-588-1828, Rita Kechejian 508-588-7277, Brenda Chabot 508-679-8788 and Geo. Decas 508-947-4433.

New state of the art crosswalk signs will be placed in the village for pedestrian safety.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

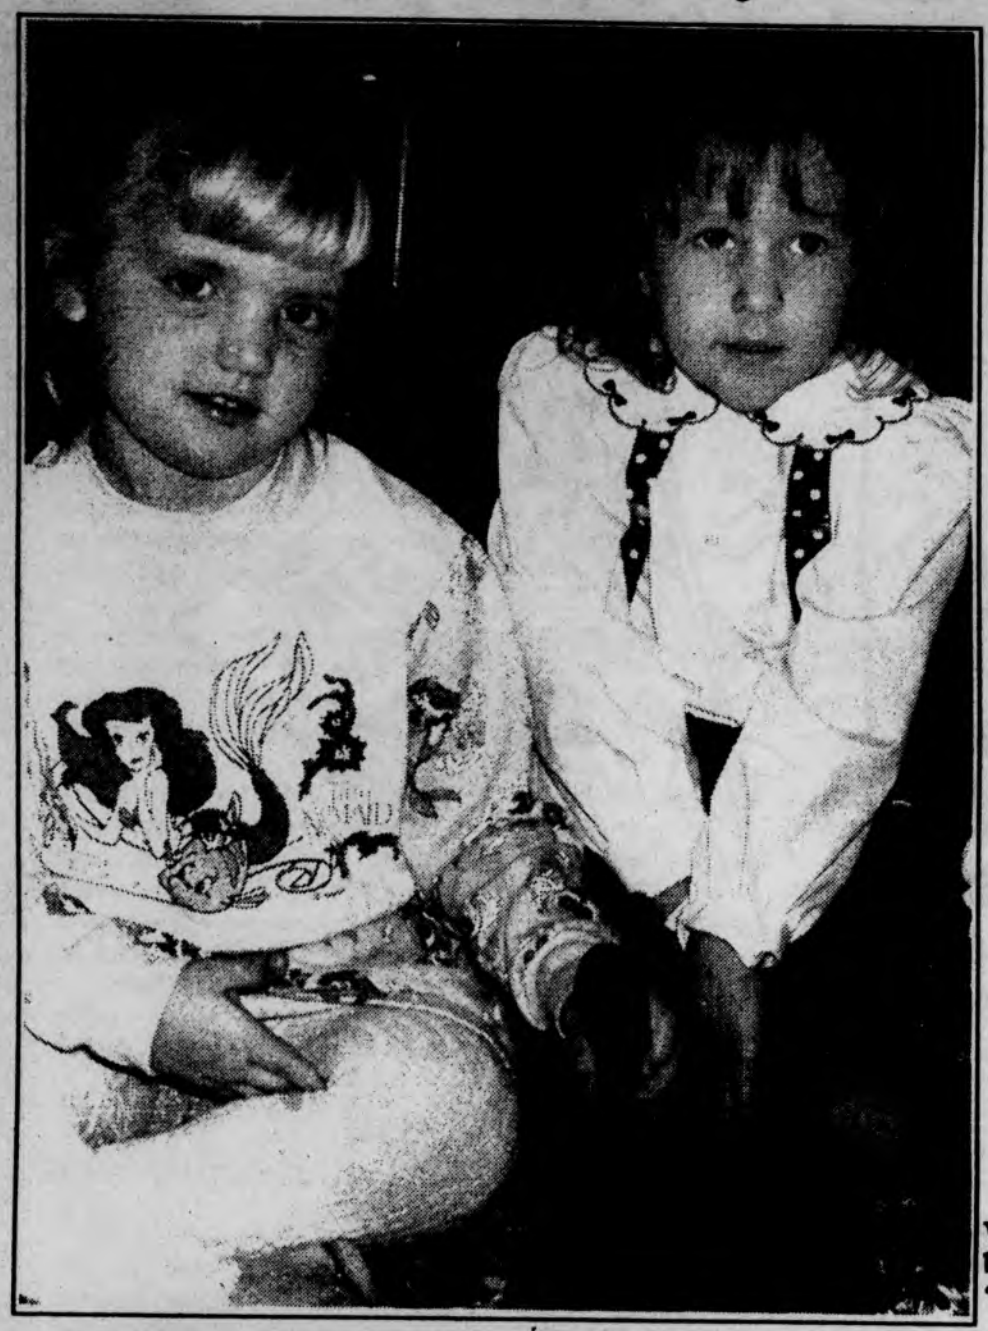
QUESTIONS	Senator Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth) 722-1646 Room 416B	Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Cohasset) 722-2800 ext.7957 Room 134
"Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local senators' votes on six roll calls and local representatives' votes for five roll calls from the week of November 16-20.
GRAD TAX (H 4001) — A joint constitutional convention session of the legislature approved 132-39 (House approved 110-31, Senate approved 22-8), a proposed constitutional amendment establishing a graduated income tax. The graduated tax would impose higher rates on taxpayers in higher income brackets and lower rates on those in lower income brackets. the measure now needs approval by the 1993-94 legislature and then would go on the ballot for voter consideration in November 1994. Supporters said the measure would insure that the wealthy pay their fair share of taxes and would lower taxes on most low and middle income families. Opponents said a graduated tax would weaken economic growth because it is a disincentive toward working harder and is based on the premise that the more a person works, the more the state takes away. (A "Yea" vote is for the graduated income tax. A "Nay" vote is against it).	N	Y
PAY RAISES (H 6208) — House 91-19, Senate 24-2, approved and sent to Governor Weld the bill providing a 13 percent pay raise for some 50,000 state workers. The first hike of 6 percent would come on December 2 and the final 7 percent on June 28, 1993. The raises are estimated to cost $55 million in the remainder of the current fiscal year and $195 million in fiscal 1994. Supporters said these deserving workers have not had a raise in five years and are entitled to this reasonable hike which was negotiated by Governor Dukakis in 1991. Opponents said the state cannot afford the hike and argued it will lead to layoffs, cuts in human service programs and/or higher taxes. Speaker Flaherty informed House members that any representatives who have relatives on the state payroll should vote "present" in order to avoid a potential conflict of interest. (A "Yea" vote is for the pay raises. A "Nay" vote is against them).	N	N
COLA (H 6010) — House 142-0, Senate 32-1, overrode Governor Weld's veto of $14.8 million to fund cost of living adjustments (COLAs) for retired state workers. Override supporters explained this involves COLAs for retired teachers who have not had increases in four years. They said although the Treasurer has decided the override is not necessary in order to send out the checks, the Office of Administration and Finance claims the override is necessary. Opponents offered no arguments. (A "Yea" vote is for the $14.8 million. A "Nay" vote is against it).	Y	Y
LEGISLATIVE PAY HIKE (H 6208) — Senate 20-7, rejected an amendment hiking representatives' and senators' base salaries from $30,000 to $40,000 effective in 1994. Amendment supporter said hard working legislators have not had a raise in many years and are entitled to this modest $10,000 hike. Opponents said the state is having difficult economic problems and argued it is not the time to increase salaries. (A "Yea" vote is for the $10,000 hike. A "Nay" vote is against the hike).	N
COURT REFORM (H 6210) — House 141-0, gave initial approval to the 107 page bill reorganizing the state's court system. Provisions include giving the chief justices of various court departments authority to transfer personnel and cases and the creation of a statewide Juvenile Court. Supporters said the bill overhauls the antiquated court system and gives judges the management tools and power to directly manager the courts. (A "Yea" vote is for the bill).		Y

'Votes Yes on 3' group is outspent in state election

According to campaign finance reports filed Oct. 31 the industry opponents of Question 3, the Recycling Initiative, spent $5.5 million on their campaign. Analysis of these reports showed that about 90 percent of the opposition money poured in from out-of-state corporations, primarily from large plastics manufacturers.

"No one ever said that changing the packaging industry's throw-away mentality would be easy," said Amy Perry, director of the Yes on 3 campaign. "It's just a shame that campaign finance laws and FCC regulations allowed them to dominate the campaign with a relentless drumbeat of deceptive claims broadcast over the public airwaves."

"The millions of dollars spent to protect and promote wasteful packaging does not discourage us," she continued. "On the contrary: it simply shows that the packaging industry takes us very seriously and that we must work even harder to change its agenda, which is at odds with what's best for the environment and consumers of Massachusetts."



The Recycling Initiative Campaign raised a total of $142,000. An additional $207,000 was donated in the form of contributions from grassroots environmental organizations. The Yes on 3 total is about 1/16 of the opposition's total.

The opponents of Question 3 spent the bulk of their money — approximately $4,256,000 — on paid advertising and direct mail. This is approximately the amount needed to run the recycling program for the city of Boston for four years.

"Spending $5.5 million in a small state like Massachusetts would be like spending $275 million on a presidential campaign," Perry added, pointing out that Ross Perot spent "only" $60 million on his campaign. "This gives you some idea of what the supporters of Question 3 were up against."

The Mariner welcomes letters to the editor.

First Parish Nursery celebrates a cranberry Thanksgiving!

Kevin Roach uses his puppets to tell about Mr. Whiskers and Mr. Horace and grandmother's cranberry bread.

Vanessa Plante and Aly Belz work hard chopping cranberries. Once the bread was in the oven, the kids made puppets to portray the story about "the best cranberry bread for miles around."

Nathan Needle chops cranberries for the delicious bread the class made this week.

Feathers and all, Tori Gavaza concentrates as she paints a Thanksgiving picture at the First Parish Nursery School. After hearing teacher Sally Atkinson read The Cranberry Thanksgiving by Wendy and Harry Devlin, the kids made cranberry bread and puppets.

A holiday treat

More than 70 Cohasset High School students, 2 Deer Hill students, and 13 teachers are busily creating a tropical delight for your winter weekend. Cohasset High School presents its All-School Musical "South Pacific," Friday, Dec. 4, and Saturday, Dec. 5, at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 6, at 2 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

Teachers Bryan Marks, JoEllen Wood, Colleen Wheeler, Colleen Lucas, Joel Antolini, Maureen Duffy, John Packard, Ken Cisneros, Jack Buckley, George Fortin, Paul Narkowicz, Steve Gilmartin, and choreographer Sharon Leslie share their talents to produce a brilliant weekend of entertainment for the whole community.

Advance tickets are available through cast members anytime or through Director Bryan Marks during rehearsals (call CHS 383-6100 for rehearsal times). Tickets will also be sold at the door. Tickets are $5, all seats are reserved, and checks are payable to Cohasset High School.

Christmas pageant planned

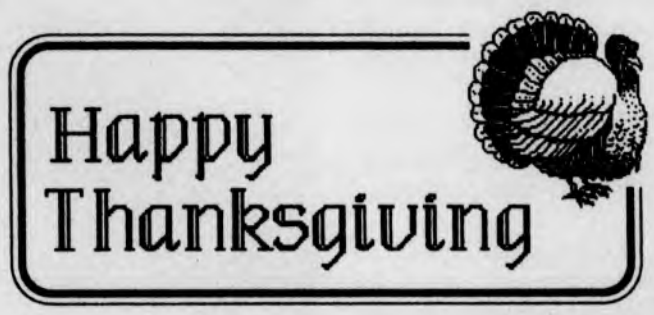
Don't miss "The Best Christmas Pageant Ever," a PSO benefit performance by the Cohasset Drama Club. The club will donate the proceeds from its performance Thursday, Dec. 10, to the Cohasset PSO. Tickets are available at the door or by calling Ronnie McMorris at 383-1219.

Early Release Day activities

The Deer Hill staff conducts parent conferences on this day. Report cards were recently sent home and conferences have been scheduled for December 3 and 10. Dismissal for Deer Hill students is 12:25 p.m.

The students at Joseph Osgood School are dismissed at 12:55 p.m. During this release time, the faculty meets by grade and/or department to determine budget needs for next year.

The Jr./Sr. High School has a full day of school Dec. 3. Its next release day is Dec. 10.



Rocket camp soars

More than 100 children from kindergarten through sixth grade attended David Heshion's Rocket Camp Saturday, Nov. 14, at the Deer Hill School.

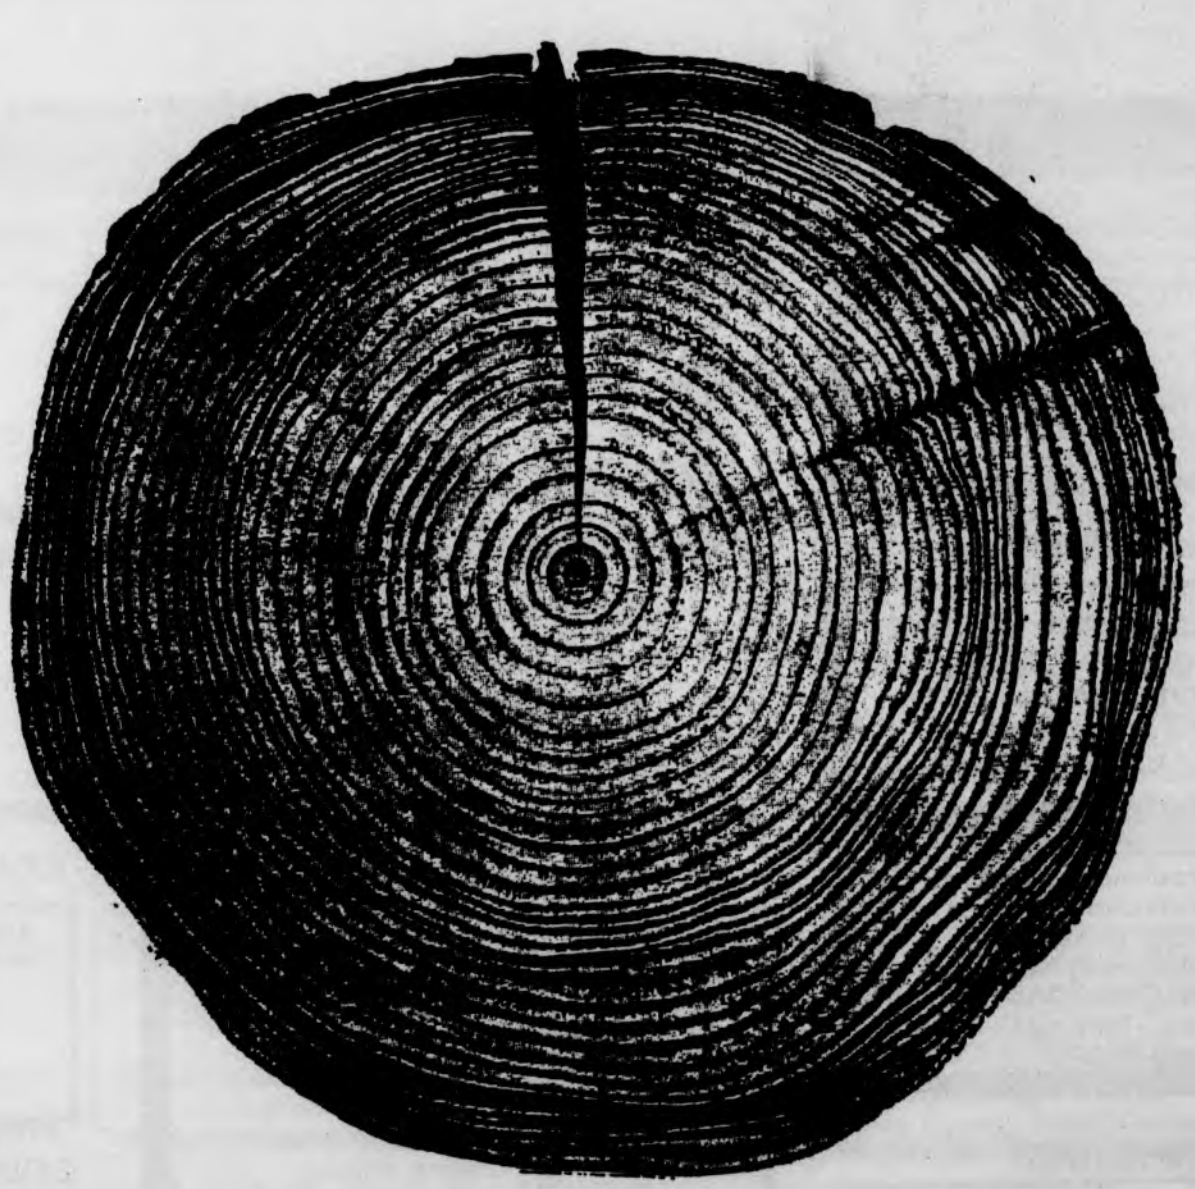
Children learned about rockets, how they work and fly, and tested their knowledge by playing Space Jeopardy. Each child then built and launched their own rocket. Parents were invited to attend the launching at the conclusion of the camp where rockets flew as high as 1,000 feet in the air.

Lily Maltz and William McAulliffee won their respective divisions for the rocket landing closest to the launch pad.

This enrichment activity was coordinated by the Cohasset PSO as a follow-up to David Heshion's in-school presentations on the History of Rockets & Space at Osgood School, Nov. 4 and Deer Hill School, Nov. 6.

'The Nutcracker' slated

The Plymouth Philharmonic Orchestra, Rudolf Schlegel conducting, presents Holiday Pops! at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m., Dec. 12, and 2 p.m., Dec. 13, in Plymouth's Memorial Hall. The program includes light classical and symphonic pops favorites, a carol sing-along and excerpts from "The Nutcracker" with the Children's Repertory Ballet Company of Hingham.



Tickets are $16, $14 and $12 ($2 discount for seniors and children) and are available at The Studio, Duxbury; Notes & Quotes, Kingston; Snow Goose Shop, Plymouth; Hub Music Shops, Pembroke and West Plymouth; or by calling the PPO office at (508) 746-8008 during business hours.

Sara Downey

Don't let Sara Downey's sweet disposition and soft southern drawl fool you.

When it comes to grammatical errors and attention to detail, this hot-shot typist is a tiger.

"I can spot a typographical error at 90 paces and a misplaced comma at 100," says the Kentucky native.

Sara is alarmed at the inability spell displayed by many today.

"There is general agreement on how to spell words in the English language," she notes. "And I'm of the opinion we should stick with it.

"If for no other reason than we can share — so we know what you're trying to say."

A retired English teacher, Sara volunteers where she can put her talents to good use — the town library.

"If you get an overdue notice, I sent it," she adds with a smile.

After moving here from Florida three years ago, Sara didn't waste any time getting acquainted with Cohasset. She "found" the library right after her parish and before the grocery store.

"The great love of my life is the English language," she says. "And I enjoy being in the library. I enjoy the people in the library."

Sara's favorite books are historical novels.

"I love history," she says.

She also greatly admires the poetry of Geoffrey Chaucer.

"I keep my Chaucer next to my bed. Chaucer is my serious reading."

Special friends

Getting organized last week for her Thanksgiving holiday visit to her son in Louisiana, Sara wasn't sure what she'd pickup to read on the plane.

"I'm threatening to read Scarlett, but I'm afraid it'll turn out to be trash," she says. (Scarlett by Alexandra Ripley is the much touted sequel to Margaret Mitchell's Gone With the Wind.)

Always up for a volunteer activity, Sara — the mother of four and grandmother of eight — can often be found at the Osgood School where her grandson Andrew is in the second grade. Sara says she "tags along" with her daughter, Gayl Varallo, who is well-known to Cohasseters as president of the Cohasset Dramatic Club. At Osgood, Sara and Gayl help out in the computer lab.

No foreigner to the stage, Sara — who trained for the opera — also pitches in with the latest dramatic club projects.

(Editor's note: in the weeks ahead as part of the Paul Pratt Library Corner, the Cohasset Mariner will highlight the volunteers, who play a crucial role at the library. Susan Watrous, staff librarian, notes, "We couldn't exist without them.")

First Parish concert

The First Parish Church in Cohasset holds its annual Christmas Concert Sunday, Dec. 13 at 4 p.m. in the Meeting House on the common in Cohasset. The Unicorn Singers, under the direction of Margo Euler, present a program entitled "A Wondrous Nativity" featuring a dramatized and costumed presentation of "The Miracle of the Nativity" by Edmund Pendleton. First Parish Soloist Jeanne Scammell is the featured actress playing the role of Mary, and the score includes angels, innkeepers, shepherds, kings and some delightful music. Of course the usual carol singing all together will begin and end the concert, and the Unicorn Singers will also perform a group of carol arrangements honoring the Mother and Child.

The beneficiary of the concert this year is the South Shore Habitat for Humanity, with the proceeds specially earmarked for the Cohasset Bates Building Project. This local effort provides two low cost housing units in Cohasset. Over the past 13 years, the First Parish in Cohasset Unitarian Church has donated the proceeds of its annual concert to such causes as UNICEF, DOVE, Rosie's Place, the Unitarian Universalist Service Committee, Renewal House, Wellspring and the South Shore Habitat for Humanity. To date, these gifts have totaled more than $21,000.

The community is welcome to attend and support the concert. Tickets are available after Dec. 1 at the church office and are $5 each. Seating is limited. Every year, both the audience and the beneficiary organization reap the rewards of this inspiring Christmas concert! This year, the concert is followed by a wine and cheese reception, and these tickets as well are available through the church.

For more information, or to reserve tickets, call the church at 383-1100.

Snowflake fair, Dec. 5

The Snowflake Fair is Dec. 5 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Cohasset's Beechwood Congregational Church on Church St.

Luncheon begins at 11:30 with a choice of clam or corn chowder or hot dogs.

Children may have their pictures taken with Santa from 1 to 2 p.m.

Items for sale include beach glass candy, as well as homemade goods, baked goods, ornaments and wreaths.

Book, bake sale

A fine selection of second-hand books, Christmas greens, tempting baked goods and more are available at the Book and Bake sale taking place at Walton Rogers Hall, St. Stephen's Episcopal Church Saturday, Dec. 5, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

There is a chance to bid on special books through a silent auction, with opening of bids at 3 p.m. Tea is served, along with goodies from the bake sale. Proceeds of the affair benefit the church's Outreach Program.

Scouts to carol

Dec. 10, at 4 p.m., the Cohasset Girl Scouts carol throughout the Elderly Housing Complex on Elm Street. After caroling, the Scouts will be served hot chocolate.

In October, Troops 4773 and 4774 (second grade Brownies), Troop 4625 (third grade Brownies), Troop 4778 (fourth grade Juniors), Troop 4300 (Cadettes and Seniors) contributed boxes or items for the Children to Children Project. They collected items such as toothpaste, coloring books, bandaids, etc for children in Russian hospitals and orphanages. These items are in very short supply in the area since the breakup of Russia.

Santa is coming

Santa Claus is in Cohasset Saturday, Dec. 5, through the newly organized Cohasset Christmas Fair (former "Village Fair"). Along with the other events going on around Cohasset Common, the Appalachia Service Project Youth Group sponsors Santa's return from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Second Congregational Church, next to Town Hall (follow the red-brick walk).

Pictures and/or photo-buttons are available for purchase.

Also taking place across the hall is a "Santa's Workshop for Children" (open 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.) where children may come in and make and wrap Christmas gifts for other members of their family. While their youngsters are busy, parents may peruse the handmade crafts and gifts in Bates Hall (benefiting the other programs of Second Congregational Church).

The Appalachia Service Project Youth Group spends the year raising money and training to travel to one of the Appalachian states for a week-long work project of home repair.

Save this New Year's

For a night of fun, concerts and great food spend New Year's eve at Celebrate '93. The Cohasset Community Center sponsors this celebration from 5:30 to 10 p.m., Dec. 31.

Admission buttons on sale beginning Nov. 30 at the center for $5 each. Children under five are free. After Dec. 21 buttons are $10.

Tickets are limited and allow entry into all events. Concerts and shows are in the churches and halls surrounding the common. Food purchased separately.

Activities include concerts from classical to jazz to rock 'n roll, food from chili to roast beef and shows from magicians to storytellers.

For info call 383-0088.

Legal concerns addressed

Thursday, Dec. 3, at 1 p.m. the Cohasset Council on Aging sponsors a seminar for seniors on a variety of investment and estate planning issues. There are three speakers at this seminar.

Attorney Joseph Broderick discusses estate planning issues in detail. Topics to be covered include wills, living wills, powers of attorney, living trust, irrevocable trusts and medicaid planning issues.

John R.McNamara, insurance broker, discusses insurance strategies that will help seniors avoid long term care liability and lessen the estate tax burden. Senior citizens who are concerned about protecting their assets from nursing home liability and/or who are concerned about lessening their estate taxes should plan to attend.

Dr. Michael J. McNamara, Certified Financial Planner, discusses investment strategies that help senior citizens get the most from their investment portfolios. Conservative, high yielding investments will be highlighted. Also, strategies that reduce income taxes are addressed. Senior citizens who are not getting enough income from their investments should plan to attend.

This seminar lasts approximately two hours with time for questions. There is no charge to attend. Reservations are necessary because seating is limited. Please call the Senior Center at 383-9116 for a reservation.

Xmas pageant premiers

America's favorite Christmas story, The Best Christmas Pageant Ever, written by Barbara Robinson, presented by the Cohasset Dramatic Club, promises to be outrageous, lively, funny and wonderful.

The music, sets and costumes add appealing dimensions to this festive production. Don't miss the opportunity to join in the fun of the season with this cheery family show!

Performances are Dec. 4, 5, 10, 11 and 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the Second Congregational Church on the Common, Cohasset.

Tickets are $8 for adults; $5 for children under 12 and seniors. For tickets call Lynn Eisenhauer, 446-6601, or purchase at the door.

Ropes course could be tied to community

By Sean P. Sweeney
Mariner correspondent

If teacher Jack Buckley has his way then the new ropes course at the high school will reach out to the community.

Buckley, who heads the alternative school, told the school committee last week that he would like to train more students as guides and provide them with part-time weekend jobs helping community groups take advantage of the ropes program.

An open house is planned from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., today (Nov. 27) at the ropes course in the woods between the high school and Milliken Field.

Buckley said the ropes course is modeled after programs like Outward Bound and the Beverly-based Project Adventure.

"When I took over the alternative school, I wanted to provide a common experience for the students," he said.

That common experience took the form of an outdoor climbing and rope exercise area, including a 12-foot scaling wall.

Buckley explained that the course starts with some loosening up exercises followed by trust activities like the human ladder, in which two parallel lines of students support metal bars. Another student then climbs across the bars, completely supported by his or her peers.

Communication is also stressed, he said. Students are encouraged to talk about their goals and fears.

During the ropes activity, students wear safety harnesses and helmets and work through a series of transition points. They also climb, walk across suspended ropes, slide across other ropes and take turns attempting to scale the climbing wall.

Climbers are supported by their fellow students who hold "belay" ropes.

Buckley, who showed the school board a brief video of the course, said students are well-trained before using the ropes. The injury rates in ropes courses is less than in an average physical education class, he added.

About 25 people attended a recent demonstration.

"The open house showed that anyone can do it," Buckley said, suggesting members of the school board give it a try.

Supt. Stephen Hart said two Cohasset physical education teachers expressed interest in being trained on the course with the possibility of tying it into the regular PE curriculum.

The success of the ropes course depends largely on the school department's ability to finance it.

"I've asked to spread the word. We need to generate some revenue," he said.

In addition to the periodic maintenance, Buckley explained he would like to finance the construction of an indoor climbing wall for the junior/senior high school through the school budget and/or corporate sponsorship.

He also talked about marketing the course as a revenue-generating activity. The school committee suggested asking the school business classes to get involved.

The committee also asked Buckley to make a formal proposal and compile a fee schedule comparable to that used when school facilities are rented by outside groups.

The school board plans to seek a legal opinion from town counsel regarding liability issues.

SHARE . . .

help others help themselves.

Through a bulk purchase program, SHARE participants who volunteer two hours a month can purchase $35 worth of food for $13.

Volunteers qualify by performing a variety of tasks, from driving seniors to medical appointments to babysitting for a working mother.

John Kierce, who recently replaced Judy Dwyer as coordinator for SHARE, said the program is currently trying to dispel a stigma that it is a hand-out for the poor.

"It is not for the needy and not a charity," he said.

"It is a reward for volunteering time and a great opportunity to save costs," John said.

The program currently has 40 participants, he explained, and many don't keep the food.

"The donate it to a charity, or ask us to donate it," he said.

The SHARE food distribution day is a family affair at the Kierce household.

"Most everyone gets up at 4:45 a.m.," Christopher said.

While sons Robert, Paul, Dan and David accompany their father to the SHARE distribution center in Canton to load and transport the food to town, John and sisters Maria and Rose Marie, with their mother Rose begin setting up for the first wave of participants who will arrive at 8 a.m. with their receipt for the discounted food.

Chris said food distribution day is a chance for the family to be together.

"We can go for two or three weeks without seeing each other — except between morning shaves," Chris said.

"It's think it's a great get-together," Dan added.

Working side-by-side, whether for a charitable cause or otherwise, is not unusual for the Kierces, Robert noted.

"We've always worked together. All five of us worked for Scandinavian Design, so we are used to distribution," he joked.

The Kierce children credit their parents for setting a life-long example of community service.

"They are always volunteering for something, and they always want to do it," John said.

"And we were always volunteered, so it became force of habit," Paul added.

Matriarch Rose said she likes to help others, especially those in Cohasset.

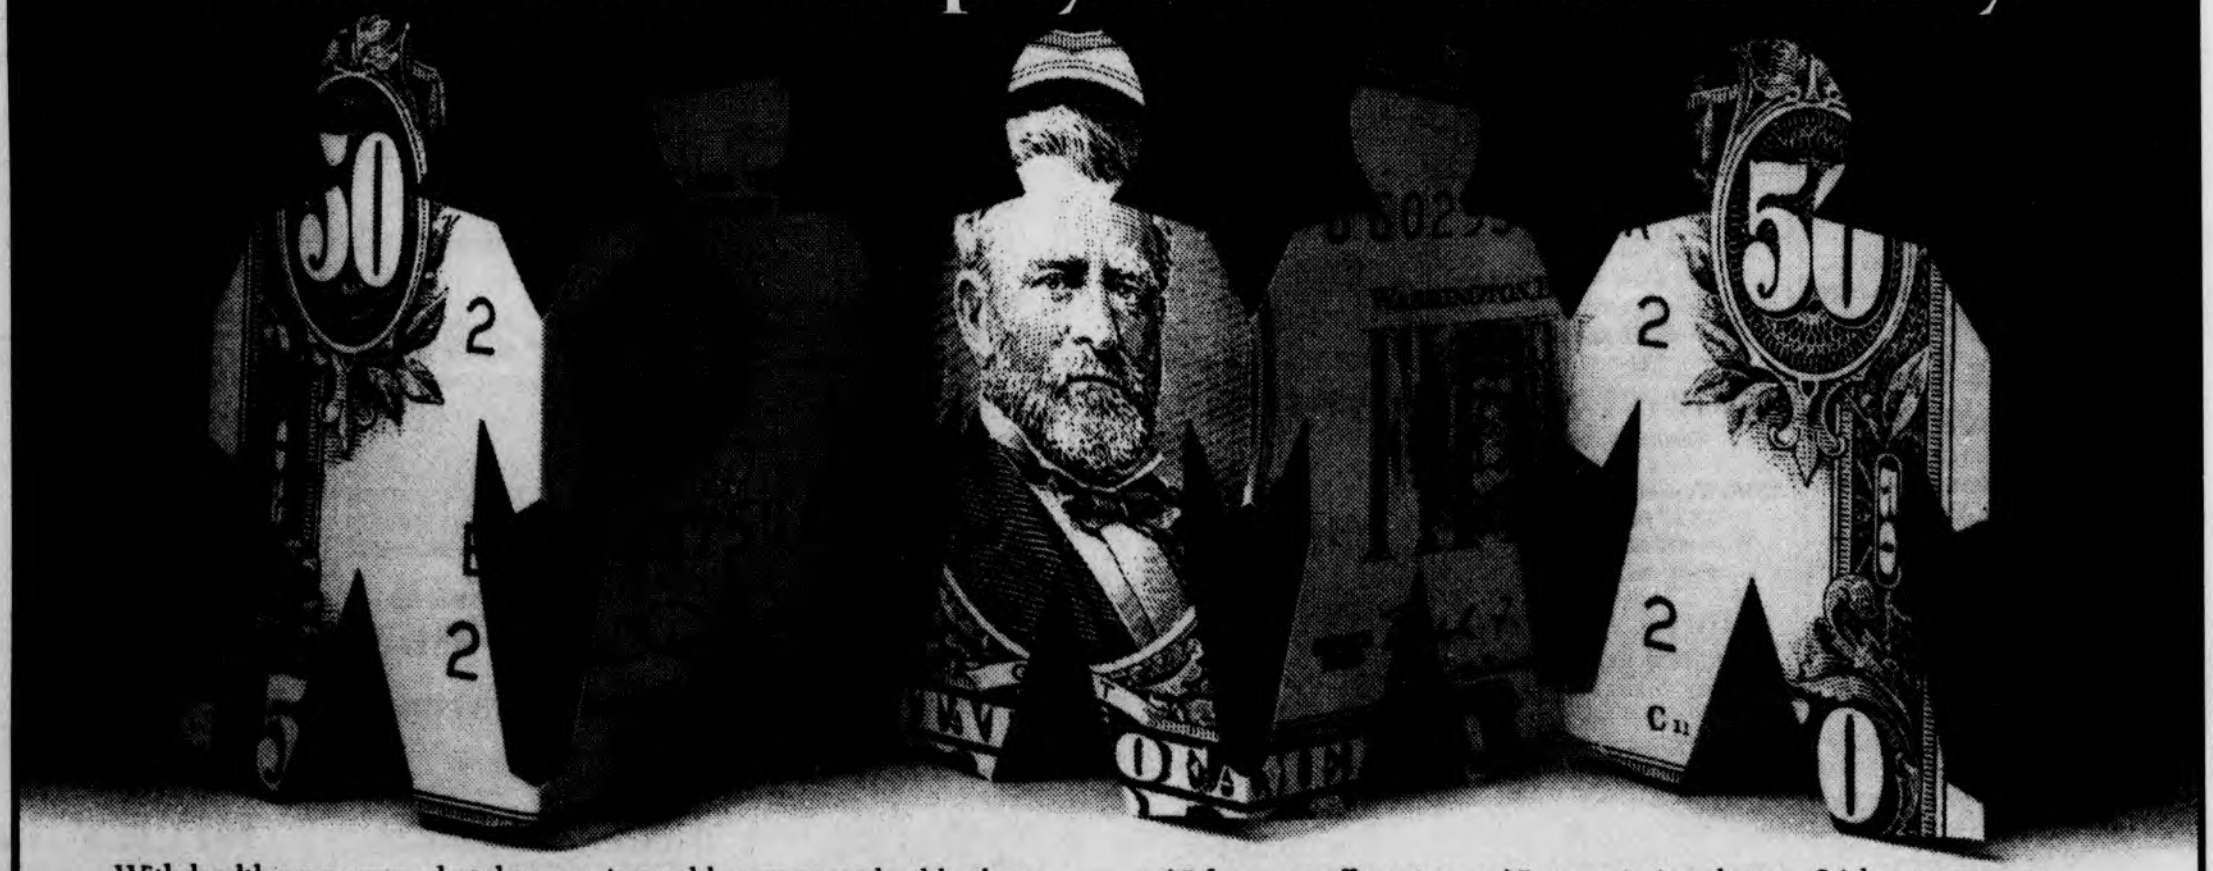
"We enjoy it, and we were lucky to move to this town where people are warm and friendly," she said.

The Kierces moved to Cohasset in 1984, and all but two Kierce children live in town.

Even daughter-in-law June, who became a Kierce name a month ago, helps out.

"This family is willing to bend over backwards to help others," she said.

And the Kierces are not alone in making SHARE work, John said.



"Pauline and Mary Keating, Helen Murphy and Virginia Anderson" are from the Council on Aging (COA), which is really "the backbone of the program."

Merle Graham, Fred Huntwork, Hamilton Tewksbury, Lou Simeone, Lot Bates, Wayne Schmidt, Mike Abbruzzese and Peter Hobson also lend their helping hands to SHARE, John said.

He added that he hopes the enthusiasm of those working for SHARE is infectious and that others will join.

Those wanting to participate in SHARE can call the COA at 383-0771 or the Social Services League at 383-9112.

We know Federal employees aren't made of money.

With health care costs what they are, it would seem some health plans might mistake what you're made of. That's why Harvard Community Health Plan offers Federal employees among the lowest rates available. But don't take our word for it—compare and judge for yourself.

And while we know you'll be pleased with our low rates, we think you'll like our comprehensive benefits. • 100% hospitalization coverage • $5 for most office visits • $5 prescription drugs • 24-hour coverage, home or away. Plus a choice of fine doctors, convenient locations, and affiliation with some of the best hospitals.

If you're a Federal employee, call Harvard Health today at 1-800-431-1070 for a brochure. These rates available only to Federal employees. Sign up during Open Season November 9 through December 14, 1992.

Youths mum on melee as police seek real story

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

After four days of relentless press coverage of the melee between Hingham and Cohasset youths, a more violent picture of the Friday night stabbings in Hingham emerged Tuesday.

And Supt. Stephen Hart refuted earlier reports that the two Boston men, arrested for breaking and entering following the affray in an affluent Hingham neighborhood, were METCO students in Cohasset schools.

At least five youths, not three, were stabbed, with one Hingham youth sustaining six stabs in the back, Hingham Police said.

The youths were stabbed at about 11 p.m., Friday, Nov. 27 after a teenage party with Hingham and Cohasset youths got out of hand at 45 Popes Lane.

While no one was arrested for the stabbings, Rico J. Tyler, 19 of Dorchester and Kris Lewis, 20, of Roxbury were charged with breaking and entering the residence.

Firefighters face Hepatitis B risk

"Hepatitis B is 100 times more contagious than the HIV virus," said Fire Chief John Nadeau.

The chief asked selectmen to authorize an expenditure for vaccinations for Cohasset's firefighters.

"We transported a patient just last week with hepatitis," Nadeau said.

He explained that firefighters not only face the physical risk of contracting the disease but must battle the mental aspects of facing exposure.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (O.S.H.A.) regulations now require emergency care providers to provide an exposure control plan, Nadeau explained, to deal with employee exposure to blood-borne pathogens.

Nadeau said although the town is not covered under the O.S.H.A. rule, it is in the town's best interest to provide this protection to its employees and to take steps to ensure that they do not carry contamination back to their families.

"Cost of an employee exposure can be staggering," he

'Bogie' spent the summer of 1934 in Cohasset

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

A book about the making of "Casablanca" and a beautifully-packaged video-cassette of the 1942 film are two popular holiday gift ideas.

And despite being shown many times on television, the movie — starring Ingrid Berman and Humphrey Bogart — was re-released to theaters last spring in honor of its 50th anniversary.

But what many Bogie fans may not know is that the famous leading man spent a summer in Cohasset — and left his mark on Hingham — before he made the big time.

Burt Pratt, president of the Cohasset Historical Society, was 14 during the summer of 1934 when Bogart and another young actor, Broderick Crawford were members of the South Shore Players, a professional acting company established a year earlier. The group performed at Cohasset Town Hall.

Pratt remembers Bogart as "neat, well-dressed, and in a business suit.

"He wasn't playing gangsters; he was doing straight leading-man roles," Pratt said. "He was there the whole summer and in virtually every play.

"We were intrigued by the man and his funny voice."

Pratt explained that theater was prominent on "the Straw Hat" circuit. Plays changed nearly every week.

He recalls also "getting a boot out of" Crawford, who was "heavy and clumsy" even then.

Crawford, who later starred in the 1950s TV series, "Highway Patrol," was the son of Helen Broderick, a renowned actress in the 1930s.

Bogart and Crawford were also known to carouse. One night the two actors and Bogart's second wife,

Selectmen approve single tax rate

The average home in Cohasset will see about a $300 increase in property taxes this year, assessors say.

In FY 1992 which ended June 30, the average home in town was assessed at $300,000 with a tax bill of $3558.80. In FY 1993, that same home is assessed at $286,000 with taxes of $3,849.56.

Monday, selectmen approved a single tax rate of $13.46 per $1,000 of assessed valuation.

James W. Lagrotteria, chairman of the board of assessors, explained that Cohasset's commercial/industrial/personal property (CIP) is less than 10 percent of the town's valuation.

"No community with (CIP) valuation of less than 18 percent has a split tax rate," Lagrotteria said. Most towns with split rates average 28 percent CIP, he said.

The average commercial value in town is $523,000 with an annual tax bill of $7,039.38

Cohasset's week

Lights, camera, action!

To the consternation of selectmen Monday, Continental Cablevision's camera and sound were turned "on" prior to the start of the board meeting at 7:30 p.m.

The matter was brought to the board's attention by Police Officer Paul Laugelle who stopped by to tell the board they'd been on the air for about 15 minutes.

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke immediately called Continental Cablevision Program Director Wendy Copithorne and angrily told Copithorne that "this cannot happen again."

However, Goedecke said the board members present did not say anything they didn't want "heard".

"This is outrageous," she said noting that the selectmen's office is "a private office."

Copithorne said leaving the microphone on was entirely her fault.

"I was testing the signal and had to come back here (to the Continental Cablevision studios in North Scituate) to check it at the other end," she said. "It was my mistake. I should have left selectmen a note."

Copithorne said she had had "a horrendous day" Monday and assured Goedecke that the same situation would not happen again.

"I have also sent Jane a letter of apology," she said.

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle arrived in time for the start of the meeting but was not in attendance during the on-air time prior to 7:30 p.m.

Liquor license approved

Owners of the Olde Salt House, 40 Border St., would like to sell beer and wine along with fried clams and seafood.

Restaurant owner Thomas E. Eisenstadt told selectmen Monday that obtaining a liquor license would help the business survive.

"In the interest of survival, a new business even though successful takes a long time to break even," Eisenstadt said.

He said the restaurant, which opened May 1, is an asset to Cohasset.

"As a result of our advertising in Yankee Magazine, Boston Magazine and The Boston Globe, many customers have come from beyond the boundaries of our state and have praise for what we've been doing.

"Many are surprised to learn this little beautiful town exists," Eisenstadt said.

He added "the major reaction" from customers is that they want beer and wine with their fried clams.

Selectmen were concerned about the management's being able to monitor the drinking because seating for the restaurant is outside on a patio.

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke said "policing" the area would be difficult.

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle said awarding the license is "a tough call for us to make." He said he was concerned that boaters would come to buy liquor to take back to their boats.

Eisenstadt said "it is just not practical" for people to come to the Salt House to buy beer and wine, which is served in plastic glasses, when they can buy it cheaper in package stores.

He added that the restaurant had not experienced any parking problems.

"Our experience with parking has been boringly uneventful," he said.

"But I do see the possibility of a failing business....And if we go defunct, quite frankly I think Cohasset will suffer," he said. "This enterprise is good for the town."

Cohasset Chamber of Commerce president Robert E. Martin, Jr. said the business community would support the Olde Salt House obtaining a liquor license.

"The key thing is the food, the beer and wine is just an adjunct to it," he said.

Selectmen took the matter under advisement and plan to rule on whether or not to grant the liquor license next week.

Victoria's is sold

Selectmen Monday approved the transfer of the wine and malt beverage license at Victoria's in Tedeschi Plaza to Peter Kostopoulous of Cambridge.

Kostopoulous, who is part owner, will manage the pizzeria.

Attorney Christopher G. Kaltsas, representing Kostopoulous and co-owner Chris Petridis, said the purchase and sale agreement is contingent on obtaining the liquor license.

He added that the employees, menu, and method of operation at the popular restaurant will stay the same.

Current owner Victoria Forman said she is selling the Cohasset business to have some time for herself.

"There is no time for me anymore. It's quite a big business," she said. "I need my time now."

The name of the new corporation is PKCP, Inc. which will do business as Victoria's. The premises is owned by Tedeschi Realty Corp.

Fencing concerns noted

Selectmen will ask Peter Laugelle, superintendent of the parks' department, to look into costs to repair the fence at the Beechwood Multi-Purpose Court.

In a memo to the board, recreation commission chairman, Richard P. Barrow, said damage to the fence around the multi-purpose court has occurred over the past year or so.

He said damage is a result of "extraordinary use" of the area and not vandalism per se.

"We have concern that the fence damages may begin to perpetuate quickly, as some of the disrepairs include main supporting pipes and pipe caps," Barrow said.

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle said fencing between Veteran's Memorial Park and the landing at the harbor has reached the critical stage.

"It's rotten and I consider it an emergency," Laugelle said.

Selectmen asked Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon to pursue the matter.

Unpaid taxes due

Statements have been mailed to those property owners who still owe their Fiscal 1992 real estate taxes.

Demands were sent from the treasurer-collector's office June 30, and Deputy Collector John P. Riley served warrants on those delinquent accounts during the week of July 20.

In some cases, these taxes remain unpaid due to a change in ownership. Any new homeowners since Jan. 1, 1991, who fail to receive a notice should contact the office immediately.

Payment must be received in full, in the form of a bank check, money order or cash, on or before Friday, Dec. 18. Any properties that remain unpaid at that time will be processed for a tax taking and the town will place a lien on the property.

For further information please call the treasurer-collector's office at 383-9900, extension 113.

Historical finances noted

Where does the Cohasset Historical Society money come from?

A survey of income sources at the end of the fiscal year, Oct. 31, produced some interesting statistics, according to Burt Pratt, society president.

Pratt said 36.3 percent of the society's income during fiscal 1992 came from interest and dividends; 16.8 percent from grants; 14.41 percent from membership dues; 9.91 percent from donations and rentals; and 9.39 percent from the sale of merchandise.

The remaining 13.19 percent was made up of proceeds from ongoing small fund-raising events, special projects and miscellaneous receipts. The "Save the Museums" fund was established with $6,500 in grant monies to which the $2,600 raised from the recent Pops Jazz Concert was added.

Firm estimates for all the work needed at the Wilson and Maritime museums are not yet complete but the $9,100 on hand will likely cover the more urgent needs, Pratt said.

The society's endowment fund stands at $137,600. The principal of this account is inviolate but the earnings are used as operating funds.

Current assessed valuation of the society's real estate holdings is $922,000. This includes the Lothrop House, the Captain Wilson House, the Maritime Museum, and Moors Rock off Jerusalem Road.

Fiscal 1993 budget figure is projected at $51,000. Effective fund-raising programs and careful management of the society's resources are required to reach this goal, Pratt said.

No all-night parking

Starting Nov. 15 and running through March 15, overnight parking is prohibited on any Cohasset street.

It is unlawful to park any vehicle on any street for longer than one hour between the hours of 2 and 6 a.m. during this period, police said.

Facey steps down

Selectmen accepted with regret the resignation of Patricia G. Facey, 4 Woodland St., from the Town Government Structure Committee.

In a letter to the board, Facey wrote, "presently my work schedule is such that I cannot be sure that I can attend committee meetings on a regular basis.

"I have enjoyed serving the town and hope that I can be of service again in the future," she said.

Real estate values

The fiscal 1993 Real Estate Assessed Valuations have been completed, and have been submitted for certification by the Massachusetts Department of Revenue.

The new values are available for public inspection at the Assessor's Office, Town Hall, 41 Highland Avenue during regular business hours. Due to staffing limitations, we are not able to accept telephone inquiries for valuations.

Additonal copies of the value listings are available for inspection at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, 106 South Main Street. Any problems regarding valuation will be handled through the abatement process. Call the staff at the assessors office for details.

Police seek real story of stabbing . . .

Tyler and Lewis are both black, police said.

Press accounts in other newspapers quoted officials as saying the two were METCO students in Cohasset.

"From every source that I know of, they were not from the Cohasset METCO program," Hart said.

Previous accounts put the number of stabbings at three, because police knew of only three victims.

Detective Joseph Mayer, who is investigating the case, said one who came forward told him late Tuesday that more youths were stabbed.

"One of the victims said other people were slashed" besides the three, Mayer said.

"That victim also said he was stabbed six times in the back," Mayer added.

Hingham High School senior Brandon LaFond, 18, of 80R Kilby St. and Michael Hickey, 18, of Hickey Rd., who graduated from Hingham High School last year, were two of the victims.

The name of the third victim was not available.

As many as six youths, Mayer said, may have been stabbed during the fight.

From the eyewitness testimonies gathered, Mayer said the results of the fight could have been fatal.

"When people jump into a fight and start stabbing people, we could have had a murder to investigate," he said.

"They could have cut a throat, or an eye," Mayer added.

The violence erupted when Hingham youths attempted to crash a party thrown for Cohasset teens, Mayer said.

According to a 1991 assessment, the property is valued at $629,500.

The host of the party, Jeffrey Bowen, 18, who lives at 45 Popes Lane, said the trouble started when a Hingham youth, whom he had kicked out of the party earlier in the night, returned with about 40 friends. Bowen said no adults were present for the party.

"It started around 9:30 when Brandon (LaFond) showed up with a couple of other kids," Bowen said.

According to Bowen, LaFond and his friends were at the party for approximately 15 minutes before Bowen asked them to leave.

"I had about 30 of my Cohasset friends there, and I have nothing against him (LaFond) — I know him," Bowen said.

"But they are not my friends and I just wanted to protect my house."

In the past two years, Bowen has attended both Hingham High School and Cohasset High School.

He had attended Cohasset High School until the Friday night fight.

Because of the publicity surrounding the affray, school officials learned that Bowen no longer lives in Cohasset, Hart said.

"It is a difficult position, but he (Bowen) is no longer a student here," Hart said.

Bowen said around 11 p.m. LaFond and approximately 40 of his Hingham friends returned to the party.

"They were coming up the street yelling 'Hingham, Hingham, Hingham,'" he said.

Bowen said his friends ran out of the house and met the mob in the street, while he stayed inside.

LaFond, who declined to discuss details of the altercation, said he was stabbed in the upper thigh during the fight, but added that the wound was superficial.

Another victim was stabbed in the leg while the third was stabbed in the back.

LaFond, Hickey and a third victim were transported to South Shore Hospital immediately after the incident, and released several hours later, Sgt. Glenn Shaw said.

"I was just in the wrong place at the wrong time," LaFond said.

"I'd like to forget about the whole incident."

Hickey, who was reached by phone, also declined to comment.

Despite the multiple stabbings, Mayer said no charges have been filed.

"No one saw anything, no one knows anyone's name — it's ridiculous," Mayer commented.

He said he interviewed eight eyewitnesses to the incident, including the three known victims.

"These witnesses have been unable to identify these people," Mayer said.

Bowen also said he did not see who did the stabbing, although in prior interviews with other newspapers he is quoted as saying his friends did the stabbing.

Without a positive identification and people willing to file charges, Mayer said he has no case.

"I'm in a sailboat with no wind."

Bowen offered his explanation for the lack of action.

"No one wants to press charges because they were wrong," he said.

"It was basically self-defense on our part," Bowen added.

About 90 minutes after the stabbings, police were again summoned to 45 Popes Lane.

Sgt. Glenn Shaw said an anonymous call came into the station around 12:30 a.m.

"The caller said the people we are looking for are still in the house," Shaw said.

Shaw, who is the K-9 officer, brought his dog to the address and asked Bowen if he could search the premises.

Bowen agreed and after Shaw announced the dog's presence, one suspect came out of the attic.

The second suspect was later discovered behind a false wall in the attic by the dog, Shaw said.

Police said at the time the two men were discovered in the attic, Bowen denied knowing them.

"He didn't even know their names that night," Mayer said.

However, Bowen told the Mariner that the two are his friends.

"I've only known them for a couple of days," he explained.

Bowen added that he intended to drop the charges against the two Boston men.

Mayer said the two will be charged regardless.

"The Hingham Police are pressing the charges, and it is going to court," he said.

"He (Bowen) will testify because there is a thing called a summons and it requires his presence and testimony," Mayer added.

He declined to comment on whether Tyler and Lewis are suspects in the stabbing incidents.

Mayer did say one of the men had a knife, and told police he found it in the house and took it to the attic with him because he was afraid.

Mayer said the knife does not match the description given by the witnesses of those used in the stabbings.

"The knives were described as butcher knives, Rambo knives and a meat cleaver," Mayer said.

Police are also frustrated by what appears to be conflicting testimony from other witnesses.

"I have three white kids with knives, two black kids

FINANCIAL INDEPENDENCE

QUESTION: How does real estate investment fare as a method of making you financially independent in retirement?

ANSWER: Being financially independent in your later years is a feat by itself. According to a study by the U.S. Government, of all people over the age of 65, only 6% are financially independent. Also, according to this same study, all of the lucky segment became financially independent partly or wholly through ownership of real estate.

No one buys their first home as a reason for financial independence at retirement, but that's the way it often works out.

Turn-out gear needed for call firefighters

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

The Cohasset Fire Department has ten, new "on-call" recruits but only enough turn-out gear for seven, Fire Chief John Nadeau said.

Nadeau described the situation as "a dilemma but a good problem."

The good news is enough citizens came forward and put in the extra training time to become part of the town's beefed-up call firefighting force.

But the bad news is how to buy the extra gear and pagers at an estimated cost of about $3,820 with no money in the budget, he said.

Selectmen formally appointed the ten recruits Monday night. They plan to ask the advisory board for a transfer of funds to pay for the equipment.

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke said if a transfer was not successful then the request could be added to next year's fire department budget which is subject to town meeting approval. The latter option would mean considerable lag time for three of the new recruits, she said.

Earlier, the board suggested the call firefighters conduct a fund-raiser to pay for the gear.

Veteran call firefighter John MacNeill did not like the idea.

"It seems to me for what the town gets — people to go out and risk their lives — are worth the small expenditure of funds," he said.

MacNeill noted that call firefighters have raised money for the jaws of life, wet suits for water rescue, and scholarships.

"But personal, protective equipment shouldn't be our responsibility," he said.

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan agreed with MacNeill.

"There are so many fund-raisers out there already. We should put our priorities in place," he said.

Nadeau explained that gear is labeled "personal" by fire service authorities and should not be shared because of the nature of firefighters' work.

He suggested assigning seven of the 10 recruits by lottery.

But Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle objected.

"The lottery system would be a damn shame because we've had ten who have worked so hard," he said.

The ten, new call firefighters beginning probationary service Jan. 1, are: John Pape, Mike Donovan, Peter Donovan, Robert Andrews, John Schiavo, Ray Sanbourne, Kathy Sanbourne, Phillip Pratt, Tom McKay, and Robert Lindsey. All either live or work in Cohasset.

With the new recruits, the call force now numbers 21, Nadeau said. Plans are to eventually bring the call force up to 28 men and women.

The 21-member call force brings the fire department's attack capability to about 1,500 square feet. The average structure in Cohasset is 1,755 square feet — a call force of 28 brings the attack capability up to that level, he said.

The call force augments the career fire fighting force, Nadeau said.

Firefighters face Hepatitis B risk

said. "Medical expenses, work days lost and overtime replacement salaries can break a budget, and the potential for death is very real."

Employees at risk are defined as anyone with the possibility of blood contact one or more times per month, Nadeau said.

He said South Shore Hospital can provide the immunizations, including pre-screening and antibody follow-up, for $237 each. At that rate the total cost for providing this service for 22 career and 21 call personnel could be as much as $10,191.

To save money, Nadeau said Health Agent Dr. Joseph Godzik told him the town could purchase the immunizations which could be administered by a public health nurse.

Selectmen instructed Nadeau to go ahead and investigate the cost of the hepatitis immunization program, which would be voluntary.

Nadeau said when he came on board last February he thought that the town's firefighters had been vaccinated.

"Most everyone in the fire service had gone through this two or three years ago," he said.

Police seek story. . .

with knives, one kid with a meat cleaver...," he said of the various accounts.

From the testimony gathered, Mayer said it appears more than one person was doing the stabbing.

"It could have been eight people doing the stabbing — no one's story matches," he said.

Hingham School Supt. Gary Baker said the incident is not part of an ongoing conflict with Cohasset.

"It seems to be an isolated incident, generated by the consumption of alcohol more than anything," Baker said.

He added that the stabbings highlight a more widespread problem at suburban schools.

"The larger issue we need to address is unsupervised parties with alcohol," Baker said.

The school department sent literature to parents last month on the subject, he added.

"We sent a letter to all parents emphasizing how important it is to have supervised, non-alcoholic parties," Baker said.

A Popes Lane resident, who asked not to be identified, said other unsupervised parties have been held at the address.

He added that the violent brawl is atypical of the area.

"That incident is out of place for the neighborhood."

Engine 22 to be put out to pasture

In "fire years" — a 1961 Engine is an antique.

Fire Chief John Nadeau told selectmen Monday that Engine 22 — at age 31 — is now out of service.

Nadeau said the vehicle has a leaking water pump, leaking radiator, failing alternator, and a dual ignition system that is now singular, and will soon need a brake job.

Replacement parts, which are difficult to find, will cost as much as $4,000, he said.

"I strongly recommend we replace this engine," Nadeau said.

The chief explained that a community Cohasset's size needs a minimum of three engines.

And although a new engine could run as high as $240,000 — a lot more than the $4,000 needed for replacement parts — putting the Engine 22 back on the road is too risky.

"On a 31-year-old vehicle the opportunity for system failure is too great," Nadeau said.

"I am extremely uncomfortable with the level of risk we are assuming with our third engine out of service. I am also uncomfortable 'over spending' this year's budget on a 31-year-old vehicle," he said.

"We are now relying on mutual aid for all our tactical reserve. During maintenance of our two remaining engines, we'll be relying on mutual aid for water supply establishment."

In addition to providing tactical reserve during working fires, Nadeau explained that a third engine keeps the two-front line engines in service 100 percent of the time because it can be used when another engine is "down" due to routine maintenance such as oil changes.

"It always allows us to maintain a two-attack capability," he said.

Nadeau said purchasing an engine with a commercial rather than a custom chassis could save about $100,000. Selectmen authorized Nadeau to form a committee to draw up specifications to purchase a new truck. They also instructed Nadeau to look into possibly purchasing a used engine.

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke said replacing the engine had been listed on the capital budget plan for several years.

DAR October meeting had historic theme

The Old Colony Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution held its October meeting at the home of Mrs. Thornton Gay of Norwell. Following refreshments served by the hostesses, Mrs. Gay and Mrs. Robert Davis, the Regent, Mrs. Sherman Mowbray, presided over a short business meeting.

The program, with an historic theme, was provided by Mrs. Raymond Fleck of Walpole. Mrs. Fleck is an Honorary President General of the DAR and also Honorary State Regent. Her program in the form of a slide lecture, was entitled, "You Did It," and covered the 100 years of service of the Massachusetts DAR from its inception in 1892 during the presidency of Benjamin Harrison to the present day.

Mrs. Fleck described this period as the "Entrepreneurial Age," giving several examples of Mass. success stories selected from among business leaders she has interviewed. Among these examples are: Nike shoes, Federal Express and Brook-stone Stores.

Among the many contributions made by the Mass. DAR during this period are the donation of the painting, "Signers of the Declaration of Independence" to the National Park Service and contributing to the restoration of the upper rooms in Independence Hall, Penn.

Two years after the state DAR was organized, the Old Colony Chapter in Hingham was founded, Feb. 14, 1894 with Mrs. Mary Robbins as its first Regent.

The November meeting of the Old Colony Chapter will be held in Cohasset at the home of the Regent of the Col. Thomas Lothrop Chapter, Mrs. Richard Tinnory.

around town

❑ Must begin with a reminder about the Snowflake Fair, Dec. 5 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Beechwood Congregational Church. Lunch begins at 11:30 a.m. (corn and clam chowder is served) and Santa is there from 1 to 2 p.m. There are also homemade items, baked goods the "famous" Beachglass candy, ornaments and wreaths available for purchases.

Enjoy it, and support the ladies and all of their hard work!

❑ Cindy Dormer had an exciting fall as a member of the Quinnipiac College Women's soccer team. Quinnipiac finished in third place overall and lost in the conference semifinals. The team also finished with a Division LL National ranking of 19!

Cindy is a senior and was named to the all-conference second team. Cindy was the main defensive cog in QC's attack this season. She had the difficult assignment to mark the opponent's top offensive threat.

❑ A round of applause for Bill Malloy this week...Bill was inducted into the B.C. Hall of Fame for his playing abilities in football, baseball and hockey in 1944. That's quite an honor indeed and one he should be extremely proud of (we are!!).

❑ Happy birthday greetings to Laura Pompeo, who celebrates her 25th birthday in Germany...maybe we'll get an authentic recipe for German chocolate cake from her. You should all know that she is an awesome cook!

Anyway, have a wonderful birthday and let us know all about it!

❑ Speaking of birthdays, there was a recent gathering held by Court 4 at the Housing for the Elderly to celebrate Fred Mahoney and Cholly Peterson's 90th birthdays.

We understand a wonderful time was had by all and we wish you two gents a happy birthday wish and many more.

❑ Had a phone call from Mary (Shyne) Tait last week, and she reports that she is loving her new life in Maine. She's a wonderful gal, and she sure deserves a time with nothing but the best...here's to you, "Sparkie." We love you.

Lydia and Ralph Hill recently returned from Istanbul where they snapped a photo of this sign advertising Housesitter, filmed in Cohasset.

❑ One of Cohasset's own residents, Lois Weltman, is contributing her time to help our community become a better place to live. She volunteers as co-chairperson of the local region of the Leadership Gifts Division of the United Way of Massachusetts Bay, coordinating the areas of Cohasset and Hingham.

Lois' participation helps the United Way raise funds to serve the human service needs of more than 1.7 million people in 81 eastern Mass. cities and town. In addition to her efforts with the United Way, Weltman contributes her time and leadership to a number of other civic activities. She is particularly active with the South Shore Arts Center and South Shore Hospital. She serves as an officer of Social Policy Research Group Development.

❑ Cohasset women — Karen Van der Werf, Janice Heilner and Polly Doggett — attended a Visiting Teaching Conference held at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Hingham. The meeting was especially planned for the women of the church who serve their fellow sisters as visiting teachers.

It was a great morning out, in well-decorated surroundings, with drama, music and an elegantly served brunch, the three agreed. Mormon bishop Bill Thurston told how the Relief Society (the women's organization) was established long ago by the Prophet Joseph Smith to "tend to the poor, the sick and the needy" and to look after the "spiritual welfare and salvation of the mothers and daughters of Zion." The visiting teacher today continues in much the same role.

❑ Dorothy Russell is certainly one happy person these days; her daughter Brenda is living back in Cohasset now so she can see a lot more of her! In fact, I can't wait to see Brenda, she's a peach of a gal.

❑ The Hochkeppel family certainly is a talented group! This time it is Joe who is the star...in the production of "Musical Holiday Party Five" at the Masonic Building, 1170 Hancock Street, Quincy. Darling Productions Quincy Center Dinner Theatre, in association with Rural Lodge AF and AM, presents it. It can be seen Dec. 5, 6, 10, 12, 13, 17, 19 and 20. For show times and information call Darling Productions at 617-843-5862.

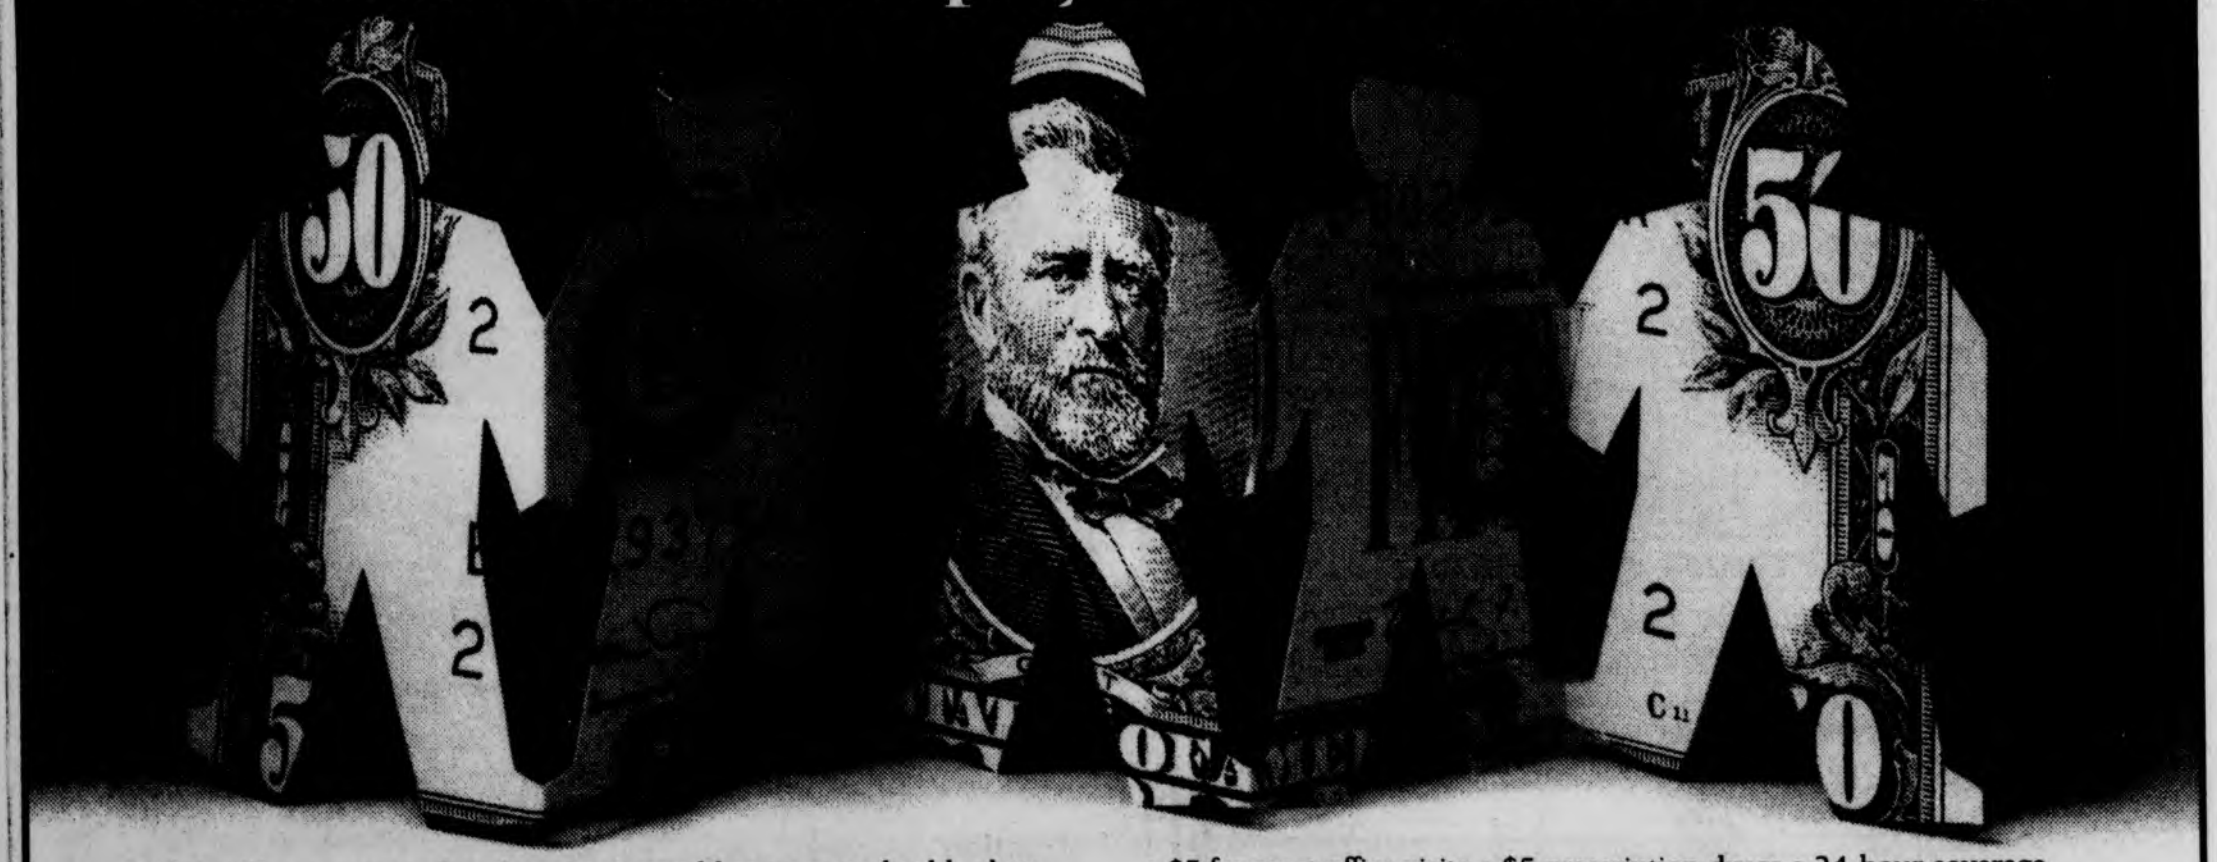
❑ The word "around town" is that Cohasset is the place to be to ring in 1993...the Community Center is sponsoring a New Year's Eve night of fun concerts and great food, and is now selling admission buttons. You can get them at the center for $5 each, with children under 5 free...after Dec. 21, buttons are $10. Everything will take place around the common and tickets are limited, so get yours now.

❑ Lydia and Ralph Hill recently returned from a nice trip, and a great story! They were in a store in Istanbul and the clerk asked where they were from...when they replied Massachusetts, he asked if they knew of Dobbs Mills; he had it mixed up with Cohasset.

He had watched the movie with Goldie Hawn and Steve Martin, "Housesitters," and asked "Is this heaven or for real?" He was struck by the beauty of it, and asked if they knew where the house was that was in the film, the bridge with stones, etc.



Obviously he was struck by the beauty of our town. It must have seemed so strange that he knew it so well!

Lydia and Ralph couldn't believe their eyes when they saw the ad all written in Turkish, with Steve and Goldie standing on the Common in front of the Duck Pond! Hopefully they'll have pictures for us!

❑ That's the news from here. Please let me know what is going on in your house!

Holiday collection

There is an assortment of Holiday Books featured in the Rotunda of the Paul Pratt Memorial Library this month.

This Holiday Collection offers a wide variety of innovative entertainment ideas for those interested in adding that special flair to holiday festivities.

Renny Reynolds' The Art Of The Party shows how to achieve the truly glamorous through the skillful deployment of lighting, color, texture progression, and scale using some of his own classic parties.

John Loring's Tiffany Parties offers an insider's glimpse to the most sumptuous galas from Boston to Beverly Hills.

Good food is an important part of all holiday entertaining and there are a wide range of cookbook offerings in the holiday collection.

Creative decoration abounds in the "How To" selections.

You'll find suggestions for making your own gifts and home decorations as well as individual gift wrapping ideas. Tree Trimming Traditions is another whole book. Be sure to stop by and browse. A great deal awaits you!

Control

The affray started in a home on a weekend night after an apparent party.

The parents were away.

Police said a group of 30 or so youths crashed the party.

Evidently some youths had been there earlier and were asked to leave.

They returned with friends just before midnight.

Sound familiar?

The top of this editorial is copied from an article in that appeared in the Hanover Mariner in August of 1991.

But it could be reprinted almost verbatim to describe the melee in Hingham last weekend involving Hingham and Cohasset teenagers.

The Hanover incident actually occurred in Norwell and involved teenagers from both towns. While they didn't brandish knives, the youths used a boulder, baseball bats, tire irons, and canoe ors. They even ripped down an American flag and used the pole as a weapon.

Two Norwell youths with multiple injuries spent the rest of the weekend in the intensive care unit at South Shore Hospital.

In the Hingham incident, several youths grabbed knives and stabbed others. Three Hingham teenagers were treated for knife wounds, police say. One was stabbed several times in the back.

It is a miracle that no major artery or critical organ was struck.

Do we have to read about our kids on the obituary pages before we take control?

The simple fact is, as parents, we are kidding ourselves if we think teenagers can be trusted in an unsupervised home.

It doesn't matter how good a kid, he or she is. The event always starts with just a few close friends. But word travels like wildfire and the unsupervised home becomes a magnet.

A concerned parents group wrote to the Scituate Mariner this week and said within the past year two homes in that town sustained $3,000 and $5,000 worth of property damage during parties attended by minors.

So maybe if our kids' safety doesn't get our attention — our pocketbooks will.

The concerned parents group says even if liquor is served in your home without your knowledge, you can be liable for civil damages.

Unsupervised teenage parties are always dangerous. It's not necessarily your kid or mine that's the problem. But they are at risk just being here.

So it's time for some hard questions and some unpopular action.

If you suspect your teenager or his friends may have partying in mind — say no and make it stick.

Take control. It could be a matter of life and death.

What ever happened to Wild Oats?

This old mahogany 26-foot speedboat picture taken in Scituate Mass. in 1971, holds sentimental value to Henry Smith and family. The boat was once owned by a family friend and the search for this boat has been ongoing for six years.

The owners on Lawson Road in Scituate purchased their house in 1970. The white boat (in the side back) went with the house. At that time the owners did not have any use for the old boat in the back yard. They wanted anyone to take the boat off the premises (only by word of mouth, telling neighbors and friends).

In 1971 the boat was hauled away by men who said the new owner wanted to restore the speedboat. At that time, the boat had a 1955 Buick V-8 engine; below the waterline was all copper-clad with no breaks. There were three planing steps on the bottom. The old boat also had a large rectangular windshield with a center bar so that two pains of glass could be put in them. Sides were painted white but originally were varnished. The boat also had the name "Wild Oats" located on the transom. There is a great possibility that the boat is still in the immediate area.

Anyone with information regarding the boat or the haulers who hauled the boat in Scituate in 1971, please write to Henry H. Smith, P. 0. Box 366, Garden City, New York 11530. Smith offers a $500 reward for the person who finds this boat, enabling Smith to purchase the boat.

Do you know whatever happened to this speedboat "Wild Oats"?

Article on test results misleading

letters

To the Editor:

The article in the Nov. 26 issue of the Mariner which is titled "Cohasset kids do well on state tests," in my opinion is somewhat misleading. We have many advantages here in Cohasset, and we should not be proud that our young people in Cohasset finished behind the average for residential suburbs. Perhaps if our school leaders concentrated less on drug and sex education, and were more concerned about solid and useful subjects, we might better serve our youth in Cohasset.

$5K needed for study of Straits Pond

(The following letter was sent to selectmen who plan to discuss Straits Pond issues with representatives from Hull and the Straits Pond committee at an upcoming meeting.)

Dear Ms. Goedecke:

As you know, the Town of Hull has completed an extensive study of Straits Pond. We previously sent you a copy of the final report.

At Hull's Fall Town Meeting townspeople voted funding to continue a study of the problems affecting Straits Pond. Hull voters added another $5,000 to the $25,000 that they had previously approved for the last study. The article was approved with a direction for me to approach the Towns of Hingham and Cohasset for $5,000 each.

Teachers and students from both Cohasset (James Franey) and Hingham (John Tinker) have recently volunteered to assist in gathering some of the needed data. During all of the work in the study last year, many residents of both Cohasset and Hingham volunteered as both instructors and volunteers. Arnold Winston, Sharon Becker, Dr. Walter Johnson, Bill and Gina Chisholm, Arthur and Lynn Morgenstern, Edward and Merle Graham, Ed Bilecki, James Richard, James Moran and Ansen Wheeler led the Cohasset contingent while Dr. Peter Rosen, Faith Burbank and Nancy Hoit led the Hingham contingent.

In addition to Dr. Johnson of Suffolk University and Dr. Rosen of Northeastern University, this project is also scientifically guided by Dr. William Robinson and Dr. Michael Sharis of the UMass Biology Department, Dr. Carlton Hunt of Battelle Labs, Dr. Peter Burns of Suffolk University, Dr. Jean Horsley of the Smithsonian Institution, Dr. Arshad Ali of the University of Florida, Dr. Joel Margalith of Harvard School of Public Health, and Robert Fultz of Coastal Zone Management.

We are interested in making this project more of a tri-town effort and expanding the focus of the work into the Weir River between Hull and Hingham. Much of the work takes place in the Weir River Estuary Lab building near the Hingham Court House. This lab is controlled by the Hull Council for Business and Cultural Development which is very interested in having it used by Hingham and Cohasset volunteers and students working on the problems of the Estuary.

The are four main reasons for continuing this study for another year. They are:

- To complete data collection cycle over two years so that we have a better overall average.
- To keep monitoring the changes that are made in reducing non-point and point sources of pollution, trapping of midges, and increases in salinity in Straits Pond to see if they are providing the desired results.
- To continue the following studies: hydrology and circulation, chlorophyll and phytoplankton, counts of midges in the air, and core samples of bottom sediment to explore their bearing on eutrophication in the Pond resulting in algae blooms, fish kills and midge infestation.
- To design, implement and monitor three mitigation strategies: midge traps, an automatic sluice gate and stronger town enforcement of by laws.

The State has expressed interest in helping to fund the last item on the above list.

The Hull Public Schools have been seeking modest funds to cover staff costs in meetings with your School Superintendent. A portion of Hull's funds also will be used for this purpose. The School's project staff will continue to be Timothy Anderson, Ecology Study Coordinator; Linda Beres, Ecology Field Study Conductor; Faith Burbank, Scientific Quality Control Consultant. They work under the management of Edward Lynch, the Environmental Curriculum Coordinator.

Specifically, we are seeking funds to purchase materials to build an automatic tide gate so that it will open and close at the optimum tidal times even if these are in the middle of the night. We also need funds to purchase the materials to build a dozen midge traps to place on the private property of individuals around the pond who have already agreed to their placement. Both of these will be designed by Ansen Wheeler working with local students.

We also need funds to pay for two expensive items: 4' soil core samples of the sediment at the bottom of the pond and the purchase of electric probes to accurately test the salinity, temperature and dissolve oxygen at any depth in the pond. These cost about $2,000 each. Battelle Labs and Suffolk University have both agreed to vastly reduce their lab costs for analysis of the core samples.

We would like to ask that you consider funding $5,000 toward this project over the next year. This could be combined from various sources in your town and could be in the form of your directly paying for some of the items listed above.

We have been advised that the Brooks Foundation will provide $10,000 for this endeavor if Cohasset and Hingham provide a total of $10, 000.

Members of the Board of Selectmen would be happy to meet with you to discuss this request.

Thank you for your consideration.

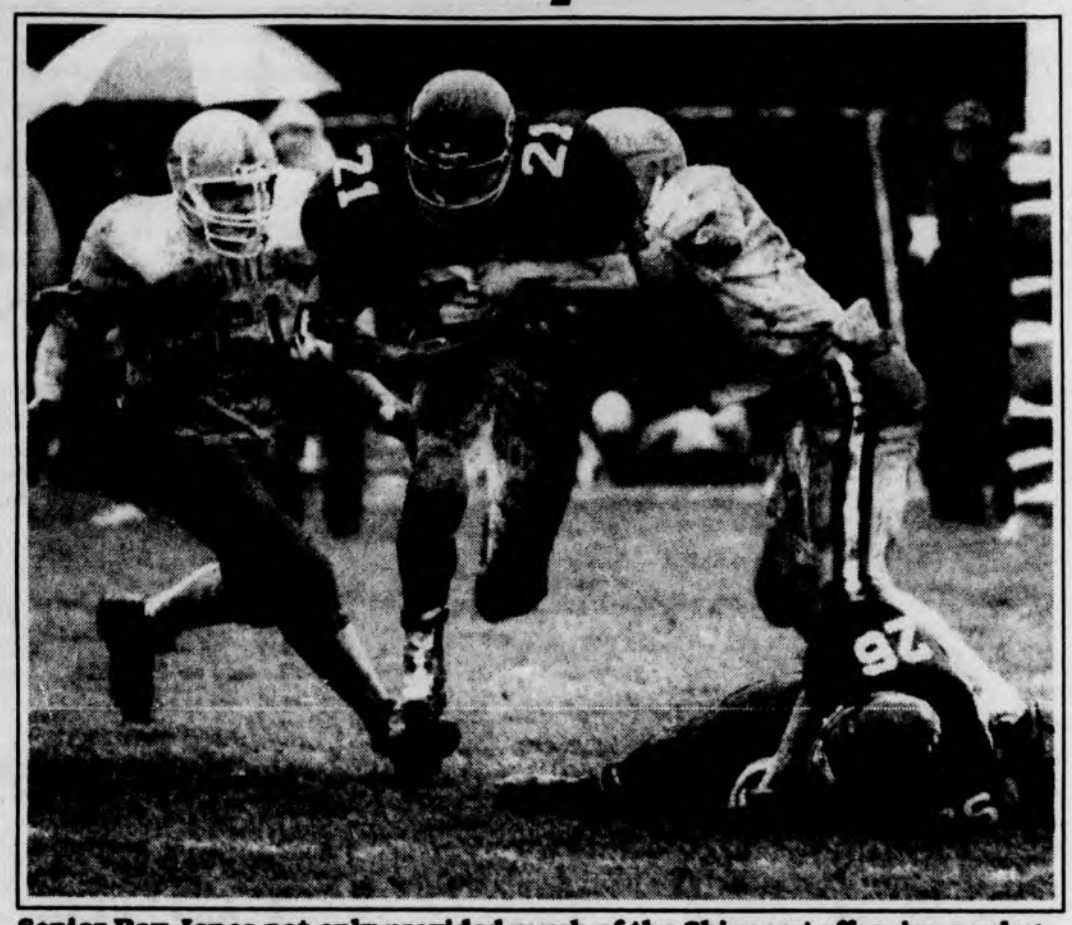
Beacon Hill Roll Call

QUESTIONS



QUESTIONS	Senator Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth) 722-1646 Room 416B	Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Cohasset) 722-2800 ext.7957 Room 134
THE HOUSE. "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local representatives' votes on two roll calls from November 16-20. Prior to both roll calls, Speaker Flaherty informed House members that any representatives who have relatives on the state payroll should vote "present" in order to avoid a potential conflict of interest. There were no roll calls in the House last week.
(House) PAY RAISES (H 6208) - House 84-28, rejected an amendment to the bill providing a 13 percent pay raise for some 50,000 state workers. The amendment would provide only a six percent hike. Amendment supporters said this is a more reasonable and fiscally responsible hike which will allow the legislature to revisit the issue of an additional seven percent hike at a later date. Opponents said workers have not had a raise in five years and noted this hike was negotiated in 1990. (A "Yeah" vote is for reducing the hike to six percent. A "Nay" vote is against reducing the hike to six percent.)		Y
(House) MORE PAY RAISES (H 6208) - House 87-24, rejected an amendment to the 13 percent pay raise bill. The bill provides a six percent hike on December 2 and the final seven percent on June 28, 1993. The amendment would provide the six percent raise this year and then a hike of two percent in each of the next three years. Amendment supporters said this would spread the raise over four years and help keep the budget in balance without requiring other cuts or layoffs. Opponents again said the workers were promised this hike in 1990 and have not had a hike in five years/ A "Yea" vote is for the amendment spreading the hike over four years. A "Nay" vote is against the amendment.)		Y
THE SENATE. "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local senators' votes on three roll calls from the week of November 16-20. There were no roll calls in the Senate last week. (Senate) CHILDREN AND MEDICAL TREATMENTS (H 5597) - Senate 16-15, reconsidered its earlier approval of a bill including provisions prohibiting criminal or child abuse and neglect charges from being brought against parents who treat their sick children through spiritual healing and prayer rather than through medical treatment. The bill does, however, allow charges to be brought against parents who interfere with medical treatment for their children ordered by the court. Bill supporters said the measure protects the religious freedom of Christian Scientists. They noted neither spiritual healing nor medical treatment are perfect and argued the choice should be left up to the parents. Opponents said the bill goes too far and argued the state has an obligation to protect children. Some noted they favored an earlier version of the bill which was respectful of religion and still protective of children. Another vote on the bill is scheduled in the Senate during the week of November 30. (A "Yea" vote is for reconstructing approval of the bill. A "Nay" vote is for the bill.)	N
(Senate) INDEPENDENT LIVING (H 5800) - Senate 31-2, overrode Governor Weld's veto reduction of $100,000 (from $3.59 million to $3.49 million) in funding for the independent living assistance program. Override supporters said this $100,000 is necessary for adequate funding of this program to help disabled people who want to live on their own. Opponents said spending on programs must be limited to projected revenues in order to keep the budget balanced. (A "Yea" vote is for the $100,000. A "Nay" vote is against the $100,000.)	N
(Senate) PAY RAISES (H 6208) - Senate 20-9, rejected an amendment to the bill providing a 13 percent pay raise for some 50,000 state workers. The bill provides a 13 percent hike on December 2 and the final seven percent on June 28, 1993. The amendment provides a six percent hike as a one time benefit and stipulates that it shall not be considered a permanent salary adjustment for purposes of collective bargaining. Amendment supporters said this is a more reasonable hike which covers 64,000 rather than 50,000 workers. They noted it requires continued collective bargaining which could lead to necessary changes in the system including providing raises based on productivity. Opponents said these workers have not had a raise in five years and are entitled to this reasonable hike which was negotiated in 1990. (A "Yea" vote is for the amendment reducing the hike to six percent. A "Nay" vote is against the amendment reducing the hike.)	Y

Skippers slog it out in T-Day mud!

Dorian Bryant (#73), co-captain Nate Fiore (#26), Steven Cahill (#54) and their teammates show the effects of the heavy rain, which quickly turned the football field into one large mud puddle for the Thanksgiving Day game against Hull.

Senior Ray Jones not only provided much of the Skippers' offensive yardage, he accounted for one interception and several blocked passes on defense.

Sophomore Nick Welz listens to the national anthem at the start of the Thanksgiving Day game.

Cheerleader Jill DeMoulin didn't let the heavy rain dampen her enthusiasm for the Skippers.

Freshmen Fay Menis and Laura Slotnick share their refuge from the weather.

Pirates sink Skippers' ship in Thanksgiving mud-fest

By David Wolcott
Mariner staff

The Cohasset Skippers fought a hard and valiant battle to the bitter end, but were eventually commandeered by the visiting Hull Pirates, 26-0, in the resumption of a Thanksgiving Day football tradition.

Cohasset finishes the year with an admirable 4-6 record, while Hull now takes its 9-1 mark to the Division 6-B Super Bowl to face Ipswich, Dec. 5.

The Skippers did not field a football team in 1990, and in 1991 played a shortened schedule that did not include a Thanksgiving Day game.

The game itself was an extremely physical affair with weather conditions that seemed more appropriate for a mud-wrestling tournament than a traditional Thanksgiving football game.

The Pirates were led by an unknown factor offensively as senior lineman Chris Schwede scored twice as he picked up a blocked punt for a TD, and also was the recipient of a perfectly executed "fumblerooski" play run by Hull where he rumbled 47 yards to pay-dirt.

Other scorers for Hull included Jaime Smith on an eight-yard run and later Paul Donahue on an 11-yard pass from Smith.

The Skippers came closest to scoring late in the fourth quarter — when a long run by Ray Jones with an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty against Hull added on — gave Cohasset the ball on the Hull 15-yard line with 1:00 to play.

But scoring was not to be for the Skippers on this day as the Hull defense did not break, and stopped Cohasset in its last attempt to crack the scoreboard.

That same stingy Hull defense and the inclement weather conditions were major factors in the defeat of the game Cohasset squad. Hull would not allow Ray Jones to free himself long enough for his customary long runs, and neither Peter Collins nor fellow senior, John Maynard, had any luck in solving the tough Hull defense.

Cohasset Athletic Director Clark Chatterton estimated the crowd in attendance to be around 1,200. He said the weather did its best to put a damper on the day.

"The rain cost us 30-to-50 percent of our anticipated audience and came at the worst possible — about 20 minutes before kick-off," he said.

Little League meets

Please be advised that there is an organizational meeting of the Cohasset Little League and Pony League Sunday, Dec. 13, at 7 p.m. at the Deer Hill School cafeteria.

All interested in volunteering their time to assist the Cohasset Little League or Pony League are asked to attend this organizational meeting. At the meeting elections for the Board of Directors for 1993 will be held. The nominating committee has nominated the following slate of officers for 1993: President - John Carr, Vice President - John Smoot, Secretary - William Baird, Treasurer - Paul Rooney, Director of Equipment - King Bilton, Instruction and Clinics - Jon Caron, Player Agent - Brian Rossi.

Additional nominations will be accepted at the meeting.

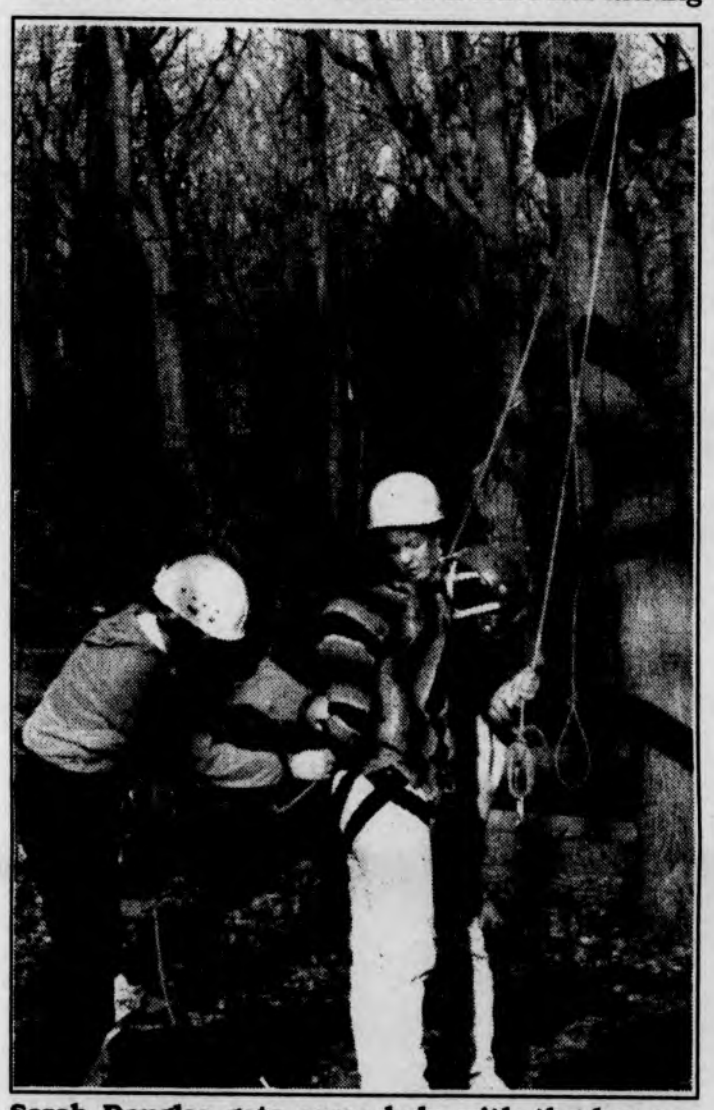
Learning the ropes is just one Alternative

By Jeff Cutler
Mariner Correspondent

Have you ever had the urge to swing like tarzan through the trees? Or walk across a high-wire blindfolded? If so, you would have loved last Friday's Ropes Course at Cohasset High School.

Students from Cohasset's Alternative School taught the course in the woods behind the high school for almost 40 people from the area.

The series of team and individual exercises is designed to build confidence, and is similar to Outward Bound training exercises.



Performed with ropes and wires more than 30 feet off the ground, the maneuvers are enough to frighten or thrill the most stout of heart.

Jack Buckley, a teacher at Cohasset High, runs the Alternate School and organized the Ropes Course with his class to show that his students are doing different things in their classes.

The Alternative School was designed 20 years ago for students who wanted to "do more creative and exciting things," said Buckley.

It is also unique, he says, "but most people don't understand it."

One thing Buckley understands is allowing people to succeed with positive thinking. That was clear last week as he held up a helmet and yelled to the crowd, "These aren't crash helmets! Because you're not going to crash!"

The group was a little tense at first, but after a set of instructions they looked a little more at ease.

Ben Redfield, a CHS sophomore, literally jumped at the chance to slide across the zip line. Really a cable strung between two trees, the zip line acts like a horizontal fire pole.

You get up speed by running across a platform in the trees, and then hurl yourself into space. A harness and other mountain climbing gear around your waist keeps you safely attached to the cable as you slide sideways through the air.

Redfield said he was "kind of nervous" at first, but the rest of the trip across was "cool."

The Ropes Course was a new experience for many who attended, but it was just one of many things the Alternative School students do each year.

Susan McMackin teaches the students Tái Chi, an exercise designed to relax you and help explain functions of the human body. She points out that the "Alt School," as it is called by its 10 students, is a way to learn things in a different way while still completing the required high school curriculum.

She says, contrary to the feelings of many parents, "It can really add to their (students') ability to be placed in college."

Buckley agrees and thinks the Alt School gives a "mark of distinction" to a student's transcript.

"We've always had students who go to top colleges and universities," he says.

As a Cohasset resident, McMackin was introduced to the Alt School by her daughter.

"I had all the apprehensions of any parent" before I got involved," she says.

One student in the program, Renee Prisble, says the Alt School "is better than the normal school."

Classmate Tracy Hyde feels the same way. There are "more options" in the Alt School, she said.

Buckley states that the Alt School, like the Ropes Course going on around him, is for "all students at all levels."

The word Alternative doesn't apply to the students, it applies to the things they are taught.

As people climbed and jumped and swung all around him, you could see that Jack Buckley's confidence rubbed off on many people in one day. Can you imagine what rubs off on students over the course of a year?

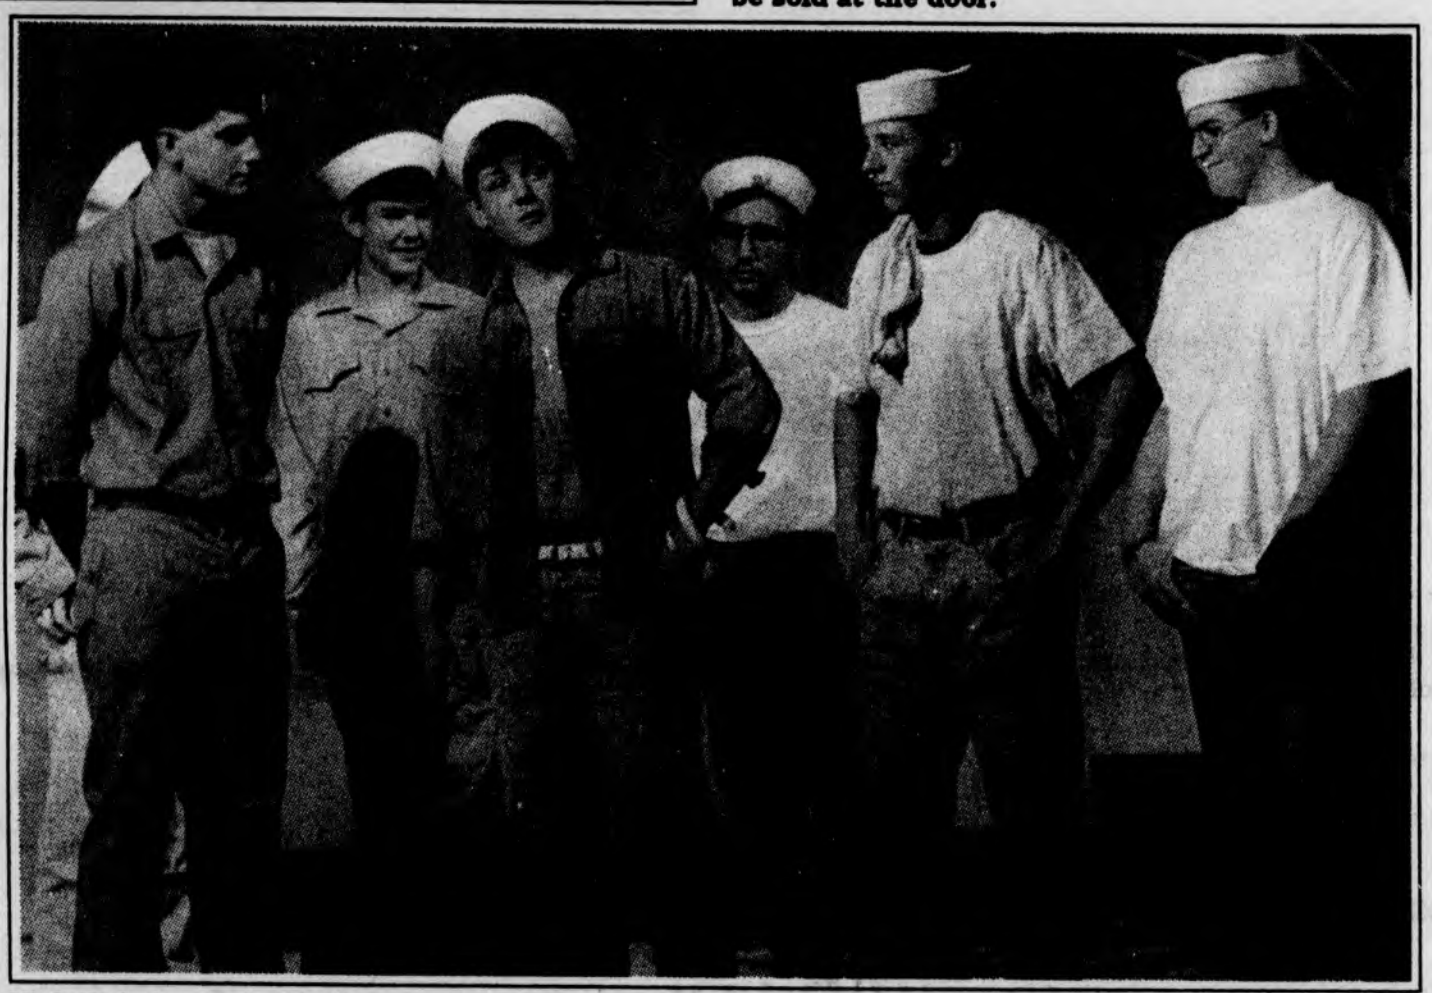
Meredith Hanson (Ms. Forbush) is questioned by Jason Pearsall and Bobby Meehan in dress rehearsal for the Cohasset High production of "South Pacific" on stage this weekend.

Keri Souffrain sings "Bali Hai" with Brian Patterson. Don't miss the the all-school musical. Tickets will be sold at the door.



'Some enchanted evening'

This weekend, when charming Frenchman Emile deBecque (Ray Jones) serenades beautiful U.S. Ensign Nellie Forbus (Meredith Hansen), Cohasset audiences are transported to a dramatic love story in Bali Ha'i. His endearing French Polynesian children, Ngana and Jerome (Deer Hill students Alexandra D'Urso and Nick Mincolla), may help persuade Nellie to overcome her American prejudices and follow her heart. U.S. Marine Corps Lt. Cable (Brain Pattison) learn some hard truths from lovely Liat (Kate Barrett) and her powerful mother, Bloody Mary (Keri Richards Souffrain), about his reaction to people "whose skin is a different shade." Madcap sailor Luther Billis (Nick Welz) will keep you laughing all night.

Producer and Music director Bryan Marks says, "In addition to all the familiar songs in "South Pacific," its story deals with very timely issues. Perhaps the greatest issue presented is the struggle for intercultural harmony in spite of our prejudices. The message of 'You've got to be carefully taught' speaks to us some 45 years after its writing."

Please come to see Cohasset High School's All-School Musical "South Pacific," Friday, Dec. 4, and Saturday, Dec. 5 at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 6 at 2 p.m. in the high school auditorium. For a holiday treat, bring the whole family. As part of Cohasset High School's Community Service policy, senior citizens were guests at the final dress rehearsal. "South Pacific" will delight everyone.

Tickets are available at the box office a half our before each performance. All seats are reserved, tickets are $5 and checks are payable to Cohasset High School.

Nick Welz (center) tells the crew he's going to the island in "South Pacific." Please call CHS at 383-6100 for ticket information. (Staff photos/J. Paul MacDonald)

T-Day is a hit!

On Tuesday, Nov. 24, Deer Hill School held their 20th annual Thanksgiving Presentation. The teachers behind this fifth- and sixth-grade team project are Joann Magoun and Larry Shultz. Through their efforts, a play which explains both the Native Americans' and Pilgrims' lifestyles leading up to and including the first Thanksgiving, was performed by their students.

Each of the boys and girls researches this time in history and decides on a particular character "to bring to life." The students transform their classroom into 1620 Plymouth, Massachusetts; complete with costumes, backdrops and decorations. Then, with each person delivering his/her part, tells the story of the first Thanksgiving.

Parents are invited in for the grand performance. Thanksgiving wouldn't be complete without a turkey dinner. So, after the show, students and their parents enjoy a complete turkey dinner. (Parents helped a lot with this part.) What a great way to start the holiday season and all of the leftovers go to a homeless shelter. Congratulations to Mr. Shultz and Mrs. Magoun for all their hard work in this fun-filled learning experience.

CHS arts season opens

The Cohasset Arts Boosters Club held its annual fall organizational meeting recently to plan support for the arts at Cohasset Jr./Sr. High School for the 1992-93 academic year. Parents volunteered to assist teachers with each scheduled event and officers were elected: President, Sue McNamara; Vice-President, Martha Equi; Treasurer, Olga Nohe; Secretary, Beverly Medinger.

The Arts Boosters explored new ideas with Cohasset High School teachers of the arts, including Ron Emmons, Colleen Lucas, Bryan Marks, John Packard, Colleen Wheeler, Jo-Ellen Wood and Librarian Susan McFadd. One of the most exciting new "happenings" was the innovative "Avant-Garde Arts" Night Oct. 29, complete with a life-size aquarium, enchanted forest, and living Greek statues. A female playwright may come to direct her own work, and students will travel to Boston to see Shakespeare's Comedy of Errors and Shaw's Arms and the Man. A variety of instrumental music sessions (jazz, brass, and woodwind ensembles and a composers' club) will be offered daily after school.

Please mark your calendars with the 1992-93 Cohasset High School arts events, beginning now with the all-school musical "South Pacific" Friday and Saturday, Dec. 4 and 5, at 7 p.m. and Sunday, Dec. 6, at 1:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium. Teachers and students alike are working hard on their productions, and they provide great entertainment for the whole community.

Crucial to the success of the arts is community support, as audiences and as patrons of the arts. This week the Cohasset Arts Boosters Club sends its annual fund-raising letter to all jr./sr. high school parents and to business patrons requesting financial support to assist Drama Workshop, Literary and Arts Magazine, Junior/Senior Chorus, Show Choir, Barbershop, Jazz Ensemble, to fund scholarships and the acquisition of essential equipment.

Please consider becoming a patron of the arts and send your tax deductible contribution, payable to Cohasset Arts Boosters Club, to Mrs. Olga Nohe, 10 Surrey Drive, Cohasset, MA 02025. If you wish further information or would like to work with the Arts Boosters, please call Sue McNamara (383-6945).

Students art in Wang show

Faye Menis, Grade 9, Title: Experience in Chicago; Lauren Almeida, Grade 10, Title: City Perspective; Ray Jones, Grade 12, Title: The Hand; Greg Schultz, Grade 9, Title: City at Sunset; Simone Carlisle, Grade 10, Title: View of a Jail from a Freeman; Kevin O'Donnell, Grade 10, Title: The Voyage into Night; Amy Silvia, Grade 10, Title: Some Don't Reflect the Sun.

Thanksgiving at Deer Hill

On Nov. 24 Mrs. Magoun and Mr. Shultz's fifth- and sixth- grade classes put on a presentation for their families and schoolmates. They began preparations three weeks before. Everyone made their own costumes and reconstructed their classroom to look like the Plimoth Plantation and Wampanoag settlement in 1620.

Dressed as Wampanoag Indians, Kevin DeVito and Maurice Johnson construct a wigwam during the early Plimoth re-enactment at the Deer Hill School last week.

The children brought in props which varied from tomahawks to wooden stools to antique porcelain vases.

Each child prepared a minute-long speech about their chosen topic. some of the topics for pilgrims were food, relationships with the Indians, housing, and the journey over to America. Some of the Indian topics were travel, clothing, games, hunting, and fishing. Mrs. Magoun and Mr. Shultz have been doing this presentation for over 20 years. The presentation concluded with a sit-down Thanksgiving feast with parents and children.

INSURANCE ISSUES

Different pieces of a complex puzzle
Call Kathy Glenzel

There is a lot to report to you this month regarding health insurance, so here goes!

As members know by now, Baystate Health Care has recently announced the cancellation of its Medicare products. This means people who have Baystate Senior plans will have to choose from a variety of options. These options include HMO Blue, a Medex product (there are six options), a Banker's Life and Casualty product (there are two options) or enrolling in another Health Maintenance Organization (HMO). This would include Harvard Community Health Plan for the South Shore.

MEDIGAP UPDATE

As of Nov. 1992, the following Medigap Insurance policies have been approved by the Mass. Division of Insurance and are available for sale.

- Bankers' Life and Casualty (supplement Core and 3)
- AARP/Prudential (Supplement Core)

Blue Cross and Blue Shield Medex products are not technically approved for sale. For those just going on Medicare who want to purchase a Medex product, BC/BS will take your name and put you on a list and coverage will be retroactive to the date of Medicare eligibility. In order to get retroactive coverage an individual must also pay retroactive premiums.

MEDIGAP AFFORDABILITY

The issue of Medigap affordability becomes increasingly important each year. Some Medex products have increased over 100 percent in the past three years. These increases have occurred to individuals living on fixed incomes. The state has established a Medigap Working Group to address the issues of affordability. For example, Medex Gold is proposed to increase to $152/mo. per person. An individual would spend over $183 per month (31.80 part B). A couple would spend over $366 per month. The annual premium for health insurance alone would be over $4400. These premiums and continued rate increases present significant hardships on people. There is help available for those who meet certain income guidelines. The QMB program and Medicaid.

Medigap Working Group has been established to address the issue of affordability and to bring stability to the Medigap market. Unfortunately, they have come to no conclusion, but are working on it. If you want action and results from this working group call your state representative and find out what his/her position is on Medigap affordability and what they plan to do about it.

SHARE REGISTRATION

Cohasset-Registration for this month's SHARE food program takes place on the following days: Tuesday, Dec. 1, 10 a.m. to noon at 23 N. Main St., Wednesday, Dec. 2, 10 a.m. to noon, 3 N. Main St., (CCC) Thursday, Dec. 3, 10 a.m. to noon at 3 N. Main St., Friday, Dec. 4, 10 a.m. to noon at 60 Elm St. (Harborview Apt.); and Saturday, Dec. 5, from 9 to 11 a.m. at the Cohasset Community Center.

Distribution Days: Your order will be given out on Dec. 19, from 9 to 10 a.m. only!

SHARE is a food distribution program that gives participants a food package worth about $35 in exchange for $13 and two hours of community service. Everyone is eligible; there are no income guidelines. Cash or food stamps are accepted as payment when registering.

For more information on SHARE or volunteer placement, please call John Kierce at 383-0678, or the Council on Aging, 383-9112.

holiday happenings

Local actors wanted

Hingham Civic Music Theatre is looking for actors and actresses of all levels of talent, experience, and background to audition for its February production of "Come Blow Your Horn," a rip-roaring comedy by Neil Simon. Interested men and women, varying in age from 21 to late 50s and early 60s, will be asked to script read at the Dec. 14 and 15 auditions at Hingham Jr. High beginning at 7 p.m. Callbacks will be held, if necessary, and rehearsals begin immediately. The play is directed by Dan Bolton.

The farce centers around the owner of the largest artificial fruit business on the East Coast and his two sons, one a playboy and the other an obedient 21-year-old who suddenly develops the urge to assert himself! Performances are Feb. 12, 13, 19 and 20. For further information call 356-0639.

Computer classes set

The Community Center Computer Learning Center offers a new session of classes in Word Perfect and Novice beginning Dec. 7. Word Perfect for beginners meets Mondays from 9 to 11 a.m. or from 7 to 9 p.m. Using the 5.1 version in an office-oriented environment, students will learn the basics of moving, copying, deleting, inserting, revising and printing. The cost of this course is $125 for five weeks.

Computer for the Novice class begins Dec. 2, from 7 to 9 p.m. The course covers how to get the most out of your IBM or compatible computer.

Please call the center at 383-0088 to register for the course

Dance, dance, dance

The next session of Street Dance classes at the Community Center begins Dec. 9. These coed classes for children age nine and over are upbeat and in touch with the latest dance techniques.

An adult jazz class, taught by Donna Joyce, begins Dec. 8 at 6 p.m.

Please call the center to register.

Puppet show slated

The Community Center December Pre-School puppet show will feature "The Shoemaker and the Elves." Friday, Dec. 4, Pat Boylan enchants children with her puppeteer magic. The puppet show begins at 10:30 a.m., and admission is $2 per person at the door. Please call the center at 383-0088 for further information and future puppet show features.

Gift certificates ready

The holiday season is upon us and the Community Center is bustling with new courses and activities for children and adults of all ages. Why not surprise someone with a Community Center gift certificate? Gift certificates are now available at the office or may be mailed directly for you. Please call 383-0088 for further information.

Craft and wreath sale

Have an old fur you no longer wear but don't want to part with? Bring it to the South Shore Art Center, 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset Dec. 4 or 5 and have it made into the stuffed animal of your choice!

Martha and Phil Smith of Plymouth, who create stuffed animals from old furs, are among 25 craft artisans participating in the Art Center's 3rd Annual Art, Craft and Wreath Sale. The two-day event also features original art by SSAC Gallery Artists and members, specially priced for holiday gift giving, and a select choice of trees and wreaths.

Shoppers may choose from a variety of hand-crafted items such as Americana Christmas Santas and colonial angels, woven scarves and shawls, ceramic puppets, crystal kaleidoscopes, dried floral arrangements, painted clothing, glass and granite sculptures, and jewelry. An additional assortment of unique gift items are available in the SSAC Gift Gallery.

Admission to the Art Sale is free, Friday, 1 to 8 p.m., and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Parents can shop while children create their own art in free, drop-in workshops upstairs in the studios, Friday, 4 to 8 p.m., and all day Saturday. And don't miss out on Santa Claus, who puts in a personal appearance Friday from 4 to 8 p.m.

Raffle tickets, including a chance for dinner for two at Saporitos and High Tea at Boston Harbor Hotel, may be purchased during the sale. Since shopping works up an appetite, The Red Lion Inn Restaurant offers everyone who purchases art or gifts at the sale a two-for-one coupon good for their lunch or pub menu.

For more information, please call (617) 383-9548.

'The Nutcracker' slated

The Plymouth Philharmonic Orchestra, Rudolf Schlegel conducting, presents Holiday Pops! at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m., Dec. 12, and 2 p.m., Dec. 13, in Plymouth's Memorial Hall. The program includes light classical and symphonic pops favorites, a carol sing-along and excerpts from "The Nutcracker" with the Children's Repertory Ballet Company of Hingham.

Tickets are $16, $14 and $12 ($2 discount for seniors and children) and are available at The Studio, Duxbury; Notes & Quotes, Kingston; Snow Goose Shop, Plymouth; Hub Music Shops, Pembroke and West Plymouth; or by calling the PPO office at (508) 746-8008 during business hours.

Fair on the Common

Santa Claus is in Cohasset Saturday, Dec. 5, through the newly organized Cohasset Christmas Fair (former "Village Fair"). Along with the other events going on around Cohasset Common, the Appalachia Service Project Youth Group sponsors Santa's return from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Second Congregational Church, next to Town Hall (follow the red-brick walk).

Pictures and/or photo-buttons are available for purchase.

Also taking place across the hall is a "Santa's Workshop for Children" (open 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.) where children may come in and make and wrap Christmas gifts for other members of their family. While their youngsters are busy, parents may peruse the handmade crafts and gifts in Bates Hall (benefiting the other programs of Second Congregational Church).

The Appalachia Service Project Youth Group spends the year raising money and training to travel to one of the Appalachian states for a week-long work project of home repair.

Unicorn Singers perform

The First Parish Church in Cohasset holds its annual Christmas Concert at 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 13 in the Meeting House on the common in Cohasset.

The Unicorn Singers, under the direction of Margo Euler, present a program entitled "A Wondrous Nativity" featuring a dramatized and costumed presentation of "The Miracle of the Nativity" by Edmund Pendleton. First Parish Soloist Jeanne Scammell is the featured actress playing the role of Mary, and the score includes angels, innkeepers, shepherds, kings and some delightful music. Of course the usual carol singing all together begins and ends the concert, and the Unicorn Singers also perform a group of carol arrangements honoring the Mother and Child.

The beneficiary of the concert this year is the South Shore Habitat for Humanity, with the proceeds specially earmarked for the Cohasset Bates Building Project. This local effort provides two low cost housing units in Cohasset. Over the past 13 years, the First Parish in Cohasset Unitarian Church has donated the proceeds of its annual concert to such causes as UNICEF, DOVE, Rosie's Place, the Unitarian Universalist Service Committee, Renewal House, Wellspring and the South Shore Habitat for Humanity. To date, these gifts have totaled more than $21,000.

The community is welcome to attend and support the concert. Tickets are available at the church office for $5 each. Seating is limited. This year, the concert is followed by a wine and cheese reception, and these tickets are also available through the church.

For more information, or to reserve tickets, call the church at 383-1100.

Snowflake fair, Dec. 5

The Snowflake Fair is from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Dec. 5 at Cohasset's Beechwood Congregational Church on Church St.

Luncheon begins at 11:30 with a choice of clam or corn chowder or hot dogs.

Children may have their pictures taken with Santa from 1 to 2 p.m.

Items for sale include beach glass candy, as well as homemade goods, baked goods, ornaments and wreaths.

Book, bake sale

A fine selection of second-hand books, Christmas greens, tempting baked goods and more are available at the Book and Bake sale taking place at Walton Rogers Hall, St. Stephen's Episcopal Church Saturday, Dec. 5, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

There is a chance to bid on special books through a silent auction, with opening of bids at 3 p.m. Tea is served, along with goodies from the bake sale. Proceeds of the affair benefit the church's Outreach Program.

Xmas pageant premiers

America's favorite Christmas story, The Best Christmas Pageant Ever, written by Barbara Robinson, presented by the Cohasset Dramatic Club, promises to be outrageous, lively, funny and wonderful.

The music, sets and costumes add appealing dimensions to this festive production. Don't miss the opportunity to join in the fun of the season with this cheery family show!

Performances are Dec. 4, 5, 10, 11 and 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the Second Congregational Church on the Common, Cohasset.

Tickets are $8 for adults; $5 for children under 12 and seniors. For tickets call Lynn Eisenhauer, 446-6601, or purchase at the door.

New Year's Eve Festival promises to be fun for all

Ken Sherburn, juggler extraordinaire, will make you gasp as he balances on a globe and unicycle while juggling clubs, hats, hoops, axes and flaming torches. Joe Howard will amaze you with his magic/variety show and professional silliness and a storyteller will charm you with a reading of Dylan Thomas' folksy tale of a Christmas in a Welsh fishing village.

Tickets are now on sale at the Cohasset Community Center for 'Celebrate 93,' Cohasset's own version of the popular First Night concept. Admission buttons allow entry into all events and are only $5 per person, with children under 5 free. After Dec. 21, buttons will be $10 per person.

The event is Dec. 31 from 5:30 to 10 p.m. with a 'pretend midnight' finale at an earlier hour so all can enjoy. This also allows plenty of time for celebrating afterwards in your home with family and friends. Make your plans now because ticket sales are limited.

'Celebrate 93' promises to be a fun evening for everyone from age 5 to 100! The button covers all concerts and entertainment. These events include a jazz concert, rock 'n roll band, D.J., singer/songwriter, classical music, early music, a community sing-a-long and more acts like the ones listed in the beginning.

The 9:30 p.m. finale will be celebrated with an aerotechnic 'Confetti Fireworks' display shot from cannons high in the air at the corner of the center.

Admission buttons do not include food and novelty items. These are sold separately but all benefit local churches and non-profit groups and include: an old English-style dinner at St. Stephen's complete with wassail and plum pudding, chili at First Parish, 'Just Desserts' at the Second Congregational Church, Greek hors d'oeuvres served at the Community Center, clam chowder at the center and hot dogs, popcorn, hot chocolate and more around the common.

To alleviate parking and provide a safe environment around the common, free shuttle buses are available for anyone wearing a 'Celebrate '93' button from the Deer Hill and Osgood schools, the Music Circus and St. Anthony's parking lots.

Volunteers are always welcome to join in with preparations or working an hour shift that evening. Babette Strecker, Ed Hettstrom, Peter Collins, Sue DiPesa, Ken Ingber, Annette Sawchuk, Linda Gardner, Glenn Pratt, Ann Whitely, Karen Devine and Rick Lordan are some of the many people working hard to make this a fabulous family event. If you are interested, please call the center at 383-0088.

The Cohasset Community Center has been serving the South Shore since 1943 and 1993 marks its 50th anniversary! 'Celebrate '93' is the first of many community events planned for this year. This kickoff event should provide a fun and safe evening for people of all ages and promises excitement and plenty of community spirit!

Junior voices concert

Children from six surrounding towns, including 15 from Hingham, present their holiday concert as members of Junior Voices Tuesday evening, Dec. 8 at 7 p.m. The concert is short and geared for children and their parents who love to sing; half of the program is rounds and carols which the Junior Voices will perform with the audience. The concert takes place at Second Parish Church in Hingham, 685 Main St., and is free.

Children from all the elementary schools in Hingham, Cohasset and Norwell, plus Derby Academy and Milton Academy, are among the 35 children who sing together on Tuesday afternoons under the direction of Margo Euler, who is also director of the Broad Cove Chorale and Unicorn Singers, based in Hingham. The children are learning to read music as well as to perform as a choral ensemble. Later in December they perform for the residents of nursing homes in Hingham and Norwell, and for seniors at the Lincoln School apartments in Hingham.

The Junior Voices program is open to children grades two to seven who love to sing, and will accept new members in time for second semester, which begins in January. Parents with children interested in the program are urged to attend the Dec. 8 program.

For more information, call Margo Euler at 749-6561.

XMas concert Dec. 4

Seven Hingham singers celebrate the Christmas season as part of the Broad Cove Chorale's Christmas concert Friday, Dec. 4 at 8 p.m. at Broad Cove House, 66 Lincoln St., Hingham. Chorale members Sally Davenport, Elsa Freeman, Karen Watson, Lee Koonce, Caroline Chapin, Liza Murphy, and Kathy Reardon sing Wednesday mornings with women from other South Shore communities to prepare this festive concert which takes place in the large music room at Broad Cove House, built by David Lincoln in 1733.

Margo Euler directs the program, which features carol arrangements for women's voices, plus chamber music by the North River Trio and carol singing for all. A festive candlelit reception follows the concert. Tickets are $7, in advance only, from Chorale members or Nobles Camera in Hingham Square.

Ad club party set

The South Shore Ad Club raises the spirits of its members and food for the needy at the Annual Christmas Party Thursday, Dec. 17, 5:30 to 8 p.m. at Navona Restaurant, 45 Whiting Street, Route 53, Hingham.

Members are asked to donate a can or box of food for the needy. Admission is $15 for members and $20 for non-members.

To R.S.V.P. or for additional information, call Paula O'Brien at 617-337-7609.

Register for SHARE

SHARE is a non-profit organization dedicated to community service and self-help, offering good food at great savings for those who participate.

Interested people can register for SHARE from 10 a.m. to noon, today (Dec. 3)) at the Community Center on Main St.; from 10 a.m. to noon Friday at the Harborview Apartments, 60 Elm St., and from 9 to 11 a.m., Saturday at the Community Center.

Pick up is Dec. 19.

SHARE participants pay $13 for the food and pledge two hours of volunteer service once a month. In return you receive 15-17 food items, good wholesome nutritious food purchased from growers and processors, with a retail value of $25-$35. SHARE has no eligibility or income requirements and is not connected in any way to any government program.

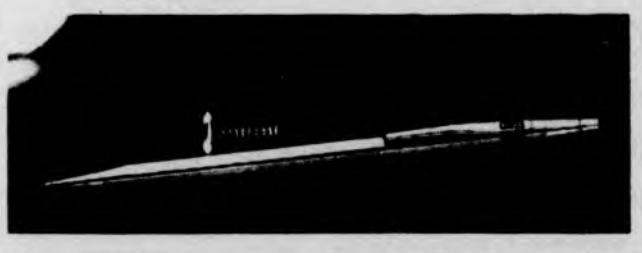
First Parish concert

The First Parish Unitarian Universalist Church of Cohasset welcomes all members of the Cohasset Community to attend and be Patrons of the 13th Annual Christmas Concert which benefits Habitat for Humanity. Proceeds are specially earmarked for the Cohasset Bates Building Project, a local effort to provide two low-cost housing units in Cohasset. To be a Patron, one need only call the church office at 383-1100 and express their wish to become a Patron, and offer a donation of thirty-five dollars. Patrons are listed in the concert program and will be sent two concert tickets.

The concert is Sunday, Dec. 13, at four in the afternoon at the Meeting House, on the common. The Unicorn Singers, under the direction of Margo Euler, present a program entitled "A Wondrous Nativity" featuring a dramatized and costumed presentation of "The Miracle of the Nativity" by Edmund Pendleton.

Concert seating is limited. Tickets for the concert alone are $5 and may be purchased at the church office or at the door if seating remains. Patrons may sign up until Dec. 10 at 2 p.m. Reception tickets are four dollars now from the church office, and five dollars at the door.

Holiday bazaar set



The Cohasset Knoll, 1 Chief Justice Cushing Highway, hosts a holiday bazaar, Dec. 4 and 5 from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Raffle table, handcrafted sale table, baked goods table, and white elephant table are featured.

Proceeds from the Holiday Bazaar benefit Residents Council Fund.

Bogie performed at town hall . . .

Mary Philips, another well-known actress of the day, were stopped for drunk driving in Hingham.

The incident was written up in Aug. 20, 1934 in the Boston Traveler, (see sidebar).

Pratt recalls, "the late Oscar Beck, who served the town of Hingham as police chief and selectman in later years, was a rookie cop on night duty at the time.

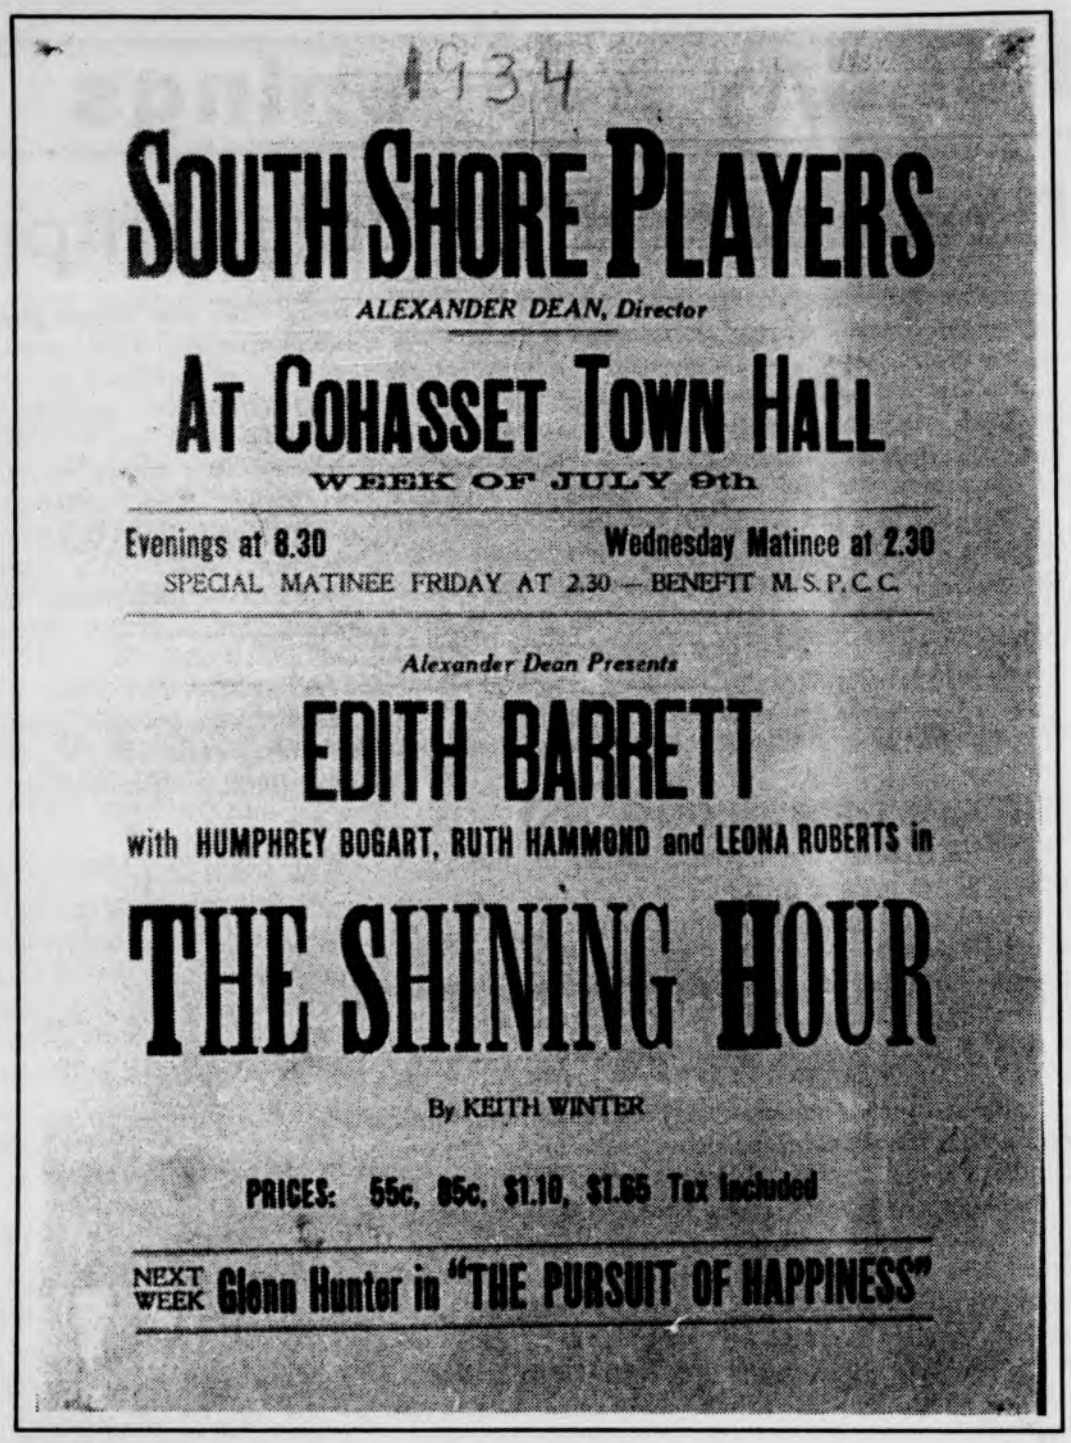
"Beck, jumped on the running board of the car to try to bring it to a halt whereupon Mrs. Bogart bit one of his fingers. Beck carried the scar for the rest of his life and like to show it and tell the story of how it became disfigured."

Joyce Studley, whose husband Jack was town clerk in Hingham for many years, recalls Beck saying, "This is how Humphrey Bogart got his Oscar."

Pratt said Alexander Dean, director of the South Shore Players, was beside himself and bailed Bogart out. Bogart was due on stage for the matinee.

After his summer in Cohasset, Bogart played with Leslie Howard on Broadway in "The Petrified Forest."

When Hollywood decided to make the movie version, the producers wanted Edward G. Robinson.



But Howard — who held the rights — stuck up for Bogie, Pratt recalls.

"Bogart had done a couple of insignificant movies by then," he said.

"The Petrified Forest" was Bogart's first tough guy role and his career took off, Pratt said.

Humphrey Bogart didn't get top billing in Cohasset in 1934. But Edith Barrett, a well-known actress at the time did. Miss Barrett's uncle was the tragedian, Lawrence Barrett who was in the theater business with Edwin Booth, brother of John Wilkes Booth.

Impromptu Act, Staged on Street in Sleeping South Shore Town, Results in Drama Before the Law

(Reprinted from the Boston Traveler, Aug. 20, 1934).

Performances by three leading Broadway juveniles, with Fering Road, Hingham, as the stage, landed the trio Mary Philips, star of "The White Way," her husband, Humphrey Bogart, also a star player, and Broderick Crawford, leading actor, in Hingham court today.

Crawford, who gave his home address as the Hotel St. Moritz, New York City, was given a suspended sentence of 15 days in the house of correction for driving under the influence of liquor. Miss Philips had her charge of disturbing the peace placed on file and her husband paid a fine of $50 on a similar charge.

It was one night last week that the three, Miss Philips, her husband and Crawford, their names as well known as any along Broadway, wandered into Hingham from Cohasset, where they are leading members of the South Shore Players.

They reached Fering Road, an exclusive section of the South Shore town, and there, according to the story told in court, the curtain went up on a noisy performance. The stage was set in a sleeping neighborhood. The dull glow of a street lamp was the spotlight. There was no overture.

The first act roused the residents deep in sleep. The second act brought them to their bedroom windows. The climax came quickly. Telephones buzzed. The police were called. Not that the wrathy residents didn't appreciate fine acting. The ability of the actors was unquestioned. But, as one of them allowed, "we wish they'd don it in pantomime."

COURT DIRECTS DRAMA

The hilarious and impromptu playlet ended with arrival of the Hingham police. The last act was played in the Hingham court today, with Judge Daniel Shea directing the production and the Hingham cops taking over the star roles.

In the court records, Miss Philips went down as Mary Bogart. She was leading lady for George M. Cohan in "Gambling" and "Friendship;" and leading woman in the Theatre Guild's recent production, "Both Your Houses." Last week she played Mary Tudor in Victor Hugo's play at Cohasset.

Bogart, her husband, is a former husband of Helen Mencken, famous actress, and has been with the South Shore Players all summer. He has played in such plays as "Swifty" and "A Wise Child." He has played prominent roles in a number of films.

Crawford is the son of Helen Broderick, a well-known actress.

business notes

Gallery 360, 18 Elm Street, is now part of HomeView, a broker-sponsored hi-tech home search service that is free to buyers. HomeView is the first major technology breakthrough in real estate since dial-up multiple listing services (MLS) were introduced 25 years ago.

As a HomeView member broker, Gallery 360-Cohasset has its listings entered into HomeView's interactive digital-picture database. At a HomeView Center, Needham, buyers preview hundreds of homes in minutes using a touch-screen computer. The "fingertip tours" recreate the feel of a real visit — from first sight of the house to browsing through rooms and touring the grounds.

After buyers select homes that match their criteria, HomeView arranges appointments with the listing broker for on-site home visits.

For more information about this new hi-tech home-search service, call Tom Hamilton, Gallery 360-Cohasset, (617) 383-6010.

Cohasset Savings Bank (NASDAQ:CHTB) continued its improved operating performance in the third quarter of 1992, reporting net income of $101,000 or $.10 per share for the quarter ending Sept. 30, which brought earnings, after the cumulative effect of a change in accounting principle, for the nine months to date to $457,000, or $.46 per share. The cumulative effect of a change in accounting principle, due to the adoption of SFAS No. 109 which took effect in the first quarter of 1992, amounted to $300,000 or $.30 per share.

These results compared with net income of $64,000 or $.06 per share in the 1991 third quarter and a net loss of $(29,000) or $(.03) per share for the first nine months of that year.

It was the fifth consecutive profitable quarter for Cohasset Savings and saw the highest net interest income for a quarter since the Bank converted to a stock form in 1987.

The Board of Directors of the South Shore Playhouse Associates, Inc., the non-profit organization which owns and operates the South Shore Music Circus in Cohasset, and Cape Cod Melody Tent in Hyannis, announces the appointment of Vince Longo as the new General Manager and Talent Buyer of both venues effective Nov. 23.

Bruce Cameron, President of the South Shore Playhouse Associates, expressed optimism for both theatres under Vince's direction. "The enthusiasm he brings will enhance our organization and will be felt throughout the entire 1993 season."

Longo vows "to continue the great tradition in presenting the finest caliber of entertainment at the two oldest and most reputable summer tent theatres in the country."

Longo comes from a strong background in facility management and talent buying throughout the northeast, and has worked in the entertainment business for the past 11 years.

NORFOLK DIVISION
DOCKET NO. 92P2756E1

Estate of MARK A. DONOVAN late of COHASSET In the County of NORFOLK

NOTICE

A petition has been presented in the above-captioned matter praying that the last will of said decedent be proved and allowed and that DONNA H. DONOVAN of COHASSET in the County of NORFOLK be appointed executrix named in the will without surety on the bond.

If you desire to object to the allowance of said petition, you or your attorney should file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before 10:00 in the forenoon on December 30, 1992.

In addition you should file a written statement of objections to the petition, giving the specific grounds therefore, within thirty (30) days after the return day (or such other time as the Court, on motion with notice to the petitioner, may allow) in accordance with Probate Rule 16.

Witness, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, the twentieth day of November, one thousand nine hundred and ninety-two.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
THE TRIAL COURT
PROBATE AND FAMILY COURT DEPARTMENT
Norfolk Division
Docket No. 98851
Notice of Fiduciary's Account

To all persons interested in the estate of Richard Fairfax Bolles late of Cohasset, Norfolk County.

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the 35th to 40th and Final account(s) of State Street Bank and Trust Co., Barbara Bolles Hovey, and John S. Howe as Trustees (the fiduciary) under Article 10 of the will of said deceased for the benefit of Barbara Bolles Hovey et als. have been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said account(s), you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before the thirtieth day of December, 1992, the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary, or to the attorney for the fiduciary, obtain without cost a copy of said account(s). If you desire to object to any item of said account(s), you must, in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 5.

WITNESS, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham this sixteenth day of November, 1992.

Police arrest alleged rapist in Florida

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

Alleged Cohasset rapist Robert A. Jason, 31, was arrested Dec. 1 in Florida, Police Sgt. Brian Noonan said.

Jason allegedly raped a Cohasset woman July 1. Responding to a call for help, Officers Lisa Matos and John Small arrived at the woman's apartment. Then Jason allegedly struck Matos in the face and shoved Small, who pursued him on foot. Small was not injured.

Noonan said Tuesday that Jason was arrested in Sandford, Florida and is being held without bail.

"We believe Jason will waive rendition," Noonan said.

He said a Cohasset police officer and a trooper from District Attorney William Delahunt's office will travel to Florida to pick Jason up. Travel expenses are covered by the DA's office, Noonan said.

Jason is charged with aggravated rape, burglary in a dwelling, and two counts of assault and battery on a police officer.

Cohasset police worked with the state police fugitive unit to track Jason down, Noonan said.

Once back in Norfolk County, Jason will be formerly arraigned on the charges. That will be followed by a probable cause hearing and a probable indictment, Noonan explained.

Selectmen give Greenbush rail lukewarm review

By Jeff Cutler
Mariner correspondent

Cohasset isn't going to follow the lead of its neighbor to the south.

Scituate selectmen recently sent a letter to Susan Tierney, secretary of the state Executive Office of Environmental Affairs (EOEA) reaffirming that board's support for the Greenbush Line of the Old Colony Railroad project.

In a majority vote, Cohasset selectmen said they support the project but don't plan to back it up with a letter.

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle said the railroad "was just going to be an added expense for the people of Cohasset." He moved that the board not support the

Telling stories comes naturally to Cohasset singer

By Mary Ford

mariner visits

A storyteller at heart, Dave Crossland might just be the person who will make Minot's Light famous beyond the boundaries of New England.

He wrote a song telling the story of the lighthouse which is featured on his Compact Disc Here's to the Ride, released earlier this year.

The 27-year-old Cohasset resident takes his guitar and songs on the highways and back roads across the country. This summer the singer/songwriter made his first nationwide tour.

And this winter he'll travel to places as far away as Arlington, Virginia and Omaha, Nebraska to perform.

But between "gigs," local residents have the chance to see Crossland during the Dec. 31 New Year's Eve festival sponsored by the Community Center. He's featured at the Teen Depot that night.

Crossland's music is 'folk' in the true sense.

"People have different ideas about what folk music is," he says. "The most common interpretation is that it's just associated with music and the stars of the 1960s.

"That's not altogether accurate," Crossland asserts.

"Folk music has been going on for hundreds of years. It really means people entertaining themselves," he says.

METCO fosters friendship and more

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

One point resounds when school officials and parents discuss the Cohasset METCO program.

It is a success story which cuts both ways.

According to METCO director Patricia Brown, the inner-city, black students who attend public schools here bring as many benefits to Cohasset as they derive from it.

"It is an enrichment for both parts," Brown said.

"They bring with them a treasure which can be shared wherever African-American students are," she added.

Established in town about 25 years ago, the METCO program currently brings 48 students, between grades one and 12, to the Cohasset Public Schools from the greater Boston area.

Cohasset's week

License decision tabled

Selectmen tabled action Monday on a liquor license application by Thomas E. Eisenstadt, owner of the Olde Salt House.

In last week's Mariner, the headline on a related story incorrectly stated the license was approved.

The board had planned to made a decision this week but postponed action until the sewer commission signs off on the application.

In a memo to the board, Sewer Commission Chairman Edward M. Guild said the restaurant, which is in its first year, is using water in excess of its allocation under the state sewer ban.

"It is possible that this matter may be resolved satisfactorily, but this is not the case as of this date (Dec. 3). Consequently, the sewer commission does not approve this request which we expect would increase water consumption further," Guild wrote.

Two residents wrote to selectmen this week asking the board not to grant the license. (Please see letters, pages 10-12). Paula A. M. Knowles, 15 Border St. and Peter J. Wood, 77 Summer St., said they were concerned that patrons would buy a beer or wine and leave the premises.

Last week, Eisenstadt said the liquor license would help the restaurant survive financially.

Cohasset Chamber of Commerce President Robert J. Martin, Jr. spoke in favor of the board's granting the license last week.

Police chief search

After Cohasset Police Chief Joseph M. Kealey notified selectmen of his plans to retire, the board launched a New England-area search for a replacement. Eighty-five people have applied for the position, Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said.

Local candidates for the post include Sgt. Robert Jackson, Sgt. Richard Abbadessa and Sgt. Brian Noonan.

A search sub-committee consisting of Selectmen Martha K. Gjesteby and Michael H. Sullivan are reviewing the applications. All applicants from the town will be interviewed and avoid the sub-committee's screening process, Gjesteby said in an earlier interview.

Initially the advertisement for the position said the salary would be about $56,000 but selectmen nixed including a dollar figure in the final version.

At the suggestion of Kealey, whose last day is Dec. 31, selectmen decided to rotate the appointment of acting chief of police among the three sergeant candidates for the position.

The board hopes to appoint a new police chief by March 1.

Wait until spring

Selectmen decided to wait until spring to finish painting the exterior of town hall.

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke said Paul Gentile, the contractor hired by the town, would be paid 1/4 of his fee to date. Earlier this fall, selectmen awarded Gentile a $12,000 contract for the job.

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle wanted the painting to continue on warm days this winter.

"He's the one who got us into the situation," Laugelle said about Gentile.

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan said allowing the work to continue this winter would be "risky" because scaffolding would have to go up and down depending on the weather.

He said waiting one more winter wouldn't matter.

"Paint has been peeling off for a number of years now," Sullivan said.

Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said lead dust clean-up work on the interior of the building should be completed this weekend.

The cost of the cleanup and testing to date has been $30,289. He said $2,000 more is needed to wrap up the job.

In November, selectmen increased the authorization for the cleanup from $25,000 to $32,000.

Manager change okay'ed

Selectmen okay'ed a change of manager on The Chart House all-alcoholic beverage license. The new manager is Edward J. Sopneski, who plans to be on site 50-to-70 hours a week.

Step raises approved

Selectmen approved step raises for Police Officers Shellee L. Peters and Thomas O. DaSilva. Effective Jan. 1, Peters' salary increases from $29.322 (step one) to $29,965. DaSilva's current salary is $28,683. He moves to step one at $29,322 on Jan. 1.

Traffic plan okay'ed

Selectmen approved the traffic plan for "First Night", the Dec. 31 kick-off 50th anniversary celebration planned by the Cohasset Community Center.

Roads around the town common will be closed to cars during the New Year's Eve festivities, selectmen said. Residents will be allowed to pass, however.

In a memo to the board, coordinator Rhonda Myers said the plan "meets with the approval of the fire chief and police chief.

"Everyone felt it would be in the best interest of public safety to have no cars around the common. this will definitely provide a safer environment for all the people, especially the children, who will be crossing back and forth to attend various events."

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke said the plan was "a good solution.

"I think this is much safer," she said.

Planners' secretary resigns

Anne Gorham Barnes is resigning as secretary of the planning board effective Jan. 1.

"It has been a wonderful opportunity to work for and with such a fine board," she said in a letter to planners. "I would like to express my sincere gratitude for all your understanding and cooperation during my employment with the town.

"I would like to emphasize at this time that the current controversy regarding the removal of lead paint from the town hall has no bearing on my decision to leave my position for the planning board. It has been a great pleasure to work for you."

project.

Selectman Merle S. Brown said the entire concept is scary.

"They just throw money away like it's nothing," Brown said about the Massachusetts Bay Transit Authority (MBTA), which will oversee the running of the railroad.

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke said the railroad would be expensive.

"But the cost of not doing it is going to be very high," she said.

The board bandied about other travel options such as commuter boats, bus lines, and cars.

Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby said highways are 'maxed' out.

"You just cannot build any more roads down here," she said. Gjesteby said she felt the board should support the train because the a majority of the voters of Cohasset supported the project.

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan argued in favor of the train.

"The train makes a great deal of sense," he said, adding that an efficient transportation system is important to the area.

"We just need to know the costs," he said. "They've (Federal Transportation Association) been very vague (on figures)."

At the Oct. 15 scoping meeting in Cohasset, Gjesteby —who is president of the 10-town South Shore Coalition — reaffirmed that group's 9/10 support for the project. (Hingham is the only member not to support the railroad, she said).

In a telephone interview, Gjesteby said the train is vital to the economic health of the South Shore.

"It's for our economic well being," she said. "Otherwise, we'll die on the vine."

She noted that Cohasset commuters will be seriously affected when the central artery project in Boston gets in full swing.

In a 3-2 vote, selectmen supported the project.

Comments on the scope were due at the EOEA, Nov. 6. Hingham subsidized an extensive response to the proposed scope.

The FTA and MBTA will assess comments received and use them in preparing the project's final supplemental environmental impact statement/report to be distributed by mid-1993.

Warrant closes, Jan. 11

The annual town meeting warrant closes on Monday, Jan. 11, Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said.

Petition articles must be signed by at least 10 registered voters. Special town meeting warrant articles by written petition require the signatures of 100 registered voters, he said.

To ensure placement in the warrant, draft articles must be submitted to the selectmen's office by the deadline. A request to save a place in the warrant for an article with no detail and substance is not acceptable, he said.

Legal fees paid

Selectmen authorized payment of $3,338.50 to Town Counsel Richard A. Henderson for professional services for the month of November.

Holiday schedule set

To allow employees some time for last-minute holiday preparations, the town hall will be open until 1 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 24, and will close at 4:30 p.m., Thursday, Dec. 31.

There is no selectmen's meeting Monday, Dec. 28, Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said.

Alleged rapist caught

"We will be seeking high bail," he said.

Police said the suspect gave the victim a ride home from a Hull bar. After dropping her off, the assailant returned, forced his way into her apartment, and raped her. The victim, who was treated at South Shore Hospital, managed to break free and call the operator, who alerted Cohasset police.

Officer Matos was out with severe facial injuries until mid-August, police said.

Singer ...

Folk music today is called 'acoustic' which means music played with a non-electric guitar — one you can't plug in, Crossland notes.

"You don't need an amplifier to hear it," he adds.

A graduate of the University of Michigan, Crossland spent his childhood years in Maryland and Ohio. He talks fondly of memories of listening to his grandfather tell stories.

"He could enchant anyone," he recalls. "We could listen to his stories for hours and be completely oblivious to passing time."

Although a self-described contemporary song writer, Crossland explains that his music is influenced by his early years. He came from a musical family.

His father organized 'sing-ins' at the house.

"My father was not so much a musician but an organizer — what he lacked in ability, he made up for in enthusiasm," Crossland recalls.

"When I grew up, there were a lot of guitars around the house — on these nights we were allowed to do whatever we wanted... it was so much fun, we could make up our own rules."

After years of that, you slip into it, Crossland says.

But despite the his early experience, Crossland didn't become serious about his music until a few years after he graduated from college.

"I moved to Massachusetts, lived on the North Shore, and taught high school for dyslexic kids," he recalls.

Teaching language tutorials one-on-one was difficult work. But Crossland unwound with his U.S. History class.

"I'd rant, rave, ask questions and get them to think," he recalls.

Crossland later moved to Cohasset to be close to his mother and two younger brothers.

After one nationwide tour, another booked, and a C.D. — it's hard to believe that Crossland started focusing on music as a full-time career a little more than two years ago.

"I got fired waiting tables," he recalls and not for the first time. "There's something between me and waiting tables in the food bizz."

The next day, Crossland got a gig playing at a college during lunch for "a couple of hundred bucks," he recalls.

"I decided someone was trying to tell me something," he says. "So I thought with a little bit more time and effort I could do the music business."

Cohasset's Dave Crossland sings his original song "Minot's Light" during the recent groundbreaking ceremonies at the lightkeeper's residence on Government Island. Cohasseters can see Crossland perform again during the New Year's Eve celebration sponsored by the Community Center.

Crossland finds handling the business-side of his music and being and artist at opposite poles.

"When I'm in my booking mode, it's hard to write good songs — when I'm at my most artistic, I'm in no mind to get bookings or do publicity."

Crossland sings a lot of different songs.

"I usually play my originals plus a smattering of traditional songs."

The long hours on the road don't affect him.

"I have friends all over the place and I love to see new places, it keeps the world together for me.

"I feel like a needle and thread going around keeping friends and the world stitched together."

Crossland often gets inspiration to write songs from the people he meets and the places he sees.

In his song about Minot's Light, he talks about the lightkeeper rowing out to the light and flashing 1-4-3 (I love you) to his wife on shore.

"These stories, these people and places are the beautiful parts of our world. Things are changing and it would be a shame to lose all that beauty.

"Maybe by singing a story about Minot's Light — what it means— maybe that can help preserve what was there, what is still there.

"It may get people to look around themselves and see other things around them."

Crossland says rock isn't the only musical attraction for today's teens.

"They're discovering acoustic music now," he says adding that rock superstar Eric Clapton's new "unplugged" album has caught on and some popular bands are doing acoustic songs.

And Crossland may be right.

While in town, he has done some substitute teaching at the junior/senior high school. Crossland heard that students lobbied event organizers to book him to perform at the Teen Depot during the New Year's Eve festivities.

To Crossland, a little storytelling can go a long way.

"Not too long ago without TV, radios, and movies, people told stories after supper and made music," he says. "Now we just turn on the TV and that's what most people do.

"That's affecting our culture, that's why we're becoming spectators instead of movers and shakers."

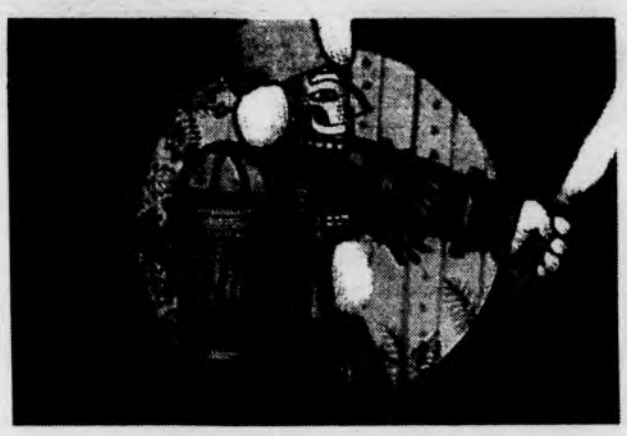
Nutcracker tradition

Sue Terry, the Children's Librarian, organized a selection of holiday books for young readers at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. Many holiday favorites are included in the collection.



One of the most popular books is the story of The Nutcracker. E.T.A Hoffman's delightful tale of The Nutcracker and the King of the Mice. This story has thrilled children for generations.

At the library, there are many adaptations of this wonderful tale from the original Hoffman to the most current by Maurice Sendak with his magical, marvelous characters. While some books focus on the story of the Nutcracker and its moral message, others, such as A Very Young Dancer, concentrate on Tchaikovsky's Ballet.

The American Ballet Theater production in New York is a favorite of photographers. You will find full-color photographs of Balanchine's Christmas extravaganza in Ellen Switzer's book.

Authors from different countries are represented in the collection, as well, Dumas of France, Yamanushi of Japan and world-famous artist Lisbeth Zwergern, who has illustrated two holiday classics, The Nutcracker and The Gift of the Magi.

Local artist Jan Brett has illustrated Noelle of the Nutcracker, the story of the the beautiful ballerina doll. In Janet Schulman's adaptation, explanations answer recurring questions such as why were the Mice and Nutcracker enemies? The Nutcracker story is told in books, on cassettes with accompanying minibooks, on film strip and on long-playing albums narrated by Claire Bloom.

All are available in the holiday collection in the children's area of the library.

Winter library hours

Fall hours at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library are: Sunday, 2 to 5 p.m.; Monday and Tuesday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.; closed Wednesday; Thursday and Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

METCO program fosters friendship . . .

Integration and acceptance into the nearly all-white educational system is not a difficulty in Cohasset, Brown said.

"Cohasset welcomes these students from top to bottom. It is very well-supported."

School Supt. Stephen Hart reiterated the sentiment.

"We really consider them Cohasset students who happen to live in Boston," he said.

They have immersed themselves in school and extra-curricular activities like the students who live here, Hart said.

"METCO students have been President of their class, ranked at the top of their class, excelled at drama, athletics,...They've really been an integral part of the school," Hart said.

By all accounts, the METCO students feel equally at home in Cohasset..

Senior and METCO student Paris Cook said he has had little trouble adapting.

"Everyone gets along well — it's easy to make friends here," he said.

Michelle LeMar, another METCO student and senior, said she is comfortable in Cohasset.

"I like the people here," LeMar, who was a recent student of the month, said.

One of the reasons the program works so well in town, Brown said, is the involvement of the METCO host families.

Host families "adopt" a METCO student and offer in-town support for the student, and the student's parents.

"For parents, it is a good link. If there is a party, for instance, they can ask the host family what is going on, or 'Do you know Mary Sue and would you let your child go to her party,?'", Brown said.

Often, the purpose of the host family is even more basic.

"They provide a place for the student to stay if they play in a sport or are in a play," and can't get home to Boston, Brown explained.

Many of the host families are the student's "home away from home," she said.

We really consider them Cohasset students who happen to live in Boston,'

—School Supt. Stephen Hart

"Like Ray Jones. He had chores one year — he was part of their family," Brown added.

Jones, whose host family is the Chitticks, said they are very close.

"They even took me to look at colleges," he added.

Jones is captain of the football team and active in school musicals and frequently spends the night at his host family's house.

Cook, who also plays football, is also very close to his host family, the Adams.

"They get along with my parents well. They are going with them to see my sister perform in Black Nativity," Cook said.

In another example of reciprocity, senior Christina DeVaughn's family sang gospels and spirituals for the Deer Hill School last year.

"My sister, my mother, my uncle, whose the minister of my church, and his fiance sang for Deer Hill. My sister goes to Deer Hill," DeVaughn explained.

Brown said she is trying to convince the DeVaughn family to repeat their performance this year.

While Cook transferred from another school to Cohasset two years ago, he is not typical of most of the METCO students, according to Brown.

Most have been in Cohasset since first grade, which Brown said is incredible considering their daily schedule.

The first pick-up in Boston is 5:45 a.m.

"And if you play sports or do something after-school, you won't get home until 10, 10:30 at night," she said.

Despite the travelling difficulties, few students leave the program, Brown said.

Involved and ambitious parents are the reason.

"Many of these kids are signed up at conception," Brown said.

Joanea Spencer's mother said educational advantage was not the only reason she signed her daughter up for the METCO program.

"For the better educational program, but I also wanted her to have a different cultural experience," Spencer said.

Cohasset host families offer the same explanation for their involvement with METCO.

METCO host family chairman Dayle Dickinson said a desire to widen her children's view of the world inspired her to become a host family.

"The best thing has been the new friendships for my children and the experience of diversity which they just don't have in Cohasset," Dickinson said.

However, METCO student LaKeitha Smith honestly said there is still a lack of diversity in some areas of the schools.

"The teachers aren't black. I wish there were some black teachers," she said.

Otherwise, Smith said her experience in the Cohasset schools has been positive.

No all-night parking

Starting Nov. 15 and running through March 15, overnight parking is prohibited on any Cohasset street.

It is unlawful to park any vehicle on any street for longer than one hour between the hours of 2 and 6 a.m. during this period, police said.

This Holiday Season
Give The Gifts That Last A Whole Lifetime!

You know the feeling when you find a gift that is perfect for that special person on your list. Not just another gift that will be forgotten in a couple of days, but something special they will use and appreciate for years to come. However, sometimes it's not so easy to find something special, different, something that can really change someone's life for the better. This year Wah Lum Kung Fu Academy offers the gifts that last a lifetime: Self Confidence, Peace of Mind, Health & Fitness, Dicipline and the feeling that comes from knowing you are more in control of your life. All these gifts can be developed through our unique training programs in Wah Lum Kung Fu and Tai Chi Chuan.

Martial arts training is more than self-defense; it is the ability to better manage your life on all levels. Men, women, and children can develop their minds and bodies to see the solution beyond the problem. More than a toy, tie, or gift certificate to your favorite restaurant; the training you receive at Wah Lum Academy will develop mental and physical vitality and a more positive outlook on life! Don't you know somebody who can benefit from these gifts?

* For more information on the benefits and training programs available, call (617) 383-6822
* And be sure to take advantage of our Holiday Special!...Free registration w/ Enrollment.

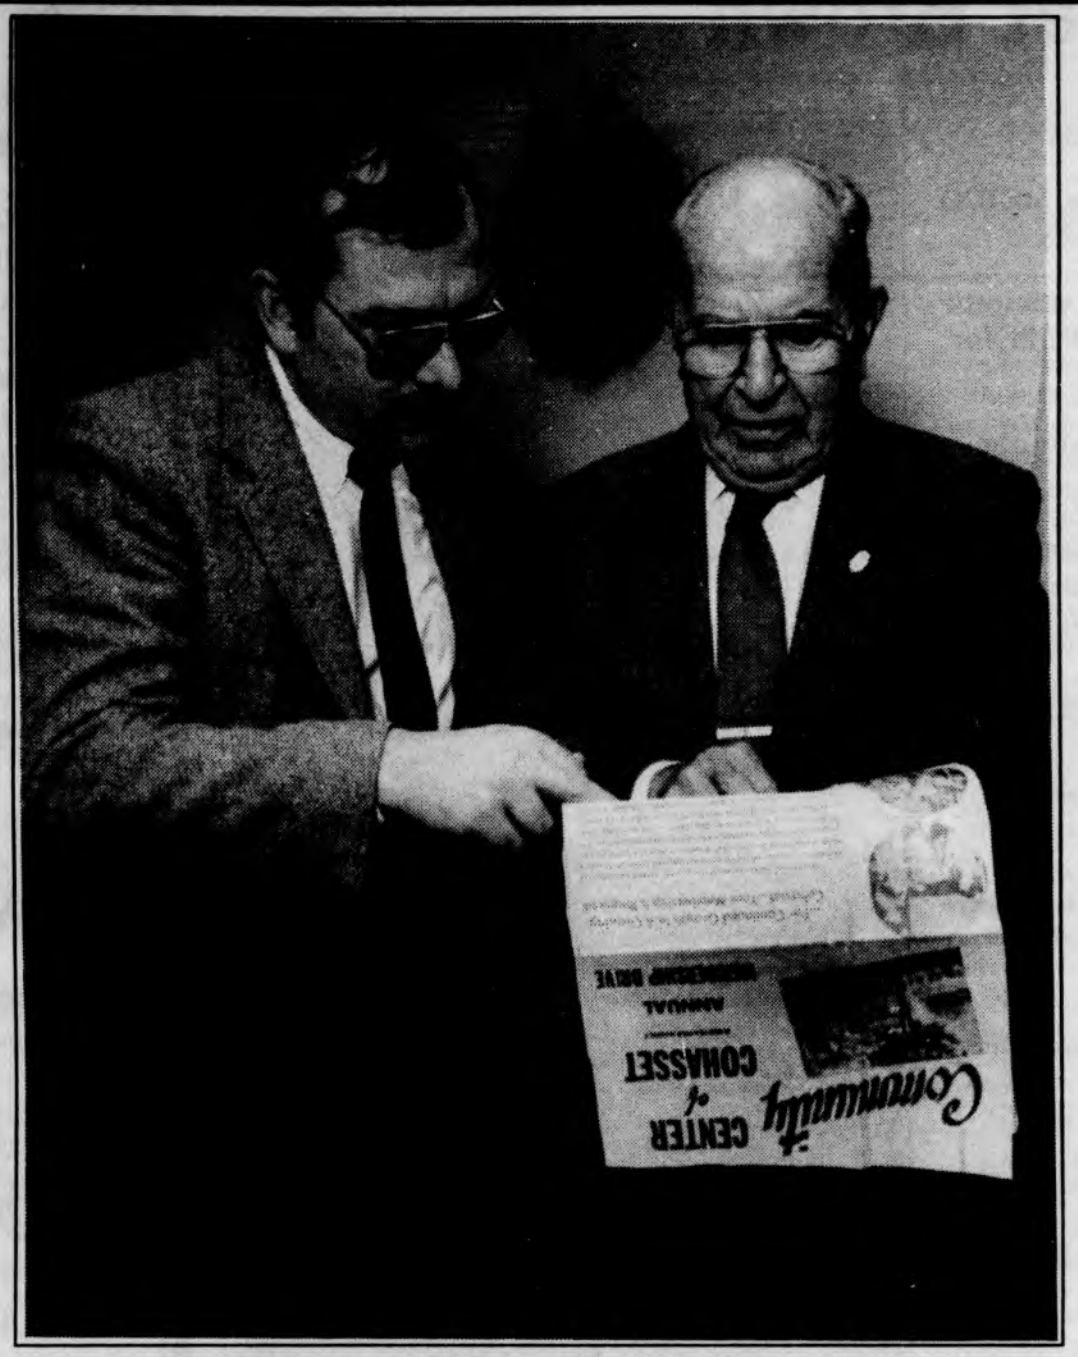
around town

❑ We start this week with a standing ovation to soccer, and the players from TINY Cohasset High School who made the South Shore League All-Stars for 1992...For the girls, Erin Murphy, Kathleen O'Brien and Katie Carroll; the boys' team consisted of Mike Connor, Doug Ellinger and Chris Kondrat.

Not only did we have six players on the team, the girls won another prestigious award, a team one — the Sportsmanship award for the whole League!



Just stop and think of the size of our school compared to the league, then think about what our athletes have done, then stand up and cheer! They deserve it!

❑ Charlotte Begley, daughter of Velma and Kevin Begley of Beechwood Street, has become a member of the University of Massachusetts chapter of Golden Key. For those of you who wonder just what that is, it is a national academic honor society formed to recognize and encourage outstanding scholastic achievement in all fields of study. Membership is by invitation to juniors and seniors who have maintained at least a 3.5 cumulative average on a four-point scale. Charlotte is a member of the Class of 1994 and is double majoring in legal studies and Spanish at the University. She is a CHS 1990 graduate.

❑ Another newsworthy event from the college world...Allison Kornet, daughter of Diana and John Kornet, was cited for outstanding work in a course in philosophy. This is for the summer, 1992 term. The members of the Dartmouth faculty are invited to submit citation reports only when a student's work is sufficiently distinguished to merit special recognition, and only a few undergrads receive citations each term.

Great work, Allison!

❑ We certainly hope that Austin Studley is feeling better as he reads this...Santa is coming so be happy, healthy and well when he gets here!

Current Cohasset Community Center president Glen Pratt and Alfred Odermatt, who was vice president of the community center in 1956, look over an old clipping. The center hosted a reception Sunday for current and former board members. (Staff photo/Alan Chapman)

❑ Tom Wigmore certainly has been one busy young man lately! Last weekend he was spotted in the Quincy Christmas parade leading the Sons of the American Legion, and this past weekend he was an invited guest speaker at the "We Still Remember" Pearl Harbor Program, held at the State House at the Hall of Flags in Boston. It was actually held the day before, Dec. 6, and was sponsored by the Department of Massachusetts American Legion.

As Commander of the Sons of the American Legion, Tom led all in the Pledge of Allegiance and gave a heart-warming speech...just picture Tom in the Hall of Flags in the State House and you will get goosebumps and feel so proud of him. Tell him so the next time you see him. His patriotism should be recognized by all of us!

❑ Lily Faulhaber, daughter of Mrs. Susan Playfair, will be dancing the roles of Party Scene and Flowers in the National Youth Ballet at Walnut Hill School's annual production of "The Nutcracker." Walnut Hill's Nutcracker has become a tradition in the metrowest area, gathering audiences of 5,000. All performances are at Natick High School's Healy Auditorium. Call Walnut Hill School for more information.

❑ If you think you are busy, think of the Berger household! Mrs. Berger just returned from Russia where she adopted a baby girl, Alexandra Caitlin, 17 months old. And baby makes seven. Many visitors have gone to see Alexandra and claim she is grand. Imagine how it must be to have an active 17-month-old baby who cannot speak English but does all the rest. With all of the love that is there, you can bet that she will learn it all quickly.

girl scout news

Island beautified

Thursday, Nov. 12, Brownie Troop 4625 helped plant bulbs for a "Secret Garden" at the new traffic island at King and Beechwood Streets.

The girls assisted Amy Roebuck of Amy Roebuck Landscape Design/ Consulting. Selectmen authorized $200 for the project from funds left over from the island construction.

The troop planted tulip and crocus bulbs and will add more plantings in coming seasons.

Scout phon-a-thon

The Cohasset Girl Scouts hold a phonathon Thursday, Dec. 10, from 7 to 9 p.m. The calls will be made only to the families of registered Cohasset Girl Scouts. For further information, call Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council, 482-1078.

BACKGROUND

Each town within the Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council is expected to hold a fund-raiser to support the Family Partnership. The council spends approximately $136 per girl each year to provide the innovative programs and training for the 37,000 girls and adults.

The money comes from various sources: product sales, 47 percent; program fees and equipment sales, 34 percent; United Way, 12 percent; private, public and family support, 7 percent; total 100 percent.

In Cohasset, the Girl Scouts are a vital and strong community unit serving over 118 girls and 16 adults in 8 troops. In 1991, 1 of the 6 girls attending the Council-sponsored day or resident camps received campership totaling $125. Twelve of the leaders took additional training to better prepare themselves to meet the needs of the girls in their troops.

The Council goal for the Family Partnership Campaign this year is $60,000. Since one primary objective is 100 percent participation, every gift, whatever its size, is vital to support Girl Scout activities. This will enable your Service unit to provide town activities such as the Mother/Daughter Tea, and Father/Daughter Square Dance.

Holiday giving

Just as the retail industry eyes the holiday season as its potentially most lucrative of the year, so do charities and other non-profit organizations.

Charities received nearly $125 billion last year, according to the American Association of Fund-raising Counsel Trust for Philanthropy. And nearly 83 percent — $103 billion — came from individuals, with another $6 billionf from corporations.

But businesses and individuals must be mindful to whom they are giving and how their donations will be used.

This year a national organization which raises hundreds of millions of dollars was rocked — with fallout raining on its local affiliates — when financial disclosures revealed extraordinary expenses for luxurious items by or on behalf of its president.

Attorney general Scott Harshbarger has been aggressive in identifying deceptive and fraudulent fund-raising practices in Massachusetts and has taken 18 organizations to court during the past year.

In one case where two individuals posed either as police officers or fire department officials in an effort to raise money for anti-drug education, police relief or safety programs, Harshbarger prosecuted criminally, and a superior court judge imposed prison sentences with long probations.

Massachusetts has some 28,000 organizations registered with the attorney general's division of public charities, and for the most part, their fund-raising efforts are worthwhile, legitimate causes.

But in a survey of 128 public charities where professional fund-raisers were used in 1991, two dozen charities received less than 10 percent of the gross revenue raised by telemarketing, direct mail, entertainment events or other types of solicitations.

Just 13 of the 128 organizations received more than 50 percent of the gross revenue. The average charitable organizations receive is about 28 percent.

Harshbarger notes that many charities use professional solicitors to publicize their existence and educate the public about their cause. Huge charities, on the other hand, have employees whose sole function is to raise funds.

But in an effort to ensure that the integrity of charitable giving remains in tact and that those philanthropic dollars are put to their best use, the attorney general's office, together with the Better Business Bureau, have launched an education campaign with a theme of "give, but give wisely."

Prospective donors should become informed not only about the charity but about the individual who is soliciting funds as well.

Ask who is seeking a contribution and what is his/her relationship to the charity. Is the caller a professional fund-raiser? What is the address and telephone number of the fund-raising organization?

Ask who will benefit from the donation and what kind of services will be provided?

How much of the donation will go to the charity and how much will be kept by the fund-raiser?

The attorney general advises that some professional solicitors work under a fee arrangement, so that even though all contributions may be turned over to a charity, the charity may have to reimburse the solicitor for all his fund-raising and administrative expenses which could total a considerable sum.

The attorney general's office and the Better Business Bureau can provide information about a local charity.

A knowledgeable donor will avoid heartache when giving to a worthwhile charity.

Planks support lightkeepers' project

By R.E. Martin Jr.
Special to the Mariner

Lighthouses have been a symbol of many things over the years: Security – Sanctuary – The End of the Journey. The structures themselves are a source of inspiration to artists and photographers, professional and amateur, all over the world. There aren't many people who are not fascinated by the sight of a white lighthouse on a rocky promontory or the flash of the light. A trip to the shore is incomplete without a glimpse of a lighthouse. Ask any seafarer about the warmth of seeing the welcome beacon through the fog.

But the people involved with lighthouses, the lightkeepers and their families, are as important as the structures themselves in the history of man's conquest of the oceans, or perhaps, accommodation to the oceans, is a better phrase.

The story of Joseph Antoine and Joseph Wilson, two young Cohasset men, and their loss with the original Minot's Ledge Light during a gale in 1851 are symbolic of the people who manned the lights before the days of automation.

The renovation of the lightkeeper's residence on Government Island is a story of people. Naturally the building itself is the focus of the effort but without the people the effort would not be possible.

The list of the people involved must start with Joe McElroy and Herb Towle. Without the tenacity of these two men the building would still be moldering and decaying rather than starting on its journey to becoming the centerpiece of a harborfront "user friendly" park. Joe and Herb stepped up to the plate when the people in Cohasset declined to authorize the expenditure of $ 30,000 for cosmetic renovations to the building. Joe and Herb had the vision to see that the building should be used to serve the townspeople. The conversion of the building to a meeting place for the various non-profit organizations in the town and two small apartments to generate funds to support the upkeep of the building fulfills this vision. To serve the purpose of raising funds and overseeing the conversion the non-profit Cohasset Lightkeepers Corporation was formed.

The next people to be involved were the Boston Architectural Center. The student assigned to our project, Matt Leak, had the vision to see the renovation of the the building in the context of expanding the use of Government Island for the people of Cohasset. This coincides with the 1963 report of the Government Island Housing Committee: "The main value in the ownership of the land lies in the fact that its use accrues to the people of the Town. In our opinion the value of this public use greatly transcends that of income from the housing on the property." A truer statement could not be made.

The project and the demolition began. Herb Towle, Ira Stoughton, Dick Barrow and George Haley volunteered for the job of pulling down the lath and plaster, devoted people to say the least. In the midst of their efforts a man showed up one day and offered his assistance. Peter Curtis, who lives in Ohio and spends the summer in Hull, read about the project and became interested. Peter devoted many hours of volunteer labor to the most distasteful work of the project.

The efforts were bolstered by the arrival of the men from the Braintree Alternative Center, under the leadership of the Community Project Coordinator, John Chiasson, and the on-site direction of Corrections Officers Danny Ferrara and Bud Fredericks. They took over some of the more difficult demolition work such as the removal of a massive chimney. The problem of disposal of the demolition material was solved through the cooperation of Paul Barry.

Jim Rosano, Bill Higgins, Tony Finegan, Gerard Keating, Ben Curley and Don Hasse joined in and contributed to the "festivities".

When the frame of the building was stripped bare it was very evident that either demolition or complete reconstruction were the only viable alternatives for the building and that the formation of a" Citizen's Group" to achieve this purpose had been a very fortuitous happening.

The reconstruction is under the direction of the Architectural and Construction Committee composed of George Kovach, Steve Weber, Dick Grinnell, Ira Stoughton and Herb Towle. The Committee meets every Saturday morning to assess the progress of the work.

The South Shore Vocational Technical School has adopted the project for the junior and senior students and the site is alive with young people under the direction of Jim Flaherty.

As you can see, the Lightkeepers' Project is about people, the lightkeepers who manned the Light and lived in the residence with their families and the people in Cohasset who had the vision of Government Island as an underutilized seaside sanctuary.

Now it is time for the involvement of the townspeople. The Cohasset Lightkeeper's Corporation has raised about $ 60,000. Completion of the project will require another $100,000.

A "Plankowner's Wall" will be erected at the site. The wall will contain the names of those who buy a plank to support the reconstruction. This will provide an opportunity for every one in Cohasset to put his or her name on the success of converting Government Island to a people place.

The possibilities are endless; have your own name inscribed for posterity, surprise your nearest and dearest with a 1-4-3 plank, tie your children or grandchildren to Cohasset and Minot's Ledge Light for all time.

Most importantly, you will be contributing to a project which will eventually turn Government Island into a place for residents to enjoy the outstanding view of Cohasset Harbor as they picnic on the lawn above the Lighthouse Templates and the Lighthouse Replica.

A donation of $ 50 will result in the listing on the "Plankowner's Wall".

I will close with an excerpt from Signals of the Sea by Arthur Hewitt, describing a visit with the Keepers' of Minot Ledge Lighthouse.

"I watched them at their work: the lens and lantern had to be polished, oil measured and replenished: everything was done with a vigor and exactitude seldom seen in life ashore. It was interesting, too, picturing the older keeper looking seaward from the light: his face and manner of life meant almost more than the light itself. He told me of his battle with the awful solitude and how he had overcome."

Growing up on Government Island

By Molly (Tornberg) Orr, St. Petersburg Florida
(Part 1)

"My interest in the restoration of the Lightkeepers House is keen and personal. My father, Per F. Tornberg, was keeper of the Minot's from 1922 until he was transferred to Annisquam in 1936. I lived on the Island from 1922 until 1934 when I graduated from high school. Part of my heart is still on the island and I treasure the memories of the wonderful life I had there."

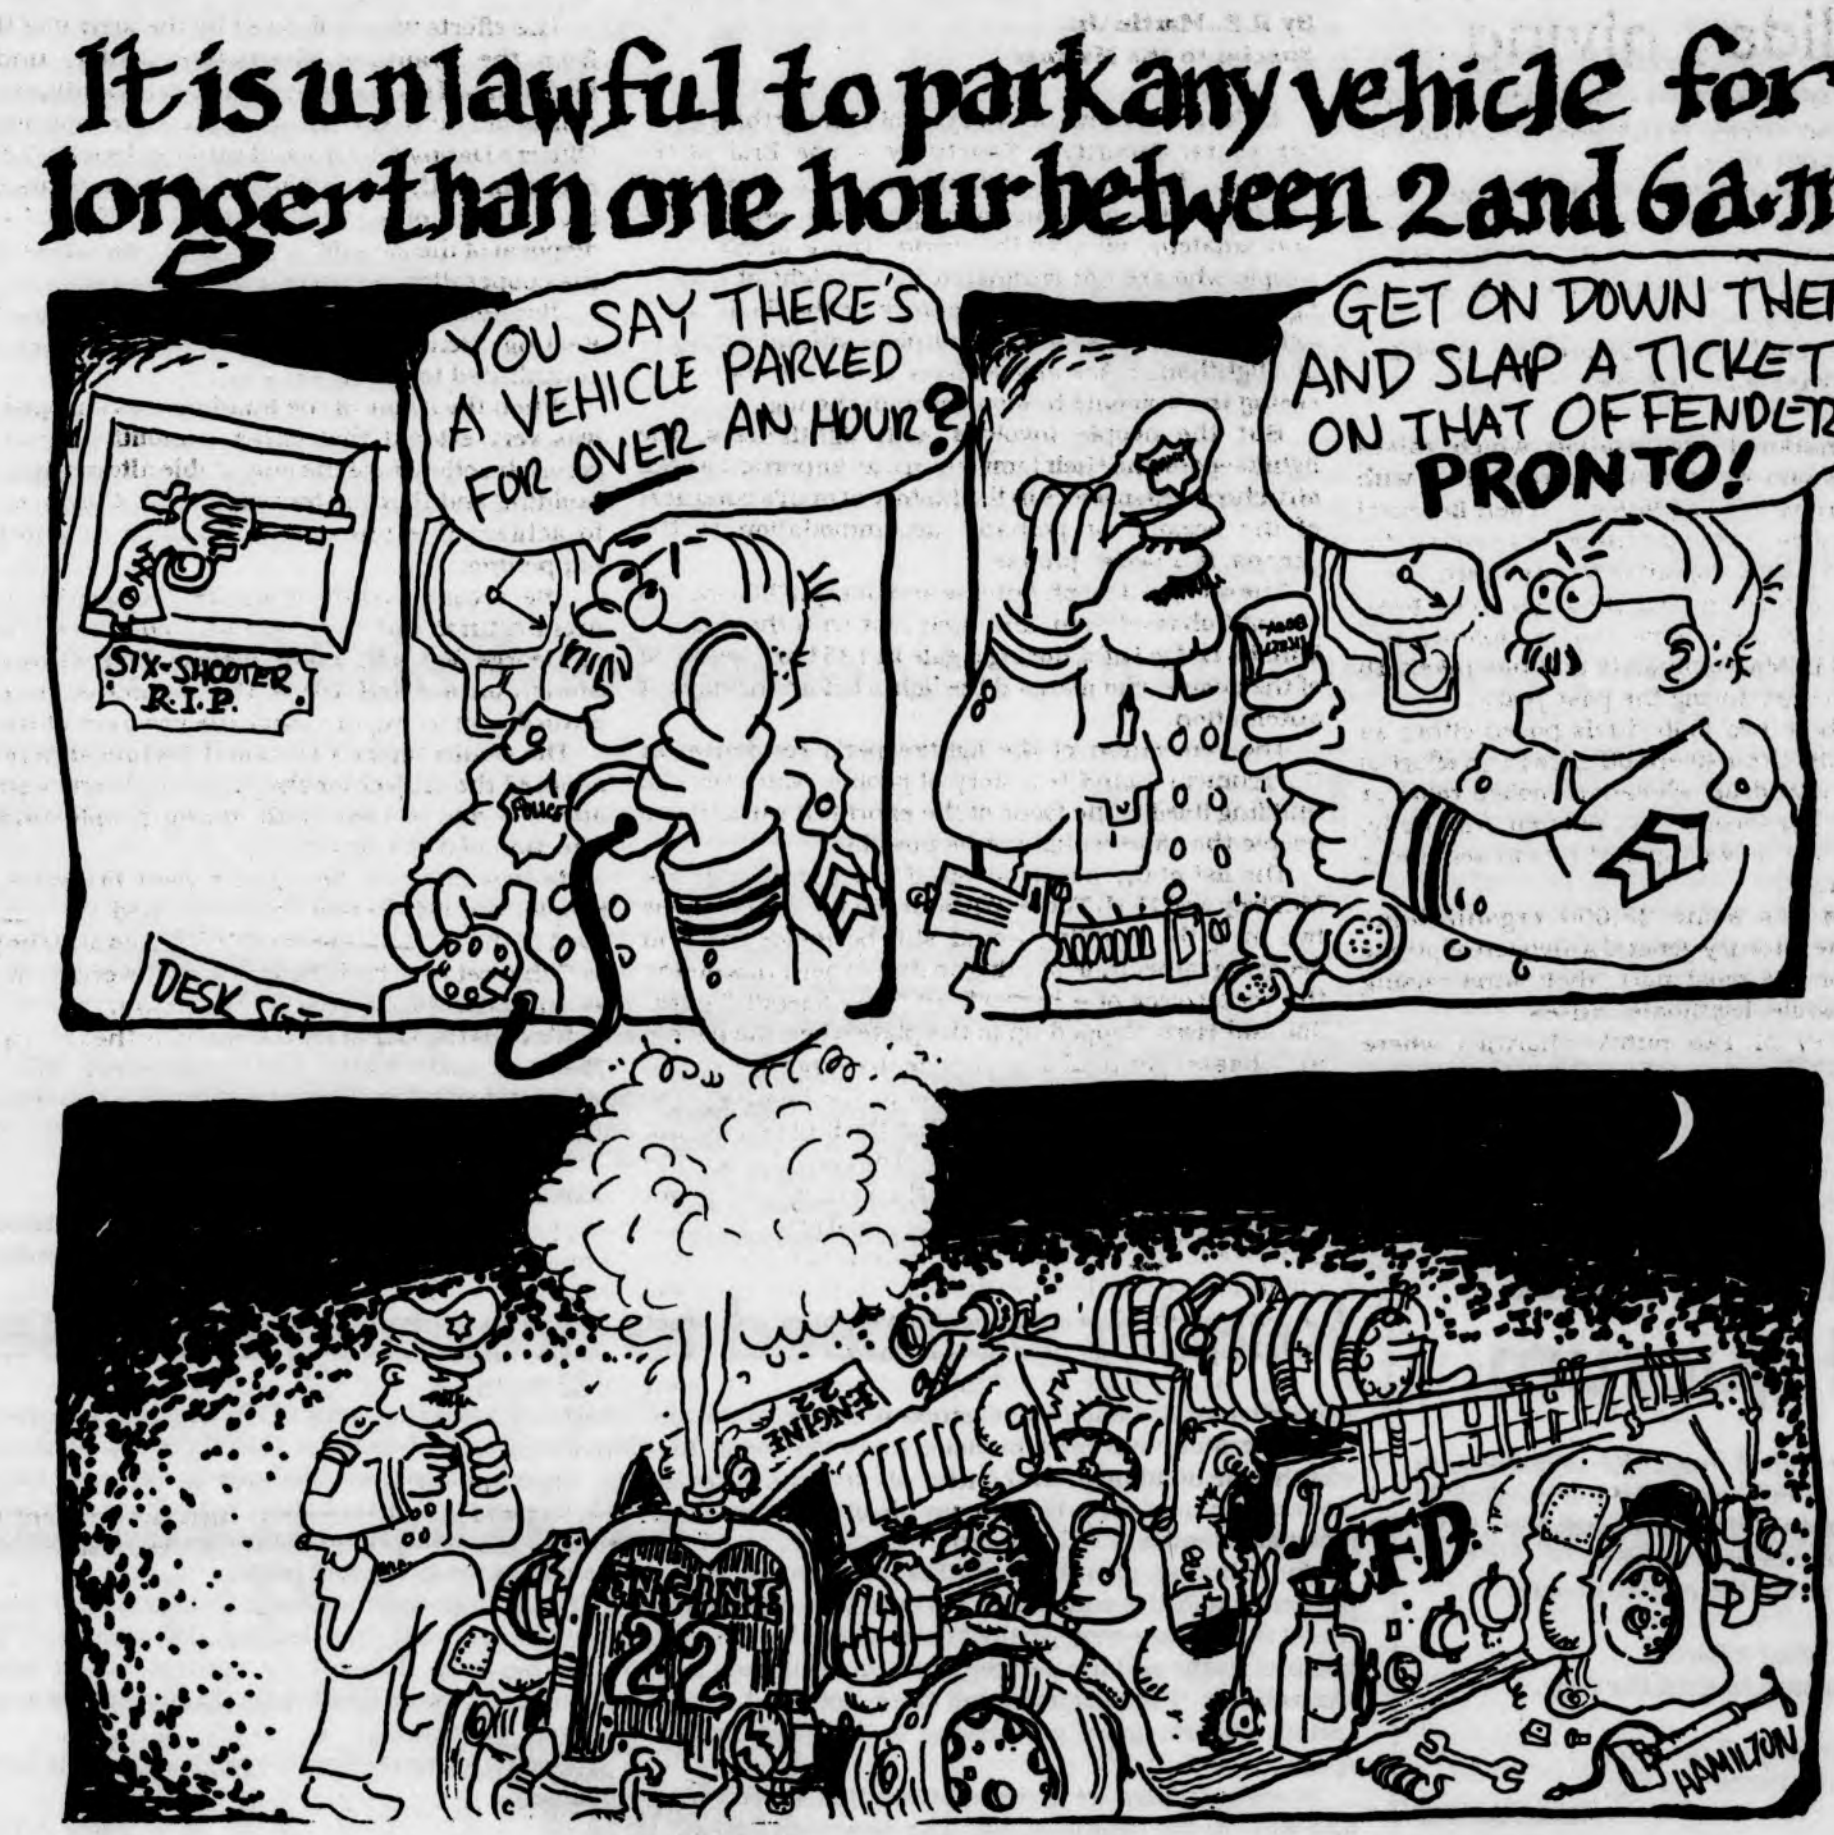
Government Island sits on an ancient fault line that had pushed up Dedham Granite ledges of varying heights and shapes. These ledges popped up throughout the whole town of Cohasset: in front yards, back yards, side yards and cellars. They appeared, to me, like beauty spots on the face of the Earth.

Let me describe our home on Government Island. It was a clapboard duplex painted white with grey trim, which were regulation colors for all lighthouse properties along the New England coast.

The house sat atop a high embankment. Below this steep rise of land was a flat field that started at the edge of the harbor. A sea wall of granite blocks held back the tides. In the ground on this field are two circles of granite blocks. It was on these circles that the stone blocks were cut and fitted, round after round, to build Minots Lighthouse. Each course of blocks, as the size, shape and fit were perfected, were moved to a barge which towed the round out to Minots Ledge. This was how the lighthouse was constructed.

Behind the house to the right, a ledge 102 feet high rose to a sharp peak. Each approach to top of this ledge had crags and scarps that made it difficult to climb. At the very peak, a flight of steps had been cut into the rock. A tall flag pole was erected on the arete. The workmen at the construction site in the ocean got messages through flying nautical signal flags from this pole. This was the only means of communicating with those men who were involved in this very hazardous job.

Mother named this high rock "The Landmark." The historians have named it "Beacon Rock" and the Portuguese fishermen named it "The Cabeze" which translates to "The Head." Any of these names fit the rock.



To the left of the house was another ledge, smoother and not as high as the one to the right. In between these two ledges was a swale of very fertile land with majestic oaks, native blue cedar trees, stands of white birches, sassafras and hickory nut trees and edible huckleberries and poisonous dog berry bushes.

Each side of the duplex house had four bedrooms, one bath, a kitchen, dining room, living room and a front hall that was the size of a small room. The cellar had room enough for a coal bin and the furnace. The rest of the cellar was a ledge.

Across the front of the house was a spacious porch. During the summer, this space became the dormitory for as many children as could squeeze a cot in. My father had screened it in to make it habitable during the season of our man-eating mosquitos.

I have described the physical appearance of the house, but that is not all it was. It was the center of a warm, active and loving family life.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

QUESTIONS	Senator Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth) 722-1646 Room 416B	Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Cohasset) 722-2800 ext.7057 Room 134
THE HOUSE AND SENATE. "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local senators' votes on three roll calls and local representatives' votes on two roll calls from the week of Nov. 30 to Dec. 4.
CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT(S 48) - Constitutional Convention favored 91-90 (Senate favored 27-9, House rejected 81-64) a proposed constitutional amendment eliminating language from the state constitution which prohibits public funding of private or parochial schools or institutions. The amendment replaces the language with wording from the federal constitution prohibiting the legislature from making laws "respecting an establishment of religion." Amendment supporters said it is time to eliminate this offensive language which was placed in the constitution by the anti-Catholic Know-Nothing Party. They said the amendment will not allow state aid to private schools which they claimed is prohibited by other parts of the constitution. Opponents said the amendment violates the separation of church and state and is designed to open the door to state aid to private schools. They noted the legislature must ensure that precious public resources are not used for private purposes. The amendment is ten votes shy of the 101 votes it needs for initial approval. A motion to reconsider the vote is scheduled for Dec. 16. (A "Yea" vote is for striking the language prohibiting the aid. A "Nay" vote is for keeping the language prohibiting the aid).	Y	NV
PAY RAISES (H 6252) - Senate rejected 22-8 and House 79-26 refused to reconsider its earlier defeat of Governor Weld's amendments reducing the 13 percent pay raise for 50,000 state workers to 5 percent. The governor's amendments also make the 5 percent raise and any future hikes contingent on a satisfactory performance review. Amendment supporters said the state cannot afford the 13 percent hikes and argued this compromise will give reasonable hikes while keeping the budget balanced. Opponents said these employees have not had an increase in five years and are entitled to this modest hike. (In the Senate, a "Yea" vote is for the reduction to 5 percent. A "Nay" vote is against the reduction. In the House a "Yea" vote is for reconsidering defeat of the reduction to 5 percent. A "Nay" vote is against the reduction). Speaker Flaherty advised members who have relatives on the state payroll to vote "present" in order to avoid a potential conflict of interest.	Y	NV
MORE PAY RAISE (H 6208) - After rejecting Governor Weld's pay raise reduction amendments, the Senate 24-5 again approved and sent to Governor Weld the 13 percent pay hike for 50,000 state workers. The House approved the bill again on a voice vote without a roll call. (A "Yea" vote is for the 13 percent hike. A "Nay" vote is against it).	N

Lame-duck Bob Hedlund speaks his mind

By Tom Henshaw
Mariner staff

Two years in the State Senate has taught Bob Hedlund that the battle lines on Beacon Hill are not drawn between Republicans and Democrats or even liberals and conservatives.

"I don't want to get too extreme in my language," he says, "but basically it's between those who try to represent their constituents and do what's right and those who are nothing but political whores."

Hedlund, a Republican who was defeated for reelection by Democrat Brian McDonald last month, reflected in an interview on his past two years as senator from the Norfolk and Plymouth District.

"There was one vote in particular," he said, "where I was counselled by my colleagues that mine would be a bad vote.

"I said, 'But I can't vote for this because it's unconstitutional.' They said, 'Yeah, I know it's unconstitutional but I don't want to go back to my district and have to explain this vote to this group or that group.'

"In the one instance I'm thinking of, the Breathalyzer Bill, the State Supreme Court later ruled that the bill was unconstitutional.

"That's just one example. It's not a question of doing what's right. It's a question of political expediency to most of them.

"Another good example is the budget. You have folks who will vote for every amendment that tacks on money. They'll vote to override every spending veto the governor proposes.

"But they won't vote for new taxes or revenues. They'll go back to their districts and tell the average working stiff that 'I voted against every tax hike proposed.' And then, of course, they make sure they voted for whatever little power grab a special interest group was pushing.

"They tie the administration's hands so that they have to cut local aid to balance the budget and those people are the first to go out and bash the administration.

"You're going to see local aid affected again next year and you'll see those people who aren't disciplined enough to vote against those pork projects or handouts be the first ones to bash the administration for the local aid cut that's needed to balance the budget.

"I left that place with a headache the other night seeing some of the vetoes that were overridden. It's not between Republican and Democrat. It's between people who are intellectually honest with themselves and the electorate and those who are not."

Hedlund was one of 15 Republican senators that enabled Gov. Weld to sustain his vetoes in the 1991-92 Legislature. Now there are only nine, well below the one-third necessary to uphold the governor.

Board urged to deny liquor license for Salt House

letters

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to selectmen.)

I am writing to express my objection to the application for a beer and wine license made by the owners of the Old Salt House on Border Street. Added to the obvious objection concerning the total lack of parking in the area during the summer months is my major concern and objection — that the granting of this license will make beer and wine accessible to both the general public and also to the boaters in the harbor on a take-out basis.

I have had no objection to a take-out food business at the Old Salt House location. In fact, I think that it is a nice addition to the recreational nature of the area during the summer. But granting a beer and wine license to the business will, in essence, be adding on "drinks to go." And I can foresee nothing but trouble if this should come to pass.

No matter how good the owners' intentions are, policing the movements of those patrons who have bought a drink will be impossible. There is no practical way to stop a patron of a take-out restaurant from taking his or her food and drink off of the property; and there is no practical way to ensure that those drinks are not being consumed by the operators of boats in the harbor. Enforcement of the laws and statutes against public drinking and operating a boat while intoxicated would be next to impossible given the budgetary restraints put on our local police, harbormaster and Coast Guard station, and the threat to public safety in the area would rise dramatically. With three businesses in the immediate area already licensed to serve alcohol on their premises, I do not feel that another license is either needed or called for.

While I understand and sympathize with the motivation behind the license application, as a taxpayer and resident of the area I must strongly urge the Board of Selectmen to deny the application.

Thank you for your consideration.

Reader opposed to granting license

(Editor's note: The following letter was sent to selectmen.)

I am writing this letter in reference to the beer and wine application submitted on behalf of The Old Salt House. I am opposed to that license being issued for the following reasons.

The parking situation in this area is at best horrendous in the summertime. There is no question that if this license were granted there would be a large influx of traffic and the parking problem would just be exacerbated. The neighborhood does not need, and cannot absorb, more cars trying to find a parking space.

There currently are three locations that serve beer and wine in the neighborhood: The American Legion, Kimballs By The Sea, and The Chart House. While I understand why the owner of The Old Salt House would like this license, I do think that three establishments are enough. These establishments all serve indoors with the exception of Kimballs. They do have an enclosed patio. The Old Salt House would be serving outdoors. This brings me to my last point.

What is to prevent a person from buying a beer or glass of wine, and then leaving the premises? That would be very difficult to control. Then whose responsibility would it be to pick up any glasses or cans that were discarded?

In closing let me reaffirm my request that this license be denied.

Of good guys and 'political whores' on Beacon Hill

Weymouth, said he knew what he was getting into when he ran for the office two years ago at the age of 29.

"There weren't many surprises," he said, "but the biggest one was how little is done on the floor of the Senate. It was a disappointment to learn how little you could sway your colleagues with rational argument.

"The whole thing is driven by political expediency, partisanship and the tremendous amount of power wielded by the Senate president. There is more done in Billy Bulger's office than on the floor of the Senate. What happens on the floor is just a ceremonial exercise many times."

Hedlund has ambivalent recollections of Bulger, the Senate president since 1978, a record 14 years.

"He was more than fair to me," he said. "He was actually very good to me. But I have a problem with the way the system works.

"He controls who is on what committee. He controls how much staff I can have, where I can park my car, how many pencils I can use in my office. He controls every aspect of the chamber and that's not good.

"People become beholden to him, Republicans and Democrats alike. If he wants your vote on an issue, he's gonna get it. I've seen guys switch positions, go back on campaign promises, because of the control he exercises."

Hedlund said he feels that Bulger's Republican opposite, David Locke, the minority leader who lost out for reelection in November, will be sorely missed, as will Ned Kirby, the longtime GOP senator from Whitman.

"Losing David Locke and, to a lesser degree, Ned Kirby is a big problem, not only for Republicans but for the electorate as a whole," he said. "They were the only two who understood parliamentary procedures and rules the way Billy Bulger does.

"David Locke was the only one who could prevent Billy Bulger from manipulating procedures and rules to his own ends. The Republican minority is now, to a certain degree, rudderless.

"David Locke was the only one who could go toe-to-toe with Bulger on the rules. In debating skills, they were way up there and the rest of us were way down here. When those two went at it, it was like a clash of the Titans. Everyone came to the chamber to listen."

Hedlund said Locke's successor, Brian Lees of East Longmeadow, is facing a difficult task.

"He doesn't have much to work with," he said. "There are actually more Republicans now in the party's Senate leadership than there are rank and file Republican senators."

Hedlund said he would like to be remembered as the senator who helped to shoot down the "golden parachute" legislative pension bill.

"If I have to pick one accomplishment," he said, "it would be the fact that, out of 200 legislators, I was the only one willing to raise the issue to take us out of the early retirement plan.

"In a year when we had a record number of retirements, it was nothing more than a scheme to pad the pensions of some of my colleagues. I was the only one willing to fight it on the floor of either chamber.

"I wasn't successful on the floor but by taking it to the air waves and enlisting the support of some elements of the media, I was able to bring public pressure down on the Legislature to change that little scam. That was probably my biggest achievement."

Hedlund leaves public office with a dim view of some of the media that patrols the political beat, not all of them in the State House.

"Dealing with certain elements of the press is another thing that I liked the least," he said. "There are a lot of decent people in the profession but I met a few real vipers.

"The press is part of the whole system up there on the Hill. Reporters are given information by those well-connected up there and they're not going to rock the boat. They're gonna check their backsides.

"Or maybe they just give us what we want. I guess people would rather turn to 'Political Notebook' on Sunday and read little glib comments on elected officials' private lives rather than how they voted or how they stand on some issue."

Hedlund said he is not sure if he will run for public office again.

"I wouldn't rule it out," he said. "Hey, I'm not even out of office yet. I'm not thinking that far ahead."

But he'll remain a Republican, even though he was fascinated by the entry of Ross Perot's independent third party into the presidential race.

"I didn't like Ross Perot and I was concerned about some of his outlook," he said, "but his being in the race was good for the system. I liked the fact that he was the only one trying to hammer home the problem of the deficit while the other two dealt with fluff and platitudes."

Hedlund says he is not sure what he will do when he leaves office Jan. 18. He still owns the truck repair business founded by his grandfather but it suffered during his two years in the State Senate.

"It's not the kind of business you can run that successfully in an absentee fashion," he said. "It's not like I had a law firm and I could sneak out during the day to Boston Municipal Court and use my title as senator to grab clients and make connections.

First Night offers concerts, food, magic

Buy your buttons now for this local version of a "First Night," because with ongoing concerts and entertainment from 5:30 to 10 p.m. there is definitely something for everyone.

Performance groups include La Sonnerie (harpsichord, baroque flute, recorder and viola de gamba). Ken Sherburne, the juggler extraordinaire, who from his unicycle will juggle everything from hats to axes to flaming torches. Ron Rawson will be charming audiences with his reading of Dylan Thomas' folksy tale of Christmas in a Welch fishing village, and Paul Wayne, the rising local comedian, who recently opened for the Righteous Brothers in concert. Sponsored by the Cohasset Community Center and local businesses, this is Cohasset's own rendition of the popular First Night in Boston.

Tickets (buttons) are now on sale at the Community Center and a $5 button allows entry to all events and entertainment. Children under five are free. From Dec. 21 to 29 buttons are $10. Button sales are limited.

The event begins Dec. 31 at 5:30 p.m. and ends with a Grand Finale of Aerotechnic "Confetti Fireworks" at 10 p.m. by Smiling Faces Productions. The "pretend midnight" finale was planned for an earlier hour so all could enjoy and still allows plenty of time for celebrating afterwards in your home with family and friends.

Other acts include a jazz concert, magic shows, Dance Visions Dance Troupe, The Greek Dancers, The Blue Moon Gypsies card and palm readers, the Rock 'n Roll Band, D.J. Doug Coupe, hay rides, a flutist and organist duet, community sing-a-long and more. There will be a teen coffeehouse with guitarist, a senior coffee room and a baby changing room.

Admission buttons do not include purchase of food and novelty items sold separately by local churches and non profit groups. There are chili, hot dogs, popcorn, clam chowder, an old English dinner, desserts and coffee, Greek foods and more.

All the events take place in the Community Center, Art Center, Teen Depot, First Parish, Second Congregational Church, St. Stephens and on the common. To make for a safe environment there is no parking on the common but free shuttle buses run continuously from the Music Circus, St. Anthony's, and the Deer Hill and Osgood schools.

If you have any questions, please call the Community Center at 383-0088. The Center has been serving the South Shore since 1943 and begins celebrating 1993, its 50th anniversary, with this gala kickoff event. The evening promises excitement for all ages and plenty of community spirit.

If you are interested in volunteering for an hour that evening, or wish to be a business sponsor, please call Events Chairman Rhonda Corey Myers at the Center.

Gift certificates ready

The holiday season is upon us and the Community Center is bustling with new courses and activities for children and adults of all ages. Why not surprise someone with a Community Center gift certificate? Gift certificates are now available at the office or may be mailed directly for you. Please call 383-0088 for further information.

Early release day

Dec. 10 is an early release day in the Cohasset Public Schools. There are no afternoon kindergarten sessions and other students are dismissed according to the following schedule:

School	Buses depart
Junior/Senior High School	noon
Deer Hill School	12:25 p.m.
Joseph Osgood School	12:55 p.m.

Lunch will be served in the elementary schools and food service will be available at the Junior/Senior High School.

School holiday spirit

In the true spirit of Christmas giving, Cohasset teachers and students work together on a wide range of community projects.

At the high school, the 9th grade Humanities team of Fran Cronin and Joe Bouchard have organized a project for students "to give up a snack" and donate the money to Globe Santa and The Home for Little Wanderers.

Through the Community Volunteer Service Club, teacher advisor Gale Civale and students collect toys, food, and personal articles for local charities. Their Thanksgiving can drive produced a bountiful gift for Wellspring.

Teacher Steve Gilmartin collects gifts for the annual Marine Corps "Toys for Tots."

Assistant Principal Jack DeLorenzo and the Student Council have organized a service drive for Christmas vacation in which students will work on school maintenance and repairs. It's a good chance to "give something back" to your school and learn a life skill at the same time.

At Deer Hill School teachers donate "A Giving Tree" to the Plymouth Head Start. In lieu of Christmas gifts, students are encouraged to make a donation in their teacher's name. Letters are sent home to explain the project. Teachers Betty Cisneros and Pat Murphy organize the annual Christmas gift sharing project through Catholic Charities and St. Anthony's Confirmation classes.

Joseph Osgood teachers also encourage their students to make a donation to local charities in lieu of teachers' gifts. Individual teachers collect the donations, which are then tucked into warm mittens on a magical "Mitten Tree."

Math League results

The first CML test was given at Cohasset Jr./Sr. High School, Nov. 12. Students take these tests six times a year. Each test has six questions, making the highest possible score a six. These test students' abilities to put mathematical skills to use to solve problems. The students are given 25 minutes to complete the test.

Students in the Level I class are given a test in the Pythagorean Division. High scorers in this class were Burke Davis with a perfect score of six, Ely Kahn with a score of five and Rachel Begley, Catie Campbell, Monique Devoe, Kevin Duffy, Sam Goedecke and Stephan Heilner with scores of four.

Students in the Level II classes are given a test in the Euclidean Division. Erica Hettstrom had a high score of five points. Students with scores of four included Tom Forbes-Kittle, Brian Kilroy, Liz Mahoney, Julie Smith, Larry Adams, Taylor Devin, Lloyd Workman, Paul Cato, Angela Parisi and Eric Snow.

Great job Grade 8!

Effort is noted

Knowing that a student's grades do not always reflect his or her effort, the grade 7 team has recognized the following students for their conscientiousness and diligence during term 1. Congratulations to the following seventh graders:

Rocket camp soars

More than 100 children from kindergarten through sixth grade attended David Heshion's Rocket Camp Saturday, Nov. 14, at the Deer Hill School.

Children learned about rockets, how they work and fly, and tested their knowledge by playing Space Jeopardy. Each child then built and launched their own rocket. Parents were invited to attend the launching at the conclusion of the camp where rockets flew as high as 1,000 feet in the air.

Lily Maltz and William McAulliffee won their respective divisions for the rocket landing closest to the launch pad.

This enrichment activity was coordinated by the Cohasset PSO as a follow-up to David Heshion's in-school presentations on the History of Rockets & Space at Osgood School, Nov. 4 and Deer Hill School, Nov. 6.

PSO benefit tonight

The performance of "The Greatest Christmas Pageant Ever," tonight, Dec. 10, benefits the Cohasset PSO's programs in the Osgood, Deer Hill and High Schools. Support of the PSO makes possible the funding for curriculum enrichment, teacher grants, reading and writing labs, and other programs.

The Cohasset Dramatic Club's presentation of "The Greatest Christmas Pageant Ever" is a wonderful holiday experience for the entire family. Tonight's performance at town hall begins at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $5 for children and seniors and $8 for adults and are available at the door.

Check out pages 24 & 25 for all the local Holiday Happenings.

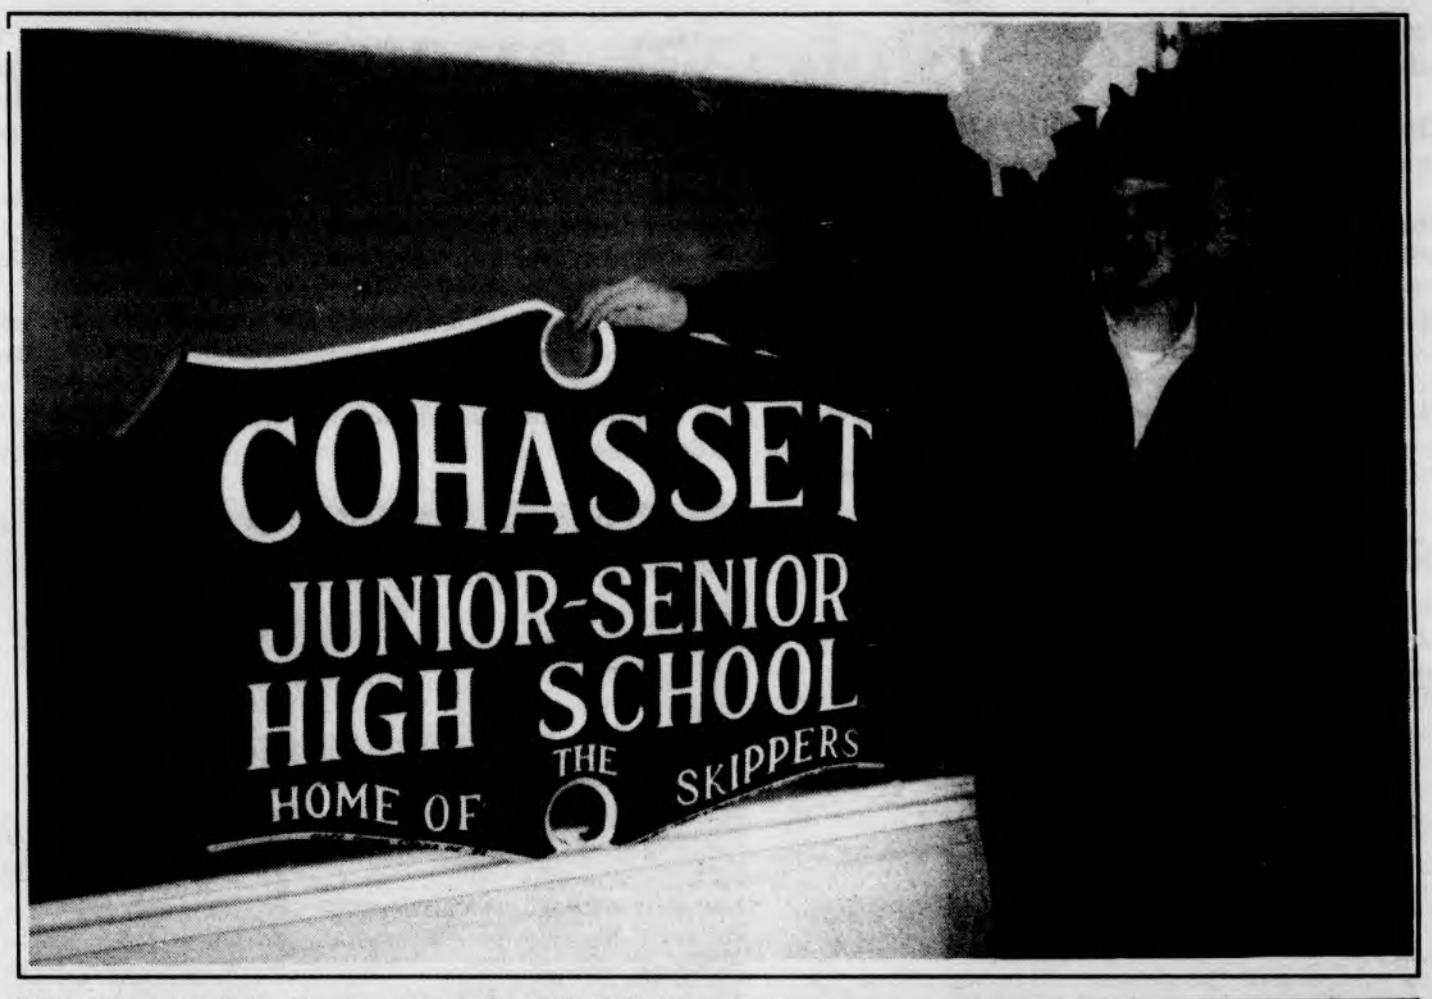
Cohasset High '92 grad gives something back

Cohasset High School has a new sign marking the entrance to the school. The sign, which reads "Cohasset Junior-Senior High School Home of the Skippers," was a woodworking class project started last year. The money for the materials was donated through a gift by the class of 1990. At that time plans called for the sign to have lettering that was to be either screen printed or hand painted. However, as time ran out in the school year, so too did it run out on producing the sign.

It was at that time that John Donovan, a soon to be graduating member of the woodworking class who was working on the sign, decided to take a wood carving class with Paul McCarthy. John quickly caught on to the technique of hand carving wood signs, and by the end of summer had produced over half a dozen hand-carved signs for his friends and family. In early September his high school woodworking instructor, Mr. Joel Antolini, remembers receiving a phone call from Donovan.



"He was asking if the sign was completed over the summer," recalled Antolini, "because he wanted a little more practice, and would like to practice by carving the sign for the High School."

After seeing the work that John had already completed, he was offered the opportunity without any hesitation. In fact Mr. Antolini, because of additional funding by Cohasset's Parent School Organization, was able to ask Donovan to do much of the work in the classroom for the benefit of his current students, to which he obliged.

John was very good with the students, showing them how to make the basic carving strokes, relaying points of safety in using the carving tools, and informing them that anyone can learn the art of wood carving provided you have the right teacher. One of the students asked John why he would give up his time too make the school a sign.

His response was twofold, "Because I really like carving, and because the school gave so much to me. I'm only to happy to give a little back."

Donovan thanks Paul McCarthy for what he has learned so far and recommends that interested students sign up for classes with him. Mr. Antolini, and the Cohasset High School community thank John Donovan for his efforts in carving and finishing the sign and wish him continued success in all his woodworking endeavors.

CHS Alumnus John Donovan stands with the sign he carved. The new sign marks the entrance to the high school. The Mariner ran this photo in the Thursday, Nov. 19 issue without the accompanying story which appears this week.

Cohasset High icemen featured in hockey jamboree

By David Wolcott
Mariner Staff

The Cohasset hockey squad will look to start the year on the right foot as they open their season this weekend in the annual Hockey Jamboree.

The Skippers will take on Randolph High at 9 pm this Saturday at the Pilgrim Arena in Hingham.

Coach Dennis Walsh, now in his 24th season as coach for Cohasset,which is in the Division II South Shore League, will be looking at a young squad this year. The team has only three seniors on the squad.

The seniors are forwards Mike Reynolds and Charlie Smith and defenseman John Kichla.

Walsh says each player brings something different to the team.

"Mike is a good scorer and skates well, while Charlie has been with us for a number of years, has good size and is good with the puck, and John has been steady on the defense."

As for the outlook for the squad this year, Walsh remains cautious about his team:

"I really don't want to call this a rebuilding year, but we are going to be a very young squad this year," said coach Walsh. "Where we have such a small school, developing consistent hockey talent can be tough at times. Hockey is a game where more time is needed than in other sports to help cultivate the needed skills for the game."

Walsh also said that he will field a JV squad for 10 games this year. And these games, along with practicing with the varsity squad, should help the Skippers grow a good crop of young players for the future.

Overall, Walsh has been happy with the way that the team has responded this year so far.

"I've held four morning practices so far," he says. "And we've had total attendance at all.

"I'm very pleased with the way that the kids have worked hard, and expect them to carry it on through the season."

After the Hockey Jamboree game Dec. 12, the Skippers take on Abington Dec. 16 at 2:40 pm at the Rockland Ice Rink.

Youth, size assets for basketball squad

The boys high school basketball team is starting the season off all-new as first-year coach Ron Ford hopes to bring a new system to the Skipper squad.

Ford, who last year coached the JV team, inherits a team that finished 6-16 last year in the Division III South Shore League, and has cautious hopes for the basketball squad this year.

"Overall, I'm guardedly optimistic about our chances this year," Coach Ford said. "I'm going to be putting in a new system that the players will be using this year, and it's going to be a matter of them getting to feel comfortable playing in it.

"It might get a little hairy in the early part of the year while everything is still new to them, but I'm optimistic about this year."

Senior leadership this year will be provided by forwards Will Adams and Chris Goodman, as well as the back court duo of Doug Ellinger and Sheldon Morgan.

Size is going to be a major factor for the Cohasset squad this year as they have it to spare.

"We are going to be a big team this year," Ford said. "On our roster this year we have six kids who are over 6 ft.3 ins."

Youth will also be an asset this year for the Skippers, as the team lost three players last year to graduation.

"I am making a commitment to my younger players to get significant playing time at the varsity level this year," Ford said.

Best Christmas Pageant Ever shows kids will be kids

By Jeff Cutler
Mariner Correspondent

When viewing a play performed by children, of children, one cannot help but notice how well they know their parts. Such was the case last Friday at the Cohasset Dramatic Club's production of The Best Christmas Pageant Ever.

Opening night attracted over 100 people last week.

The show is about the struggle to put on a Christmas pageant in a tiny community.

It has a number of stars and the spotlight belongs on all of them.

Amanda Shedlock is charming in her dual role as both Beth Bradley and the narrator. In helping to direct attention to relevant action she keeps the play moving and understandable. She also allows the play to unfold, often with her in it, without interfering.

On stage Beth's brother Charley is played by Rob Rota whose most noticeable ability is his control of expressions and mannerisms. There are a few scenes where the Bradley family is speaking among themselves and Charley is the one character your eyes and ears follow.

It was like this throughout the show.

When a scene with both parents and children was taking place, the parents were not as noticeable. They seemed a little forced and even the Bradley parents, central figures, took awhile to emerge.

Jeff Clark, Ronnie Nicynski, Hannah Harvester, and Brie McKenney rehearse for "The Best Christmas Pageant Ever" on stage this weekend at town hall.
(Staff photos/Buzz Wadsworth)

Rob Rota tells Alex Etkind that he will not play King Herod. Alex is one of the Herdmen kids, who are probably the meanest, nastiest, most inventively awful kids in the history of the world.

One exception was Joe Rota who played Rev. Hopkins. On stage a mere two minutes he attracts your attention by being so 'priestly'. Even though he says, "I don't think anyone will come to see it," he wants us to know he cares about what happens to the pageant and to all those involved.

The real draw to this production is the haphazard realism it shows.

Depicting a play within a play is no easy task. The actors must be fully versed in their 'wrong' lines for the pageant while being perfect in depicting their characters.

A group that does this admirably well are the Herdmens, six children who are the town bullies and get involved in the pageant because of ulterior motives. They soon show the audience a different picture of themselves while acting as a well oiled cog in a six-person machine.

Ronnie Nicynski, Brie McKenney, Jeff Clarke, Brian Fitzpatrick, Alexander Etkind and Hannah Harvester are the Herdmens. Each one puts just the right touch on his or her character and the image of my grade school bully came roaring up from my subconscious.

Dee Dee Nicynski, the publicity director for the play, said after the play that now she knew why her son Ronnie had been acting weird. "For six weeks...he was in character."

The show runs this Thursday, Friday and Saturday at town hall.Tickets are $8 for adults; and $5 for children under 12 and senior citizens. Tickets can be purchased at the door or by calling Lynn Eisenhauer at 446-6601.

SSAC picks board

At its annual members meeting, the South Shore Art Center of Cohasset introduced new members on its board of directors and board of advisors. Board of directors president Keith Kretschmer of Hingham, welcomed the new board members whom he called "very special people".

"The Art Center is those who participate," said Kretschmer, "and board members are very special participants who are called on for more than one of their talents. They offer us a broad range of talents." Both boards consist of people representing a diverse blend of interests, talents and disciplines.

Newly named to the SSAC Board of Directors are Richard DeLima and Lesley Grilli, both of Cohasset, Peter Travi of Norwell and David Foley of Quincy. New members of the SSAC Board of Advisors are Anne Henning of Duxbury, Janet Lamp, Rhonda Myers, Margaret O'Donnell and Lois Weltman, all of Cohasset.

The South Shore Art Center is a non-profit educational and arts organization serving all of the South Shore. Located at 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset, the SSAC offers day and evening art classes and workshops year-round to young artists and adults at all levels of ability.

In addition, the Art Center houses a student gallery and faculty feature gallery and participates in outreach exhibits at various South Shore locations. In all, the Art Center offers 49 exhibitions each year. For more information, please call (617)383-9548.

Art for Christmas

Run out of gift ideas for all the names on your shopping list? How about a gift certificate for membership at the South Shore Art Center?

Memberships range from $48 for families, $30 for individuals, and $20 for seniors and young artists. Benefits include discounted rates on classes, workshops and special events; exhibition opportunities in members' shows; advance notice of all exhibitions, special events and course offerings; subscription to the newsletter, Artline; and free use of SSAC passes to the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston.

Gift certificates for courses and workshops are also available. Or, purchase a gift certificate for your favorite SSAC member to rent the darkroom or print studio. Eight two-hour darkroom sessions are available for only $40 while the open print studio is available in three-hour blocks at $15/session.

Of course, the SSAC Gift Gallery is renowned for its unique selection of artistic giftware, hand created by various regional artists. The Gift Gallery is open to the public, Tuesdays through Saturdays, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Art Center is located at 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset. For more information on Art Center gift ideas, please call 383-9548.

Caring for the elderly is an important concern for families in Massachusetts as well as across America. "Nationally, the numbers of elders needing long-term care help is expected to increase from seven million today to nearly 14 million by the year 2030. Considering that eight out of 10 elderly needing care are living in the community, it's important that families begin to plan out the future together.

While 33,000 elders in Massachusetts are already guided through the home-care system, most families know very little about community-care services that are available to them. "We help hundreds of families every year care for their loved one," says Ed Flynn, Ex. Director, South Shore Elder Services. "But for every family we serve, there are two or three other families out there that need help."

Trying to figure out what help is available, and where to find help, can be an overwhelming challenge for families, and here at the Council on Aging, our Outreach Worker, Sue Connolly, is available to help cut through the red tape and lead families to appropriate resources. Whether its transportation, home care, housing, meals, companionship, or insurance concerns – our outreach worker can find the right community-care services that will fit the families' needs.

Every family situation is different, but no matter what the situation, help is available to families planning care for their loved ones. The holidays give us a unique opportunity to talk about needs and begin to plan for the future, before any crisis should develop. If you are in need of assistance, please call the council office at 383-9116 and ask for Sue Connolly.

SHINE NEWS:

Contact Kathy Glenzel.

Medicare now pays for some routine screenings.

In the past, Medicare has not paid for routine, preventive screenings. Medicare would only pay for the diagnosis and treatment of an illness or disease. Medicare will now cover some mammograms and Pap smears for women.

Routine mammogram can now be taken every other year as a preventive measure. Remember, they can be taken at any time as a diagnostic tool when medically necessary.

Medicare will also pay for routine Pap smears every time when medically necessary.

As with other Medicare Part B services, Medicare will pay 80 percent of the approved amount (after the beneficiary has met the Part B $100 yearly deductible).

If you want more information on this or other health insurance matters contact the SHINE Program at the Cohasset Senior Center at 383-9116. A SHINE Counselor is available by appointment or for phone consultation on Monday, 10 a.m. to noon, Tuesday, 10 a.m. to noon, and Thursdays, (time to be announced).

Once again we trim our tree and once again we hope you'll be able to join us this time of year for friendship, goodies and good cheer Dec. 18, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Please call the Council at 383-9112 if you plan to join us.

Support for Alzheimer's

The Alzheimer's Disease Support Group of the South Shore holds an open discussion and peer support meeting Wednesday, Dec. 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the Hersey House, 229 North Street, Hingham.

Families dealing with the disease are invited to attend to share problems and solutions. Topics may include home care and safety techniques, options of respite care, diagnostic centers and legal referrals. Tips for simplifying the holidays for caregivers and patient will also be discussed.

The ADSGSS, Inc. is accepting applications for funding through the group's Family Respite Assistance Program. FRAP offers matching funds for up to six months to local families who care for a patient at home. Applications must be received by Dec. 18.

ADSGSS maintains a library of current information on all aspects of Alzheimer's Disease and publishes a monthly newsletter. For more information on free monthly meetings, or on Family Respite Assistance Program, please call 749-5417.

Xmas pageant on stage

America's favorite Christmas story, The Best Christmas Pageant Ever, written by Barbara Robinson, presented by the Cohasset Dramatic Club, promises to be outrageous, lively, funny and wonderful.

The music, sets and costumes add appealing dimensions to this festive production. Don't miss the opportunity to join in the fun of the season with this cheery family show!

A combination of emerging and established artists from local communities bring their experience to the stage. Intense rehearsals have been in progress for the past month. This production is under the direction of the well-known Deborah Carleton. You'll love the surprises and fun!

Performances are Dec. 10 and 11 and 12 at 7:30 p.m. at the Second Congregational Church on the Common, Cohasset.

Tickets are $8 for adults; $5 for children under 12 and seniors. For tickets call Lynn Eisenhauer, 446-6601, or purchase at the door.

Photographs on display

The Bank of Boston is currently displaying photographs by Jeremy Barnard at their Cohasset branch through December. Barnard, a resident of Georgetown, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Barnard Jr. of Cohasset.

Spanish & French lessons

Spanish and French classes for travelers are offered by George Fortin for the Community Center. These classes for teens to adults broaden the knowledge and language abilities for those traveling in other countries. The classes meet on Tuesday evenings for a 10-week session. The cost is $65. To register, please call the center at 383-0088.

Birthday parties offered

Celebrate a birthday with your child's favorite activity at the Community Center. The Community Center staff provides the activity while parents provide the cake, snacks and decorations. Bowling, gymnastics, craft and gym dandy parties are very popular for children of all ages.

Please call the center at 383-0088 to book your party in advance!

Ballroom dance classes

Ballroom Dance classes at the Community Center begin after the holidays. Bill Bradford of the Bradford Ballroom Dance Center teaches a wide range of dance techniques in a relaxed, enjoyable atmosphere. Classes for beginners and intermediates will dance the fox trot, waltz, cha cha and swing. Please call the center at 383-0088 to register or for further information.

Sign up to bowl

The Community Center's four-lane bowling alley is open to adults for bowling. Get a group together and spend an evening bowling with family or friends. Plan ahead and call the center at 383-0088 to reserve your space for a guaranteed night of laughs and fun!

Joe Hochkeppel stars

Darling Productions' Quincy Center Dinner Theatre, in association with Rural Lodge AF and AM, presents its annual holiday production, "Musical Holiday Party Five," at the Masonic Building, 1170 Hancock Street, Quincy.

It is directed by George Stevens of Braintree, choreographed by Lillian Carter with music under the direction of Rob Bezubka. Comedy! Satire! Popular holiday music!

Included in the all star cast is Cohasset resident Joe Hochkeppel. Joe has been with "Musical Holiday" for five seasons, playing the beleaguered Dad in the Farquar family or the "star of the day," Santa Claus.

Dec. 10, 12, 13, 17, 19, 20. Thursday and Saturday: social hour 6:30 p.m.; dinner 7:15 p.m.; show 8:45 p.m. Sunday: social hour 4:30 p.m., dinner 5:30; show 7 p.m. Full-course dinner (choice of three entrees) and show: $29.95 (tax and gratuity included).

For reservations and information call Darling Productions at 617-843-5862. Perfect setting for small holiday parties. Group rates available.

Loon Mountain trip

The Cohasset Recreation Department accepts registrations for the season's first ski trip, scheduled for Sunday, Dec. 13, to Loon Mountain, Lincoln, NH.

The cost of this trip is $45 per person and the trip is limited to the first 45 registered.

Bus will leave from Cohasset Town Hall at 5:15 a.m., Sunday, Dec. 13, and return at approximately 7 p.m. that evening to Town Hall.

Special beginner packages are available to first-time skiers and those who require equipment rentals should include this at the time of registration. Rental of equipment is $14 and cash should be brought the day of the trip for rental payment. Those who are interested in taking a ski lesson may do so and lessons cost $12 and cash for payment should be brought the day of the trip.

To register for this early season special, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department office at 383-6791.

Ski lessons offered

The Cohasset Recreation Department conducts Blue Hill Ski Lessons. Registration forms must be signed by a parent or guardian for participation in this five-week program. Beginner-thru-advanced-level instruction is available for children and youth, aged seven and over. Lessons are scheduled to begin Thursday, Jan 7, and meet for five consecutive weeks, thru Thursday, Feb. 5.

The bus will leave each week from Town Hall parking lot at 3:30 p.m. and return from Blue Hills at about 6:45 p.m.

The fee for Ski Lessons and transportation for the five weeks is $95 and checks should be made payable to: Town of Cohasset.

Those participants who require equipment rentals may rent at Blue Hills and the cost for the five-week rental package is $40 per person.

The rental fee can be included in the check for the program fee. For more information, please call the recreation department office at 383-6791.

Anne Law gets ready to package a painting by Duxbury artist Kathryn Smit. The South Shore Arts Center fair included crafts and wreath-making and an art sale.

holiday happenings

Ad club party set

The South Shore Ad Club raises the spirits of its members and food for the needy at the Annual Christmas Party Thursday, Dec. 17, 5:30 to 8 p.m. at Navona Restaurant, 45 Whiting Street, Route 53, Hingham.

Members are asked to donate a can or box of food for the needy. Admission is $15 for members and $20 for non-members.

The South Shore Ad Club, founded in 1984, is a non-profit organization which involves the full range of advertising and communications professionals including graphic designers, typographers, photographers, public relations counselors, printers, videographers and direct marketers. The club offers educational and networking opportunities to its more than 450 members.

To R.S.V.P. or for additional information, call Paula O'Brien at 617-337-7609.

'The Nutcracker' slated

The Plymouth Philharmonic Orchestra, Rudolf Schlegel conducting, presents Holiday Pops! at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m., Dec. 12, and 2 p.m., Dec. 13, in Plymouth's Memorial Hall. The program includes light classical and symphonic pops favorites, a carol sing-along and excerpts from "The Nutcracker" with the Children's Repertory Ballet Company of Hingham.

Tickets are $16, $14 and $12 ($2 discount for seniors and children) and are available at The Studio, Duxbury; Notes & Quotes, Kingston; Snow Goose Shop, Plymouth; Hub Music Shops, Pembroke and West Plymouth; or by calling the PPO office at (508) 746-8008 during business hours.

Local actors wanted

Hingham Civic Music Theatre is looking for actors and actresses of all levels of talent, experience, and background to audition for its February production of "Come Blow Your Horn," a rip-roaring comedy by Neil Simon. Interested men and women, varying in age from 21 to late 50s and early 60s, will be asked to script read at the Dec. 14 and 15 auditions at Hingham Jr. High beginning at 7 p.m. Callbacks will be held, if necessary, and rehearsals begin immediately. The play is directed by Dan Bolton.

The farce centers around the owner of the largest artificial fruit business on the East Coast and his two sons, one a playboy and the other an obedient 21-year-old who suddenly develops the urge to assert himself! Performances are Feb. 12, 13, 19 and 20. For further information call 356-0639.

Give history for Xmas

History related items for Christmas giving are available at the Lothrop House through the holiday season. Included are the Bigelow and Pratt Histories, the book Deep Sea Captains, reprinted from the Davenport history, and a children's coloring book designed by Barbara Conte. Other items include a tote bag, a selection of Minot's Light cup plates in clear and colors, and four new items: coffee mugs in white ceramic with the society seal in blue; an 1845 town map; and two T-shirts, one commemorating the first lifeboat station in America in 1807, the other depicting an 1842 temperance banner.

Come to the Lothrop House at 14 Summer Street and make your selections. For more information call 383-6930.

Hoop shooting clinic

The Cohasset Recreation Dept. sponsors a basketball shooting clinic, December 28-30 (Mon., Tues., and Wed. of winter vacation) from 9 a.m. to noon at the Sullivan Gymnasium, Cohasset High School for boys and girls in grades four through eight.

The cost is $50. To sign up please call Cohasset Recreation Department 383-6791.

The 1992 Cohasset Basketball Shooting Clinic is a three-day skill clinic designed to help young players learn the correct fundamentals involved in shooting a basketball.

During the nine hour clinic the players receive individual instruction, attend lectures, and compete in shooting competitions.

The clinic is run by the Cohasset High School boys head coach, Ron Ford, and his staff. Coach Ford has coached at the Junior High School, Junior Varsity, and Varsity levels; spends his summers coaching at the Dave Cowens and the Nelson/Sanders Basketball Schools; and coached his Mass AAU 15-and-under boys team to a 1992 National AAU Basketball Tournament appearance. Every player receives a Cohasset Basketball Shooting Clinic t-shirt.

A musical miracle

It's all there: Mary and Joseph, the shepherds and angels, the Kings (in better voice than you've EVER heard them!), and even "real" sheep and innkeepers, who turn Mary and Joseph away (at first). Come to Old Ship Church in Hingham Saturday, Dec. 12 at 8 p.m., or First Parish in Cohasset Sunday, Dec. 13, at 4 p.m., to hear "The Miracle of the Nativity," a Christmas Masque performed with costumes and staging by the Unicorn Singers, directed by Margo Euler.

The short concert is appropriate for older elementary children and their parents; the music is gorgeous, and there's lots of opportunity for the audience to sing, too. Several members of Junior Voices sing and perform as shepherds in the drama, as well. The proceeds go to support very worthy causes, and tickets can be reserved by calling the church offices in the morning; they'll also be available (while they last) at the door.

Season's Greetings Soar

The Soar Dance Project presents a works-in-progress concert entitled "Season's Greetings," Friday, Dec. 11, at 4 p.m. in the Cox Hall at the South Shore Conservatory. The dancers have choreographed their dance pieces based on improvisational work they have done in class. The dancers are dedicating their performances to someone they would like to send a special Season's Greeting to.

Under the direction of Sharon Weber, the Soar Dance Project is a program dedicated to releasing and nurturing the creative spirit and providing a framework from which it can develop into a performing art. Classes are offered for children through adult with specific classes for "Boys Only," and a drop-in class for teenagers. Please call the Conservatory for more information, 749-7565.

Parish hosts reception

Each year after the spirited singing of carols by the audience concludes the annual First Parish Christmas Concert, folks spill out of the Meeting House, milling about in the cold, complementing the singers and wishing each other well.

This year, for the first time, they can spill into the warmth of the Parish House, directly across the street, to continue the merriment at the Post-Concert Reception hosted by the Parish Committee. An assortment of cheese and crackers, hot mulled cider and wine will be available to supplement the good cheer of those who attend.

Tickets, which are separate from the concert tickets, will be available at the door for a suggested donation of five dollars. The concert is Sunday, Dec. 13, at 4 p.m., First Parish Meeting House, Cohasset Common.

Elementary enrichment

The Scituate public schools will run its traditional elementary enrichment program for "academically motivated" youngsters Dec. 28 to 31. Students from neighboring communities are also welcome.

The program is designed for students in grades one through five, and it is suggested that individuals who enroll in this program have a "B" average or higher.

This winter the program will be held at Hatherly Elementary School on Ann Vinal Road.

The program will run for the four days from 9 a.m. to noon, offering the following courses each day: creative writing, geology, history of Scituate, photography, Russian, and word processing. Instruction in each area will be accelerated, not pressured, and individualized wherever possible.

Registration by mail will close Friday, Dec. 18. Registration in person, if space is still available, will be held Monday, Dec. 28, from 8 to 9 a.m. at Hatherly School.

Early registration by mail is encouraged since qualified applicants are accepted on a first-come basis. Due to the expected pace of instruction, class size will be limited to the first 15 at each grade level. If registering by mail, make check (no cash) payable to Town of Scituate and mail to Supervisor, Winter Vacation School, Scituate High School, 606 Chief Justice Cushing Hwy., Scituate, 02066.

For further information, call 837-8423 between 7 and 9 p.m., Monday through Thursday only.

It's important to be a responsible pet owner

In separate incidents, loose dogs recently chased a runner on Forest Street and bit an biker in Wompatuck State Park, according to animal control officer William Quigley.

And two Jerusalem Road neighbors' dogs died after being hit by cars in the same week, he said.

"It's one of those things, it goes in a cycle," Quigley said about the spate of dog-related incidents.

After being bitten Nov. 14, the biker in Wompatuck State Park got into an argument with the dog owner, Quigley said.

"It was a big shouting match, so he took the dog owner's license plate down," he recalled. The biker was upset because he had been bitten before by a different dog. Quigley said both the biker and dog owner were not from Cohasset.

Nov. 15 a dog nipped a runner from Hull on Forest Street, Quigley said.

He said Cohasset has a full leash law which states that a dog has to be either under the visual or verbal control of the owner or controlled with a suitable restraining device.

"The owner must be able to call the dog back if it starts running," he explained.

Quigley also answered a complaint Nov. 9 about loose dogs at the Osgood School. And in addition to the two Jerusalem Road incidents on Nov. 13 and Nov. 16, a dog was hit by a car on Rte. 3A at Pond St., Nov. 10.

"It's just a matter of time before we have it in town," Quigley said.

He noted that the incidents of raccoon rabies in the state have been "scattered" since first reported in Ashby last summer.

Cases have also been reported in Fitchburg. And Cohasset Health Agent Dr. Joseph Godzik said Fall River health officials he talked to Monday said they found two sick raccoons which are being tested for rabies.

New state legislation, which takes effect Feb. 24, requires that all cats be vaccinated.

Quigley said vaccinating cats is a must.

"They are more of a hunter animal (than dogs)," he said, adding cats were more likely to contract rabies from a sick raccoon because cats roam in the woods.

Godzik said the health department has sent information about rabies to Cohasset citizens out with the water bills. He said the health board may in the future decided to conduct a rabies clinic although in the past, he said, similar clinics for dogs have not been successful.

Quigley said people should make sure their cats are held in a carrier before transporting them in a car. He said some veterinarians will loan carriers to pet owners who need them.

Real estate values

The fiscal 1993 Real Estate Assessed Valuations have been completed, and have been submitted for certification by the Massachusetts Department of Revenue.

The new values are available for public inspection at the Assessor's Office, Town Hall, 41 Highland Avenue during regular business hours. Due to staffing limitations, we are not able to accept telephone inquiries for valuations.

Additonal copies of the value listings are available for inspection at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library, 106 South Main Street. Any problems regarding valuation will be handled through the abatement process. Call the staff at the assessors office for details.

Vaccinate your cat

Animal Control Officer William Quigley said a case of rabies in raccoons has been reported in Belmont.

Storm of '92 to cost Cohasset $50,000

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

This time, Cohasset got off easy.

As most of the state digs out from the Blizzard of '92, last weekend's northeaster left few marks on the seaside town.

Downed telephone poles, flooded basements, some beach erosion and road damage, and over-zealous spectators were the calling cards left in Cohasset by the fiercest storm to hit the rest of the state since 1978.

Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said the storm cost the town — including overtime and cleanup — about $50,000 or about half of what the Oct. 1991 No-Name storm cost. It is unclear whether the town will receive federal or state relief.

Harbormaster Irving Gadow said unpredictability of storms is "how nature works."

The wind force was at 65-70 m.p.h. and tides were about the same as during the No-Name storm, which wreaked havoc on the South Shore.

But this time Cohasset escaped with less damage.

Gadow explained that in the No-Name storm, the wind blew in the ocean for three or four days before the storm hit shore making the seas choppier.

"When it blows for quite a few days, the seas gradually build," he says.

As the reports of severe weather intensified, town officials geared up for the worst-case scenario.

At 12:30 p.m. Friday (Dec. 11), selectmen declared a

The Cohasset Community Center kicks off its year-long celebration of its 50th anniversary with "Celebrate 93," a New Year's Eve event modeled after the City of Boston's annual "First Night" celebration.

The event takes place Dec. 31, from 5 to 10 p.m.

The evening culminates in an aerotechnic confetti fireworks display to mark the new year which will be celebrated at 10 p.m. so that the entire family can join the fun. Other events throughout the night include musical concerts, hay rides, sleigh rides, comedians, storytellers, dance troupes, palm readers and much more. Food will be sold by various community groups.

A real ham mans Santa Hotline

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

As long as 80-year-old Joseph Cabral is by the phone, there is no need to correspond with the North Pole.

Cabral, a resident of the Cohasset Knoll Skilled Nursing and Rehabilitation Facility, plays Santa Claus over the phone lines to local children who call the facility's newly-installed Santa Hotline.

Cohasset Knoll activities coordinator Mary Steele said the hotline, 383-1615, will be operational until Dec. 24.

"Youngsters can call between 2 and 3:30 p.m. and ask for Santa," Steele said.

She added that the spirited Cabral would like to man the line longer, but he puts so much of himself into each call she fears overexertion.

Cabral deflects the concern.

"I don't get tired — I love being a ham."

In fact, Steele said, he enjoys talking with the youngsters so much, he was staying on with each one for 30 minutes when the line was first activated.

The former electronics teacher dons a Santa's hat for the role and integrates his unique historical perspective into the answers and advice he dispenses to young callers.

"Someone called up and asked for a Rolls Royce," he recounted.

"I told him I'd get him a Packard," Cabral laughed.

School heads meet

A visit this week to the Cohasset Lightkeepers' residence gave South Shore Regional Vocational High School Supt. James Hager the chance to show off to Cohasset Public Schools Supt. Stephen Hart.

The two superintendents joined Cohasset Lightkeepers Corporation president Joseph McElroy and Lawrence Mitchell, a Cohasset resident who represents the town on the Vo-Tech school board, on Government Island to see the progress of the lightkeeper's residence renovation.

The construction work is Vo-Tech's school project this school year.

While the officials had a look around, carpentry students hammered and sawed in the biting wind Monday.

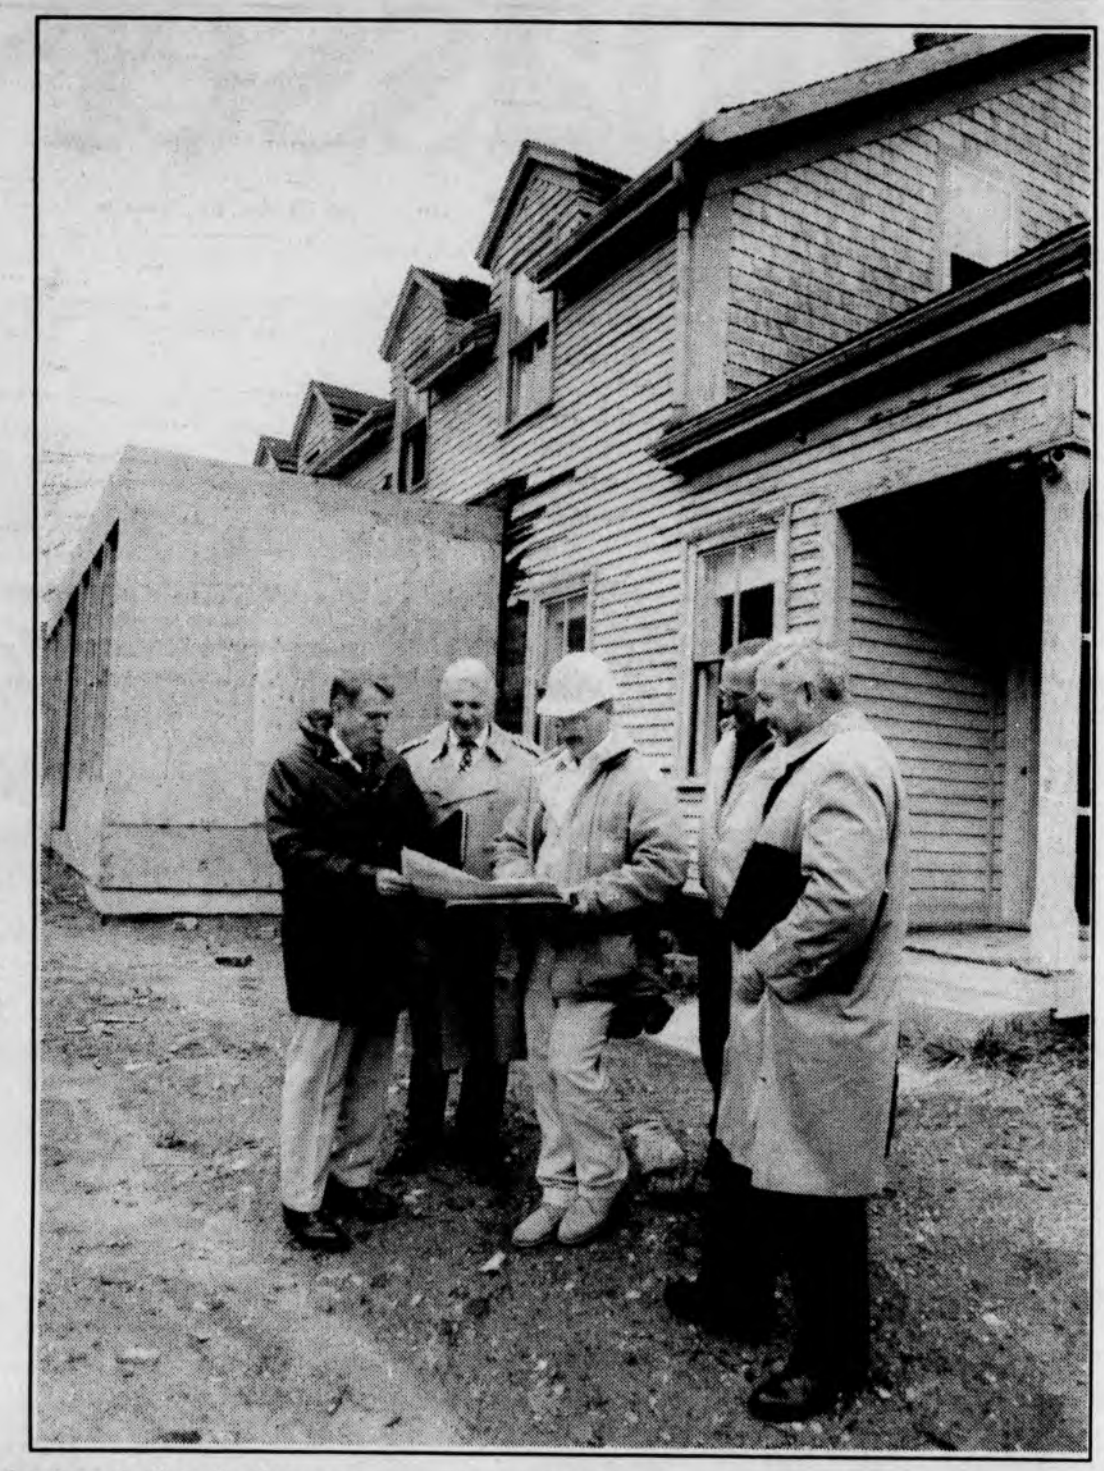
"This Christmas, they'll be asking for Hermit Survivor boots, sweatshirts, and gloves," Hager said about the Vo-Tech kids.

He added that the project gives Vo-Tech carpentry students the chance to see first hand what real work is like.

"In about six months, some of the students will be doing this for good," he said. "It's a good test of reality for them."

Hart said he hoped the industrial arts at the high school would take a field trip to the site.

For the past several years, Cohasset has sent only one student to Vo-Tech, which is in Hanover. Cohasset is one of eight-member towns in the regional school district.



Hager thought getting Cohasset and Vo-Tech kids together would generate interest in the school by "getting kids talking to kids."

McElroy said the structure is requiring more work than originally thought. For example, new clapboard will be added to the exterior and the windows will be replaced, he noted.

"We don't want to beautify the building and have no one able to open a window and get a breeze," he said.

McElroy said fund-raising for the project is going well. The Cohasset Lightkeeper's Corporation has raised $70,000 with an additional $90,000 "value in kind" in donated labor, expertise, and materials. The group needs about $90,000 more to complete the project.

McElroy said just last week he received another $7,000 in pledges.

Vo-Tech Supt. James Hager, Cohasset Supt. Stephen Hart, carpentry instructor Jim Flaherty; Lawrence Mitchell, Cohasset's representative on the regional school committee; and Cohasset Lightkeeper's Corp. president Joseph McElroy look over plans for the renovation of the 140-year-old structure.

Unpaid taxes due

Statements have been mailed to those property owners who still owe their Fiscal 1992 real estate taxes.

Demands were sent from the treasurer-collector's office June 30, and Deputy Collector John P. Riley served warrants on those delinquent accounts during the week of July 20.

In some cases, these taxes remain unpaid due to a change in ownership. Any new homeowners since Jan. 1, 1991, who fail to receive a notice should contact the office immediately.

Payment must be received in full, in the form of a bank check, money order or cash, on or before Friday, Dec. 18. Any properties that remain unpaid at that time will be processed for a tax taking and the town will place a lien on the property.

For further information please call the treasurer-collector's office at 383-9900, extension 113.

Applicants are interviewed

Selectmen interviewed four applicants for a vacancy on the Harbor Committee at their board meeting Monday.

They did not make the appointment but took the matter under advisement and plan to vote next week.

The applicants for the member-at-large are Jeffrey Donze, 9 Parker Ave.; Ronald Massa, 140 N. Main St.; Gail Parks, 19 Highland Ave.; and Keith Townsend, 11 Hillside Dr.

The Harbor Committee also interviewed the same applicants and recommended selectmen appoint Parks to fill the vacancy.

"We feel that Ms. Parks will be a valuable member to the committee. She was selected because of her deep interest in the harbor. She is also a boat owner who has a mooring in the harbor.

"She is concerned with keeping the natural beauty of Cohasset Harbor, and the safety for all users," committee secretary Peter Wood wrote in a Nov. 19 letter to selectmen.

Wood added that the names of those not selected will be kept on file for future vacancies.

There is another potential vacancy on the harbor committee.

Member Jack Silvia Jr. has missed the last four meetings, according the chairman John "Fritz" Pfaffman.

Under the committee rules members can be removed once four meetings are missed.

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle, who is the board's liaison to the harbor committee, asked the board to hold off a week.

"In the past, people have missed 15 or 20 meetings and nothing's been done about it. I'd like to speak to him," Laugelle said.

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke said missing the meetings " is a perfectly legitimate way to resign — there's no stigma to it."

Pfaffman said Silvia did not feel the "harbor rules and regulations worked in favor of him and his family."

CLOSING COSTS DEDUCTIONS

QUESTION: I signed a lot of checks during the closing of the purchase of our home. Can you tell me which closing costs are deductible from my income tax?

ANSWER: Property taxes are usually pro-rated so that both the buyer and seller each pay the taxes for the portion of the year that each owns the property. Each may deduct this amount. Another deductible item is interest charged to the seller on the mortgage up to the date of closing. Also deductible as interest is the amount charged as points.

Fire insurance, FHA mortgage insurance, and charges for rent for occupancy before closing are not deductible.

Santa Hotline manned by ham . . .

Youngsters who request toys can also expect a lesson in fairness when they call.

"A young boy called and asked for a truck, but said he didn't want me to bring anything for his brother," Cabral explained.

When asked, the boy told the Knoll Santa that he was not going to share his truck with his sibling.

"I said if he couldn't share his gift with his brother, I couldn't bring one to him," the grandfatherly Cabral explained.

Talk to Santa!

Call Santa Hotline - 383-1515
Hours of operation: 2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. daily
Local Santa-in-residence: Joseph Cabral

The boy changed his mind about sharing, Cabral said.

The lively exchanges between Santa and the callers provides a mutual benefit, Steele explained.

"It is an intergenerational program," she said.

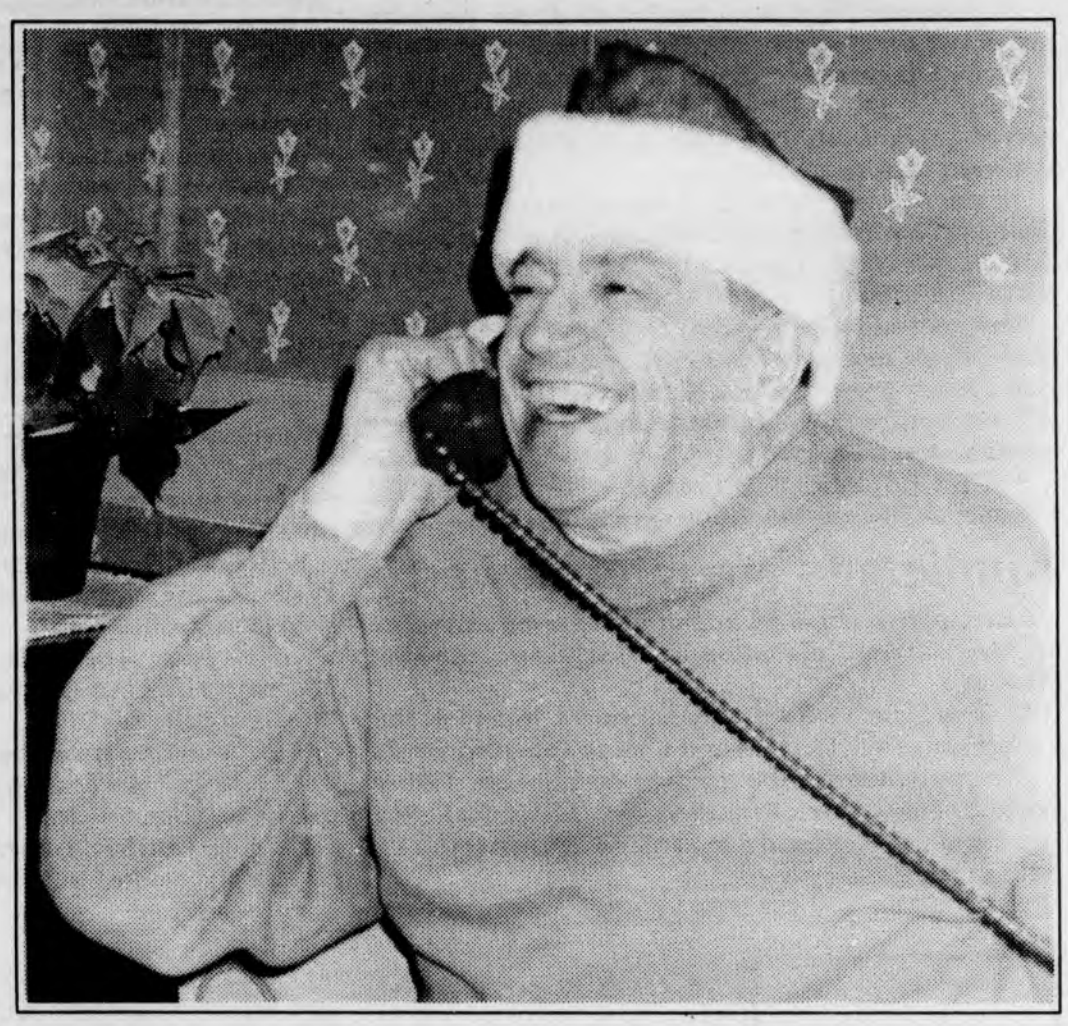
Cabral makes the program that much more effective, Steele added, because his good humor is infectious.

"Joe keeps everyone going around here," she added.

Cabral said playing Santa Claus is a natural role for him.

He made annual appearances as Jolly Old St. Nick for the Knights of Columbus when he lived in Somerville.

"I love bringing some cheer to people," he said.



"And I love them to give me cheer."

And judging by the list of groups waiting to visit Cohasset Knoll this holiday season, others want to be part of the giving.

From Hingham, kids from Derby Academy and Dolly's Nursery School and members of the Old Ship Church will descend upon Cohasset Knoll and sing or decorate the tree with the residents.

The Cohasset Girl Scouts are also expected to make an appearance.

The community good-will is reciprocal with the Knoll collecting food for the Cohasset Food Pantry and Toys for the Marines' "Toys for Tots" program.

Joseph Cabral yaks it up with a wee person on the Santa Hotline. The 80-year-old Cabral lives at the Cohasset Knoll Skilled Nursing and Rehabilitation Facility and mans the line between 2 and 3:30 p.m. daily. The hotline number is 383-1615.

Police question acting chief action

Appointing an acting police chief may not be as simple as selectmen may have thought.

Last week, the board appointed three sergeants to fill in on a rotating basis until selectmen choose a replacement for Police Chief Joseph M. Kealey, whose last day is Dec. 31.

Police union spokesman Officer Paul Laugelle told selectmen Monday that having officers cover the position while working their regular shifts was not acceptable.

He said the union wants someone to be responsible for the department day to day.

"We want someone with a suit and tie on, in everyday running the place," Laugelle said.

He said the police contract only allows for the appointment of an acting chief when the chief is out of state.

"You can't appoint an acting chief, when we don't have a chief," Laugelle said.

He said "a verbal discussion" is the first step of a grievance procedure but added the union "did not want to go that route."

Laugelle said the "burden of working a regular shift" should not fall upon the officer appointed as acting chief.

"Budgets are being prepared. It's not like the chief is out of town. Things have to be done," he said.

Selectmen took the matter under advisement.

Eighty-five people have applied for the chief's position. A search sub-committee consisting of Selectmen Michael H. Sullivan and Martha K. Gjesteby are reviewing the applications. Selectmen hope to appoint a new police chief by March 1.

Mary Steele

Name: Mary Steele.

Occupation: Activities coordinator for the Cohasset Knoll Nursing and Rehabilitation Facility.

Best day of your life: Every day that I have the ability to put my feet on the floor. With what I do for a living, I'm especially thankful for good health.

Most embarrassing moment: It was Christmas Eve many years ago. My husband and I finished shopping for our three children, and were in the process of buying the gifts when the clerk told us our credit card was at its maximum. There seemed to be 1,000 people in line behind us and I just wanted to leave. My husband wasn't embarrassed and insisted they call the credit card company and get our maximum lifted. They did and everything turned out fine, but it felt like an eternity.

Goal: To complete my two-year course in therapeutic recreation. (Therapeutic recreation advocates the use of entertaining pursuits, or amusements, to treat certain physical and emotional disorders.)

Favorite season: Fall.

Best vacation: To Yosemite National Park with my husband. It is the most beautiful place.

Favorite holiday: Christmas.

Pet Peeve: People sitting at my desk.

Favorite book: "Principles and Procedures of Therapeutic Recreation."

Favorite movie: "Children of a Lesser God."

Biggest worry: That my car won't start.

Favorite place: Disneyworld.

Favorite junk-food: Chocolate glazed donuts.

Flood of alarms swamp fire deparment

In the midst of the weekend's storm Cohasset firefighters helped battle a blaze in neighboring Scituate.

A 2-1/2 story oceanfront home at 81 Surfside Road burned to the ground early Saturday as wind-whipped flames threatened houses on either side.

"It was like a nightmare," Cohasset Fire Chief John Nadeau recalled. "The winds were 50-60 m.p.h. with gusts of 78 m.p.h.

"The guys took an absolute beating. It was all you could do to stand up — all you could do to breathe," he said.

As fire crews sped toward North Scituate, all they could see through the torrents of rain was the bright red glow in the sky.

"The house was fully involved when Scituate got there," Nadeau said.

He said Cohasset firefighters tried to protect the inland side of the house and keep the fire from spreading across the street.

The men not only were fighting the fire, they were battling a howling wind and pounding rain while walls of seawater crashed over the houses and seawall.

Firefighters had to use hand lines because the wind was so strong the ladder pipe and deck gun couldn't reach the building 100 feet away.

Nadeau said it was so dark and windy that firefighters had to follow the hose line to find their way back to the truck.

Nadeau said six call firefighters and three career fighters and Engine 23 went to the scene.

"We used very piece of four-inch hose," he said.

The cause of the fire is under investigation.

Early Sunday morning, the Cohasset Fire Department helped Scituate again by covering its station while Scituate firefighters fought a fire in the town's Humarock section.

And early Monday morning, Cohasset provided mutual aid to Hull to help battle a two-alarm fire at Jillian's Oceanside.

Cohasset Fire Department responded to 60 alarms over the weekend, Nadeau said. Other problems included a tree down and arching wires.

(Scituate editor Marilyn Jackson contributed to this report).

Landmark flagpole toppled in tempest

One of the town's casualties in last weekend's northeaster was the 90-ft. flagpole at 66 Jerusalem Road, across from Little Harbor.

"I was the only one home at the time," Sally O'Neill recalls. "I heard the crash and fortunately, it did not fall on the house."

The gold-leaf ball at the top of the pole was dented in the crash.

The flagpole was once a ship's mast, that's why its so tall, O'Neill explained. She said the flagpole was installed in the mid 1920s in a special ceremony with the late James Michael Curley, who served as mayor of Boston, U.S. Congressman and Governor. Curley had a summer home in Scituate.

The O'Neills' house is on part of The Ridges, the old Logan estate.

Polly Logan recalls the flagpole was installed in honor of her husband's grandmother's 85th birthday. She said Curley was a friend of her husband's uncle who was a judge in Boston.

"The flagpole has a real history to it," Logan says. "It's a landmark for people flying over."

O'Neill said about 12:30 p.m., Saturday, the wind picked up and snapped the pole at its base. The flagpole traveled about ten feet through a fence and on to a neighbor's property.

"We'd like to salvage it and put the flagpole back," she said.

O'Neill said it's not clear if the pole was anchored in sand or ledge. She explained that there is a possibility the 10-ft. base could be taken out and the pole cut and put into the ground, giving the flagpole a new height of about 75 feet.

"But we would have to know it's going to be safe," she said. A crane would be needed to lift and place the pole.

O'Neill said flags about 14 x 35 feet flew on the pole. She said only one flag company will paint the pole every year.

"No one else wants to go up that height," she said.

Money for midge study

Selectmen approved spending $4,000 to go toward an ongoing study of the problems affecting Straits Pond.

The town has $2,000 in encumbered funds that were not used last year and another $2,000 in this year's budget for the express purpose of dealing with midges, Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said.

Selectmen will ask the school department to come up with another $1,000.

Hull Selectman James M. Tobin said Hull voters approved funding to continue to study Straits Pond with a direction for him to approach Hingham and Cohasset for $5,000 each.

Hull previously approved $25,000 for the study.

Tobin said the Brooks Foundation will provide $10,000 if Cohasset and Hingham contribute a total of $10,000 to continue the study another year.

He explained that the state prohibited Hull from spraying the insecticide abate on the pond to control the midge population until a study was done.

state of emergency. Town Emergency Management Director Arthur Lehr coordinated the effort and worked closely with Doyon, Fire Chief John Nadeau, and the highway and police departments.

Eastern Edison sent a point-vehicle and a line truck to Cohasset.

A five-ton vehicle from the National Guard was also on hand for possible evacuation of Sandy Cove. No evacuation was needed, Lehr said, because there was not heavy wave water.

"We weren't concerned, there was rising water but no force behind it," Lehr said.

He said there were no injuries and minimum property damage.

"We were very, very fortunate," he said.

Sightseers, who wanted to get a first-hand look at the crashing surf, created problems.

"There was some low-lying flooding," Police Sgt. Brian Noonan said. "But our biggest problem was the people coming down to the area."

At the selectmen's meeting Monday, member Rocco F. Laugelle suggested more saw-horses be placed on roads in the future. And he noted that Scituate obtained the services of the state police to prevent spectators from reaching waterfront areas.

Selectmen Chairman Jane Goedecke praised Eastern Edison's response.

"It's amazing how positive the attitudes people have when they have heat and light," she said.

Budgets are approved

Selectmen have approved the following proposed budgets for FY'93:

- $1,025 - weights and measures
- $250 - civil defense
- $100 - historical commission
- $720 - shellfish constable
- $125 - handicapped commission
- $200 - Common Historic District Commission

Welcome aboard

The Friends of the Cohasset library wish to thank the hundreds of families who have sent contributions to the Friends Fund. As a contributor, you have provided support and valuable resources for your library. We as a community benefit, as the much needed, additional funds improve library services and help to create innovative programming. We're hoping to break fund-raising records this year. Please be a Friend! Watch for additional story hours during vacations, as well as creative hands-on workshops with local artists in the next few months.

Book bags offered

Book bags remain on sale at the front desk. They are a wonderful gift for young and old and fun gifts for the "Snow-birds" in Florida who are carrying books to the beach!! Easy for mailing and priced at $10, a "thoughtful gift".

Happy Holidays to all!

Investor info

The Library now has Morningstar Mutual Funds ($395/yr), a source frequently quoted in the financial columns. It gives ratings on 1,240 mutual funds. Every two weeks an update on the performance of all 1,240 funds is issued, plus revised full page reports on 120 on the funds. Each fund will have a new report at least every 20 weeks.

Also available at the Library, Value Line ($525/yr), which gives weekly reports and ratings on 1700 stocks. Each weekly report ranks all 1700 stocks for "Timeliness" and for "Safety" as judged by this advisory service. Each week, new reports are issued on about 130 of the stocks, so that all are reviewed every 13 weeks.

Other sources for investors, available at the Library:

Donoghue Mutual Funds Almanac, an annual guide to more than 2100 mutual funds. It includes a guide to "Selecting a Mutual Fund," a discussion of fund fees, and other advice on buying mutual funds. Charts show annual performance for each fund for ten years. Each company is briefly described; addresses and phone numbers are listed.

Investment Company Institute Directory of Mutual Funds classifies by type and describes more than 3400 mutual funds.

The Only Retirement Guide You'll Ever Need, by Kathryn and Ross Petras, is one of many books added recently on personal finance. It discusses pension plans, home ownership, retirement communities, financial and estate planning.

Magazines received include: Barron's Financial Weekly; Business Week, Forbes, Fortune, Kiplinger's Personal Finance; Money, Wall Street Journal. The August 31 issue of Forbes, for example, has its annual mutual fund survey, a performance rating on 1652 funds, and recommendations on "best buys" in several categories of investment. The October issue of Kiplinger's has five experts recommending portfolios; the November issue evaluates investment newsletters.

around town

❑ When you are out doing all of that Christmas shopping, think of CVS (Community Volunteer Service) and buy one more toy. They are looking for toy representatives, toy salesmen, or you for brand new toys to donate to needy children. Call Cohasset High School or drop your new toy off there (383-6100).

❑ The Cohasset Community Center celebrated its 50th anniversary this weekend with a lovely party...the building is grand, and one couldn't help but think what an integral part Glenn Pratt had in making it what it is. He certainly thought of all age groups, from seniors to pre-schoolers. There are rooms for all...the whole town can benefit from it, and use it, you can learn there, celebrate there, grow there. Again, we salute you and your efforts, Glenn. We are lucky to have a hard worker like you with so many wonderful ideas! Thanks!

❑ Mary Jeanette Murray is lost without the sunglasses that her grandson gave her two years ago. She lost them at Cushing Plaza last Sunday; she thinks they were at the Donut Shop. They are aqua-rimmed, with an aqua-colored holder. Let her know if you might have found them, PLEASE!

❑ CHS winter sports are under way, with events that began Dec. 14. Included in this week's issue is more of the Winter Sports Schedule (part one ran last week). Post it on your fridge and be sure to plan on attending as many events as you can. The athletes really appreciate your being there!

❑ Everyone knows what havoc the recent storm raised last weekend, and most think that Cohasset was spared...however, most of us who go by "famous landmarks" are devastated. The flag is gone!

The 90-foot flagpole was blown down during the storm at the O'Neill's house on Jerusalem Road. That's the same flagpole that has been there for 75 years, the flag that has been replaced at least seven times since the O'Neills have owned the house (no matter what happened, thieves, storms, etc. the O'Neills always had a flag flying...they always replaced it). Anyway, the good news is that nobody was hurt, every structure is fine, but we certainly will miss that gorgeous flagpole with its great flag. Here's hoping that they find a way to replace it!

❑ The class of 1937 CHS held their annual reunion at Kimballs by the Sea last week; it's an annual event shared with husbands and wives, and a few good friends. There were 23 in the graduating class. This year's highlight was the class' special guest, Eleanor Whitney Kennedy, their second-grade teacher. It is a given that everyone had a wonderful time and here's to many more December reunions, folks. (Next time, someone please take a picture!)

Jessi Zerendow closes Carolyn Cameron in the pillory during the recent early Plimoth Plantation re-enactment at the Deer Hill School. For more school news, please see page 14. (Staff photo/Alan Chapman)

❑ We received an adorable picture of Charles Spalt, son of Molly and Greg Spalt, last week. They were Cohassetites for a long time before moving to Scituate, and all we can say is Cohasset's loss is Scituate's gain (P.S. Charles is adorable!) Imagine how grandmother Betty must feel about him, to say nothing of Molly's parents!

Happy, healthy and safe holidays to you all. We in Cohasset all love and miss you a lot!

❑ And we also congratulate Danielle Nohe, whose efforts earned her a spot on the Notre Dame Academy's honor roll for the first marking period of the 1992-1993 school year.

❑ Happy birthday greetings to Dr. Roger Pompeo...we won't bother to say how old he is, just suffice it to say that he gets better with each passing year. Hope you had a great day, Roger, everyone loves you.

❑ Hope all of you basketball fans, especially CHS present and former, saw Bryan Edwards on ESPN last Thursday night when he played for Madison. How exciting to see a former CHS star "keep on rolling."

❑ We congratulate Jennifer Jackson, 9 Woodland Drive, who is a member of the Hamilton College Women's Swim Team. Jennifer is a sophomore and part of a team that finished with a spectacular 9-2 dual meet record and a second place finish at the NYSWCAA Championships.

And folks, wait till you see the team's record with Jennifer on it (please keep us informed, okay, Jennifer?).

❑ Cohasset extends a huge welcome to William Anthony Rooney, son of Amy and Bill Rooney. William was born Nov. 28 and weighed in at a hefty 8 lbs. 15 ozs. He was born at South Shore Hospital.

Good luck and happy holidays to you all. What a great time of the year to have a brand new baby!

❑ Don't forget the Cohasset deadline, the Celebrate '93 New Year's Eve...hay rides, D.J. jazz concert, music of all kinds, community sing-a-long, storyteller, comedian, dance troupes, magic shows, card and palm readers; all sorts of food including chili, hot dogs, popcorn, clam chowder, Greek food, old English dinner with plum pudding, wassail...merriment will be the rule, all throughout town!

Organized by the Community Center, you can be sure to be a part of it by ordering your buttons now (there is a limited number). The buttons are $5 now through Dec. 21. After that date they will be $10. Don't miss it!

❑ A huge welcome home to Laura and Geoffrey, their first time back since their recent departure for Germany. You can bet that they will have tons of stories to tell, and that Laura will be happy to shop for the Pompeo household without having to guess at what is being said.

That's just one of many "I'll Be Home For Christmas" stories. Let us know what special one your family has.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas R. Mantz

Mantz/McGill

At a September wedding in St. Francis Episcopal Church in Potomic, Maryland, Margaret A. McGill became the bride of Douglas R. Mantz.

A reception followed at the Columbia Country Club in Chevy Chase, Maryland.

Daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Willis McGill of Rockville, Maryland, the bride was given in marriage by her parents and attended by her sisters Leslie McGill, as maid of honor, and Erin McGill, both of Rockville; Coleby Mantz of Cohasset, and Connie Shyne of Fairfax, Virginia.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mantz of Cohasset. Paul Sheppard of Cohasset served as best man. The groomsmen were Carl Shockman of Mexico City, Joe Hoffman of Greenwich, Connecticut, and John Shyne of Fairfax, Virginia.

The bride is a graduate of Holten Arms in Potomic, Maryland and Boston College. She is now employed by Hoffmann-LaRoche, Inc., as medical center manager in Washington, D.C.

The groom is a graduate of Cohasset High School and Boston College. He is employed as regional marketing director for Bankers Security Life Insurance Co. in Arlington, Virginia.

After a honeymoon in Nantucket, the couple is residing at their home in Chevy Chase, Maryland.

obituaries

Sharon M. Smart

Sharon M. (Moloney) Smart, 52, of Cohasset, a former school teacher, died Nov. 30 at Youville Hospital in Cambridge.

Mrs. Smart was born in Seattle and majored in education at Seattle University. She taught in Seattle and taught second grade in California schools before moving to Cohasset in 1979.

She leaves her husband, Donald V. Smart, a son, Ian Smart of Cohasset; two daughters, Katrina Smart of Blaine, Wash., and Laura Smart of Cohasset; two brothers, Robert Moloney and Thomas Moloney of Washington, and three sisters, Ann Lamb and Kathy Towey, both of Washington, and Mary Pat Moloney of California.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Dec. 4 in St. Anthony's Church. Burial was in Woodside Cemetery.

Arrangements were by the McNamara-Sparrel Funeral Home.

Let there be lights

No, Hanukkah is not the Jewish equivalent of Christmas.

Although the two holidays are related by season and the exchange of gifts, only in America has the Feast of Lights been elevated in social importance (some rabbis call it a "minor holiday").

Which is not to say that this is not a significant festival. For Hanukkah (rededication) is a commemoration of the triumph of freedom over repression and tyranny; the rededication of the Temple; and the miracle of the lamp that has come to symbolize it.

This was not the first (Egyptians, Hittites, Babylonians before) nor sadly the last time in Jewish history that the people of the Book faced the demonic forces of hatred.

Hanukkah* celebrates the victory of a ragtag, Jewish guerrilla army—the Maccabees—over the better equipped forces of the Greek-Assyrian tyrant Antiochus Epiphanes in 165 B.C.E. Defiling the Temple in Jerusalem, making a barn of it, the autocrat sought to destroy Jewish worship of the universal God. Realizing how powerful the Scriptures were to these people, Antiochus outlawed the reading of the Law (Torah), the Five Books of Moses—the daily liturgy of the people.

In an act of defiance, the Jews began to read other books from their sacred tradition (the Prophets, Psalms and Wisdom Books). Ironically the satrap who wished to destroy Jewish culture, helped to make it stronger—for eventually these books became part of the Jewish Testament—and by heritage part of both Christian and Islamic Canon.

When the Maccabees defeated the Assyrian-Greeks, the people found only enough sanctified oil for one day's holy light in their desecrated Temple. Miraculously the oil lasted eight days, the time required to make more consecrated oil.

In the lighting of the candles for the eight days of Hanukkah, Jews around the world and through the centuries, have acknowledged their loyalty to and wonder of a God that has allowed this people to survive in the face of that peculiarly resilient pestilence—anti-Semitism.

This Saturday night as the candles are lighted, the world is still hostage to the forces of foul ignorance; anti-Semitism and racism in general, still fester. "Ethnic-cleansing," a phrase to thrill any Nazi, is a front page disgrace.

But we do not need to go to Europe, nor even Germany, to find this evil—the South Shore had enough of its own ugly incidents this year—from the swastika on Plymouth Rock to the skinheads in Stoughton—to cheer the racists among us.

But the lights of Hanukkah, despite the wishes of the worst of us, are testament to the hope that guides the best of us—may the candles burn brightly through these still too-dark times, in the hopes of better years to come for all humanity.

Not a minor aspiration nor a "minor holiday" after all.

Following the Chamber of Commerce's successful Nov. 14 community auction, 20 percent of the proceeds were distributed to each of the participating organizations. Shown at the check presentation are (left to right): Bob Martin, chamber president; Joe McElroy, Cohasset Lightkeepers Corp.; Ralph Perroncello and Austin Ahern from the VFW Memorial fund; Karin Bartow and Gerard Keating from the Friends of the Council on Aging; and Keith Knowles, auction co-chairman.

Thanks for supporting auction

To the Editor:

The Chamber of Commerce wishes to thank everyone who supported our 5th annual Community Auction.

The businesses and individuals who donated products and services are an essential part of the auction and we deeply appreciate your generosity.

Our thanks, particularly, to those who attended the auction and spent money! This year, 60 percent of the auction proceeds were donated in equal amounts to the Cohasset Lightkeepers Corp., the VFW Historical Military Monument fund, and the Friends of the Council on Aging.

Thanks to the generosity of everyone involved, each group received a donation of $850!

Professionalism is appreciated

To the Editor:

I would like to express my deepest gratitude to the Cohasset Fire Department for its excellent services the night of Nov. 6.

My mother, Betty Maree, was having difficulty breathing and having chest pains, and within minutes of calling the Fire Department, they arrived.

I want to thank Tom Finegan and Eric Wenzlow for their compassion and professionalism, not only for quickly taking care of my mother, but also for calming me down on the way to the hospital and explaining everything they were doing.

Thanks also to the South Shore Paramedics, who met us on the way to the hospital.

What could have been a tragic situation was handled perfectly by these people.

Again, my deepest thanks.

Concert caught spirit of season

To the Editor:

It's always such a pleasure to attend the Unicorn Singers' Christmas concert at First Parish in Cohasset; this year's was so especially beautiful that I thought I'd share my reflections with your readers who may have missed this special event.

This is an annual event at First Parish; I think I've been to 12 out of the 14 concerts that the Unicorn Singers have performed since 1979 to help First Parish raise money for a worthy cause. This year's event benefits the South Shore Habitat for Humanity Bates Building project. The 24-voice Unicorn Singers sang a brief group of lovely carols "for the Mother and Child" at the beginning of the concert; everyone's favorite was the spirited and intricate arrangement of the spiritual "Mary had a baby." The complex rhythms executed with such energy and precision, and the jazzy feel of the piece, caused a big outburst of enthusiasm from the audience!

The concert featured a one-act drama or masque called "Miracle of the Nativity." Thanks to innovative staging and touches of costume, the overall effect was that of an ensemble piece heightened by some wonderful solo singing, notably that of soprano Jeanne Scammell as Mary. One of the most moving and melodic moments was her "Magnificat;" it was as if the music had been written just for her, and it brought tears to my eyes. The Unicorn Singers are a very talented group; in addition to gorgeous choral moments, such as the central angels chorus, almost everyone had a role as an innkeeper, angel, shepherd or king, and the music moved all over the church.

One of the most charming aspects of the concert was the addition by Director Margo Euler of 11 members of Junior Voices, the children's chorus sponsored by the Unicorn Singers and Broad Cove Chorale. It was wonderful to see young people have the opportunity to sing in a concert of this caliber; not everyone can expect to sing with a chorus like the Unicorn Singers, but this experience will most certainly make these kids see the advantages of using their musical gifts to the fullest throughout their lives! The children sang their part very musically and were darling in the shepherds' sequence, three of them cavorting down the aisle in sheep masks!

Margo always makes sure that the audience gets to sing a lot in these Christmas productions, and it was clear from the enthusiastic participation of just about all of us yesterday that I'm not the only one who enjoys this part! What a great way to get into the spirit of the season and support an important cause at the same time!

Thank you, Unicorn Singers!

Life savers wanted

If you know of anyone who has saved a life over the past year, please call the Community Affairs Office at Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts, 956-3320.

Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts pays tribute to "life savers," people who over the past year have accomplished the extraordinary feat of saving someone's life. They will be honored at the special annual Life Savers Award Ceremony and dinner on Tuesday, March 9.

Life Saver Club members include people of all ages — from six to 86 years old, from every walk of life, whether they were at work or not. There have been a host of people in our community who have saved another individual's life, including public figures such as: U.S. Senator John F. Kerry, Boston City Councilman Albert "Dapper" O'Neil, Dan Rea of WBZ-TV and Cambridge City Council, City Manager Robert Healy.

Developed 14 years ago, the Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts Life Savers Awards Program has recognized more than 550 life savers in an effort to promote public awareness and education of the Heimlich Maneuver, Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR) and other life saving techniques.

Life savers are honored at the annual Awards Ceremony and receive the prestigious Life Saver medal, presented by some of Boston's most prominent media celebrities, who will recount each dramatic life saving story. The event is hosted at the Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts corporate headquarters at 100 Summer Street, Boston.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

QUESTIONS

	Senator Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth) 722-1646 Room 416B	Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Cohasset) 722-2800 ext.7957 Room 134
THE HOUSE AND SENATE—"Beacon Hill Roll Call" records an update and prior roll call in the House and Senate on the escalating battle over a proposed constitutional amendment limiting the terms of elected officials.
TERM LIMITS UPDATE The battle intensified last week over an initiative petition proposing a constitutional amendment limiting the terms of constitutional officers, state legislators and members of the U.S. House of Representatives to 8 years and U.S. Senators to 12 years. On Monday, supporters of the amendment asked the state's highest court to force the legislature to vote on the controversial issue. In the suit, Senate President Bill Bulger is named as the defendant and is accused of using parliamentary rulings to thwart a part of the state constitution which supporters contend requires lawmakers to vote on the petition. Supporters recently gathered some 72,000 signatures to bring the proposal before the legislature. In order to become part of the constitution, the measure needs the votes of 50 members this year, 50 in the 1993-1994 session and approval by voters on the 1994 ballot. On May 13, the legislature voted to place the proposal at the end of the convention agenda after the Supreme Judicial Court was asked to rule on its constitutionality. The court later ruled that the proposed amendment did not violate the constitution. Supporters claim they have the 50 votes necessary to give initial approval to the measure, but acknowledge they lack the "unanimous consent" required to immediately move it to the top of the agenda. This claim of 50 votes is probably valid in light of the fact that supporters mustered 81 votes in May against placing the matter at the end of the agenda. However, supporters also acknowledge that these 81 votes are short of the majority necessary to exercise their other option of moving 23 other proposals one by one to the end of the calendar in order to bring the term limits proposal back to the top. Without the majority to do this, the legislative session is likely to end before the term limits proposal is acted upon and supporters are now pinning their hopes on the court suit. Proponents continue to charge the leadership with using its majority of House and Senate members to violate the will of the 72,000 signers and the intent of the constitution. Many opponents acknowledge they simply oppose the idea of term limits and are properly using the rules to prevent the matter from going on the ballot. The vote on May 13 to place the proposal at the end of the calendar was 106-81 in favor. The next constitutional convention is scheduled for December 16. (A "Yea" vote is for placing the term limits amendment at the end of the calendar. A "Nay" vote is against placing it at the end of the calendar).	N	N

Card sales support programs at cancer center

Proceeds from the Holiday Card sales are used to support "human touch" programs at the Floating Children's Cancer Center, located at The New England Medical Center. "Human touch" programs are designed to support patients, their siblings, and families through the cancer treatment experience.

"The annual Christmas card project is very important to the Floating Children's Cancer Center as it allows children who are patients here to express their holiday spirit," says Lawrence C. Wolfe, M.D., chief, Pediatric Hematology/Oncology, at the Children's Cancer Center.

Cards at $12.50 a box are available at all Filene's stores and locally at The Children's Exchange, The Log 'n Line; and the Sea 'n Cheese, or by calling 383-2914.

Pictured here are some of the young patients under treatment at the Floating Children's Cancer Center who created the 1992 Holiday Card Collection - 12 holiday designs, 24 cards in all, available at all Filene's stores and locally at The Children's Exchange, The Log 'n Line, and the Sea and Cheese, or by calling 383-2914. The price is $12.50 a box. Gaudeamus Hodie

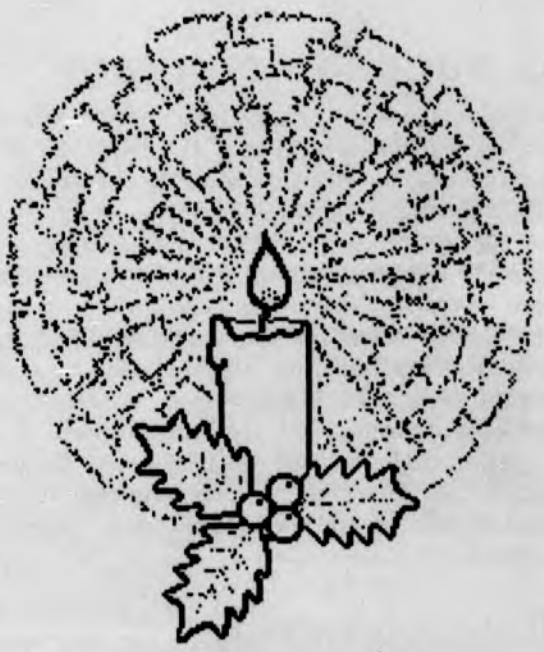
Leave it to Carolyn Curtis, music director of First Parish in Cohasset, to inspire these "mini-singers" to sing Latin ... and understand it!



For the mono-linguist "Gaudeamus hodie!" means "Let's be joyful today!" which is a perfect way to describe the atmosphere at First Parish where these kids meet every Monday afternoon.

The choir is open to boys and girls, seven-years-old or younger, who are eager to explore the world of music and movement.

Carolyn makes counting rhythms fun using the Kodaly technique. From there the children go on to learn seasonal songs done with rhythmic movement.

They have performed at the Meeting House for holiday services.

If you missed them at Thanksgiving, be sure to come see them at the Christmas pageant Dec. 20!

Don't miss seeing the Junior Choir perform at the Christmas Pageant, Dec. 20 at the First Parish in Cohasset. Members are: (right to left, starting with top row), Nataniel Wilcox, Kimberly Selig, Mariel Koed, Laura Bash, Nick Turgiss, Amanda Selig, Katie Bash, Claire Kreycik, Teresa Bellone, Alice Bellone, Meredith Bixby, Jake Kovach, Lucy Gardner, and Noah Wilcox.

Duffy's speech wins

Brian Duffy, a junior at Cohasset High School, won the 1992-93 Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 9146 Broadcast Scriptwriting Program.

Brian wrote and taped a speech entitled "My Voice in America's Future." First runner-up was Ray Jones and second runner-up was Ryan Sawchuk. Certificates and prizes of $100, $50 and $25 were awarded.

The contest is intended to increase the self-confidence and poise of participants, provide experience in communicating with others and valuable training in self expression. According to Post Commander Ralph Perroncello, "One of the greatest benefits to young people who take part in the program is that by thinking, writing and speaking up for their country, they gain a greater appreciation of their obligations and the value of freedom in America."

District finalists will go to the state eliminations during January. The Massachusetts winner travels to Washington, D.C. for a five-day tour and the National finals that offer $78,000 in prizes for 24 winners, including a $20,000 scholarship for first place.

Meredith Ann Hansen, Monique DeVoe, and Alissa Sexton cut patterns for costumes for the recent Cohasset High production of "South Pacific." Stay tuned to the Mariner for the latest school news every week.

Cubs visit museum

Den 7 and Den 2 from Cohasset's Pack 38 Cub Scouts had an exciting afternoon visiting Hingham's Bare Cove Fire Engine Museum.

The cubs met Call-Captain Charlie Cushing, who served 33 years with the Hingham Fire Dept., and John Mahey, Boston District Chief - retired, who served 42 years of service.

The museum had restored fire engines. The cubs learned how fire fighting began in earlier years with buckets of water and many people.

There were many memorabilia from past years. The cubs received a coloring book to remind them of the history of firefighting.

At the Bare Cove Fire Museum are Pack 38 Cub Scouts: (top row) Russel Staples, Scott McArthur, Will McArthur, Sam Dolph; and (bottom row) Joseph Meallo, Jody Roach, Bobby Protulis, and David Krueger.

Danielle Anderson, Keri Anderson, Sara Bertovich, Janet Hoyler, Danielle Kupsc, Amy Parisi, Angela Parisi, Natalie Thompson, Mrs. Hoyler and Mrs. Butman from Troop 4300 organized a special service project to make Christmas a little brighter for a needy family in the community. The troop collected food, presents and a Christmas tree, donated by Jimmy Barry of Lambert's, for the family.

Junior Troop 4778 enjoyed an International Progressive Dinner (Mexican hors d'oeuvres, Chinese soup and salad, Italian entree, and a French dessert) Saturday, Dec. 12.

Brownie Troop 4774 (second grade) ventured to the South Shore Science Center for a nature lecture. They also prepared a food basket for a needy family at Thanksgiving.

The first grade Brownie Troop 4775 journeyed to Boston to see the Enchanted Village. They enjoyed hot chocolate on the way home.

Brownie Troops 4773, 4775, 4625 and Junior Troop 4778 participated in the decoration of spoons for Project Bread. These spoons will be sold in stores throughout Boston. For each spoon contributed, $10 (up to $100,000) will be donated to feed the hungry.

Lady Skippers gymnastics off to a super start

By David Wolcott
Mariner Staff

The Lady Skippers are off to a quick start this year as the team has already compiled two victorious efforts in this young season.

The squad started out the year with a 107.8-105.35 victory over the Dragons of Duxbury. The next afternoon they came back with an impressive 106.8-80.8 victory over Notre Dame.

Team coach Ruth Anne Sargent, in her seventh season of directing the squad, looks for even better things to come this year.

"Most of our team is made up of seventh and eighth graders. We are a young team and should get better as the year goes along," she said.

The small squad of 13 girls has been beset by injuries so far, as senior captain Tara Gallagher and junior Aimee Mitchell have been slowed with ailments.

"We expect her to be back just after Christmas vacation," Sargent said about Gallagher's injury. "She's an important part of the team, and is one of our better all-around event girls."

The team is made up of five Cohasset High School students. The other eight members are all seventh and eighth graders.

In the first meet against Duxbury, the Skippers took all four events to squeak by the home-standing Dragons 107.8-105.35.

Eighth-grader Megan Pratt finished first in the all-around competition with a score of 27.5, and came away with first place in the uneven bars and the floor exercises.

Jodi Colwill won the vaulting part of the competition, and placed second on the balance beam. She finished the event with a 26.25 score. Tafana Fiore rounded out the sweep for Cohasset as she took first place in the balance beam competition.

The Skippers ran their record to 2-0 with a 106.8-80.8 defeat of Notre Dame.

Pratt once again led the way to victory as she registered a total score of 28.1 with victories in the floor and bars competition, and a third in the vault.

Colwill and Fiore also took first place in the vault and balance beam. Julie Smith came through in this match with a second in the bars and floor exercises, as well as a third-place finish on the bars.

Other members helping out the Cohasset cause included Erica Heppstrom, Nicole Haefner, Allison Kinchler, Carolyn Pratt, Maggie Goedecke, Kara Protulis, and Kristen Reynolds.

The Skippers travel to Norwell today at 7:00 p.m., and then take their traveling show to Scituate on Dec. 21.

CHS gridmen honored at banquet

The Cohasset Gridiron Club held its Annual Awards Banquet honoring the Cohasset High School Varsity Football Team Sunday, Dec. 6, at Kimball's By the Sea.

More than 125 players, cheerleaders, coaches, parents and guests were in attendance to recognize the achievements of our 1992 Varsity Football team.

Coach MacDermott and Coach Silvia presented the 1992 awards to the following Varsity players for their outstanding performance throughout the season:

- Most Outstanding Offensive Player - Ray Jones
- Most Outstanding Defensive Player - Chris "Roli" Rolandelli
- Most Outstanding Lineman - Andy Church
- Most Improved - Brandon DeVoe
- Unsung Hero - Charlie Smith
- Most Valuable Player - Ray Jones
- Coaches Award - Nate Fiore
- Most Dedicated Player - Peter Collins

The Co-Captains were announced for the 1993 Football Team: Chris Rolandelli, Brian Pattison, Andy Church and Brandon DeVoe.

It was a total team effort which enabled each player to develop their skills and work together to become a team.

The evening highlighted a successful Varsity Football Season in Cohasset thanks to the efforts and support of our school administrators, parents and the entire town.

Congratulations to the 1992 Varsity Football Team, the Freshmen Team, and the Coaches.

Football is back in Cohasset!

CHS girls' hoop is on the rebound

By David Wolcott
Mariner Staff

The Lady Skippers basketball squad is upbeat this year as it tries to put aside its winless season of last year.

Team Coach Loreen White, in her second year of coaching varsity basketball at Cohasset, plans to make the 1992-93 season a youth movement for the Skippers as the 11 girl squad has only two upperclassmen.

"Movement will be the key for us this year," Coach White stressed. "What we will do is fast-break at every opportunity, and always try to keep our girls in motion."

Speed will be an asset for the Skippers as Coach White also hopes to stress defense and rebounding to the team.

"With the fast-moving type system that we're going to be using, we need to be able to hit the outside shot consistently to be able to compete against some of the bigger teams in the league," she said.

The duo of Rene Prisble and Adrian Devaugh will supply the height up in the front court for the lady skippers, while the guards will be led by the trio of Jen Knowles, Megan Rhodes, and Katie Caroll.

An important cog to the team is unavailable until mid-season as sophomore Erin Murphy is still recovering from a broken collar-bone suffered during the soccer season.

The squad begins the season on Dec. 15 with an away game at Norton.

Couples	2 3/4"	3 3/4"	8"
Crowds	3 3/4"	4 3/4"	12"

These figures are for clear, fresh water ice only; for snow ice, add two inches; for water logged ice, add three inches; if skates cut in, go home! Salt water in mild climates is always treacherous, keep away from it. Also thickness in 40-50° column are safe depths for short periods of time only. Remember, common sense is the most important denominator.

Elms Meadow skating

The deepest portion of Elms Meadow is towards the Spring Street dam (about 12" to 18"); the shallowest is towards the back of the area, which is 3" or so.

Do not throw debris on the ice to check for safety. This only clutters up the ice, making skating dangerous, and does not give you an accurate indication of ice strength.

Art center schedule

The SSAC opens Jan. 5.

"Uncommon Boundaries," an exhibition by Marcia Cannistraro (mixed media) and Christopher Hidell (sculpture), opens Thursday, Jan. 7. There is an opening reception from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 8.

Depot gifts accepted

Can't think of the perfect gift for that friend or family member? How about a donation to "The Teen Depot"? The Depot will send an acknowledgement of your gift to anyone you choose; and every donation received will help the kids of Cohasset keep the Teen Depot going.

Checks may be made out to: Teen Depot/CCC and sent to P.O. Box 902, Cohasset MA 02025.

All donations are tax deductible.

DEPOT HOLIDAY HOURS

The Teen Depot will be closed during the holidays. It will reopen in early 1993. Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to all of Cohasset from the Teen Depot.

Quilt raffle held

On Sunday, Nov. 22, the Second Congregational Church of Cohasset held the drawing for a handmade quilt, capping a year-long fund-raising drive.

The winning ticket was held by Mrs. Richard L. Yake of Cohasset.

Combining applique, crewel embroidery, and hand-quilting, the quilt was designed and worked by Mrs. Robert L. Littlehale, Jr. who donated it to support the church and its outreach programs.

Gift certificates ready

The holiday season is upon us and the Community Center is bustling with new courses and activities for children and adults of all ages. Why not surprise someone with a Community Center gift certificate? Gift certificates are now available at the office or may be mailed directly for you. Please call 383-0088 for further information.

Mom's morning out

The Community Center offers a Mom's Morning Out babysitting program for children all ages during the holiday season through December, children can enjoy a morning of craft projects, storytime, indoor and outdoor play and other supervised activities. The babysitting is provided from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. The children should bring a snack and their lunch. The cost is $13 per day. Pre-registration is required.

Please call the center at 383-0088 to register or for further information.

Give history for Xmas

History related items for Christmas giving are available at the Lothrop House through the holiday season. Included are the Bigelow and Pratt Histories, the book Deep Sea Captains, reprinted from the Davenport history, and a children's coloring book designed by Barbara Conte. Other items include a tote bag, a selection of Minot's Light cup plates in clear and colors, and four new items: coffee mugs in white ceramic with the society seal in blue; an 1845 town map; and two T-shirts, one commemorating the first lifeboat station in America in 1807, the other depicting an 1842 temperance banner.

Come to the Lothrop House at 14 Summer Street and make your selections. For more information call 383-6930.

Photographs on display

The Bank of Boston is currently displaying photographs by Jeremy Barnard at their Cohasset branch through December. Barnard, a resident of Georgetown, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Barnard Jr. of Cohasset.

Cancer benefit Jan. 9

Four tennis-playing South Shore families, each of whom has lost a loved one to cancer, have teamed up to organize a gala "Tennis Party" on Saturday evening, Jan. 9, 7 to 11 p.m. at the Weymouth Tennis Club with proceeds going to the American Cancer Society.

Billed as the Milton Charitable Tennis Party, the event is sponsored by the Driscoll, Gwynn, Leveroni and Muldoon families of Milton, and will offer doubles tennis, a cocktail party and a buffet dinner for a donation of $30, with the additional attraction of a raffle for goodies that include Celtics tickets, dinner for two at Mario's, Bruins tickets, and Reebok tennis shoes. For those opting not to play, the buffet dinner will be offered for a donation of $20.

Tennis, with partners selected according to appropriate skill levels, will begin promptly at 7 p.m.

The sponsors are expressing thanks to Steve Goldman of the Weymouth Tennis Club who has donated the club's facilities at 75 Fennel Drive, Weymouth.

For further information and to make reservations, call Dan Leveroni at 848-9821, or Terry Driscoll at 828-6300. Donations for the raffle are being solicited and may be offered through a call to Meg Muldoon at 696-7309.

Winter art courses

The South Shore Art Center, 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset, announces that its winter course brochure is now available. The brochure, outlining courses and workshops in a variety of mediums for all ages and all levels of ability, may be obtained by calling 383-9548.

The winter term runs Jan. 19 to March 22. In addition to 36 eight-week courses, the Art Center offers both adults and young artists several workshop alternatives.

Spanish & French lessons

Spanish and French classes for travelers are offered by George Fortin for the Community Center. These classes for teens to adults broaden the knowledge and language abilities for those traveling in other countries. The classes meet on Tuesday evenings for a 10-week session. The cost is $65. To register, please call the center at 383-0088.

holiday happenings

Birthday parties offered

Celebrate a birthday with your child's favorite activity at the Community Center. The Community Center staff provides the activity while parents provide the cake, snacks and decorations. Bowling, gymnastics, craft and gym dandy parties are very popular for children of all ages.

Please call the center at 383-0088 to book your party in advance!

Ballroom dance classes

Ballroom Dance classes at the Community Center begin after the holidays. Bill Bradford of the Bradford Ballroom Dance Center teaches a wide range of dance techniques in a relaxed, enjoyable atmosphere. Classes for beginners and intermediates will dance the fox trot, waltz, cha cha and swing. Please call the center at 383-0088 to register or for further information.

Sign up to bowl

The Community Center's four-lane bowling alley is open to adults for bowling. Get a group together and spend an evening bowling with family or friends. Plan ahead and call the center at 383-0088 to reserve your space for a guaranteed night of laughs and fun!

Ski lessons offered

The Cohasset Recreation Department conducts Blue Hill Ski Lessons. Registration forms must be signed by a parent or guardian for participation in this five-week program. Beginner-thru-advanced-level instruction is available for children and youth, aged seven and over. Lessons are scheduled to begin Thursday, Jan 7, and meet for five consecutive weeks, thru Thursday, Feb. 5.

The bus will leave each week from Town Hall parking lot at 3:30 p.m. and return from Blue Hills at about 6:45 p.m.

The fee for Ski Lessons and transportation for the five weeks is $95 and checks should be made payable to: Town of Cohasset.

Those participants who require equipment rentals may rent at Blue Hills and the cost for the five-week rental package is $40 per person.

The rental fee can be included in the check for the program fee. For more information, please call the recreation department office at 383-6791.

Children's book author Marc Brown signs his latest book for Meghan Kelly at Buttonwood Books and Toys in Cohasset recently. At left is Brown's wife, Laurie Krasny Brown, who is also a noted author.

Book on elders' rights

The new Massachusetts Bar Association publication, Legal Handbook Handbook for Massachusetts Elders, is a comprehensive legal reference and resource guide for older Massachusetts residents. The bar association is sending free copies to seniors who request them.

Eight chapters in the 104-page book cover a wide range of elders' concerns including Social Security, supplemental security income, veterans' benefits, pension benefits, tax relief, age discrimination, Medicare and Medicaid entitlements, landlord/tenant law, consumer protection, abuse protection, health care proxies and wills. A special feature of Legal Handbook for Massachusetts Elders is a 15-page state-wide directory of agencies and service of importance to elders.

Free single copies of Legal Handbook for Massachusetts Elders may be obtained by writing Elder Handbook, Massachusetts Bar Association, 20 West Street, Boston, MA 02111-1218.

Look for senior scene only in your Cohasset Mariner.

Dorothy Bryanton teaches Mary Andracchio a way to make flowers from burlap during a recent craft class sponsored by the Cohasset Council on Aging. Don't miss Senior Scene every week in the Mariner, it's a great source of up-to-date news of interest to Cohasset's active senior citizen community.

business notes

Agnew, Carter, McCarthy, Inc. one of New England's largest public relations firms and a member of Pinnacle Worldwide, names Nick Berents as account executive.

Nick joined the firm in 1990 as an account coordinator and was recently promoted to account executive. He is responsible for initiating and maintaining relationships with national, local, and trade media on behalf of such clients as PC Week, Polaroid and Wellmark Healthcare Services, Inc. Prior to joining ACM, Berents served as a junior financial analyst for Hoyt Cinemas Corporation. He graduated from Washington & Lee University in 1986 with a B.A. in English.

Nick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Berents Jr. of Cohasset.

Raytheon Company has named Edward C. Burak as director, commercial marketing for the corporation. He succeeds S. Robert Foley, Jr., who has been assigned to lead a major proposal effort for Raytheon.

In his new position, Burak is responsible for overseeing Raytheon's commercial marketing strategies and programs, with particular emphasis on the international marketplace.

Burak joined Raytheon in 1973. Most recently, he was Director, International Affairs. He previously worked at Raytheon's Washington, D.C., office and, prior to that, served as Hawk marketing director for the company's Missile Systems Division.

Before joining Raytheon, Burak worked in Asia, Latin America, the Middle East, and Europe for the Defense Department and Mobil Oil Corporation.

Burak is a graduate of Harvard College and the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration. In addition, he has graduated from Raytheon's Advanced Management Program and Engineering Management Program.

Burak is a member of the Industry Sector Advisory Committee to the Secretary of Commerce and the Defense Trade Advisory Group for the Secretary of State.

He and his family live in Cohasset.

Raytheon, headquartered in Lexington, Mass., is a $9.3 billion diversified technology company with sales in four business segments: Electronics, Aircraft Products, Energy and Environmental, and Major Appliances.

(Cotninued from page 1)

All events will take place at the Community Center, the Art Center, the Teen Depot, St. Stephen's Second Congregational Church, First Parish and on the Common.

In order to avoid parking problems, shuttle buses will run from various locations throughout town. Admission buttons are being sold at the Community Center for $5 and the price goes to $10 next week. Children under age five are admitted free.

The "Celebrate 93" event is the first in a long list of events which are scheduled to take place in 1993 as part of a campaign to make the Community Center debt-free. While the Community Center never expects to be run completely debt-free, its Board of Directors hopes to be able to pay off the mortgage on the existing property by the end of the year. Since the Community Center is a non-profit organization, it must rely on fund-raising, sponsorship and membership fees in order to accomplish this end.

Its success in this campaign is dependent in large part on the generosity of the community which it serves.

BEGAN IN 1943

The Cohasset Community Center was established in 1943 and was located in the Furber House until 1949. The Center was originally established in order to give teenage children of the town a place to meet and to socialize. It was also the site of various U.S.O.-type dances which were run to welcome home the town's servicemen.

In 1949, the Center moved to its present location at 3 North Main Street. The present site is the Elisha Doane House which is over 240 years old. Elisha Doane was the son of a local ship owner who was reputed to have been one of the wealthiest men in New England at the time. Mr. Doane served Cohasset as a Justice of the Peace, the Town Moderator for five terms and as a member of the Board of Selectmen for two terms.

The Elisha Doane House was built in 1750 by James Stetson. Its third story was added in the 1790s by Mr. Doane. During the 1900s and the 1940s, the house was run as an inn.

The Community Center, since moving into the house in 1949, has not strayed from its original mission which was to maintain an organization for the social, charitable, educational and recreational betterment of the community. Although economic hard times almost shut down the community center in the early 1970s, a group of directors which included Richard Farwell, Rocco Laugelle, Martha Gjetsby, Jean Salvador and Judy Volungis embarked on an aggressive telephone campaign to seek donations and boost membership. They also used a government loan to renovate the Community Center. In short, the group saved the Community Center and made possible the type of celebration which will take place throughout 1993.

EDUCATIONAL, SOCIAL PROGRAMS

At present, the Community Center boasts candlepin bowling, a commercial kitchen, a 4,000-square-foot function room which serves as a gymnasium and activity center, various smaller meeting rooms and the newly completed addition which is independently operated by the Council on Aging.

The Center offers the community countless educational and social programs which are run at a nominal cost to members. At present, the Community Center runs a nursery school, a gymnastics program, aerobics, and other dance and exercise activities for people of all ages, including seniors and toddlers. Other activities offered either presently or in the past include classes in cooking, karate, judo, investing, bridge, yoga, wreath making, SAT preparation and many more.

The Community Center also works to supplement the school department curriculum by offering classes in computers and foreign languages. The Center has also run a number of early-release-day programs for area students which include bowling, food and other recreational projects offered after school lets out on early-release days. This has proven to be very successful.

Membership in the Community Center is open to residents of all area towns and is offered at an annual fee of $10 for an individual and $25 for a family. Members can take part in any of the programs after paying a nominal fee per program. In addition, the Center is always open to suggestions about possible activities which it could offer. The Community Center can also be rented out by private groups for meetings or social functions.

The Center is also available for birthday parties. Rental fees begin at $35. Presently, the Center has over 2,000 members and has an annual program participation of approximately 46,000.

SPONSORSHIP OPTIONS

Rhonda Myers, a member of the Board of Directors and the Chairperson of the 50th Anniversary Celebration, points out that it is very important for the people of the community to realize and appreciate what they have in the Center. She also urges all members of the community to get involved in the Center either through volunteering or through donations in order to support the Center and its mission. A number of sponsorship options are also available to area businesses and residents.

Myers encourages all area residents to come to the New Year's Eve celebration and enjoy the inexpensive and safe alternative to going into Boston. In addition, all are encouraged to get involved in the Community Center throughout 1993 in an effort to help it accomplish its debt-free goal.

Holiday schedule set

To allow employees some time for last-minute holiday preparations, the town hall will be open until 1 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 24, and will close at 4:30 p.m., Thursday, Dec. 31.

There is no selectmen's meeting Monday, Dec. 28, Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said.

For the weeks of December 29, 30 & 31
and
January 5, 6 & 7
the deadline for placing an ad will be
Tuesdays at 5pm

Above, is a drawing by Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby of Cohasset Village depicting placement of signs and crosswalks (see numbers 1-10). Selectman Michael H. Sullivan who serves on the crosswalk subcommittee with Gjesteby said the new signs which will be placed in the crosswalks are due to arrive tomorrow or Monday. The signs alert motorists to the state law requiring vehicles to stop for pedestrians in crosswalks. The state-of-the art rubber signs are more attractive than the barrels used in Hingham, selectmen said.

Vol. XV, No.11 | Thursday, December 24, 1992 | 1-800-649-6661 | 50 cents

Happy Holidays

Cohasset's week

Early deadlines noted

The Cohasset Mariner has early deadlines next week due to the New Year's Day holiday.

Deadline for all copy for the Dec. 31st edition is noon Monday (Dec. 28) at the two Cohasset Mariner drop spots, Colonial Pharmacy and Cohasset News.

Christmas tree chipping

Through the cooperative efforts of the Tree and Park Department and the Recycling Transfer Facility personnel, Christmas trees will be chipped at the Cedar Street RTF. The following instructions apply:

- No commercial sellers are allowed.
- No wreaths will be accepted.
- No tree stands, nails or wires attached to trees.
- Christmas trees are to be placed only in area designated by RTF manager.
- Brush is to be placed in a separate location.
- No trees will be accepted after Sunday, Jan. 17, 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

The rules are in place to assure the safety of the chipper operators. Your cooperation is appreciated.

Acting police chief action

The three sergeants appointed to fill in for Police Chief Joseph M. Kealey, who steps down Dec. 31, will have to manage their regular shift duties and their new responsibilities, selectmen said.

They recently appointed the sergeants to fill in as acting chiefs on a rotating basis until the board choses a replacement for Kealey.

Police Union spokesman Officer Paul Laugelle told selectmen last week that having officers cover the position while working their regular shifts was not acceptable.

Executive Secretary Gregory J. Doyon said the board wants the appointed police officers to work any conflicts out themselves.

"Essentially the board is leaving the option of working the regular or day shift up to the individual acting chief," Doyon said.

He added that selectmen will send the police union a letter stating their position.

Sally O'Neill, Jerusalem Rd., stands by the landmark 90-foot flagpole that was toppled in the Northeaster two weeks ago. Mrs. O'Neill said the flagpole men have been out and have assured her that the pole can be saved and put back in the ground. "We are waiting to hear about what would be involved," she said Tuesday. "We'd like to put it back, if possible." She added that a crane would have to be used to lift the pole, which was installed in the 1920s.

Patrolman's job up for grabs

Whether local preference should be given to candidates who apply for a public safety position surfaced again at a selectmen's meeting.

The issue became central to discussions Monday on how to find a replacement for retiring patrolman Carmelo Conte.

Although the police chief's position does not fall under the state Civil Service system, local preference was also the topic of discussion when selectmen were deciding where to conduct a search for Police Chief Joseph M. Kealey, who steps down Dec. 31.

Ultimately, the board decided to open the search up to the New England area.

Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle asked committee members Monday to request a local preference list from Civil Service for the search for Conte's replacement.

The Civil Service is a state-run personnel system.

Laugelle's motion was defeated by a 2 to 3 vote. Selectmen Merle S. Brown joined Laugelle in voting for a local preference list.

"Wouldn't you prefer to see our local people here get the job?" Laugelle asked the board. "I'd prefer to see our local people who pay taxes be considered."

Selectmen Chairman Jane O. Goedecke offered her view of the search for a police replacement.

"What you are looking for is the best person for the job," she said.

Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon said even if Laugelle's motion had carried, it is unlikely Civil Service would have provided a local preference list.

Doyon said the Service wants communities to use the rehire list first.

With the recently created firefighter vacancy, the town asked for applicants from the rehire list and received none. The town is now asking for a local preference list.

"It remains to be seen whether Civil Service will honor our request," Doyon said. He said the town will request a rehire list first in conducting its search for a replacement for Conte.

Although Feb. 11 is the actual day Conte retires, his last day of work is in early January.

Laid-off firefighters pass on Cohasset

Working for the Cohasset Fire Department is not high on the list for laid-off firefighters from other towns.

Fire Chief John R. Nadeau said none of the laid-off firefighters on the State Civil Service Rehire list were interested in Cohasset.

He asked selectmen to request a local preference list from the new-hire list.

"One of our call firefighters is on that list, he's dedicated, competent, interested and has over five years of service with us," Nadeau said. "He is near completion of Firefighter I and is an EMT."

Nadeau added that giving preference to local on-call firefighters is strengthens recruitment and career/call relationships. It also minimizes training and community familiarization, he said.

Selectman Michael H. Sullivan was surprised that no one from the rehire list applied.

"Why wouldn't 70 people out of work wouldn't apply for the job?" he asked.

Police Officer Paul Laugelle, who attended the meeting, spoke up and said the department had been plagued with threats of layoffs over the last five years.

In an interview last week, Nadeau said the fact that no one applied is "a sign of the times." He said three years without a labor contract and a lot of public attention to the fire department and its staffing levels are "certainly part of it."

Nadeau conceded that the active recruitment of more call firefighters may also contribute to making Cohasset less attractive to some full-timers who see call firefighters as a potential threat to their jobs. The state police union is against the trend toward call departments which it views as a threat to the jobs of career firefighters.

Nadeau noted there has been no "mass exodus" from the department.

Community interest a key to Cohasset's Winterfest '93

By Jeff Cutler
Mariner Correspondent

In 1993, Cohasset's drug-free weekend takes the idea to a new level of awareness for the town.

Last year, the first drug-free weekend in Cohasset, was was a success and organizers are hoping for the same result this year.

"You can have a lot of fun, and you can do a lot of different activities, and it doesn't have to revolve around alcohol," said Ralph Kidder of the Drug-Free Weekend Steering Committee. He hopes that people take an interest in the community and become more informed about drug abuses during Winterfest '93 next month.

Scheduled to coincide with the weekend of the Super Bowl, the event confronts people with a choice of drinking on a traditional party weekend or abstaining from substance abuse.

"I would hope that people recognize the dilemma...and at the very least, struggle with that dilemma," committee spokesman Kidder said.

"You learn very quickly...that you can't moralize, we're not about to preach," he added. "This is an opportunity to participate in a lot of fun activities that don't involve substance abuse."

On Friday, Jan. 29, Winterfest '93 begins with both a Junior varsity and a Varsity basketball game at the high school. During halftime of the second game, the finals of a foul shooting contest for lower grade school children are scheduled.

A few weeks prior to the game students in grade school have a free-throw tournament in their gym classes and the winners of that tournament become finalists for Winterfest's 'kick-off' evening.

The reason for the contest, Kidder explained, is to "begin to involve the younger children." He said more than 750 people went to the game last year.

Also two weeks before Winterfest, fourth, fifth, and sixth graders at the Deer Hill School make what Kidder calls 'message' or 'awareness' posters. Each one tells about a certain aspect of drug abuse such as drugs, alcohol or smoking.

He mentions that the weekend is not solely for the young children but they are involved for a very serious reason.

"We know for a fact...that many of these problems begin very early. And the idea was to get the fourth, fifth and sixth graders thinking about it."

To that end, a fun fair for younger children — partially supervised by high school students — is planned in the high school gym.

The theme of Winterfest '93 is "Cohasset Past and Present." To get older residents involved, other activities will take place during the weekend.

"We're collecting home movies from the 50's, old yearbooks, team pictures and things like that. All of which will be on display at the community center," Kidder said.

Games for the children, storytellers, snow and ice sculptures and a Sunday pancake brunch for 93 cents are also part of the three day celebration.

"Last year's spaghetti supper was a multi-generational affair and we're hoping to make the pancake breakfast (and the whole event) the same thing," Kidder said.

To "top off" the affair are free sundaes on Sunday afternoon said Kidder.

"And there will be a lot of literature available" about drug and alcohol abuse as well as a "breathalyzer" demonstrations by the Cohasset Police Department.

"The real theme is to try to give people a reason for coming together around the issue of substance abuse," he said.

What we're really trying to do is to help everyone, especially younger people, see that "there are choices to be made," he said. "There is a clear attempt to give a message here!"

The next meeting of the Drug-Free Weekend Steering Committee is Jan. 5 at Cohasset Town Hall. It is open to the public.

Police chief interviews

The process of choosing a new police chief is winding to a close.

The pool of candidates has been narrowed to six finalists, three of whom are Cohasset police sergeants Brian Noonan, Robert Jackson and Richard Abbadessa.

The town received 87 applications from prospective candidates in its New England-wide search for a police chief to replace Joseph M. Kealey, who steps down Dec. 31.

Selectmen will interview the six finalists starting at 7 p.m., Jan 5.

Harbormaster gets raise

Selectmen approved a rate increase for harbormaster Irving E. Gadow.

Effective April 30, Gadow's hourly salary will increase from $13.71 to $14.69.

Executive Secretary Gregory J. Doyon praised Gadow.

"He's truly one of our real dedicated employees who goes the extra mile," Doyon said.

Selectmen Rocco F. Laugelle agreed.

"He does a good job and he's well-liked," Laugelle said.

Selectmen select delegate

Selectman Martha K. Gjesteby was nominated as the board's voting delegate to the Massachusetts Interlocal Insurance Association annual meeting.

Schools address AIDS policy

By Chris Kukk
Mariner correspondent

The school committee addressed the question of students who have AIDS or who test positive for the Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV) in a "School Attendance Policy" draft last week.

The policy — which is still in draft form and which will be publicly posted — is based on both scientific research and recently derived state and federal laws, school officials said.

For example, with respect to prohibiting discrimination against an AIDS/HIV student in the Cohasset school system, the introduction to the policy states:

"State and federal laws which prohibit discrimination based on handicap prohibit exclusion of students with HIV/AIDS from school unless their attendance would present an immediate danger to themselves or others."

Supt. Stephen Hart said Cohasset is no exception.

"Children are entitled to attend [Cohasset schools] if they are infected with HIV," he said.

Hart said the policy is based on law.

The policy also specifically addresses the protection of student confidentiality.

"The right to know of the school is really restricted. It is up to the parent to decide to tell the school of their child's medical condition," Hart said.

According to the introduction of the policy statement:

"[federal and state] laws prohibit school personnel from requiring that students or their parents inform the school that a student has HIV/AIDS."

With respect to such laws, the proposed policy states:

"A parent/guardian is not required to inform school personnel if the student has HIV/AIDS."

However, the policy draft adopted by the committee strongly endorses the idea of school notification.

"Even if a parent or student was to give notice to a staff member of the school, no information is to be shared among the staff unless there is written consent," Hart explained.

The only "exclusionary" policy for HIV/AIDS students encompasses incidents of "uncontrollable bleeding" that applies to all students in the Cohasset school system regardless of whether he or she is known or suspected to harbor a blood-borne infection.

"If a student bleeds uncontrollably, he or she would be prohibited from going to school until the condition is controlled and resolved," Hart said.

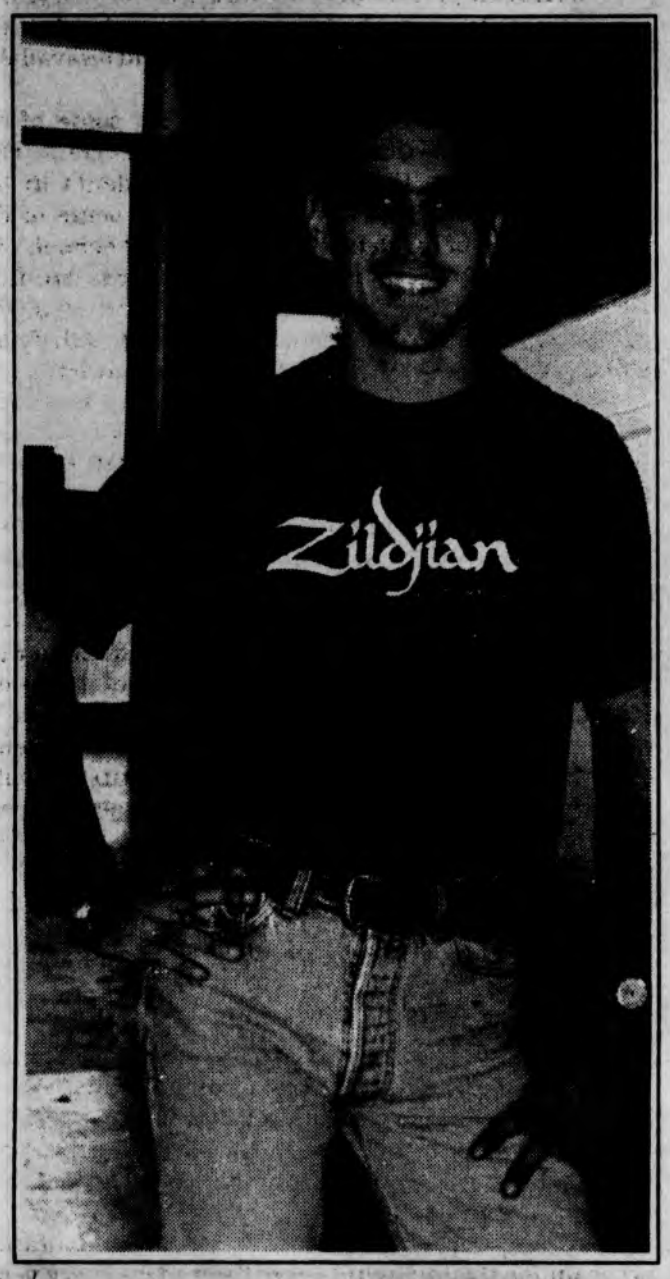
Jody Kehoe

Student of the Month

It gives me great pleasure to nominate Jody Kehoe as October's Student of the Month. I do so in recognition of Jody's unselfish and outstanding contributions to both school and community. Throughout the school year Jody has worked countless hours after school and during the weekend, taking care of the John Warren II (surfboat) and completing work on the ropes course. I have never had the pleasure to work with a student who consistently demonstrates enthusiasm, responsibility and commitment to community resources as does Jody Kehoe.

In the month of October, Jody has handmade two rope ladders for use on the ropes course; of special note, Jody put wood finish on the platforms to protect them from the weather. Jody also took time on three separate occasions to make sure that the surfboat was properly moored when changes in the harbor were taking place and the boat needed to be moved. Jody has also volunteered time after school to paint the new set of oars recently purchased.



I have mentioned two resources — the surfboat and the ropes course — that you may perceive to be "Alt School" resources. Let me remind you that they are both used by various school and community groups and without people like Jody our community would be less rich.

Finally, Jody has been active throughout the past month rehearsing for both the Senior Show and the Musical. Mrs. Wood and Mr. Marks have both indicated that Jody has been of great help, going above the call of duty.

Jody Kehoe deserves your support as October's Student of the Month. He makes life at CHS much more pleasant.

Nominated by: Mr. Buckley

Jody has been a leading chorus member for many years. His dedication goes beyond chorus to Barbershop Quartet and currently "South Pacific." On many occasions Jody has stayed well after class or rehearsal to pick up/close up shop. He is always polite, cordial, and dependable.

I've enjoyed his good nature and attentiveness in class. His vocal improvement has been noteworthy. I recommend Jody Kehoe for Student of the Month.

Nominated by: Mr. Marks

Rec. vacation program

The Cohasset Recreation Department hosts a five-day school vacation program at the Deer Hill School, Sohier St. The program runs Monday through Friday, Dec. 28 to Jan. 1.

Area youngsters ages five through 12 may attend. The hours of the program are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Special rates are available for five-day registration and family discounts; daily rates are also available. The program is coordinated by Ted Carroll and staffed by summer playground personnel. The program consists of sports and games, arts and crafts, and much more.

To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department at 383-6791, or you may register at the Deer Hill School on the day(s) you wish to have your child attend.

Release day update

The staff of the Joseph Osgood School participated in a unique workshop on release day Dec. 10. Two of Osgood's own, Patricia Baker, a second-grade teacher, and Deborah Webster, a third-grade teacher, were the presenters. Using the Cultural Norms' Themes of Reaching Out to the Knowledge Bases and Collegiality, the faculty received both theory and practical applications for conducting reading and writing workshops in the classrooms.

The workshop was structured in the format recommended for classroom activities; individual work, small group work, then sharing with a large group. A special emphasis was placed on "conferencing"; that is, teacher and student meeting privately to discuss a reading assignment or a piece of writing. Also, a special thanks to Denise Yess who coordinated this endeavor.

The staff of Deer Hill School conducted their second week of parent conferences. Report cards were sent home in the beginning of December, so this is an important time for parents and teachers to meet. Any parent who desires a conference, please call your child's teacher to set up an appointment.

Teachers at the Jr./Sr. High School used this release day to continue their year-long exploration of innovative means of instruction and assessment. This particular session was under the theme of "Collegiality." After a brief meeting, each staff member worked their chosen topic. Much of this time was used to identify and gather appropriate resources in the areas of instruction and assessment. Later on this school year, the faculty will share with colleagues the product of their research.

school's in

by Ed Leary

Well! It's been a while since my last column, and quite a few things have happened in the last month or so. "South Pacific" was a rousing success and everyone involved deserves a standing "O," (the image of Nick Welz adjusting his coconuts will live in infamy). The young women of the Junior and Senior classes went through a week of practice to prepare for a football game that rivaled any Patriots' game for excitement, followed the next day by a battle in the mud between the young men from Cohasset and Hull. At Deer Hill, rumor has it that Ms. Gallagher made a deal with one student to wear an angel's costume to school if he completed a series of assignments. He did; she did! Apparently, the next incentive is a Hawaiian outfit, (suggestion: see Nick).

On a more serious note, I thought I'd devote this week's article to some of the programs that make an education in Cohasset special in a non-academic sense. We all know that the young people in the schools have a variety of needs as they make that perilous journey to adulthood. Two programs that address these needs are the Alternative School and the Peer Counselors at the high school.

Consisting of 11 students and Mr. Buckley, the "Alt School" is a valuable adjunct to the Cohasset experience. In a conversation, Mr. Buckley pointed out that finding a sense of identity, developing independence, gaining acceptance and learning to accept the differences in others are part of the growing process that all adolescents experience. The Alt School provides an opportunity to explore these same issues in a more supportive environment; the members work as a group while they individually confront their personal limits and develop confidence in their strengths.

This personal exploration takes form in two decidedly nonacademic activities: the maritime studies curriculum and the ropes course. The former involved the reconstruction of the "John Warren," a 26-foot McClellan surf rescue boat. Since the boat was launched last year, members of the student body have developed cooperative skills in a series of rowing competitions. In the future, Mr. Buckley envisions an environmental/oceanographic course that examines the history of shipbuilding and a study that will provide data about the ecological system of Cohasset Harbor.

At least one graduate of the program has carried his interests further and is now working in a satellite program at the Charlestown Navy Yard as the supervisor in the construction of a series of curraghs, a traditional Irish boat.

The ropes course provides another set of challenges. Facing and overcoming fears, surmounting physical as well as emotional obstacles, developing a sense of self-worth and assurance, learning to trust others, and responding to the trust of others with responsible behavior are all outcomes that the ropes course aims for. Mr. Buckley is now investigating the world of grants and corporate sponsorship in order to develop the course as a community resource that would be available for a variety of activities.

Mr. Buckley also wanted to clear up some of the common misconceptions about the Alt program. One myth, he said, is the idea that the students in the program are "getting out" of completing some of the requirements of students in the "regular school." He wants to stress that the alt school students are fully involved in the traditional curriculum; students take all the regular classroom courses in order to satisfy the same graduation requirements as other students.

In fact, the students take on additional responsibilities. The alt school "remains loyal to the traditional measures of academic quality but expands the definition" of education to include personal goal-setting and self-evaluation skills, commitment to a group, and a willingness to use the outdoors as a classroom.

As an added note, I learned that Mr. Buckley was invited to attend a colloquium at the Seattle Center for Wooden Boats at the Living Museum of Maritime Heritage on Puget Sound. It was a rare experience to meet with a wide range of people who are using experiential education to work with young people. Participants included boat builders, a college professor at Buffalo State University who teaches Art and History of Design, and a parole officer who is working with adolescents at risk! This is quite an honor for a teacher in a small community on the South Shore.

Another group of students at the high school experiences a different kind of involvement. From about 50 or 60 applicants, 17 juniors and seniors are selected to participate in the Peer Counseling Program. These students must then complete a course in leadership training, communication skills, problem-solving and trust-building strategies in order to prepare them to deal with a number of activities that benefit the school community.

For example, peer counselors conduct the orientation program for the incoming seventh-graders every year. In fact, during the second semester every seventh-grade homeroom will have two peer counselors that meet with them regularly in order to keep in touch with any difficulties that individual students might be encountering. Ray Jones, halfback extraordinaire, remembers his first day at CHS looking up in awe at the senior peer counselors and thinking how great it was to have a "big guy" as his friend. Of course, all good things come around again, as he told this story to a group of seventh-graders that he was shepherding around the building.

Actually, every new student to the school, no matter what grade level, is assigned a counselor to ease the transition to a new environment, and sometimes lasting friendships are formed. In addition, a student in academic difficulty may be assigned a tutor to help with course work, or perhaps just to have someone (not an adult) to talk to.

Peer counselors also assist at the ninth-grade Camp Marist weekend, in which they co-lead activities that deal with decision-making skills, values-clarification, and esteem-building for the members of the freshman class. They develop skits, lead discussions, provide entertainment, and in general help to make the weekend the success that it has been.

Perhaps most importantly, the peer counselors provide some very visible positive role models for the school community as individuals who care about others, who are sensitive to the needs of others and who act on these values. They represent, for me, all the attributes that I would like to see in every young adult who is graduated from the Cohasset school system.

KUDOS FOR THE KIDS

Congratulations to the wrestling team for putting on an excellent meet last weekend. In particular, Ray Jones, Ryan Freeman and Nate Fiori deserve congratulations for winning their weight classes. Scott Theriault, who just came out for the team two weeks ago, placed third!

On the college scoreboard, results are starting to come in. According to reliable sources, we have seven seniors who have received early acceptances from the following schools: Brown, Univ. of Pennsylvania, Boston College, Georgia Tech, Dartmouth and Sarah Lawrence.

Finally, I want to end with a heartfelt congratulation to everyone, staff and student alike, who has acted in the true spirit of the season by showing care for someone else. Starting with Thanksgiving, Ms. Atkinson's third-grade class had lunch with senior citizens and put together "Memory Books," in which both the seniors and the students recorded memories in order to share some of the important parts of their lives. The ninth-grade Humanities Team of Ms. Cronin and Mr. Bouchard have asked their students to "give up a snack" and donate the money to the Globe Santa and the Home for Little Wanderers. At Deer Hill, Ms. Cisneros and Ms. Murphy have organized a gift-sharing project through Catholic Charities and St. Anthony's Church. I could go on and on, but I have a deadline to meet.

Jody Kehoe

It gives me great pleasure to nominate Jody Kehoe as October's Student of the Month. I do so in recognition of Jody's unselfish and outstanding contributions to both school and community. Throughout the school year Jody has worked countless hours after school and during the weekend, taking care of the John Warren II (surfboat) and completing work on the ropes course. I have never had the pleasure to work with a student who consistently demonstrates enthusiasm, responsibility and commitment to community resources as does Jody Kehoe.

Student of the Month

In the month of October, Jody has handmade two rope ladders for use on the ropes course; of special note, Jody put wood finish on the platforms to protect them from the weather. Jody also took time on three separate occasions to make sure that the surfboat was properly moored when changes in the harbor were taking place and the boat needed to be moved. Jody has also volunteered time after school to paint the new set of oars recently purchased.

I have mentioned two resources — the surfboat and the ropes course — that you may perceive to be "Alt School" resources. Let me remind you that they are both used by various school and community groups and without people like Jody our community would be less rich.

Finally, Jody has been active throughout the past month rehearsing for both the Senior Show and the Musical. Mrs. Wood and Mr. [illegible] both indicated that Jody has been a great help, going above the call of duty.

Jody Kehoe deserves your support as October's Student of the Month. He makes life at CHS much more pleasant.

Nominated by: Mr. Buckley

Jody has been a leading chorus member for many years. His dedication goes beyond chorus to Barbershop Quartet and currently "South Pacific." On many occasions Jody has stayed well after class or rehearsal to pick up/close up shop. He is always polite, cordial, and dependable.

I've enjoyed his good nature and attentiveness in class. His vocal improvement has been noteworthy. I recommend Jody Kehoe for Student of the Month.

Nominated by: Mr. Marks

Rec. vacation program

The Cohasset Recreation Department hosts a five-day school vacation program at the Deer Hill School, Sohier St. The program runs Monday through Friday, Dec. 28 to Jan. 1.

Area youngsters ages five through 12 may attend. The hours of the program are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Special rates are available for five-day registration and family discounts; daily rates are also available. The program is coordinated by Ted Carroll and staffed by summer playground personnel. The program consists of sports and games, arts and crafts, and much more.

To register, please call the Cohasset Recreation Department at 383-6791, or you may register at the Deer Hill School on the day(s) you wish to have your child attend.

Release day update

The staff of the Joseph Osgood School participated in a unique workshop on release day Dec. 10. Two of Osgood's own, Patricia Baker, a second-grade teacher, and Deborah Webster, a third-grade teacher, were the presenters. Using the Cultural Norms' Themes of Reaching Out to the Knowledge Bases and Collegiality, the faculty received both theory and practical applications for conducting reading and writing workshops in the classrooms.

The workshop was structured in the format recommended for classroom activities: individual work, small group work, then sharing with a large group. A special emphasis was placed on "conferencing"; that is, teacher and student meeting privately to discuss a reading assignment or a piece of writing. Also, a special thanks to Denise Yess who coordinated this endeavor.

The staff of Deer Hill School conducted their second week of parent conferences. Report cards were sent home in the beginning of December, so this is an important time for parents and teachers to meet. Any parent who desires a conference, please call your child's teacher to set up an appointment.

Teachers at the Jr./Sr. High School used this release day to continue their year-long exploration of innovative means of instruction and assessment. This particular session was under the theme of "Collegiality." After a brief meeting, each staff member worked their chosen topic. Much of this time was used to identify and gather appropriate resources in the areas of instruction and assessment. Later on this school year, the faculty will share with colleagues the product of their research.

I Love the Workout Club!

Holly and Chelsea Rader

I love the Workout Club because it's not intimidating, especially for a beginner like me. The classes are fun, the instructors are great, and the equipment is the best.

My daughter has a great time in the babysitting group, and when I know she's happy, I can relax and get the exercise I need.

I just started back to aerobics a few weeks ago and I feel better already!

You'll love the Workout Club too!

The Workout Club
Aerobics, freeweights, StairMasters, Nautilus, treadmills, and more.

by Ed Leary

Well! It's been a while since my last column, and quite a few things have happened in the last month or so. "South Pacific" was a rousing success and everyone involved deserves a standing "O," (the image of Nick Welz adjusting his coconuts will live in infamy). The young women of the Junior and Senior classes went through a week of practice to prepare for a football game that rivaled any Patriots' game for excitement, followed the next day by a battle in the mud between the young men from Cohasset and Hull. At Deer Hill, rumor has it that Ms. Gallagher made a deal with one student to wear an angel's costume to school if he completed a series of assignments. He did; she did! Apparently, the next incentive is a Hawaiian outfit, (suggestion: see Nick).

On a more serious note, I thought I'd devote this week's article to some of the programs that make an education in Cohasset special in a non-academic sense. We all know that the young people in the schools have a variety of needs as they make that perilous journey to adulthood. Two programs that address these needs are the Alternative School and the Peer Counselors at the high school.

Consisting of 11 students and Mr. Buckley, the "Alt School" is a valuable adjunct to the Cohasset experience. In a conversation, Mr. Buckley pointed out that finding a sense of identity, developing independence, gaining acceptance and learning to accept the differences in others are part of the growing process that all adolescents experience. The Alt School provides an opportunity to explore these same issues in a more supportive environment; the members work as a group while they individually confront their personal limits and develop confidence in their strengths.

This personal exploration takes form in two decidedly nonacademic activities: the maritime studies curriculum and the ropes course. The former involved the reconstruction of the "John Warren," a 26-foot McClellan surf rescue boat. Since the boat was launched last year, members of the student body have developed cooperative skills in a series of rowing competitions. In the future, Mr. Buckley envisions an environmental/oceanographic course that examines the history of shipbuilding and a study that will provide data about the ecological system of Cohasset Harbor.

At least one graduate of the program has carried his interests further and is now working in a satellite program at the Charlestown Navy Yard as the supervisor in the construction of a series of curraghs, a traditional Irish boat.

The ropes course provides another set of challenges. Facing and overcoming fears, surmounting physical as well as emotional obstacles, developing a sense of self-worth and assurance, learning to trust others, and responding to the trust of others with responsible behavior are all outcomes that the ropes course aims for. Mr. Buckley is now investigating the world of grants and corporate sponsorship in order to develop the course as a community resource that would be available for a variety of activities.

Mr. Buckley also wanted to clear up some of the common misconceptions about the Alt program. One myth, he said, is the idea that the students in the program are "getting out" of completing some of the requirements of students in the "regular school." He wants to stress that the alt school students are fully involved in the traditional curriculum; students take all the regular classroom courses in order to satisfy the same graduation requirements as other students.

In fact, the students take on additional responsibilities. The alt school "remains loyal to the traditional measures of academic quality but expands the definition" of education to include personal goal-setting and self-evaluation skills, commitment to a group, and a willingness to use the outdoors as a classroom.

As an added note, I learned that Mr. Buckley was invited to attend a colloquium at the Seattle Center for Wooden Boats at the Living Museum of Maritime Heritage on Puget Sound. It was a rare experience to meet with a wide range of people who are using experiential education to work with young people. Participants included boat builders, a college professor at Buffalo State University who teaches Art and History of Design, and a parole officer who is working with adolescents at risk! This is quite an honor for a teacher in a small community on the South Shore.

Another group of students at the high school experiences a different kind of involvement. From about 50 or 60 applicants, 17 juniors and seniors are selected to participate in the Peer Counseling Program. These students must then complete a course in leadership training, communication skills, problem-solving and trust-building strategies in order to prepare them to deal with a number of activities that benefit the school community.

For example, peer counselors conduct the orientation program for the incoming seventh-graders every year. In fact, during the second semester every seventh-grade homeroom will have two peer counselors that meet with them regularly in order to keep in touch with any difficulties that individual students might be encountering. Ray Jones, halfback extraordinaire, remembers his first day at CHS looking up in awe at the senior peer counselors and thinking how great it was to have a "big guy" as his friend. Of course, all good things come around again, as he told this story to a group of seventh-graders that he was shepherding around the building.

Actually, every new student to the school, no matter what grade level, is assigned a counselor to ease the transition to a new environment, and sometimes lasting friendships are formed. In addition, a student in academic difficulty may be assigned a tutor to help with course work, or perhaps just to have someone (not an adult) to talk to.

Peer counselors also assist at the ninth-grade Camp Mariot weekend, in which they co-lead activities that deal with decision-making skills, values-clarification, and esteem-building for the members of the freshman class. They develop skits, lead discussions, provide entertainment, and in general help to make the weekend the success that it has been.

Perhaps most importantly, the peer counselors provide some very visible positive role models for the school community as individuals who care about others, who are sensitive to the needs of others and who act on these values. They represent, for me, all the attributes that I would like to see in every young adult who is graduated from the Cohasset school system.

Kerri Lowenthal muses over the model of Cohasset Village at the Carriage House Nursery School which is held in the First Parish House. The afternoon class at the nursery school enjoyed creating a Christmas village as part of its holiday celebration. Do you recognize a Cohasset building?

❑ We have to begin by wishing Ken and Sue Fone the happiest anniversary that they have had yet...30 odd years of them! They are certainly a special couple, one that could teach the best about life and love.. Here's to many more of them!

❑ Happy belated birthday to Holly Pompeo, one of the best gals that we know! Here's to many more of them, Holly, and may all of your birthday wishes come true; you surely deserve it!

❑ Jill Shockman, daughter of Phil and Joan Shockman, graduated from Curry College last week and she is one happy person.. She should be; she worked hard for her degree and really wanted it! Now, on to the real world, Jill. We know you will be a success in whatever you decide to do. Whatever it is, God bless.

❑ Great news; we just couldn't keep it to ourselves. Tom Durkin is engaged to be married to Sue Ellen McDonald from Weymouth. Tom graduated from CHS, Class of 1985 — seems like yesterday. Here's wishing health, love and happiness to a grand couple.

❑ Speaking of great news, Muriel Wheelwright is a very happy/sad lady today. She is free to spend all of the time that she wants to with her husband Frank, but she is no longer working for the Second Congregational Church and current minister Gary Ritts. Muriel worked as a secretary there for more than 28 years, for four ministers, and she was loved by them all and all that know her.

A nice, warm intelligent lady, surely the church will miss her (and, of course, all involved with it). The good news is the Wheelwrights will have a great time together without worrying about Muriel going to work on Monday. Happy retirement, enjoy every moment!

Welcome home greetings to Ericka Ford, daughter of Chris and Karen Ford. Ericka is back from Berkley, just in time to celebrate the holidays with her family. Everyone is so pleased with that news. Let us know what is next on your agenda, Ericka, okay?

❑ Alright, Becky!! Becky McCarthy that is. Becky just graduated from Providence College and we salute her and her great efforts.

Here's to the business world, Becky, may you be a star!

❑ Another retirement accolade; this one goes to Avis Sweeney. After a lot of years working for the airlines, Avis decided to "ground" herself and be a lady of leisure. We wish you success in your retirement, Avis, and wonder what your next venture will be. You know the saying, "You can't keep a good gal down."

❑ Boston is going to see several Cohassetites this Tuesday. That is because Lindsay Laidlaw, daughter of Fred and Karen, will be dancing in the "Nutcracker Suite." Lindsay's grandmother, Shirley Laidlaw, will attend, as well as her aunts, Jean and Laurel. Kelli and Jennifer, Lindsay's cousins, will be there also. One is sure that there will be a standing ovation at the end of the Nutcracker performance. Next year I'd love to go; okay by you, Lindsay?

❑ Here's hoping that Althea Stamp feels much better as she reads this. Althea underwent surgery recently and we (and Santa) hope that she is well and watching the fireplace for shiny black boots followed by red legs to come down the chimney and bring her a lot of happiness and health!

❑ Everyone is excited by the name Clinton...as in president-elect Bill Clinton, right? Wrong!!! Cohasset has its own Clinton, and her name is Bethany, and she is in the sophomore class at CHS, and we'll bet that her name will be splashed all over the newspapers too someday. For now, suffice it to say that she is a local skating star with tons of potential to be a headliner.

Bethany is the New England Regional Junior Champ, Eastern Division...that's out of 300 skaters, folks. And she qualified in the top four on the road to Phoenix, for the national championships. Here's to the Olympics and another "prime time skater." Bethany, we LOVE your style...please keep us informed, there's nothing like a skater in our midst!

❑ Oh my, it's time to end the column for this week. May I please end with a cheerful wish for a happy holiday to all of you! Please know that we wish you a happy and healthy time for all, and may all of your holidays be the brightest ever! Snow? Well, only for Rudolph or skiers, no shovelers. Much love to all.

Jeanne N. Armin

Jeanne Nelson Armin — director, designer, actress, teacher, playwright, writer, artist, photographer, zealous promoter of the arts — died after a long illness Wednesday, Dec. 16. She was 68.

The daughter of the late Ruth Herndon (Flett) and Clarence O. Nelson, Mrs. Armin was born in Framingham, Mass. Oct. 8, 1924. Most of her elementary and high school years were spent in Wellesley. After graduating from Mount Ida College, she went on to study at Boston Conservatory of Music as a theatre major. At graduation she was awarded the Whitney Medal for highest achievements.

She then began a 45-year career that reflected an unflagging passion to achieve high professional standards as she worked in the performing arts.

From 1947 to 1954 she worked as a designer/stage manager (and, sometimes actress) for 11 seasons in professional stock theatre in summer/winter companies in Vermont (Weston Playhouse), Pennsylvania (Erie Playhouse), Rochester, N.Y., and in Massachusetts, as well as production manager for the Roxbury Children's Theatre, Roxbury Neighborhood House.

One of her colleagues at the Erie Playhouse, Dorothea Henderson Forsythe recalls, "Jeanne came to the Erie Playhouse bringing her creative talents as a scene designer, but she expanded her efforts to include all the backstage areas — building props, lighting, stage managing. Wherever she could help, there was Jeanne; whatever her task, she brought to it great creativity, imagination, energy, wit and commitment — plus a delicious sense of humor. As we followed her career in the post-Erie days, we saw her many talents blossom and flourish in her teaching and professional efforts. She was a splendid mentor to many young people who learned from her to bring honesty into creative efforts. Jeanne loved the theatre and it showed!"

This verve and commitment to professional excellence was reflected in post-Erie days in a host of shows/productions in which she served as teacher, director, and/or designer. They included those for Wellesley College, Dana Hall School (19 years), Tufts Magic Circle Theatre, Boston Public Library's Creative Drama Program, Neponset Choral Society, Arlington Street Church, and Ralph Farris Chorale.

Reflecting on Jeanne Armin's impact on students/staff of the Boston Children's Theatre, board member Priscilla Rand recalls that Jeanne "exacted a high standard of herself, her associates and students as she directed and taught in Children's Theatre, Community Theatre, and secondary schools throughout the greater Boston area. At the same time, her zest and hearty good humor always earned a deep respect and lasting affection from her many colleagues and students."

Ralph Farris Jr., one of her students who is now a veteran performer, comments that "she was an incredible influence on my life; she did it all with love." A number of her students went on to enjoy successful careers on the stage, in film, or in television.

Besides directing/designing/teaching in the dramatic arts, Jeanne made use of her energy and talents in other areas, such as: developing scripts, adapting plays from stories/books; designing program covers, arranging publicity for the South Shore Arts Festival; developing programs/presentations for the Arlington Street Church; organizing programs and events for Cohasset's South Shore Arts Festival; working as an extra in the filming of the "Witches of Eastwick;" serving on the board of the Boston Children's Theatre for 20 years; serving as vice president for programs for the New England Theatre Conference and as a member of its College of Fellows.

Mrs. Armin leaves a devoted husband, Donald B. Armin, a beloved sister, Joanne N. Chickering; also five cousins, four nieces, two nephews, four stepchildren, and a godchild.

Memorial services will be held at a date to be determined.

In lieu of flowers, donations would be welcomed to augment a scholarship fund in her name that is being established to promote creative arts through two organizations, the Boston Children's Theatre (93 Mass. Ave., Boston 02115). For information call Pat Gleason or Sarah Buckwell at 424-6634 or the South Shore Arts Center (Cohasset 02050). For information call Lanci Valentine at 383-9548 at the funeral home.

Marie E. Hanlon

Marie Ellen (McHale) Hanlon, 81, of Bonita Springs, Florida, formerly of New Jersey and Cohasset, died Dec. 11 at Cypress Manor Nursing Home, Ft. Myers, Fl., after a long illness.

Mrs. Hanlon graduated from Pleasantville, N.J. High School in 1929 and Jersey City Medical Center School of Nursing in 1933. She completed postgraduate work at the University of Pennsylvania in 1935.

Mrs. Hanlon was active as a Registered Professional Nurse for 50 years.

She started the Medical Department at Brewster Aeronautical in Long Island City in the early years of World War II. She owned and operated a home for babies with birth defects in Boston and Cohasset from 1949 to 1960. She was a nurse at New York Hospital from 1960 to 1973, and later a private duty nurse in Florida after moving there in 1977.

She was born in Philadelphia Nov. 10, 1911, the only child of the late Edwin and Meta F (Ayers) McHale. Mrs. Hanlon leaves two sons and a daughter, William Nylen of Miami, Fred Hanlon of Warwick, N.Y., and Mary Micale of Boston; eight grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

She was a member of the First Baptist Church of Bonita Springs and was active for many years in Eastern Star and the Order of the Amaranth in Massachusetts and New Jersey.

Memorial Services will be held in Bonita Springs, Fl.

Kerri Lowenthal muses over the model of Cohasset Village at the Carriage House Nursery School which is held in the First Parish House. The afternoon class at the nursery school enjoyed creating a Christmas village as part of its holiday celebration. Do you recognize a Cohasset building?

(Staff photo/Alan Chapman)

❑ We have to begin by wishing Ken and Sue Fone the happiest anniversary that they have had yet...30 odd years of them! They are certainly a special couple, one that could teach the best about life and love.. Here's to many more of them!

❑ Happy belated birthday to Holly Pompeo, one of the best gals that we know! Here's to many more of them, Holly, and may all of your birthday wishes come true; you surely deserve it!

❑ Jill Shockman, daughter of Phil and Joan Shockman, graduated from Curry College last week and she is one happy person.. She should be; she worked hard for her degree and really wanted it! Now, on to the real world, Jill. We know you will be a success in whatever you decide to do. Whatever it is, God bless.

❑ Great news; we just couldn't keep it to ourselves. Tom Durkin is engaged to be married to Sue Ellen McDonald from Weymouth. Tom graduated from CHS, Class of 1985 — seems like yesterday. Here's wishing health, love and happiness to a grand couple.

❑ Speaking of great news, Muriel Wheelwright is a very happy/sad lady today. She is free to spend all of the time that she wants to with her husband Frank, but she is no longer working for the Second Congregational Church and current minister Gary Ritts. Muriel worked as a secretary there for more than 28 years, for four ministers, and she was loved by them all and all that know her.

A nice, warm intelligent lady, surely the church will miss her (and, of course, all involved with it). The good news is the Wheelwrights will have a great time together without worrying about Muriel going to work on Monday. Happy retirement, enjoy every moment!

Welcome home greetings to Ericka Ford, daughter of Chris and Karen Ford. Ericka is back from Berkley, just in time to celebrate the holidays with her family. Everyone is so pleased with that news. Let us know what is next on your agenda, Ericka, okay?

❑ Alright, Becky!! Becky McCarthy that is. Becky just graduated from Providence College and we salute her and her great efforts.

Here's to the business world, Becky, may you be a star!

❑ Another retirement accolade; this one goes to Avis Sweeney. After a lot of years working for the airlines, Avis decided to "ground" herself and be a lady of leisure. We wish you success in your retirement, Avis, and wonder what your next venture will be. You know the saying, "You can't keep a good gal down."

❑ Boston is going to see several Cohassetites this Tuesday. That is because Lindsay Laidlaw, daughter of Fred and Karen, will be dancing in the "Nutcracker Suite." Lindsay's grandmother, Shirley Laidlaw, will attend, as well as her aunts, Jean and Laurel. Kelli and Jennifer, Lindsay's cousins, will be there also. One is sure that there will be a standing ovation at the end of the Nutcracker performance. Next year I'd love to go; okay by you, Lindsay?

❑ Here's hoping that Althea Stamp feels much better as she reads this. Althea underwent surgery recently and we (and Santa) hope that she is well and watching the fireplace for shiny black boots followed by red legs to come down the chimney and bring her a lot of happiness and health!

❑ Everyone is excited by the name Clinton...as in president-elect Bill Clinton, right? Wrong!!! Cohasset has its own Clinton, and her name is Bethany, and she is in the sophomore class at CHS, and we'll bet that her name will be splashed all over the newspapers too someday. For now, suffice it to say that she is a local skating star with tons of potential to be a headliner.

Bethany is the New England Regional Junior Champ, Eastern Division...that's out of 300 skaters, folks. And she qualified in the top four on the road to Phoenix, for the national championships. Here's to the Olympics and another "prime time skater." Bethany, we LOVE your style...please keep us informed, there's nothing like a skater in our midst!

❑ Oh my, it's time to end the column for this week. May I please end with a cheerful wish for a happy holiday to all of you! Please know that we wish you a happy and healthy time for all, and may all of your holidays be the brightest ever! Snow? Well, only for Rudolph or skiers, no shovelers. Much love to all.

Jeanne N. Armin

Jeanne Nelson Armin — director, designer, actress, teacher, playwright, writer, artist, photographer, zealous promoter of the arts — died after a long illness Wednesday, Dec. 16. She was 68.

The daughter of the late Ruth Herndon (Flett) and Clarence O. Nelson, Mrs. Armin was born in Framingham, Mass. Oct. 8, 1924. Most of her elementary and high school years were spent in Wellesley. After graduating from Mount Ida College, she went on to study at Boston Conservatory of Music as a theatre major. At graduation she was awarded the Whitney Medal for highest achievements.

She then began a 45-year career that reflected an unflagging passion to achieve high professional standards as she worked in the performing arts.

From 1947 to 1954 she worked as a designer/stage manager (and, sometimes actress) for 11 seasons in professional stock theatre in summer/winter companies in Vermont (Weston Playhouse), Pennsylvania (Erie Playhouse), Rochester, N.Y., and in Massachusetts, as well as production manager for the Roxbury Children's Theatre, Roxbury Neighborhood House.

One of her colleagues at the Erie Playhouse, Dorothea Henderson Forsythe recalls, "Jeanne came to the Erie Playhouse bringing her creative talents as a scene designer, but she expanded her efforts to include all the backstage areas — building props, lighting, stage managing. Wherever she could help, there was Jeanne; whatever her task, she brought to it great creativity, imagination, energy, wit and commitment — plus a delicious sense of humor. As we followed her career in the post-Erie days, we saw her many talents blossom and flourish in her teaching and professional efforts. She was a splendid mentor to many young people who learned from her to bring honesty into creative efforts. Jeanne loved the theatre and it showed!"

This verve and commitment to professional excellence was reflected in post-Erie days in a host of shows/productions in which she served as teacher, director, and/or designer. They included those for Wellesley College, Dana Hall School (19 years), Tufts Magic Circle Theatre, Boston Public Library's Creative Drama Program, Neponset Choral Society, Arlington Street Church, and Ralph Farris Chorale.

Reflecting on Jeanne Armin's impact on students/staff of the Boston Children's Theatre, board member Priscilla Rand recalls that Jeanne "exacted a high standard of herself, her associates and students as she directed and taught in Children's Theatre, Community Theatre, and secondary schools throughout the greater Boston area. At the same time, her zest and hearty good humor always earned a deep respect and lasting affection from her many colleagues and students."

Ralph Farris Jr., one of her students who is now a veteran performer, comments that "she was an incredible influence on my life; she did it all with love." A number of her students went on to enjoy successful careers on the stage, in film, or in television.

Besides directing/designing/teaching in the dramatic arts, Jeanne made use of her energy and talents in other areas, such as: developing scripts, adapting plays from stories/books; designing program covers, arranging publicity for the South Shore Arts Festival; developing programs/presentations for the Arlington Street Church; organizing programs and events for Cohasset's South Shore Arts Festival; working as an extra in the filming of the "Witches of Eastwick;" serving on the board of the Boston Children's Theatre for 20 years; serving as vice president for programs for the New England Theatre Conference and as a member of its College of Fellows.

Mrs. Armin leaves a devoted husband, Donald B. Armin, a beloved sister, Joanne N. Chickering; also five cousins, four nieces, two nephews, four stepchildren, and a godchild.

Memorial services will be held at a date to be determined.

In lieu of flowers, donations would be welcomed to augment a scholarship fund in her name that is being established to promote creative arts through two organizations, the Boston Children's Theatre (93 Mass. Ave., Boston 02115). For information call Pat Gleason or Sarah Buckwell at 424-6634 or the South Shore Arts Center (Cohasset 02050). For information call Lanci Valentine at 383-9548 at the funeral home.

Marie E. Hanlon

Marie Ellen (McHale) Hanlon, 81, of Bonita Springs, Florida, formerly of New Jersey and Cohasset, died Dec. 11 at Cypress Manor Nursing Home, Ft. Myers, Fl., after a long illness.

Mrs. Hanlon graduated from Pleasantville, N.J. High School in 1929 and Jersey City Medical Center School of Nursing in 1933. She completed postgraduate work at the University of Pennsylvania in 1935.

Mrs. Hanlon was active as a Registered Professional Nurse for 50 years.

She started the Medical Department at Brewster Aeronautical in Long Island City in the early years of World War II. She owned and operated a home for babies with birth defects in Boston and Cohasset from 1949 to 1960. She was a nurse at New York Hospital from 1960 to 1973, and later a private duty nurse in Florida after moving there in 1977.

She was born in Philadelphia Nov. 10, 1911, the only child of the late Edwin and Meta F (Ayers) McHale. Mrs. Hanlon leaves two sons and a daughter, William Nylen of Miami, Fred Hanlon of Warwick, N.Y., and Mary Micale of Boston; eight grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

She was a member of the First Baptist Church of Bonita Springs and was active for many years in Eastern Star and the Order of the Amaranth in Massachusetts and New Jersey.

Memorial Services will be held in Bonita Springs, Fl.

Believing

I believe in Santa Claus. I have to.

You see Santa has visited me for as long as I can remember.

Even when I became "too old" to believe, I was lucky.

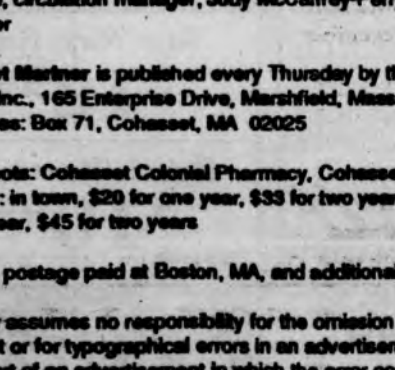
At the older end of a large family, we kept on believing for the younger ones. I was 25 before I had to pretend not to. Then almost before I could think, I had children of my own and I started believing all over again.

Now my kids are too grown up to really believe. But they seem to know the subject just isn't open for discussion.

You see they've never actually said they don't. I don't give them the chance. Because once you stop believing altogether, Santa doesn't come anymore.

And what would Christmas morning be without him, I ask?

I don't want to find out. I've been suspicious of my kids now for a few years because they don't get up at 4 a.m. any longer. In fact, they're not up at five or six either. Last year it was 7:30 a.m. before they rolled out of bed. But that's okay — I'll take that as long as I can keep believing.



Santa comes to my house about midnight. Then he and I climb up the attic stairs and we wrap until our fingers ache and our eyes blur. And then we wrap some more. Then we sneak down and load the stockings. A lot of the stuff doesn't fit in stockings anymore, but we find spaces for it all along the hearth. Then we share a few Christmas cookies and a glass of milk.

I sit back in the big recliner and let the memories come. Memories of being young and believing in this special person who never forgets about you even when you're all grown up. I'm tired but I don't care.

But my kids have that look in their eyes this Christmas — like they want to have a talk, like they want to tell me that there isn't really a Santa Claus.

And if they do, I'll say "no don't tell." Let me believe, let me stay up and feel the magic, just one more year.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

QUESTIONS

	Senator Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth) 722-1646 Room 416B	Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Cohasset) 722-2800 ext.7857 Room 134
THE HOUSE AND SENATE. "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local senators' votes on three roll calls and local representatives' votes on four roll calls from the week of December 14-18.
PAY HIKE VETO (H 6306) — House 85-21, Senate 29-5 overrode Governor Weld's veto of a 13 percent pay raise for 50,000 state workers. Override supporters said workers have not had a hike in four years and are entitled to this reasonable increase. Opponents said the hike is excessive in light of the hundreds of thousands of unemployed citizens in the state. They argued the raise may result in cuts in other programs. (A "Yea" vote is for the hike. A "Nay" vote is against it).	N	N
SCHOOL AID (S 46) — Constitutional Convention approved 95-91 (House approved 83-63, Senate rejected 28-12), a further amendment to an original proposed constitutional amendment eliminating language from the state constitution which prohibits public aid to private and religious institutions. The further amendment still eliminates the language but replaces it with a ban on public aid to private schools. Senate President Bill Bulger (D-South Boston) proposed the original amendment. He claims his amendment will not allow state aid to private schools which he argued is prohibited in other sections of the constitution. Opponents of Bulger's original amendment expressed concern that Bulger's amendment goes too far and will open the door to state aid to private schools. In response, they successfully attached new wording which they said will insure the ban. Bulger and his supporters said the new language is unacceptable. Reconsideration of passage of the further amendment is scheduled for December 21. (A "Yea" vote is for the further amendment banning public aid to private schools. A "Nay" vote is against the further amendment).	N	N
TERM LIMITS (S 48) — Constitutional Convention rejected 128-59 (House rejected 101-46, Senate rejected 27-13) a motion to move the proposed "school aid" amendment to the end of the convention agenda. Supporters said moving this and several other proposals to the end of the calendar will allow consideration of the initiative petition limiting the terms of elected officials. They noted they have the 50 votes required by law to give initial approval to the petition signed by over 72,000 voters, but claimed their efforts are being thwarted by term limit opponents who used their majority vote in May to move the matter to the end of the calendar. Opponents offered no arguments. (A "Yea" vote is for moving "school aid" to the end of the calendar. A "Nay" vote is against moving it).	N	Y
INVESTMENT TAX CREDIT (H 6296) — House 93-48, approved an economic development bill amendment increasing the investment tax credit from one percent to three percent. Amendment supporters said this increase will promote investment and job creation and enhance productivity. They noted Massachusetts has lost 217,000 manufacturing jobs since 1984. Opponents said the increase will result in a $7.6 million loss and argued that these kinds of changes in state, as opposed to federal tax policy, have no substantial impact on whether plants are opened or jobs are created. (A "Yea" vote is for the increase to three percent. A "Nay" vote is against it).		Y

Grapplers score first team-tourney win ever

By David Wolcott
Mariner Staff

The Cohasset wrestling squad pulled off a first recently as they won their first wrestling tournament ever, edging out North Attleboro, 142-140, to win the second annual Cohasset Wrestling Tournament.

The Skippers defeated Holliston, King Philip, Norwell, Tri-County, Scituate, Sharon and Somerset in the popular tourney.

The tournament lead went back and forth between the Skippers and North Attleboro. The meet was decided during the 135-pound finals between Cohasset's Nate Fiore and Dan Potter of North Attleboro.

A victory by Potter would have clinch the team title.

Fiore, though, came through for the Skippers as he worked to an exhausting, 5-4 decision over Potter, to put his team ahead for good.

Ray Jones, who was voted the Best Wrestler of the Tournament, then came along to clinch the first-ever title for the Skippers as he pinned his opponent from Holliston in 23 seconds to take the 152-pound weight class.

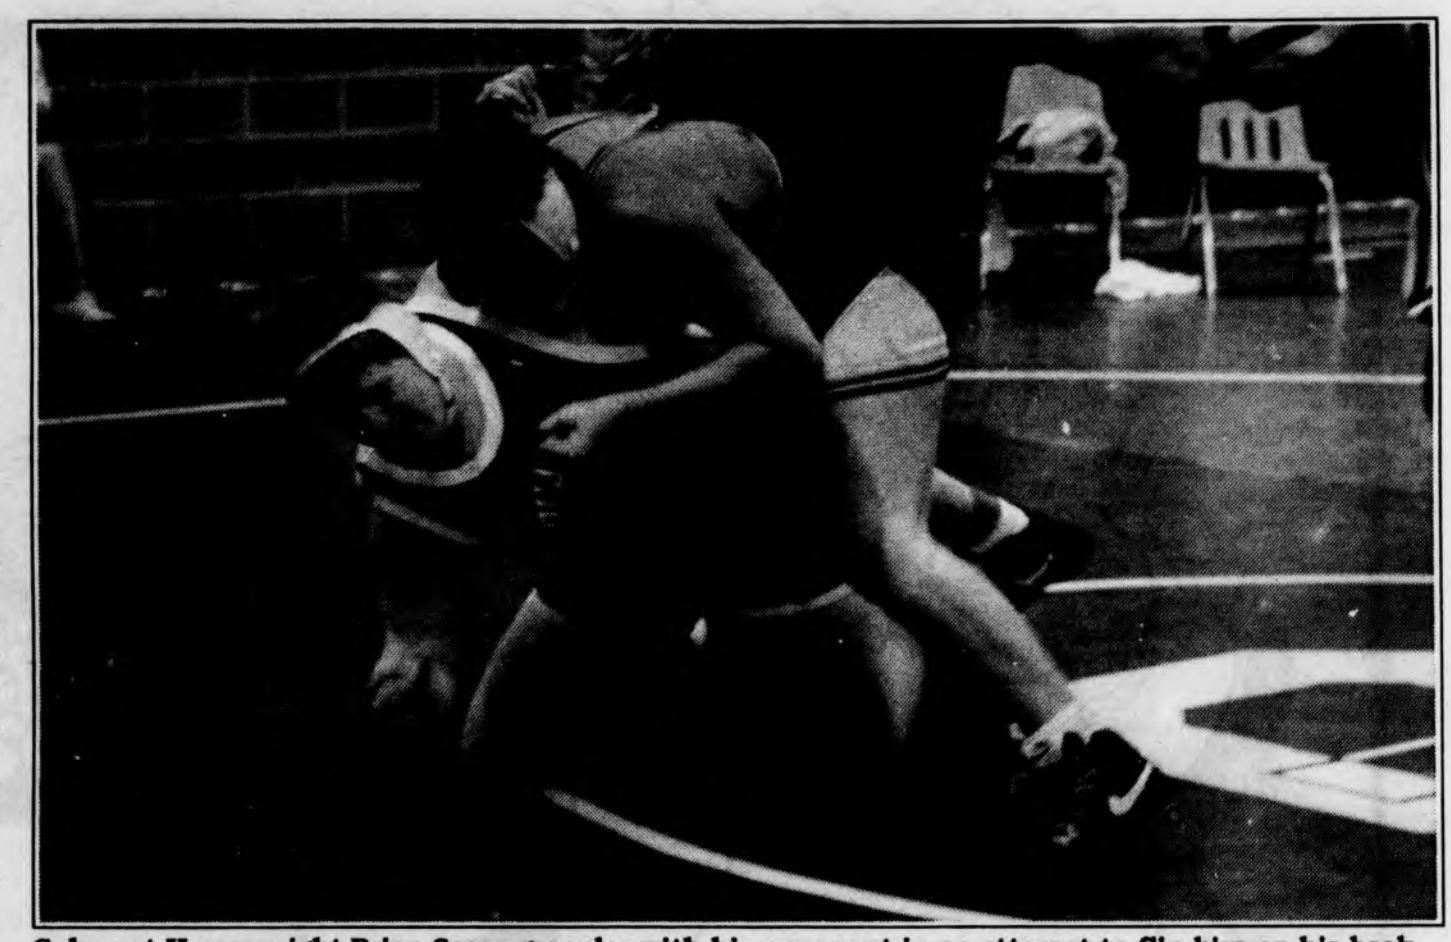
Other first-place winners for Cohasset included Ryan Freeman in the 112-pound weight class and Dan Baird at 160.

Skipper coach Torin Sweeney was ecstatic about the victory.

"A team effort is what got us to the victory," he said. "Everyone helped out on the squad, even the kids who were not going to be wrestling today turned out to help with the organization of the event."

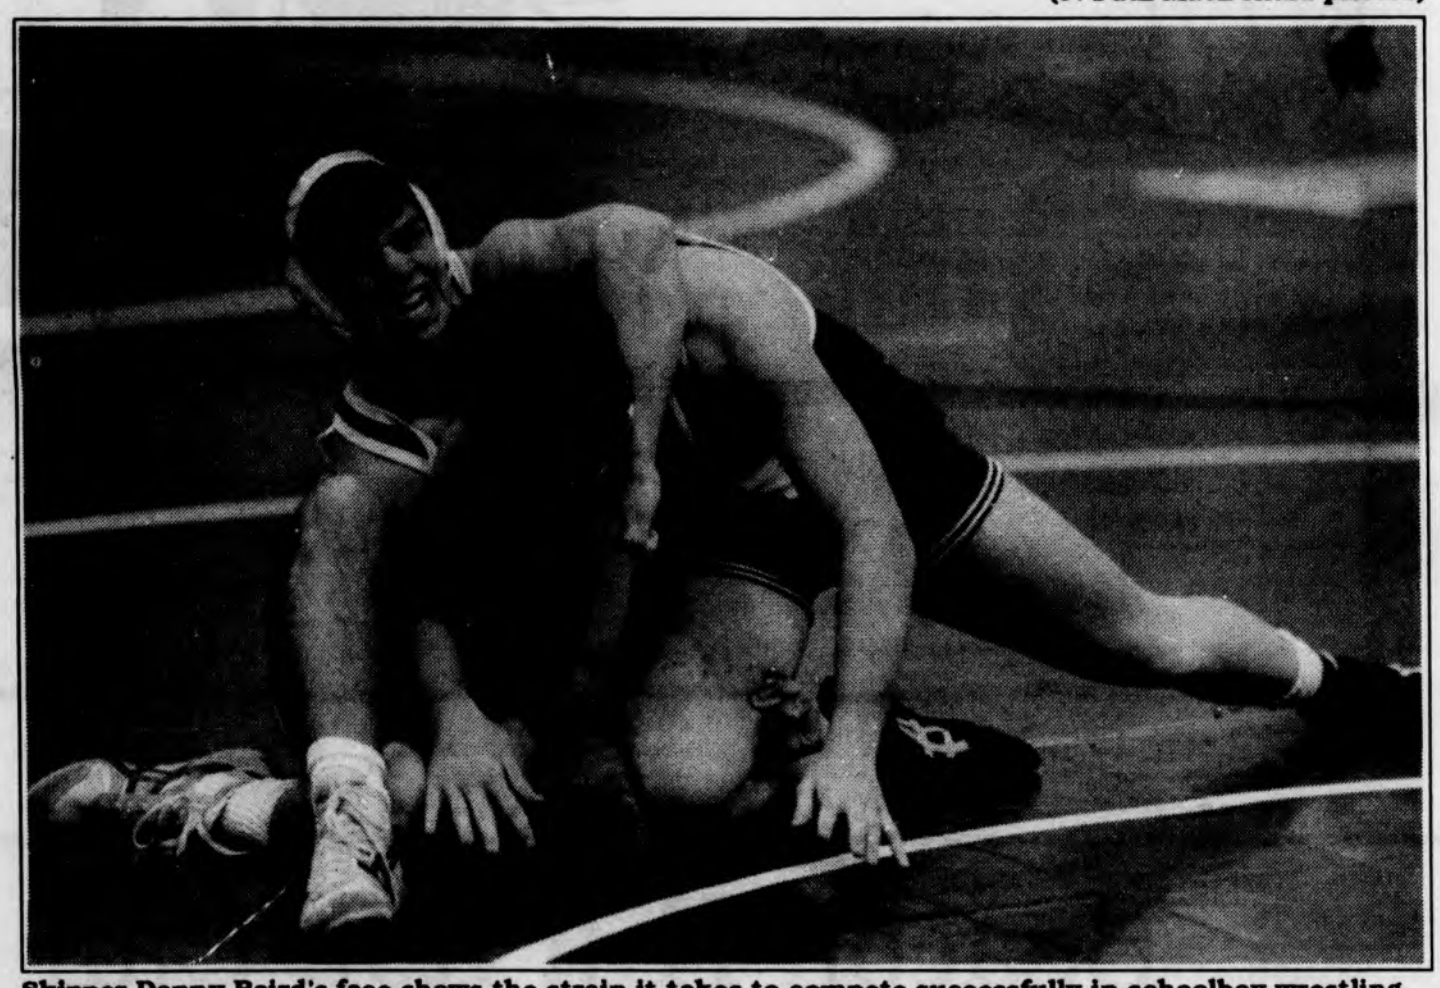
Sweeney reserved special praise for Scott Therieult, who he said "was wrestling in his first year and his second-place finish (171-pounds), was really a great help to the team. It was a great effort by him."

Steve Harrington also finished second, losing, 10-5, to John Ardelino of Scituate. Andy Church picked up a fourth-place finish at 189.



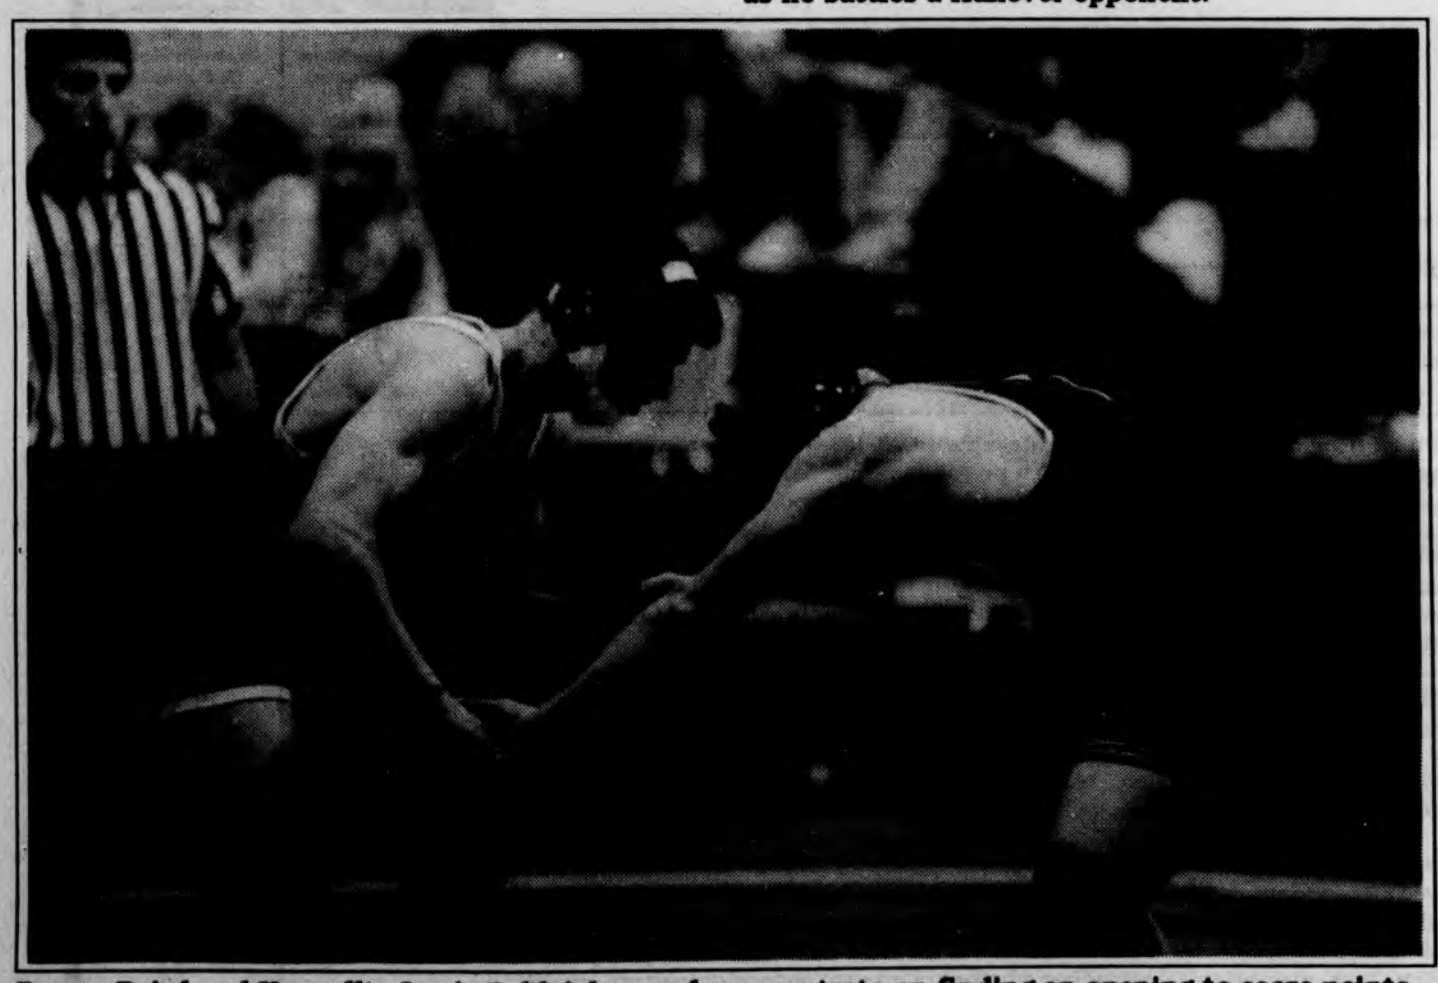
Sasha Ordelhiede picked up a third-place finish for the Skippers in the 130-pound class, despite sustaining a bloody nose and a cut on his bottom lip that required five stitches to close. Ordelhiede was forced to forfeit his second-round match because of the bleeding.

After a quick stitch job, and the advent of a wrestling mask over his face, Sasha was able to continue in the double-elimination tournament after a quick stitch job and the use of a wrestling mask. He went on to defeat Tristin Stoner of Scituate.



"I've got to thank Dr. Golden for the medical help he gave in stitching up Sasha", said Sweeney. "The mask that Sasha used is made for this type of situation, so it didn't hurt his breathing at all."

Others helping out the winning cause for the Skippers included Jeff Thompson, Brian Sasso, Ben Chittick and Robin Ordelhiede.



Sweeney also wanted to thank Cohasset High Vice Principal Jack DiLorenzo, who served as the tournament director.

Cohasset Heavyweight Brian Sasso grapples with his opponent in an attempt to flip him on his back.

Skipper Danny Baird's face shows the strain it takes to compete successfully in schoolboy wrestling as he battles a Hanover opponent.

Danny Baird and Norwell's Jamie Schleicher each concentrate on finding an opening to score points in their match.

Hoopsters win first for Cohasset; girls remain winless

By David Wolcott
Mariner Staff

Both the boys and girls Skipper basketball squads have had to go through some early season rough-waters.

But the boys team recently picked up its first win of the season as it rolled to a 71-47 victory over the Green Wave of Abington.

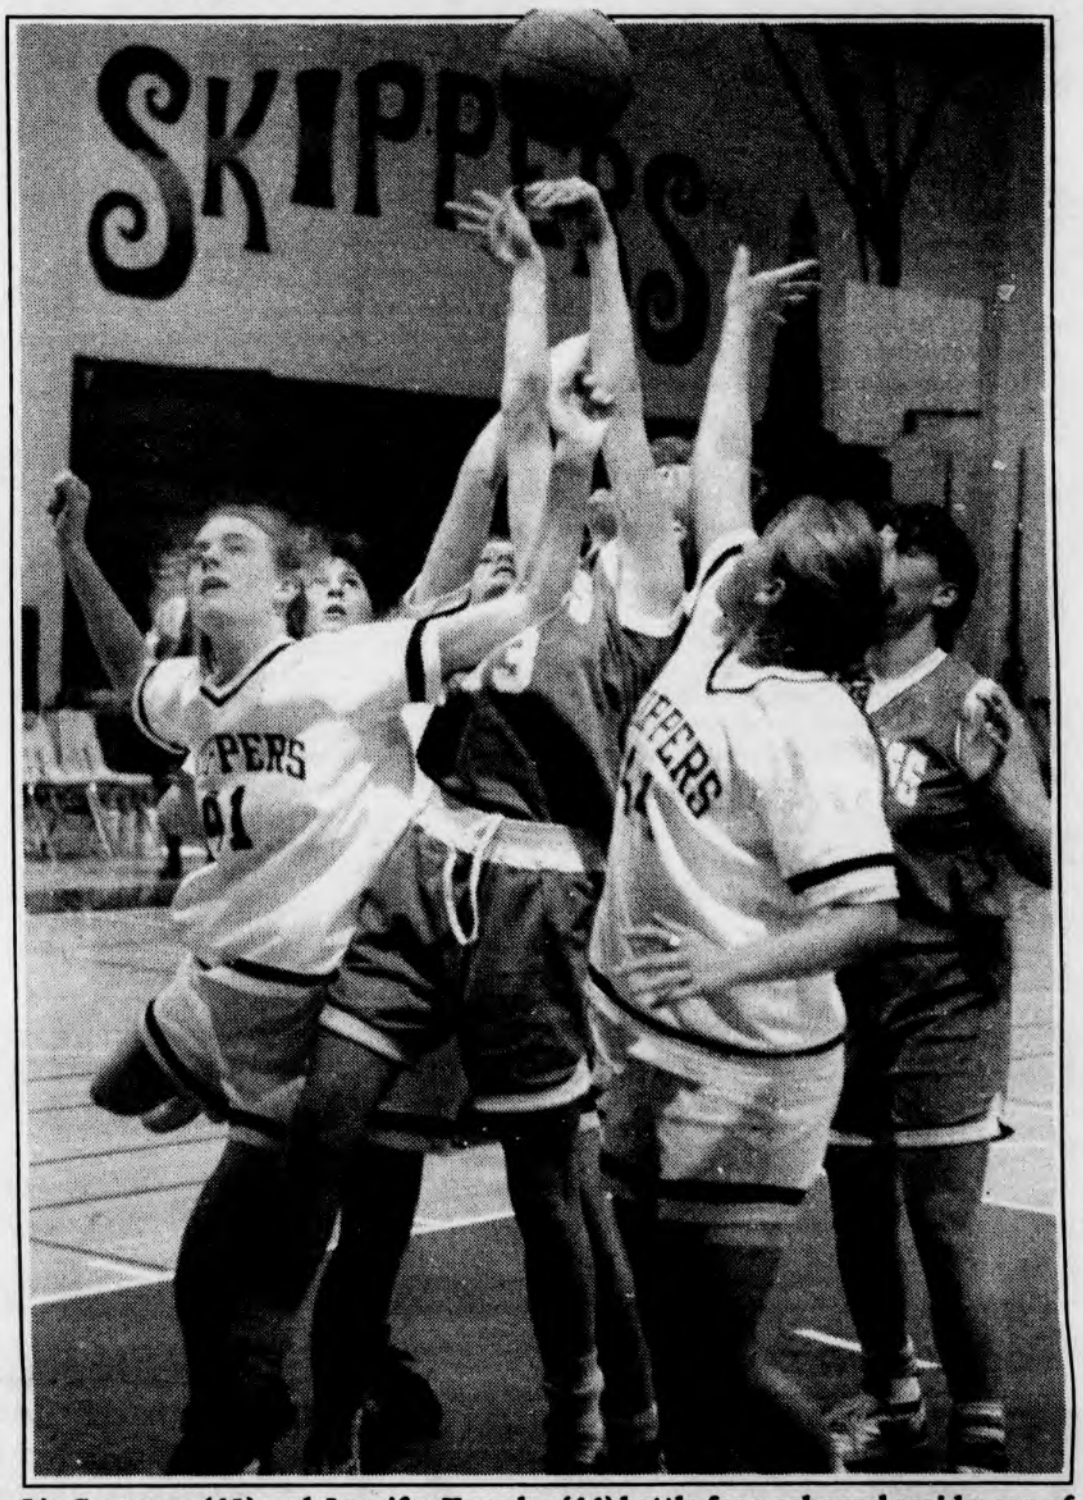
Dorian Bryant led the way for Cohasset in this encounter as he scored 19 points and pulled in 12 rebounds. The Skippers built a first-half lead of 37-23 and never looked back from the 14-point cushion.

Paul Bilodeau continued to be one of the scoring leaders Cohasset as he added 12 points of his own while Chris Goodman chipped in with 10.

The boys squad is now 1-2 with the win over Abington and gave the Skippers a boost after earlier losses to Sacred Heart (64-54) and a heart-breaking, last second 57-54 loss to Norton.

The Lady Skippers have yet to pick up their first win this year and are struggling with an 0-3 record.

The squad recently traveled to Abington to take on the Green Wave, but were not able to match the success of their male counterparts as they were downed, 58-12, by the surging Green Wave.



Cohasset was caught in a freak blizzard inside the gymnasium as Kelly Snow dropped in points from all over the court for Abington. The all-star forward poured in 13 of her game high 19 in the first half.

Cohasset actually led the game 4-2 after two-points apiece from Katie Carroll and Renee Prisble, but Abington countered with a devastating 26-1 run for a 28-5 half-time lead.

The second half featured much of the same for the slipping Skippers as Abington rolled on to an easy 58-12 victory.

Both teams are scheduled to play West Bridgewater, Dec. 28 in a 12:30 p.m., away game.

Cohasset is also entered in the Duxbury Basketball Tournament on Dec. 29 and 30.

Hoop shooting clinic

The Cohasset Recreation Dept. sponsors a basketball shooting clinic, December 28-30 (Mon., Tues., and Wed. of winter vacation) from 9 a.m. to noon at the Sullivan Gymnasium, Cohasset High School for boys and girls in grades four through eight.

The cost is $50. To sign up please call Cohasset Recreation Department 383-6791.

The 1992 Cohasset Basketball Shooting Clinic is a three-day skill clinic designed to help young players learn the correct fundamentals involved in shooting a basketball.

During the nine hour clinic the players receive individual instruction, attend lectures, and compete in shooting competitions.

The clinic is run by the Cohasset High School boys head coach, Ron Ford, and his staff. Coach Ford has coached at the Junior High School, Junior Varsity, and Varsity levels; spends his summers coaching at the Dave Cowens and the Nelson/Sanders Basketball Schools; and coached his Mass AAU 15-and-under boys team to a 1992 National AAU Basketball Tournament appearance. Every player receives a Cohasset Basketball Shooting Clinic t-shirt.

League seeks players

A new 16-team ice hockey league is seeking former college, semi-pro and pro players, ages 21-29. Each squad will have 27, 1—1/2 hour games and there will be a best-of-three playoff series at the end of the season.

Spots are filling up fast. Corporate sponsors and teams are needed. For more information call David at (617) 331-2919.

cohasset worship

Christmas worship at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, 16 Highland Ave., begins with a family service at 5 p.m., Thursday, Dec. 24, Christmas Eve.

At this service the children are invited forward for a Christmas story at sermon time. The Junior and Youth Choirs also sing.

Later that evening, a joyful program of Christmas music begins in the church at 10:30 p.m. The "Midnight" candlelight service takes place at 11 p.m. with a celebration of Holy Eucharist, sermon and anthem. The church's 57 bell carillon adds to the music of the night. A child once called these bells "star bells" as their music mingled with the stars of Christmas night.

Worship on Christmas Day, Friday, Dec. 25, is in the chapel at 10 a.m.

Christmas Eve also marks the lighting of the star on the church tower. This star represents the star of Bethlehem and remains lit through the church school Epiphany pageant Jan. 10 celebrating the coming of the three kings to the Christ Child at Bethlehem.

Following New Year's Eve/ First Night celebrations sponsored by the Cohasset Community Center, there is a celebration of the Eve of Holy Name at St. Stephen's Church at 10:30 p.m., Dec. 31. The name of Jesus calls to mind for Christians the true freedom that is given to all in Christ.

Second Congregational Church

• Christmas Eve: 5 p.m., Candlelight Services, 11 p.m., Candlelight Service with communion.
• Sunday, Dec. 27, 10 a.m., Worship Service, Children in Sanctuary.

The Junior Voices sing during the Unicorn Singers dramatized concert "A Wondrous Nativity" last week at First Parish in Cohasset. Proceeds from this year's event benefitted South Shore Habitat for Humanity's Bates building project. "A Wondrous Nativity" is performed again at 7:30 p.m., Jan. 3 at St. Andrew's Church, Church St., in Hanover. Tickets which are $5 are available at the door and can also be reserved by calling the church office at 826-2062. (Staff photo/J. Paul MacDonald)

JANUARY 1993

Your Utility Rights-DPU regulations provide special protection to ensure that you continue to receive service under certain circumstances. The winter protection applies from Nov. 15 to March 15. If you qualify or if you have a financial hardship, then your gas or electric service cannot be shut off if it directly or indirectly supplies heat to your home. If you and all members of your household are 65 years of age or older, regardless of whether you are experiencing financial problems, your utility service cannot be shut off without the written consent of the D.P.U. However, the company (gas or electric) will ask you to fill out a form to verify the ages of all household members.

SHINE INFORMATION

Q. What is long term care insurance?

A. Long-term care insurance is a relatively new type of insurance available to cover a portion of the cost of care in a nursing home or care at home. At present, no health insurance plan (Medicare or private health insurance secured through an employer) covers long term custodial care. As a result, this type of insurance was developed as an attempt to fill this gap. Paying for long-term care is very expensive and can be catastrophic for most people if an individual is in need of long term care for an extended period of time.

Q. What do I need to know before I consider purchase of this insurance?

A. The Massachusetts Division of Insurance (DOI) has established regulations for all non-group long-term care insurance plans. So, the first thing to ask an agent is if the plan(s) presented to you is a non-group or a group plan. This is very important! You may buy this type of insurance as an individual (not a member of a group), but you may be unknowingly buying into a group trust. These plans are not regulated by the DOI and may not meet the standards established by the regulation. This is important because the plan may not be as comprehensive and because group plans are not regulated. It would be difficult for the DOI to assist you if you have problems with the company in the future.

The purchase of this type of insurance is a big decision. Understand what you are buying before you buy! Ask questions and buy when (and if) you are completely satisfied with the answers. Don't be pressured by a sales representative, especially if you have a birthday coming up. This is often the case. People buy a long-term care insurance plan because their birthday is coming up and often don't know what they're buying.

There are a lot more things you need to know before purchase of this type of insurance.

The SHINE Program will gladly provide you assistance in the area of long-term care insurance. If you have questions, please call a SHINE Counselor at 383-9116 to set up an appointment.

Did you know? Medicare now pays for some routine screenings. In the past, Medicare has not paid for routine, preventive screenings. Medicare would only pay for the diagnosis and treatment of an illness or disease. Medicare will now cover some mammograms and pap smears for women.

Routine mammograms can now be taken every other year as a preventive measure. Remember, they can be taken at any time as a diagnostic tool when medically necessary.

Medicare will also pay for routine Pap smears every three years. But again, remember, they can be taken at any time when medically necessary.

As with other Medicare Part B services, Medicare will pay 80 percent of the approved amount (after the beneficiary has met the Part B $100 yearly deductible).

If you want more information on this or other health insurance matters, call the SHINE Program at the Cohasset Senior Center at 383-9116. A SHINE Counselor is available by appointment or for phone consultation on Monday, 10 a.m. to noon; Tuesday, 10 a.m. to noon; and Thursday, (time to be announced).

The fire protection system and the outside ramp will be completed by Jan. 15. In the meantime, the additional space is being used each day and we feel quite proud of our home we call the Senior Center.

It provides space, some privacy for confidential matters, comfort, accessibility and can offer some services during a disaster period. For all this we say thanks, Cohasset, you're wonderful. You financed it, you supported it through your participation and volunteerism, so don't be bashful about using it. Finally to the Cohasset Community Center, thanks for working so cooperatively with us. To one and all we wish you a HAPPY NEW YEAR.

Please continue to contribute to the Friends of COA, P.O. Box 404, Cohasset, Ma., for the building expansion.

INCLEMENT WEATHER POLICY

If the Cohasset schools are closed due to bad weather, then the Senior Center classes and transportation will be closed. Listen to WJDA. - 1300 on your radio dial.

MAP (5) TRANSPORTATION

As you know, we have a five-town consortium for special needs transportation. If you are disabled or have difficulty getting on the van, please call the office. We will assist in securing a ride for medical appointments. We also have a suggested donation policy based on what you feel able to donate. For more information, call Sue Connolly at 383-9112.

Wishing you the best of everything throughout the New Year are Council on Aging board members: (standing left to right) Joe Buckley, Rose Kierce, Phyllis Grayden, T. Gerard Keating, Sumner Smith, Anna Abbruzzese, Austin Ahearn, and Austin O'Toole. (Seated left to right) Helen Murphy, Betty Grassie, Kathy Bryanton, Margaret Casey, Marguerite Ritterhause. (Not present, Edward Mulvey and Mary Ahearn).

COHASSET SAVINGS BANK claiming to be the holder of a mortgage covering real property situated in Marshfield in said County of Plymouth on Webster Street and numbered 844, given by Prosper Development Co., Inc. to Cohasset Savings Bank dated May 27, 1987 and recorded with Plymouth County Deeds, Book 7736 Page 313, has filed with said court a complaint for authority to foreclose said mortgage in the following manner, to wit: by entry and possession and by the exercise of a power of sale contained in said mortgage.

If you are entitled to the benefits of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940 and amendments thereto and you object to the foreclosure of said mortgage, you or your attorney should file a written appearance and answer in said court at Plymouth on or before January 25, 1993, or you may be forever barred from claiming that such foreclosure made under such authority is invalid under said act.

Witness, Robert L. Steadman, Esquire, Chief Justice of our Superior Court, the twentieth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ninety-two.

art notes

Roman exhibit slated

From Jan. 7 to Feb. 13, the Artist's Son Gallery presents original drawings from The New Yorker magazine by Irena Roman. Since 1990, Roman's black and white graphite drawings have appeared regularly in The New Yorker illustrating the "Goings on About Town" and "Profiles" sections. Her subjects have included film stars, musicians, writers, and sports figures, all portrayed with remarkable sensitivity to character and mood.

Roman creates her small-scale, highly refined compositions using photographs as source material. The atmosphere of each drawing develops out of the personality of its subject: a portrait of Jean Harlow is delicate and almost frothy, while an image of Robert DeNiro (in "Cape Fear") is dark and menacing. Roman's mastery of her medium allows for an impressive range of tones — deep, velvety blacks give way to sparkling light effects. Several drawings convey motion through a subtle use of sequential imagery, adding liveliness and vigor to the mix. Roman's impeccable technique and intuitive approach combine to produce memorable portraits of individuals as diverse as Rudolph Valentino and k. d. lang.

Roman's award-winning illustration has appeared in numerous publications including The Atlantic Monthly, The Boston Globe, and Boston magazine. Her distinctive style has attracted such notable clients as the U.S. Postal Service and New England Telephone. Irena Roman resides in Scituate, and exhibits her work both locally and nationally.

A reception for the artist is Friday, Jan. 8, from 6 to 8 p.m. Gallery hours are Monday-Thursday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Friday and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Pearl Bailey for "Goings on About Town", The New Yorker Magazine, July 2, 1990, is one of the original drawings by Irena Roman in the Jan. 7-Feb. 13 presentation at The Artist's Son Gallery in Jonathan Livingston Square.

Van Morrison for "Goings on About Town," The New Yorker Magazine, Sept. 3, 1990, by Irena Roman will be on display at the Artist's Son Gallery.

Center honors volunteers

Several South Shore residents were recently honored at a volunteer recognition reception at the South Shore Art Center in Cohasset.

During the reception, Virginia Newcombe of Scituate was presented the Rifkin Award for Volunteer of the Year. The award, given annually to the volunteer who epitomizes dedication and service, is named for two exceptional SSAC volunteers Bud and Chris Rifkin of Hingham.

Special honor awards were also given to Lesley Grilli of Cohasset and Susan Nalband and Mary Alice Flynn, both of Scituate. The Art Center staff offered special thanks to Betty Bourne of Scituate, Dudley Burke and Peg Nugent of Hingham, Melanie Meeker Jones of Kingston, Helena Moriarty and Pat Rusconi of Weymouth, Marya Walsh of Hull, and Helen Gallop, Marie Ligotti and Ann Law of Cohasset for their volunteer efforts.

The South Shore Art Center, at 119 Ripley Road in Cohasset, is a non-profit organization serving all South Shore communities with art education programs, exhibitions, lectures, and special events.

For information on volunteering, please call (617)383-9548.

Art show at the Barn

The barn at Bound Brook in Cohasset opens the holiday season with a small art show that continues through Jan. 17.

Selections '92 displayed

Don't miss "Selections '92" at the Artist's Son Gallery in Jonathon Livingston Square now through Dec. 24.

Selections is a survey of contemporary representational painting. This show brings together ten Massachusetts artists including: Donna Green, Clement Micarelli, Joan Lenore Jordan, Irena Roma, Laurie Borden, Sue Dimechele, Nicole Michaud, Leslie Miller, Frederick Lawrence, and Irene Rubin.

Gallery hours are from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Thursday, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Fridays and Saturdays.

For information , please call 383-1841.

First night update

You don't have to drive to Boston to have a first rate night on New Years!

Limited "Celebrate 93" buttons are still on sale.

The Cohasset Community Center New Year's Eve "Celebration 93" is off to a great start with 820 admission buttons sold as of Monday morning, Dec. 21. Some buttons are still available for $10 each. Children under five are free.

The button allows admission to all concerts, entertainment, magic shows, singer Dave Crossland, musical concerts by LaSonnerie, Flute and Organ Duo by Robert Barney and Matthew Doherty, Ken Sherburne, juggler, rock n roll band, D.J. Doug Coupe, dance troupes, jazz music and more!

Food sold separately by non-profit groups include pizza, hot dogs, clam chowder, Greek hors d'oeuvres, hot chocolate and more!

Call or visit the Cohasset Community Center for tickets and info at 383-0088. This kick-off event begins a year of celebrating its 50th anniversary! The Center serves the entire South Shore and has members including people in Cohasset, Scituate, Norwell, Hull and Hingham.

CCD visits shelter

Dec. 1 and 3 members of St. Anthony's seventh and eighth grade CCD classes served dinner to the homeless at the Long Island shelter.

The students who participated in the December visit were:

Seventh graders: Greg Bilton, Adam Donovan, Lauren Dooley, Jane Flaherty, Jenny Figueiredo, Andy Hamilton, Rosemarie Kierce, Matthew Lewis, Andrew Malone, Sarah Proctor, Adrienne Sullivan, and Kelly Tufts.

Eighth graders: Larry Adams, Jarrod Batts, Justin Buckley, Michelle Buckley, Jerry Cogil, Andrea Grew, Jo Hurley, Brian Kilroy, Leah Kisiel, Liz Mahoney, Joey Magner, Cara McKenney, Kelley O'Donnell, and Bob Stansell.

Another visit to the Long Island Shelter is scheduled in February.

Sunday, Dec. 6, the eighth grade CCD class organized a "Shampoo Drive" for the Long Island Shelter, which was a great success. Thanks to all that participated.

Recreation office hours

Due to vacation schedules, the Cohasset Recreation Department office is open only intermittently from Dec. 24 to Jan. 4.

Children/youth programs do not meet through the school vacation period, except for the special vacation program conducted at Deer Hill School, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday, Dec. 28 thru Jan. 1.

You may pre-register by calling the office at 383-6791, or register at the Deer Hill School the day you wish to bring your children to the program.

Most adult programs continue to meet thru the holiday period and individual program instructors will advise you of any program changes.

Registrations for a number of programs begin Jan. 4, including the winter session of after school recreation. Flyers and registration materials for after school recreation will come home via school.

Apply for booths

Cohasset non-profit organizations who are interested in participating in the 1993 South Shore Art Center Art Festival/Cohasset Harborfest may apply for a booth on the Honor Roll Courtyard at a reduced rate. To reserve a space, please contact Bob Martin at 383-0787 no later than January 15.

Ten booth spaces have been reserved on the Courtyard at lower rates than the Common booth spaces. Non-profit food vendors are charged $75 plus the permit fee. All non-profit food vendors must supply a certificate of liability insurance, including products liability ($1 million limit). Non-profit non-food vendors who qualify as 5013C organizations may also apply. Booth spaces on the Common are available at regular rates. Call Charlene, Tuesdays and Fridays, at 383-9548 for rates.

Cohasset takes a look back at 1992

By Mary Ford
Mariner staff

What was that?

If you look quickly you might catch a glimpse of 1992 passing into history.

Although it went by much too fast, the Cohasset Mariner was there to chronicle the events as they occurred.

On the whole Cohasset had a pretty good year. The town folk were in a generous mood and voted to raise their own taxes. Some credit for that should go to the town officials and citizens who successfully relayed their message that the town needed more funds.

And the Northeaster of a few weeks ago wreaked havoc state-wide but barely winked at Cohasset.

We think Cohasseters have lots to look forward to in 1993. Several community projects like the Cohasset Lightkeepers residence and Bates House renovations and construction of the military memorial are underway as well as the beautification of Cohasset village.

But hold on to your hats.

As smooth as things may seem at the moment, when the clock strikes midnight — 1993 begins and it's bound to hold some surprises. Be sure to stay tuned to the Cohasset Mariner for reports.

The following is a quick look back at 1992.

Jan. 9, 1992

Trash volume is up and RTF faces an estimated $66,000 deficit. So increasing fees for new dump stickers is considered by health board. Trash volume shot up from 190 to 290 tons per month since July.

John Nadeau of Stanford, Maine is offered a three-year contract as the town's new fire chief at an annual starting salary of $47,000.

Jan. 16, 1992

Cohasset Heights landfill plans to expand its tonnage capacity and area according to the draft Environmental Impact Report.

Proposed school budget rises slightly by just over 1 percent to $5.68 million.

Jan. 23, 1992

An expert from the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) appeared before members of the South Shore Coalition Jan. 16 with detailed sketches showing the impact of sewage on the beaches of Hull, Cohasset, Scituate, and Marshfield. The expert said the situation will be alleviated when the 9-1/2 mile sewage outfall pipe is completed in 18 months.

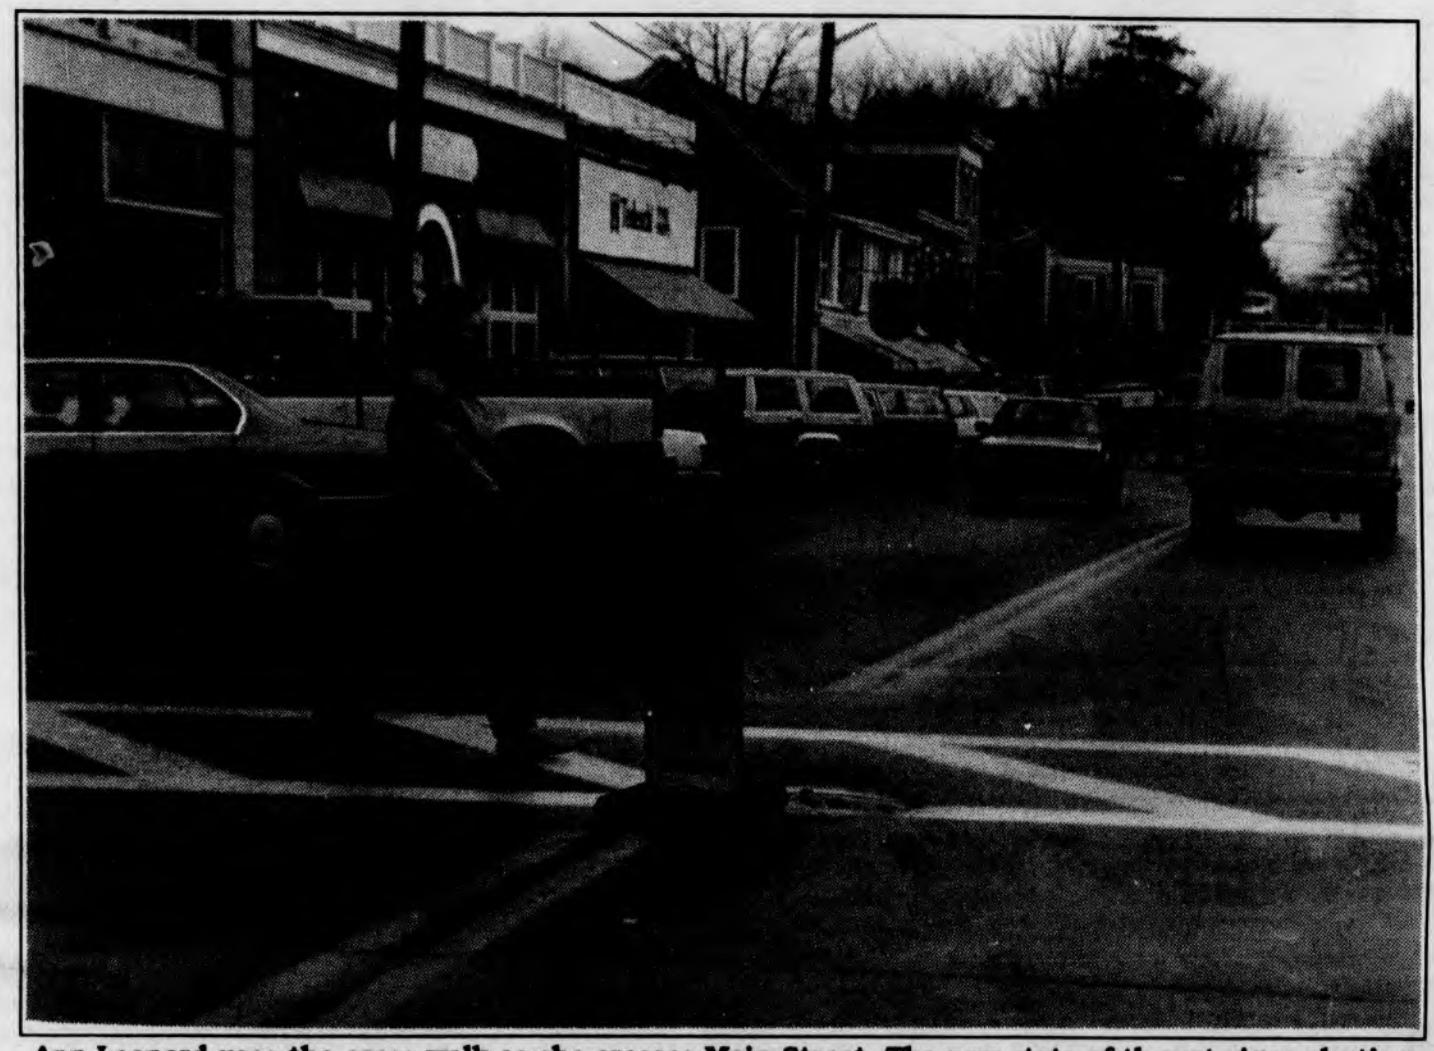
Advanced life support (ALS) service won't be available on the South Shore until May. Goal of ALS is to increase survival rates by improving pre-hospital care. The service will operate from So. Shore Hospital and be available to Cohasset.

Jan. 30, 1992

Using seed money funnelled through the town's drug and alcohol committee from the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs, a new teen center at 9 Depot Court will open this winter. Space on the weekends for the facility has been provided by the Cohasset Community Center. The center will be run by a governing board of 18 teenagers who have volunteered to get the project underway.

Selectmen take the issue of increasing the number of cars allowed at Cohasset Imports under advisement. Owner Peter Capozzoli and his supporters were out in force.

A Scituate police officer and two underage beer drinkers testified before selectmen as the license of Cohasset Liquors was put on the line. There was no decision on the matter. Gregory Cook, 19, of Scituate testified he purchased a case of beer at Cohasset Liquors in the afternoon of Dec. 19. The beer was confiscated within a few hours by Scituate Patrolman W. Michael Stewart.



The committee planing the drug-free weekend — known as Winterfest — has come up with lots of inexpensive (even free) ways to socialize.

Feb. 6, 1992

It will cost about $25K to reconstruct the Ripley Road intersection near the South Shore Art Center. This week selectmen voted to make that item a priority.

The school committee put aside the level-funded budget to look at the high priority items, teachers and administrators would like to add. The developmental budget carries a $69,500 price tag. Items include, a part-time adjustment counselor at the high school, a technical assistant for the junior-senior high, a maintenance assistant, a computer aide for Osgood, renovations for the Osgood computer lab.

(See page 2)

Ann Leonard uses the cross walk as she crosses Main Street. The new state-of-the-art signs alerting traffic to pedestrians went up last week. Cohasset voters appropriated $1,500 at special town meeting this fall to repaint the cross walks and buy the new signs which are more aesthetically pleasing than the barrels used in Hingham.

Staff, political upheaval underline 1992

By Dori Dwyer
Mariner staff

Personnel changes marked 1992.

After 27 years on the Cohasset Police Department, Police Chief Joseph M. Kealey announced his departure from the force.

Kealey, who has served as chief for the past 10 years, completes his last day with the CPD Dec. 31.

Sgts. Brian Noonan, Robert Jackson and Richard Abbadessa are among those being considered to replace him. Three other applicants, from outside Cohasset, are also vying for the job.

Patrolman Carmelo Conte will also be leaving the department. He plans to retire after his last day of work in early January.

Selectmen are seeking a replacement.

Personnel changes also pervaded the fire department.

John Nadeau of Sanford, Maine became fire chief Jan. 27.

Firefighter William A. Sestito left the Cohasset Fire Department to join Scituate's department. Selectmen are seeking his replacement.

Town hall was not immune to personnel changes affecting the public safety departments. Town accountant Mary Gallagher left for a position with Scituate and town clerk Frances Mark retired.

Gallagher was the town accountant since 1987. Selectmen hired Michael Buckley for the town accountant's position several weeks ago.

Mark became the first woman to hold the elective office of town clerk in 1984. Selectmen appointed Marion L. Douglas to be acting town clerk.

Douglas later ran unopposed for the job in the April town elections.

1992 also saw the election of two new faces to the board of selectmen and a disputed nomination procedure to the board of health.

Michael H. Sullivan, formerly of the health board and former Conservation Commission Chairman Merle S. Brown won three-year seats on the selectmen's board, beating out former selectman Diana Kornet and SAFE activist John K. McNabb.

Former Selectmen Chairman Ned Tebbetts did not run for re-election.

Thomas Cook beat out Robert V. Davenport for a seat on the health board, however Davenport became a member of the board after the election through appointment.

He was appointed to fill the term left unexpired by Sullivan when he won the selectmen's race.

Former health board member Sharon Becker and McNabb were also considered for the position.

School committee member Ralph Kidder was re-elected, while Kenneth Wilcox beat out Owen L. O'Malley for the seat vacated by committee member Chris Ford. Ford did not run for re-election.

Former Town Moderator William Weeks also stepped down from the position he had held for the past 12 years. Selectmen appointed George L. Mariette III as interim town moderator. Myrna Putziger was also considered for that position.

In their bid for state office, Cohasset residents won some and lost some.

State Representative Mary Jeanette Murray, a Republican, was unopposed in her re-election bid.

Democrat Gerry Studds won a hotly contested race in

Drug-free weekend declared a success. More than 700 people watched as the Skippers played in fast-paced action against Carver Friday night. Kids played with snow Saturday on the Common. Grownups watched as an artist created a teddy bear using giant slabs of ice and a chain saw. The event included movies, an un-cocktail party, good eating at Unitarian Parish House and more.

Selectmen voted 4-0 to dismiss the complaint against Cohasset Plaza Liquors that the store sold liquor to a minor. Henderson's memo said the board did not find substantial evidence to back the complaint.

Selectmen want better communication on field use. Richard Barrow, recreation commission chairman, and John Worley, recreation director, appeared before selectmen to talk about control of the fields. Selectman Jane O. Goedecke said she wanted to see communication among the groups improve.

Feb. 13, 1992

The school budget for the coming year is $5.7 million without raises for the teachers. School committee voted for a $5.7 million figure Monday, realizing an override would be required to implement the new budget.

After a two-hour presentation which included firefighters modeling old and new protective gear, and a video about house fires, new Fire Chief John Nadeau presented his budget to selectmen which was $160,000 higher than this year's budget.

The town took issue with Cohasset Heights Landfill (CHL) plan to double the size of the private landfill off Route 3A, filing detailed objections with the state office of Environmental Affairs within hours of the deadline. Selectmen, health board, and conservation commission all field objections to the plan.

The Cohasset Lightkeepers Corporation (CLC) is ready to talk about its plan for the duplex at Government Island. CLC president Joseph McElroy said he expects the 10th district for a seat on the U.S. House of Representatives. His victory marks his 11th term in Congress. He won out over Republican challenger Daniel Daly of Hingham and Independent Jon Bryan of Mashpee.

Democrat Chartis Langmaid, however, lost in the primary in her race for the state senate to Brian McDonald of Weymouth.

McDonald eventually won the seat from Republican state Senator Robert Hedlund.

Scandals also rocked the town in '92.

Former South Shore Music Circus general manager Edward R. Kasses resigned amidst charges he sexually assaulted an 18-year-old Cohasset youth.

And, WBCN disc jockey Bradley Jay was suspended from his job for a week after he exploited four Cohasset cheerleaders on his live show "Sex Palace."

Police officer Lisa Matos also missed several weeks of work because of facial injuries she sustained in the line of duty.

Recognition of good works and philanthropy also marked 1992.

Activist Polly Logan was honored at the Massachusetts Women's Political Caucus (MWPC) Fifth Annual Tribute to Abigail Adams at the John Hancock Conference Center. Logan founded the MWPC in 1974.

And Phyllis Leslie donated the money needed to build a 200-foot walkway from the town municipal parking lot to South Main Street.

public discussion will get underway sometime after the Feb. 21 deadline for proposals for the building.

Feb. 20, 1992

Since the first of the year, employees of Cohasset Plaza Liquors have turned more than a dozen minors over the police for prosecution in connection with fake licenses used to try to buy alcohol. The store enacted the new, tougher police after being charged with selling a case of beer to a Scituate minor in December.

Cohasset Selectmen Chairman Ned Tebbetts said Cohasset incurred $150,000 in damage during the surprise Halloween storm. FEMA, a federal agency, came up with damage estimates of $62,000 and will pay 75 percent of that.

Former state senator William Golden wasn't cordially welcomed at the South Shore Coalition meeting last Thursday in Norwell town hall, but he got what he wanted anyway. The coalition put off taking a vote to back the 9-1/2 mile outfall pipe until after a forum can be held with both sides represented.

Feb. 27, 1992

Selectmen gave the new fire chief part of what he said he needed in the budget for the coming fiscal year: part-time clerical help, training money for both call firefighters and the career employees, a shot at a new $90K ambulance with a diesel engine and air brakes, and as much overtime as is being used this year. Nadeau's next hurdle lies with the advisory board.

With the backing of private benefactors who put up their money, the town's 17-person police force will gain new semi-automatics in the spring. So far, more than $12,000 has been raised from 76 local contributors and the 18 needed semi-automatic weapons are now on order.

The teen dept opens Sat. Feb. 29. An open house is planned in a few weeks. Rules for the center were developed by the teen governing board.

The field of the selectmen's race widened last week as Michael Sullivan, health board member, took out papers for the contest. This brings to four the number of candidates for two, three-year seats on the board. Selectman Diana Kornet is running for re-election; Selectmen Chairman Ned Tebbetts is out of the race for health reasons. John McNabb Jr. is officially in the race and so is Merle Brown, chairman of the conservation commission.

The state Attorney General disapproved the "Structure" warrant article which was approved 214-40 by the town at the Oct. 7 Special town meeting. The article would have limited the height of the Cohasset Heights Landfill to 45 ft. and would have required a building permit for any landfill construction.

March 5, 1992

Selectmen voted unanimously to accept the Cohasset Lightkeepers proposal for renovation of the Government Island duplex into a function and meeting facility with two apartments on the second floor.

Campaigns for health board, school committee and selectmen begin in earnest.

March 12, 1992

A lone gunman is still at large after robbing a local bank of more than $3,000 in cash. A clean cut, blue-eyed, white man robbed the Rockland Trust Company in Cushing Plaza, Sgt. Brian Noonan said.

It's back to the drawing board for the proposed expansion of the Cohasset Heights Landfill. About 55 citizens sent comments to the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs. The EOEA rejected the supplemental draft of the environmental impact statement last week.

The 93-member teachers' union ratified a two-year contract last week giving them an average raise of 1-1/2 percent a year.

Now that he has 51 parking spaces, Cohasset Imports owner, Peter Capozzoli says the town won't hear from him again. Selectmen approved Capozzoli's Class II (used car sales) license Monday. The new license increases the number of cars allowed at the site from 20 to 51.

March 19, 1992

Selectmen set Saturday, May 16 for what has become an annual event in Cohasset. Advisers are recommending an override of about $424,000, which would increase the taxes on a $300,000 home by about $139 a year.

A masked man armed with a club tried to rob two Papa Gino's employees at Cushing Plaza early Tuesday morning. Two female employees at the restaurant were making a night deposit at the Rockland Trust in Cushing Plaza, when the man approached the car. The women started screaming and blowing the horn and the suspect fled on foot to the rear of the plaza.

School board members Nancy Sandell and Ralph Kidder were upset at the advisory board for its mandate that the schools absorb $41,000 of the recently negotiated teachers' pay raise. Last year the teachers' union agreed to a two-year contract which provides for no pay raise this year but a three percent pay raise next year. The advisory committee said any negotiated pay raises above two percent must be achieved by reducing the department's existing budget.

March 26, 1992

A proposed amendment to the town's harbor regulations would allow the harbormaster to conditionally reassign those moorings which have been cancelled due to non-payment or non-use pending the outcome of any appeal.

The people of First Parish will come before town meeting to ask for an easement for the purpose of constructing a septic system under the common in order to install a small lavatory in a nook in the church.

The sewer commission is seeking town meeting approval for a rate increase and funds to continue negotiating with the state to expand the town's waste water treatment plant.

It was Hamlet, only better. The Cohasset Drama Workshop gave an outstanding performance of "And Flights of Angels," and adaptation of Shakespeare's Hamlet, March 21 and 22 at Cohasset High School.

April 2, 1992

Whether or not to televise town meeting live became an issue last week when the town moderator considered asking Channel 3 to delay the transmission because he felt live coverage may detract from attendance. The prospect outraged talk show host Wigmore Pierson who has hosted live coverage for 4-1/2 years. Weeks decided the show could go on — live.

Selectmen signed an agreement with South Shore Hospital to add advanced life support service (ALS) to the town's emergency response program.

The Cohasset Dramatic Club opened its 71st season last weekend with a remarkable presentation of "The Women" starring 26 actresses from the area.

The police accepted a salary freeze for FY'92 as part of the four-year contract their union signed with the town. Police will receive a two percent raise in FY'93; 3.5 percent in FY'94; and 3.5 percent in FY'95.

April 9, 1992

The town's water dept. found low levels of lead in the water from a laboratory sink at the high school. Sampling water in all schools will be done as a precaution. Flushing toilets and running taps lowers lead which accumulates and leaches out in pipes with solder fittings when water stands overnight.

A secret ballot on patrolmen's raises and some heated debate about the Council on Aging vs. the Social Service League sparked two sessions of Cohasset's annual town meeting. Officials estimate an override will be needed to balance the $13.3 million town budget passed at town meeting.

April 16, 1992

The school committee discussed measures which might be taken if the May 16 override fails, including the adoption of a fee-based extracurricular program.

The official town election is over, but another might be starting behind the scenes. Michael Sullivan's victory in the selectmen's race leaves a vacancy on the health board. At Monday's selectmen's meeting Sullivan said he and William Baird, who is on the health board, had discussed having Sharon Becker, who did not run for re-election, fill the vacancy.

Selectmen approve placing five override questions on the May 16 ballot but will not divide the $377,416 for operating budgets among town departments citing possible divisiveness.

An anti-incumbent fervor ousted incumbent selectman Diana Kornet. Merle S. Brown and Michael H. Sullivan are elected. Robert V. Davenport loses to Thomas C. Cook for the health board seat. And Kenneth P. Wilcox and Ralph D. Kidder win two seats on the school board defeating Owen L. O'Malley in a three-way race for two seats on the school board.

April 23, 1992

John K. McNabb Jr., is the latest resident to throw his hat into the ring for the vacancy on the health board. Robert V. Davenport also said he will seek the appointment. And former health board member Sharon Becker has already been nominated to fill the spot by Board of Health Chairman William E. Baird and clerk, Thomas C. Cook.

A two-alarm fire broke out early Tuesday morning at the Jonathan Livingston Seagull Plaza destroying Roberts Food Mart and forcing two other businesses to relocate temporarily. The fire, which is under investigation, caused $150,000 in damage.

Although tests for lead contamination yielded good results in that only one bubbler had to be shut off, all schools are running bubblers for five minutes before school as a precaution. The state mandated lead tests under a new federal ruling.

Someone armed with a pellet gun shot holes through windows in at least four businesses in Cohasset Village.

April 30, 1992

Four selectmen sat stone-faced Monday night while Selectman Michael H. Sullivan read a two-page statement slamming a Cohasset Mariner editorial which was critical of Sullivan's nomination of Sharon Becker to fill his vacant seat on the health board. Becker did not run for re-election.

May 7, 1992

In a majority vote between the boards of selectmen and health, Robert V. Davenport was appointed to fill the health board seat vacated by Michael H. Sullivan.

Until problems with the Hingham Historic District are resolved, Cohasset is no closer to realizing restored train service.

May 14, 1992

A 35-40 percent turnout is expected for the five-ballot question May 16 override election.

The dilapidated Doane St. bridge is a wreck. Abutters keep their collective fingers crossed as the trucks vibrate over the bridge's shaky foundation.

The town is owed more than $150,000 in back ambulance bills for 1991 and prior years, Fire Chief John Nadeau told selectmen.

May 21, 1992

Voters said yes to all five ballot questions in Saturday's election and increased their taxes in the process.

The Cohasset Lightkeepers Corp. passed its first major hurdle in March by obtaining a ten-year lease at $1 a year to take over the old Lightkeepers residence from the town. Now the group has the tall order of raising about $196,000 to renovate the 140-year-old structure.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE
Philip Murphy, CRS, GRI

HOME BUYING PSYCHOLOGY

QUESTION: Just how important a factor is overpricing when selling a home?

ANSWER: Buyers buy homes by comparison. The average buyer is no slouch. He'll shop a particular neighborhood and home type. He'll rarely buy the first one he visits. It's too big an investment to be nonchalant. He will then compare prices against comparative value. He'll quickly throw out any obviously overpriced homes.

If the buyer really likes an overpriced home, he may make a counter offer at a lower price – closer to its true value. Historically, the buyer probably will make his offer for one realistically valued... Overpricing will hurt a sale.

As members of the Class of 1992 strive for success after high school - they should stop to smell the roses along the way. That was the message that came through Sunday, as the 70-member Class of 1992 graduated.

In a majority vote selectmen approved the request for proposal (RFP) for the Elm St. structure which is the final step in procedure to sell the Bates House to a non-profit entity.

The town is owed about $150,000 in back ambulance bills, the COA would like to get a group of volunteers together to help with the backlog if the Friends of the COA could take a percentage of the amount collected for the COAs operating budget.

School officials plan to investigate extending the school year to compensate for teacher in-service days.

Eighteen local citizens have formed a task force to develop an educational foundation in town, which would raise money for education. The task force is selling 200 reserved seats at the August 29 Bill Cosby performance at the Music Circus as its kick-off benefit.

The movie "Housesitter" starring Steve Martin and Goldie Hawn, filmed in Cohasset last August, premiers.

Polly Logan hosts the "Show the Flag" brunch, a kick-off fund-raiser, which raised $7,000 for the preservation of the Minot Lightkeepers residence.

June 25, 1992

Three times in the past two weeks, Animal Control Officer William Quigley marked "sick raccoon" down in his ledger. And last week, a fox staggered around the Cohasset Country Club. The cases typify the actions of animals stricken with dystemper.

Selectmen decided to try direct billing for ambulance bills for a year rather than have the fire department send the bills straight to the user's insurance company.

Short of taking elocution lessons to project their voices, town officials hope there's an easier solution to poor town hall auditorium acoustics. In a letter to selectmen, Herbert Towle of Beechwood St. suggested using spinnakers or mainsails close to each wall, to see how much it would overcome the problem.

Safety Officer Clifton B. Jones will award gift certificates for free ice creams to kids spotted wearing bicycle safety helmets while biking or skating on Rollerblades.

July 2, 1992

This week Cohasset residents receive the first of four property tax bills for fiscal year 1993 which began July 1. At the April town meeting, voters approved switching to the quarterly tax billing system, to improve cash flow and save the town from paying interest in short-term borrowing.

The 37th annual Art Festival/Harborfest is a success. But as thousands of people clogged Cohasset to enjoy a day at the South Shore Arts Festival/Harborfest, a dozen calls lit up the dispatcher's switchboard when a surprise thunderstorm hit.

Police warn there will be more arrests if they see a repeat of Monday night's melee in Cohasset center. A fight erupted with 150-200 Cohasset and Hull youths on Main Street. Police arrested two youths are are seeking charges against a third.

July 9, 1992

Nearly 73 percent of all Cohasset students in grades 11 and 12 have been drunk in the past year, according to results of the American Drug and Alcohol survey administered in the schools. Results were presented to the school board.

The town and 55 Cohasset property taxpayers have settled their differences out of court. The affected homeowners will receive $86,000 in property tax relief for FY'90 & FY'91. In exchange, the group agreed not to contest FY'92 valuations.

A Cohasset police officer is still out with facial wounds after being struck in the face by a man who allegedly raped a Cohasset woman. When two Cohasset officers responded to a call for help and arrived at the woman's apartment, the alleged assailant met them at the door and punched Officer Lisa Matos in the face.

Although Harbormaster Irving Gadow isn't expecting anything out of the ordinary during Sail Boston (the tall ships parade), he said Cohasset would pick up any extra search and rescue cases should the Coast Guard boats be tied up.

July 16, 1992

Fecal coliform counts on Cohasset beaches have been low enough to be called "good." Five sites in Cohasset are tested weekly.

With a stroke of the pen by Governor Weld last week, the 11th Congressional District vanished and the 10th Congressional District was reshaped to include the coastal communities from Quincy to Provincetown.

Within three years, Cohasset could be part of a regionalized fire protection district. Selectmen endorsed a grant proposal seeking $50,000 to get the ball rolling.

July 23, 1992

Town planners are unanimous that the town should reexamine where the railroad station will be situated if the Greenbush Line of the Old Colony Railroad becomes a reality. Chairman Al Moore said the town may miss a tremendous opportunity to get a station in the downtown area if it doesn't act now.

Frustrated Cohasset people have taken matters into their own hands and have tried to trap pesky raccoons. Animal Control Officer William Quigley asks that residents call him to be put in touch with professional trappers.

Selectmen took a hard line Monday night and refused to waive town fees for the Cohasset Community Center and Cohasset Housing Authority. Representatives from both non-profit groups appeared before the board to

Is anyone listening?

"Boy, you sure made a mess of things," said the youngster in swaddling clothes, looking up from the book he was reading. It was entitled simply, "1992."

The old man in the white beard was immediately on the defensive.

"I did the best I could with what was given me," he said wearily, leaning on his battered scythe. His time was short and he looked forward to going.

He knew the kid wasn't listening and he remembered another youngster, 366 days ago. He didn't listen either.

"Look here," said the kid. He pointed to an item on the page. "Six or eight million unemployed. Millions more living on the streets."

"There were already that many jobless and homeless when I took over," said the old man.

"But you didn't do anything about it," said the kid. "And you didn't do anything about battered women and crime in the streets, either. Look here, you even invented a new one. Carjacking."

The old man started to say something but changed his mind. He saw that the kid wasn't listening. The youngster's finger moved down the page a few lines.

"And here," he said. "U. S. Marines in Africa. In Africa, for God's sake."

Yeah, the old man thought. Africa. Somalia was indeed in Africa. He never even knew there was such a place 366 days ago.

"They're on a mission of mercy," he said weakly. "They're only there to see that starving people get fed."

"Hah," sneered the kid. His finger continued to move across the page and settled on another item.

"And these terrible storms," he said. "Hurricane devastates Homestead, Florida. Homes destroyed in Hull and Scituate. Arthur and Pat's under water in Brant Rock."

"There wasn't much I could do about that," said the old man unhappily. "Something like that happens every year."

"And look at this," said the kid, holding up the book accusingly. "The Red Sox in last place. How do you explain that?"

"What could I do," shrugged the old man. "They haven't won a World Series in 64 years."

"And you let Larry Bird retire," said the kid. "I'm not even going to mention the Patriots."

"Hey," said the old man, "I got BC into a New Year's Day bowl game, didn't I? I suppose you're going to do better."

"Of course," said the kid. "I've got this new guy coming in. Bill Clinton. The first thing he's going to do is put everyone back to work. Then he's going to straighten out the health care mess. And then he's going to bring the troops back from Africa and bring peace to Bosnia Herzegovina and settle the Middle East crisis . . ."

The phrase "Middle East crisis" struck a nerve in the old man. His thoughts strayed back 366 days when another youngster in swaddling clothes was confronted with those very words. And unemployment and health care, too.

"I suppose you're going to give the Red Sox a pennant, too," said the old man sarcastically. "And you'll bring the Patriots back from the grave, eh?"

"I sure am," said the kid enthusiastically. "Wait'll you see the deal Lou Gorman pulls. I can't talk about it right now, of course. And the Patriots have the No. 1 draft choice in the whole country, don't they. Wait'll you see . . ."

This time it was the old man who wasn't listening.

Bates selection committee named

South Shore Habitat for Humanity has announced the organization of a Family Selection Committee for the two units of affordable housing now being developed in the Bates Building on Elm Street, Cohasset, and is canvassing Cohasset residents, former residents and town employees urging that interested persons submit applications before the new deadline of Jan. 15.

The committee, which is made up of both local residents and persons who have served on similar committees in other towns, will screen the applications and make recommendations to the Habitat board of directors who will make the final determination.

Named to head the selection committee is Marianne Conlon of South Weymouth who served on the committee which advised on the selection of the family for a new house built by Habitat in Weymouth. Others with prior experience in the process are Susan Gardner and Marilyn Kelleher of Weymouth and Jamin Guarino of Hingham.

Cohasset residents on the committee are Margaret Charles, Osborne Ingram, Fred Koed, John Seavey and Marjorie Steele.

"We are distributing flyers and contacting many town organizations in an effort to make sure that people know of this opportunity for affordable housing locally," Ms. Conlon says. "Since it became known that no qualified local residents had made application, we have had a number of calls and hope that we will have a representative group of qualified applicants from which to make a selection."

Under the terms of an agreement with selectmen when the Bates Building was sold to Habitat for $1, the units were to go only to Cohasset residents, former Cohasset residents who had lived in Cohasset for five years, or to town employees.

Cohasset residents are being urged to call any of the members of the selection committee to suggest names of families who might qualify. Income guidelines based on annual gross pay are $15,000 to $24,000 for a family of three; $15,000 to $25,000 for a family of four; $15,000 to $27,000 for a family of five; and $15,000 to $28,000 for a family of six.

Extenuating circumstances will be considered in applying these guidelines. One of the conditions is that the successful families work on the project or other Habitat projects so that the process can continue. Since the first floor of the Cohasset project will be handicapped accessible, a special effort will be made to locate a family needing this type of dwelling.

Application deadline Jan. 15 for Bates House letter

To the Editor:

The Family Selection Committee for the two units of affordable housing that South Shore Habitat for Humanity is developing in Cohasset is pleased to report that there have been a number of inquiries about the process of application since it was reported that no qualified families had applied...but we are still anxious to make sure that all who might be eligible are aware of this wonderful opportunity before the current deadline of Jan. 15.

In addition to present Cohasset residents we are particularly interested in searching out former residents of Cohasset who might qualify: young people, for example, who grew up in town but who could not afford housing here after they married.

Under the terms of our agreement with selectmen, the units should go to Cohasset residents of at least one year, or to former Cohasset residents who lived here at least five years, or to town employees with at least one year employment.

Anyone who thinks they might qualify, or has knowledge of someone who might, is urged to get in touch promptly with South Shore Habitat for Humanity, P.O. Box 107, Norwell, 02061, (617) 659-1440, or the chairman of the selection committee, Marianne Conlon, (617) 331-6856, or any member of the selection committee.

Very truly yours,
Osborne F. Ingram

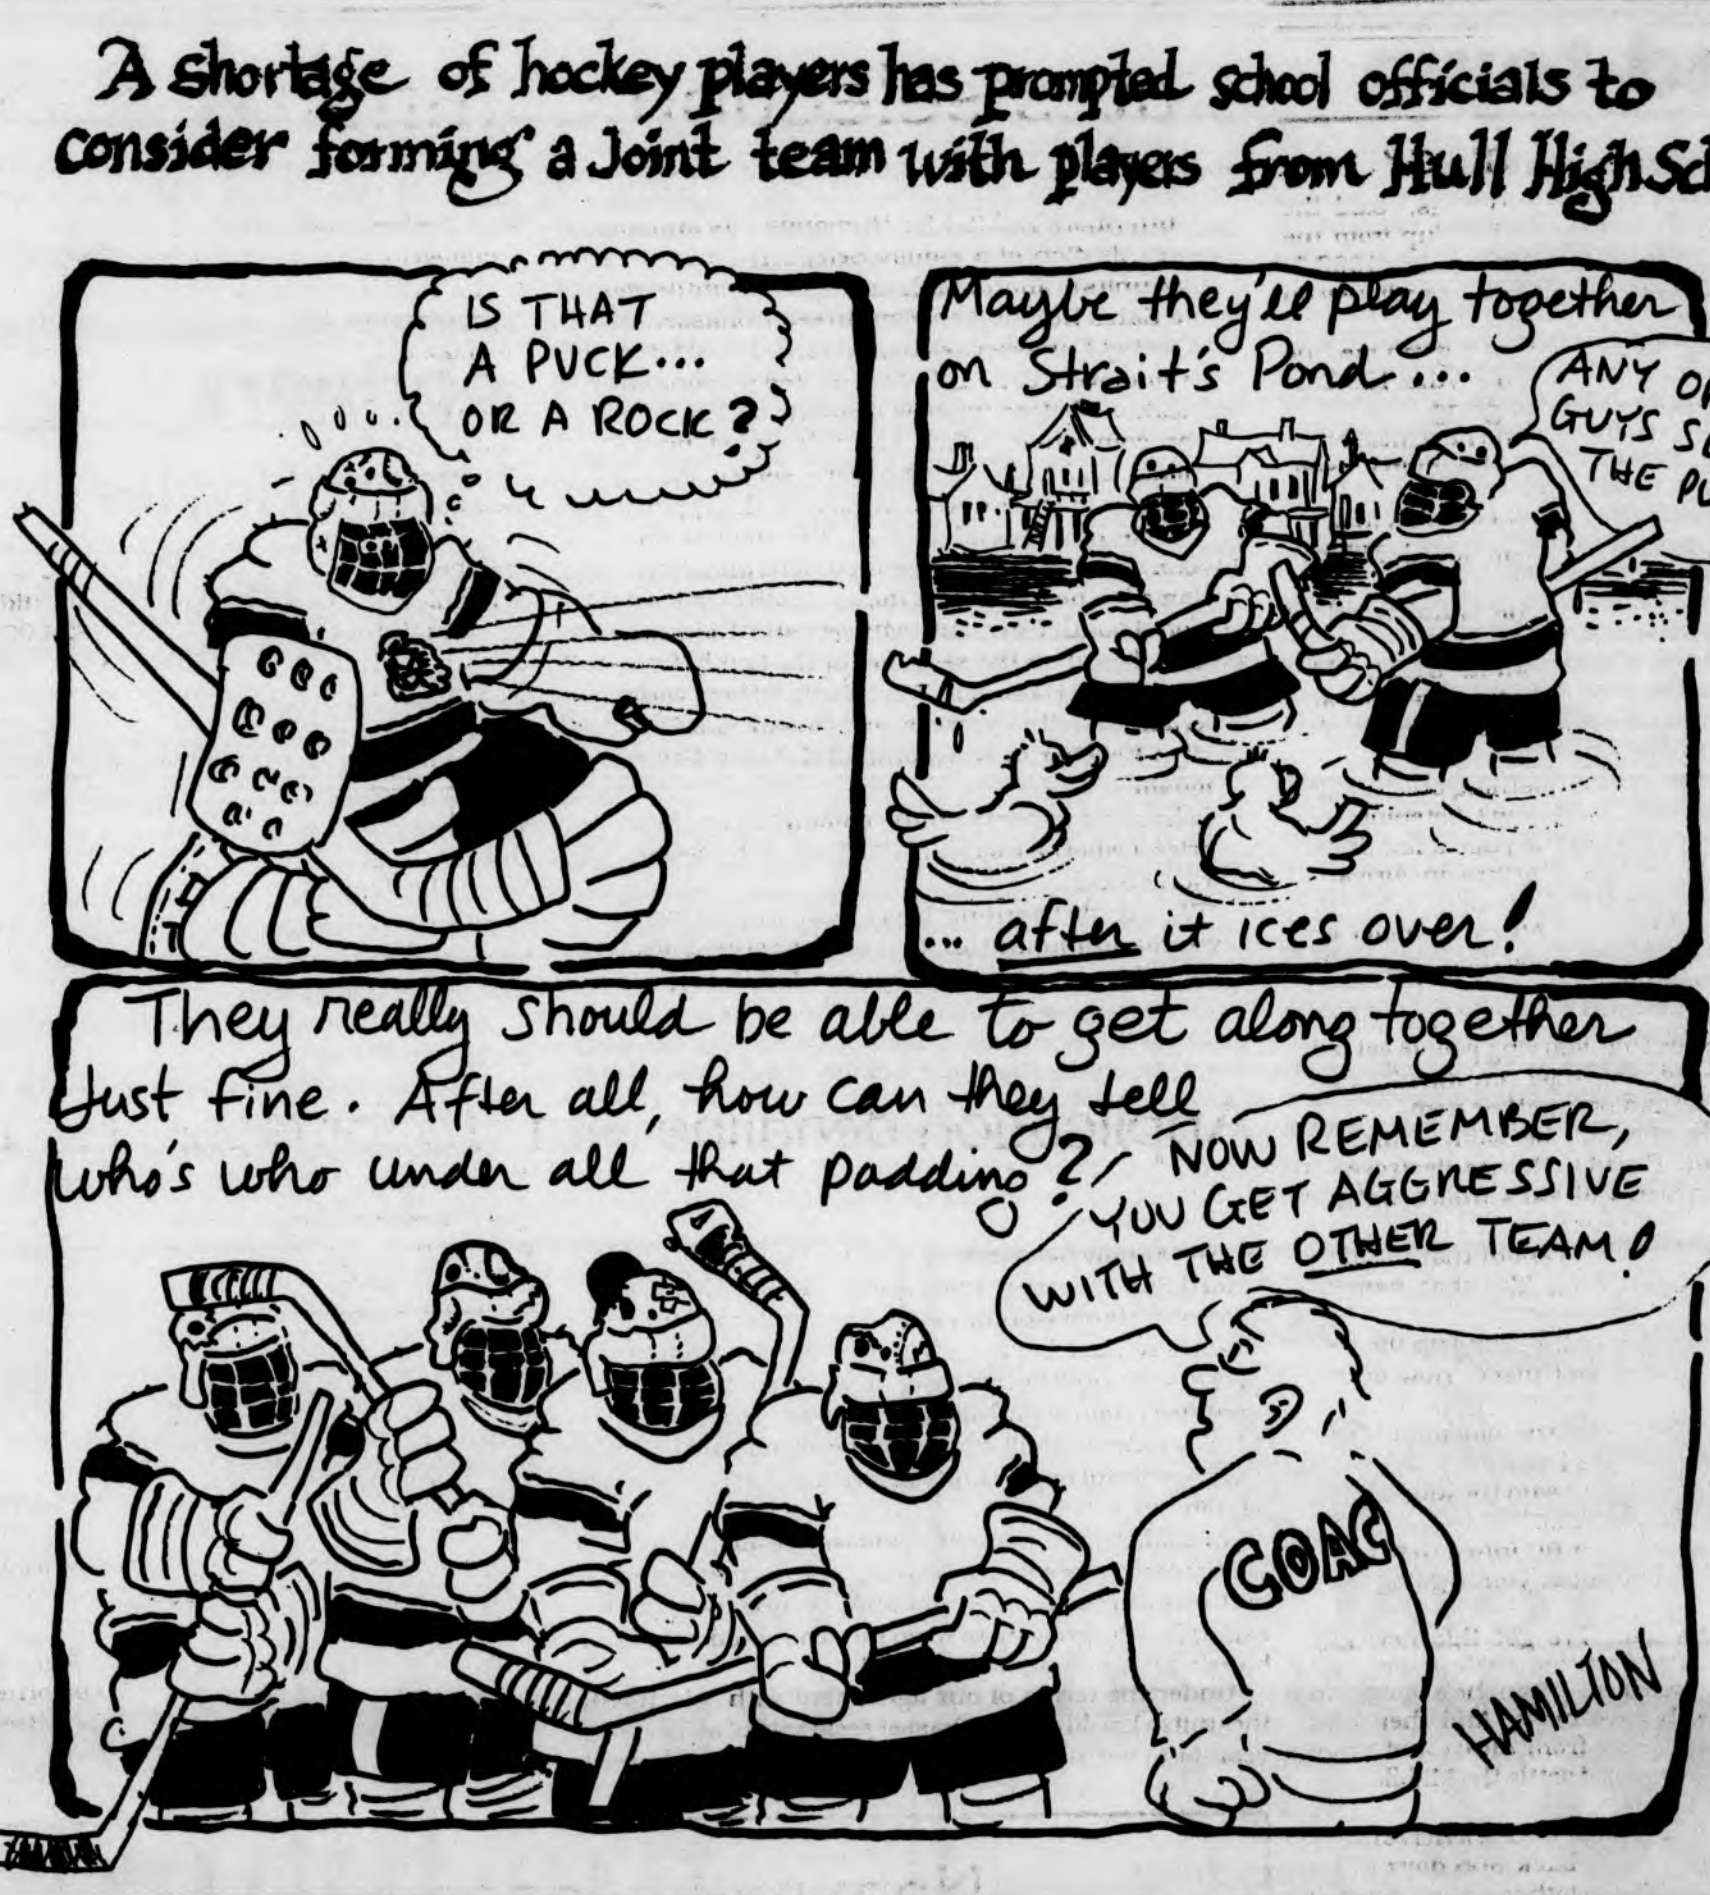
Winter Dance

My garden in the winter-time
Is spread with sparkling snow.
It makes a lovely dance floor
For birds who come and go.

The junkos seem to love it best;
They have a lively step
A-one and two, then jump back three
With rhythm full of pep!

The wind plays all their music.
The sun spotlights the floor
It's sort of like a supper-dance,
They dine and swing some more.

The starlings do the one-leg-hop.
Grosbeaks are more refined.
I saw the sparrows waltz this noon
A beat or two behind.



Sometimes they hold a Square Dance
That everybody loves!
The bluejays do the calling
Along with morning-doves.

The squirrels sit on the sidelines;
I think they'd rather chat
And stuff themselves with Hors D'oeuvres,
While growing round and fat.

The gowns are very stylish,
From blue to gray, and red —
Some must have come from Paris!
(I overheard it said....)

I love my garden Ballroom
From winter through to Spring -
It holds a special kind of joy
That only birds can bring.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

QUESTIONS

	Senator Robert Hedlund (R-Weymouth) 722-1646 Room 416B	Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray (R-Cohasset) 722-2800 ext.7957 Room 134
THE HOUSE AND SENATE. "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local senators' votes on three roll calls and local representatives' votes on four roll calls from the week of December 21-25. SCHOOL AID (S 48) — Constitutional Convention approved 103-80 (Senate approved 30-8, House approved 73-72) a proposed constitutional amendment eliminating language from the state constitution which prohibits public aid to private and religious institutions. The amendment inserts wording from the federal constitution prohibiting the legislature from making laws "respecting an establishment of religion." Amendment supporters said it is time to erase the offensive language which was placed in the constitution in 1855 by the anti-Catholic Know-Nothing Party. They said the amendment will not allow state aid to private schools which is prohibited by other sections of the constitution. Opponents said the amendment violates the separation of church and state and will lead to state aid to private schools at the expense of public schools. They argued the offensive language was eliminated years ago. The proposal has received the 101 votes required for initial approval and now needs approval by the 1993-1994 legislature in order to go on the 1994 ballot for voter consideration. (A "Yea" vote is for striking the language prohibiting the aid. A "Nay" vote is for keeping the language prohibiting the aid).	Y	Y
AMENDED SCHOOL AID (S 48) — Constitutional Convention rejected 93-88 (House approved 78-65, Senate rejected 28-10) a further amendment to the proposed constitutional amendment eliminating language from the state constitution which prohibits public aid to private and religious institutions. The further amendment still eliminates the language but replaces it with a ban on public aid to private schools. This same further amendment was approved just a few days ago, but after intense lobbying, the convention defeated it. Amendment supporters said this will simply insure that the ban continues and that precious public school resources are not used for private schools. Opponents said the language of the further amendment is unacceptable and is still discriminatory and anti-Catholic. (A "Yea" vote is for the further amendment banning public aid to private schools. A "Nay" vote is against the further amendment).	N	N
COURT REFORM (H 6232) — Senate 30-4, gave near final approval to its own version of a bill overhauling the state's court system. Provisions include state takeover of county courthouses; creation of a statewide juvenile court; and early retirement incentives for some judicial employees. Supporters said this major reform bill is a long overdue and fiscally responsible one which gives the court system the power to run its own operations. Opponents objected to many sections including the state takeover of county courthouses. The House has already approved a different version of the bill, and a conference committee will likely be appointed to draft a compromise version. (A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it).	Y
ADOPTION (H 6304) — House 84-45, gave final approval to a bill changing the present two court process into a single one for freeing abused and neglected children for adoption. The measure also clarifies specific guidelines for freeing up these children for adoption and requires action and final determination of cases within 18 months after a case is first filed. Supporters said this bill will speed up the adoption process for abused children who currently are shuffled around to different temporary placements for an average of five years. They argued the measure will help these kids and also save the state millions of dollars. Opponents urged members to put the bill on hold until the governor's Blue Ribbon Foster Care Commission issues its report. Some said the bill goes too far and makes it too easy for the state to take children away from their biological parents. The Senate later gave the bill final approval on a voice vote and the measure is now on Governor Weld's desk. (A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it).		N
ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT (H 6298) — House 137-1, gave near final approval and sent to the Senate an economic development package which includes an increase in the investment tax credit from one percent to three percent. The measure also includes tax incentives for companies which locate in distressed communities and $10 million in business loan funds. Supporters said this is an important step in reviving the economy, stimulating business growth and creating jobs. Opponents offered no arguments. (A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it).		Y

❑ Hey folks, the "Lady Skippers Shine"...the varsity gymnastics team picked up its third win of the season Dec. 17 at Norwell High School. Ruthann Sargent, in her seventh season with the Skippers, is thrilled with their performances! Cohasset swept three events to their victory with a score of 110.10 to Norwell's 91.15. We can thank Megan Pratt for that; she placed first on bars, second on beam, third on vaulting and first in floor exercise. Teammate Julie Smith placed second on bars and second on floor. Jodi Colwill placed second on the horse, Tafana Fiore placed first on the beam. Carolyn Nicole Haefner placed third on bars.

Captain Tara Gallagher and teammate Erica Hettstrom are still out on injury but are hopeful to return to competition after the holidays.

The good news is that there were good performances from Captain Aimee Mitchell and teammates Kristen Reynolds, Kara Protulis, Maggie Goedecke and Alison Kinchla to round up the win.

All of these Cohasset gals will be performing at CHS against Carver Jan. 3. BE THERE!

❑ What a wonderful bridal shower held for Laura Pompeo (and husband-to-be Jeff Ritz) by her bridesmaids. They are, as reported earlier, living in Germany, and love it! Laura and Jeff did manage to make it home in time for Holly's birthday (Holly is Laura's baby sister). It was a "Jack 'n' Jill," so everyone was in on the fun! Christmas is a wonderful time of year, and to be a "blushing bride"... oh, what could be nicer...anyway, next time you read about Laura, she will be Mrs. Jeffrey Ritz!

❑ And, let us tell you who can fill everyone in on marriage, the real pros! John and Libby Dean celebrated their 50th Anniversary Dec. 26...their daughter, Emily McBride, came on from Maryland for the big event (That IS BIG) We applaud you two, wish you 50 more, and wonder if you would be willing to share your secrets...that is truly a milestone!

❑ Robert V. Davenport was recently named Defensive Most Valuable Player for the Ripon College Red this fall. The 6-2, 210-pound linebacker was also named to the Second Team of the Midwest Collegiate Athletic Conference for the second year in a row. Robert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davenport, and is a history major completing his senior year. The defensive captain was the second leading tackler for the Red with 78 tackles. He also had three sacks and two interceptions.

"Rob is a natural born leader," said Defensive Coordinator Joe DeGeorge. "He has an amazing capacity to get others to follow his lead and he had an extremely positive influence on our team. Rob is a good player and terrific person; we will miss him next year." Rob is a 1988 graduate of Thayer Academy and a Shriners All Star...hmm, maybe he would be a good prospect for the New England Patriots. They will certainly be looking for the best next year...we'll watch for you!

❑ We have another boo-boo to file in the oops department! We are very sorry that we left Teddy Noon's name off the Derby Honors List. After all that hard work, he certainly deserves to be recognized!

Congratulations, Teddy, and be sure to keep up the good work.

❑ Christmas certainly is a busy time...take for example the Shockman family...Carl just came home from Mexico to enjoy the holidays and Mom's home cookin'....Jill just graduated from Curry College (majored in communications, minored in psychology), Susan and Michael are going to celebrate their first year in their new home...Phil is as busy as ever, Joan is at the helm at Dazzle!

School & recreation part of sports in '92

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Records were broken, traditions continued and individual athletes shined as 1992 provided an array of athletic accomplishments in Cohasset at all age levels in a wide spectrum of sports.

Much of the athletic highlights came from the town's schoolboy players at Cohasset High School.

Ray Jones proved to be the high school's top all-around athlete as he excelled in football, wrestling and track for the Skippers.

Jones proved himself a versatile trackster; winning the state championship in the triple jump in June at Bridgewater State College and was named to the Boston Globe All-Scholastic team. Along with wrestling teammate Nate Fiore, he beat the Vermont State Champion at the New England Championships in March. Jones was also selected as the football team's most outstanding player.

The wrestling team made history just before Christmas break as the Skippers won their first tournament ever in the Cohasset Invitational.

Fiore, who finished sixth in the New Englands last year, is off to an undefeated start so far, after winning 33 matches during the '91-92 season.

The boys' varsity basketball team played its most exciting game of the season during an over-time loss to Carver, 78-74. The Skippers trailed by as many as 16 points at one point before clawing their way back. Sheldon Morgan hit a jump shot with four seconds to go in regulation, capping a 24-10 run and sending the contest into an over-time period.

Cohasset eventually loss the game but the defeat did nothing to take away the Skippers' performance with three key players out of the line-up.

Promising gymnast Kara Protulis was forced to the sidelines after severely tearing ligaments in her ankle while dismounting the balance beam.

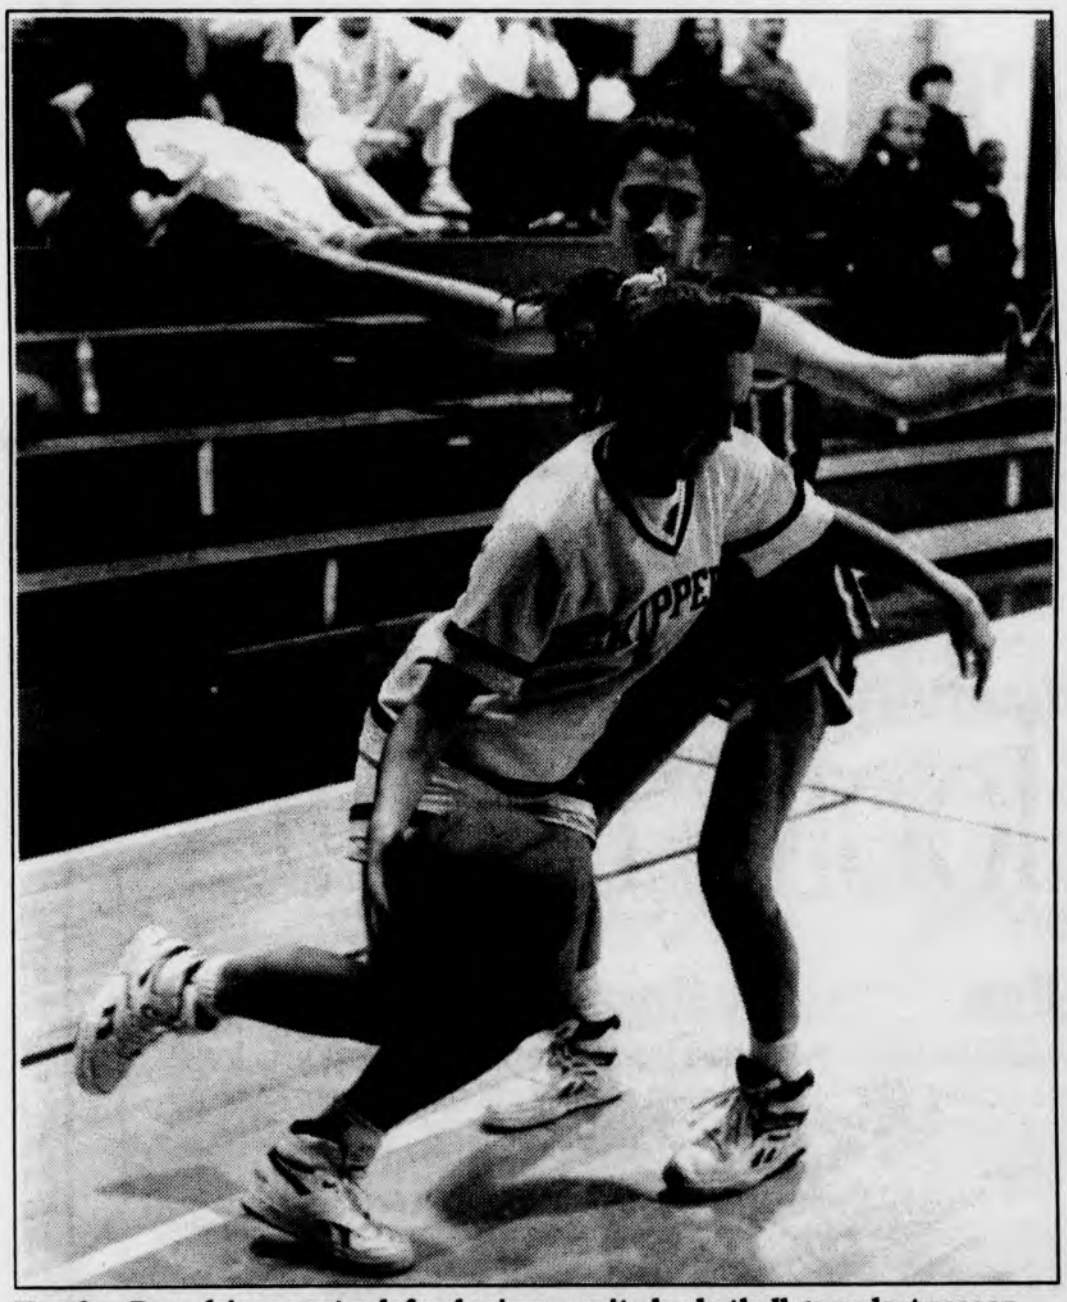
The girls' gymnastics team, however, had better luck than its fallen member as the squad won its first South Shore League meet of the season in January with a 103.95—93.3 win over Hanover. The squad improved its overall score in the next two meets as well.

The team reached a high score of 111.9 in a loss to Notre Dame.

Dorian Bryant led the way with 11 points as the varsity basketball team won its first-round game of the South Sectional tourney with a 44-38 win over Southeastern.

The girls' soccer team won its preliminary game of the tourney, downing Bishop Connolly 3-0, but came up short against Holliston in the quarter-finals with a 3-0. The Skippers were playing one cylinder short as the squad lost its' top scorer, all-star Erin Murphy, with a broken collar bone.

On the boys' side, Cohasset was eliminated by Abington, 3-1, in the opening round to end its season at 14-3-1.



Both teams were well represented on the SSL All-Star team as Doug Ellinger, Mike Connors, Chris Condrat, Erin Murphy, Katie Carroll, Allison Ludlow and Kathy O'Brien were all selected to the squad by the league's coaches.

Doug Ellinger and Morgan were named the basketball team's Most Valuable Players and Heather Bass was honored on the girls' side.

The field hockey team got off to its best start in history, starting the fall season at 3-0 with SSL wins over Norwell and East Bridgewater.

Football returned to CHS on a

Fiore eyes an elite season

By Joe Reardon
Mariner staff

Not even visions of sugar plums dancing in his head was enough to keep Cohasset wrestler Nate Fiore from missing a workout on the most anticipated holiday of the year.

The visions that were going through his mind were of wrestlers from opposing teams, in their homes, out of the cold, rationalizing the decision to take a day off from training.

Fiore doesn't like to rationalize. He doesn't have time for it. There's training to be done.

The captain of the Skippers' grappling squad for the past two seasons, and Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic last winter, the 135-pounder was out in the chill, Dec. 25., running his daily four-miler around the streets of his neighborhood.

Fiore never entertained the idea of taking a day off on Christmas.

"Everything you do out there on the mats is through your own ability," he said. "You can't ride on someone else's glory. You have to rely on yourself."

Fiore is far from riding the coat tails of his fellow teammates.

A five-year member of the varsity squad at Cohasset High School, and a South Shore League All-Star. Fiore had a monster '91-92 season. He compiled an overall 33-8 record and placing second in the state tournament and sixth in the New England Wrestling Championships in Glastonbury Connecticut.

Fiore beat previously undefeated Bill Corr of Westford Academy before coming up short against two-time state champion Rich Hogan of Foxboro in the finals.

More important than Fiore's accomplishments, though, is his unbridled determination to improve.

The Natural Honor Society member practices with the team for 2—1/2 hours daily. After a quick bite to eat at home, Fiore heads for the gym for another 1—1/2 hours of training. He spends the time lifting and working out on the Stairmaster to increase his endurance.

"It's easily the most physically demanding sport I've ever competed in," said Fiore.

He knows, however, that the extra work is absolutely essential to rise to the top of the pile of quality wrestlers throughout the step. As wrestling has gained popularity along the South Shore and in the state alike, Fiore is well aware that success depends on more than the regularly scheduled practice — or even wrestling during just the winter months.

Fiore is, and always has been, a firm believer in the benefits of off-season

School, recreation, youth all part of sports in '92

Ray Jones won the triple jump at the Class D State Class Meet and also copped a bronze. Jones was the Skippers' top male athlete in '92, competing in three sports.

permanent basis after a partial season in '91 and no team at all in '90. The Skippers finished with a respectable 4-6 record, losing to SSL Champion Hull in the Thanksgiving Day game, 26-0.

The row team braved the choppy seas off of Hull Gut on Feb. 22 to finish second in the 29 squad field on the 3.75 mile Mixed Team Division course.

CHS' 200-Meter Medley Relay Team broke its '91 record in winning the Pilgrim Conference Championship earlier this year. Dave Leahy, Chip Anderson, John Brister and Tropher Henderson lowered the previous mark of 1:55.84 to 1:52.72.

On the slopes, the ski team had its best season in nine years as the Skippers' boys team finished second behind Dover Sherborn in the Small Schools Division of the Mass Bay East Ski League and the girls nailed down the fifth position.

Recreational and youth leagues also had a successful year in everything from road racing to fishing.

The Pirates defeated the Dodgers in June to be crowned Cohasset Little League Champions. Both teams finished the season with 14 victories.

In soccer, the 16-and-under soccer team beat Marshfield to clinch the Coastal League Championships, while the Cohasset Swimming and Diving Team won the South Shore League trophy.

On the high seas, the Cohasset Yacht Club won the Finley Cup at the South Shore Championships. Foye Menis won the Wakemen Trophy and Matt Larson took home the 'A' Fleet Championship for the second consecutive year at the Mass Institute of Technology Sailing Symposium in August.

Merrick Jones captured the wind-swept Cohasset Road Race-by-the-Sea. The 26-year-old covered the scenic 10-Kilometer course in 31:48. The 16th running of the event continued to be one of the most popular on South Shore as nearly 800 runners answered the starting gun. Matt Collins and Joanne Connor were the town's top male and female finishers.

Bernard Hamill and Peter Minnar were both reward for reeling in stubborn Bluefish. Hamill was awarded a world record in May by the International Game Fish Association for a flyrod catch in August of 1991. The fish was weighed in at 15-pounds, four-ounces.

Minnar won a trophy at the Boston Sportmen's Show on March 8, for catching a 17-pound, one-ouncer during the previous summer.

May 1993 bring much of the same success for the athletes who made '92 one of the most diverse ever in Cohasset sports.

Happy New Year.

Nate Fiore sets his sights on an elite season training.

"The most dedicated wrestlers are the ones that wrestle in the off-season and do the extra work," he said. You can't get by wrestling just during the season if you want to be the the best."

"If people can do a lot of wrestling in the off-season," Fiore continued said, "they'll do well during the season. I've developed consistently because I've wrestled in camps. I think there's going to be a big improvement this year."

The extra preparation has not only made Fiore more confident that he is physically prepared when he gets on the mat for a match, but he is also mentally ready as well. He likes to think he has put more work in than his opponent.

"I think it's important to get a mental edge over your opponent to make him feel like he's going to lose before you wrestle," Fiore said.

Fiore can sense when he has the mental edge over an opponent, but admits it's tough to explain how. Sometimes it is in the way his opponent shakes his hand before a match, his walk or the way he carries himself in the minutes leading up to the grappling session.

"I go out on the mat believing I can win," Fiore said. "When an opponent realizes you have the confidence, he can lose his."

Both Fiore and the Skippers' team have oozed confidence this season. Cohasset recently won its first-ever wrestling tournament, capturing the competition the squad hosted.

To no one's surprise, Fiore raised his record to 4-0 by taking the 135-pound weight division.

He sees a the interest in the sport at CHS taking hold as 26 wrestlers are on the roster. Fiore says they're not just going through the motions either.

"It's very difficult to be on the team if you're not going to take it seriously," he said. "And that's mostly pushed by the wrestlers. They don't like to see people on the team who aren't taking it seriously."

He wants to move up a notch and win the top spot in the state championships and continue wrestling next winter at either Cornell, Harvard or Princeton.

With a schedule of upper-level classes, Fiore spends his time wisely, juggling his studies with wrestling. He does homework for an hour before practice and takes advantage of study periods during the school day to get as much done as possible.

"It makes me use my time efficiently," said Fiore, the eighth-ranked student in the senior class.

With the stringent habits Fiore has set for himself, his Ivy College scholastic and wrestling career should be equally as bright as it has been at C.H.S.

Cohasset takes a look back at 1992

Oct. 15, 1992

Four tunnel routes through downtown Hingham are likely to be among the options reviewed by the next environmental impact statement/report on the Old Colony Railroad. Tonight, at Cohasset town hall, citizens will have the opportunity to tell MBTA officials what they think of the alternatives.

E911 works in conjunction with the telephone system, so assessors will clarify addresses so there's a number for every 40 feet on a street.

Oct. 22, 1992

Town hall employees threaten a class-action suit against the town after being exposed to lead dust that seeped into the building when painters were sanding the exterior.

Selectmen approve a liquor license for the site vacated by Roberts Food Mart which burned in a fire in April.

Selectmen appoint George L. Marlette III, chairman of the registrars of voters, as interim town moderator.

About 50 citizens took part in the house-raising dedication at the Bates House which will be turned into two units of affordable housing by volunteers working with South Shore Habitat for Humanity.

Oct. 29, 1992

Town Clerk Marion Douglas predicts upwards of 80 percent of the town's registered voters will cast ballots in Tuesday's election. The polls are open at the Second Congregational Church because of the lead dust hazard at town hall.

Selectmen authorize spending $40 an hour for clean up the lead dust at Cohasset town hall.

Nov. 5, 1992

U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds was re-elected defeating Dan Daly of Hingham and independent candidate John Bryan. Brian McDonald defeats Rep. Robert Hedlund for the Norfolk/Plymouth senate seat.

John Carr, coordinator of the proposed project, appears before the school board to give his best pitch for a lighted field to be built on Deer Hill School land.

The planned memorial will extend the present honor roll at Veteran's Memorial Park in the harbor to include Cohasset participants in all the nation's wars from the Revolution to Desert Storm.

Nov. 12, 1992

Newly appointed interim town moderator George L. Marlette will preside over the special town meeting business which includes 19 warrant articles.

Harbor committee members propose enacting a 15-day grace period for late payment of mooring fees coupled with a $100 fine which Selectman Rocco F. Laugelle said is much too high.

New domestic abuse legislation signed into law by Gov. William Weld Oct. 7 sets a bail precedent which could help curb the violence so often associated with restraining order violations.

Selectmen exercised the town's option by giving the go ahead to local Sunday package store openings from Nov. 22 through New Year's as allowed under state law.

Nov. 19, 1992

The first legislative assault on Prop. 2-1/2 could be to exempt the overlay account from the tax cap, a move which would cost an owner of a $300,000 home in Cohasset about $66 a year.

Voters approved 14 of 19 articles ranging from a tough new harbor by-law to a pay raise for the town treasurer/collector.

New state-of-the art iridescent signs made to fall down when hit will be placed in Cohasset Village crosswalks, thanks to part of the $1,500 appropriated at special town meeting.

Nov. 26, 1992

Cohasset police believe a former Music Circus official's pending arraignment on sexual assault charges may prompt more victims to come forward. Edward R. Kasses, who took a leave of absence two days after the alleged assault and later resigned, is charged with indecent assault and battery of a person 14 years or older.

Dec. 3, 1992

After four days of relentless press coverage of the melee between Hingham and Cohasset youths, a more violent picture of the Friday night stabbings in Hingham emerged Tuesday. The incident occurred after a teenage party got out of hand.

Fire Chief John Nadeau asks selectmen to authorize an expenditure for vaccinations for Hepatitis B for Cohasset firefighters.

Dec. 10, 1992

Alleged Cohasset rapist Robert A. Jason, 31, was arrested Dec. 1 in Florida, police said. Jason allegedly raped a Cohasset woman July 1 and then struck a Cohasset police officer who responded to a call for help.

Cohasset selectmen said they support the restoration of the Greenbush Line of the Old Colony Railroad but will not follow up that support with a letter to the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs.

Dec. 17, 1992

Downed telephone poles, flooded basements, some beach erosion, and road damage and over-zealous spectators were the calling cards left in Cohasset by the fiercest storm to hit the rest of the state since 1978. Executive Secretary Gregory Doyon estimates the storm cost the town including overtime and cleanup about $50,000.

Dec. 24, 1992

The school board addressed the question of students who have AIDS or who test positive for the Human Immunodeficiency Virus (HIV) in a "School Attendance Policy" draft.

Selectmen set Jan. 5 as the date to interview six finalists for the position of Cohasset Police Chief.

Cohasset's resident talk-show host Wigmore Pierson chats with state Rep. Janet W. O'Brien (D-Hanover) during the fifth anniversary celebration of his award-winning show, 'Pierson to Person'.

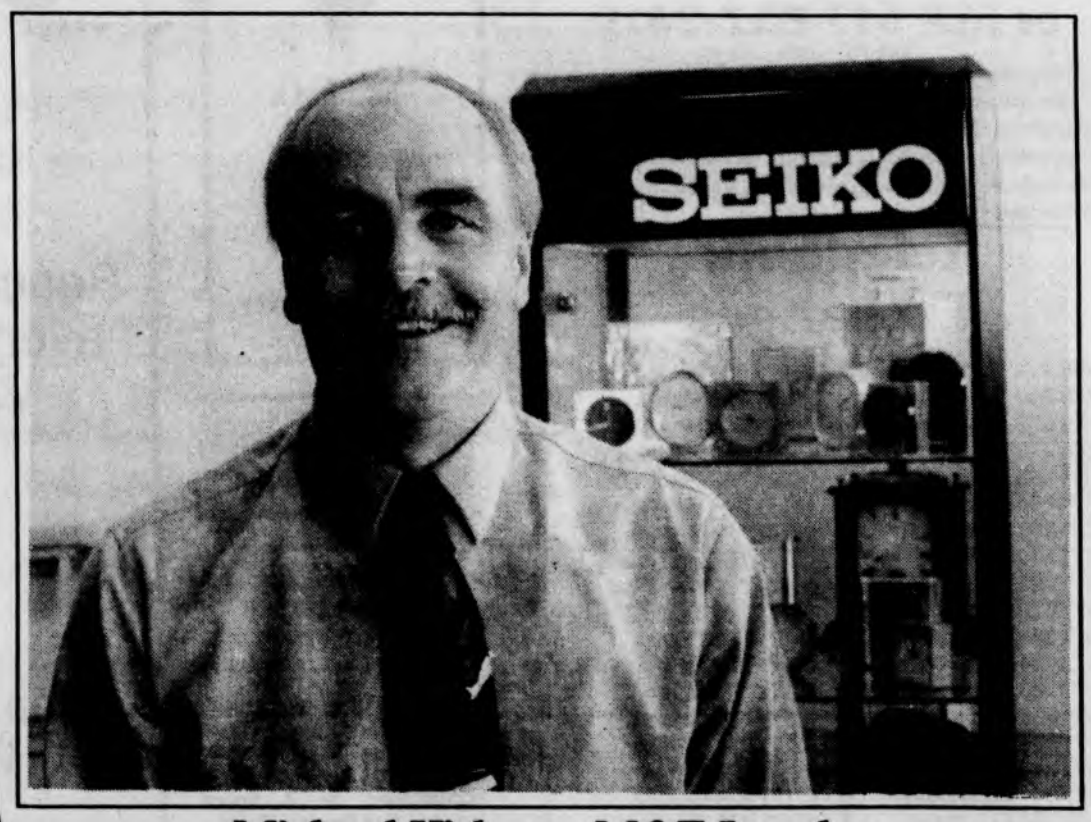
Marshfield, MA



Dear Advertising Directors:

We are now entering our 13th year in business on the South Shore. We have tried all of the other newspapers (large and small) that cover our area and the one that gives us the best return for our advertising dollar is Mariner Newspapers.

I would like to give credit to the Art Department for their many creative ideas that help make our ads stand out, which attracts attention of both new and old customers.

Sincerely,

Michael Kirby

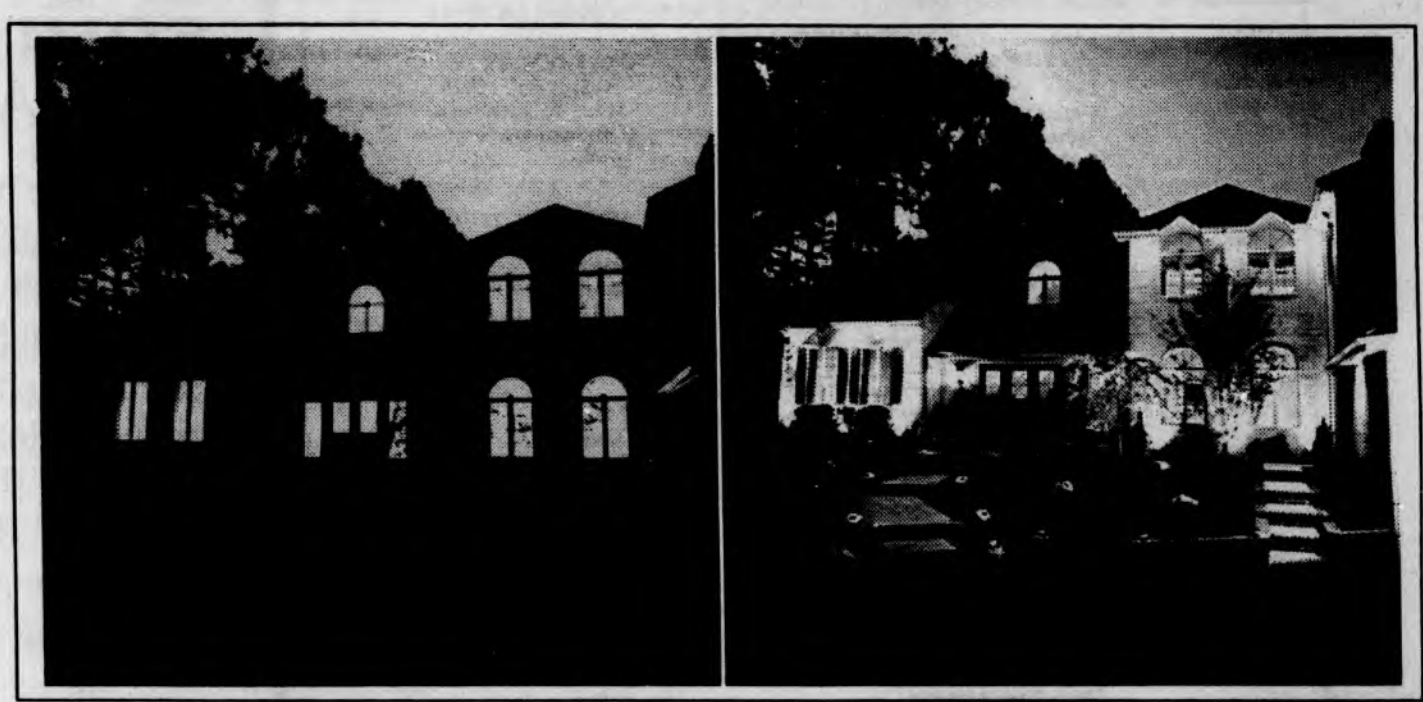
REAL ESTATE

Lighting is key ingredient in decorating scheme

When it comes to redecorating, homeowners sometimes spend hours picking out carpeting, draperies, wallpaper and furniture, yet give very little thought to lighting.

But lighting is the crowning touch to any decorating scheme, enhancing fine architectural features, and bringing all the colors, fabrics, furnishings and textures to life.



A creative and well thought-out lighting scheme is the essential key to successful decorating anywhere in the home.

Lighting adds beauty and drama to a room. It can make a small room look open and airy, and a large room appear cozy and inviting. Lighting can create a stimulating atmosphere for a night of entertaining, or a quiet feeling of relaxation after a long, tiring day.

How creatively you use lighting in your home is limited only by your imagination and your budget.

You can give a room the illusion of greater depth or scale by adding plenty of ambient lighting, according to experts from the American Lighting Association (ALA). Ambient lighting, also known as fill light, creates an illusion of spaciousness that visually expands the boundaries of a room.

For example, if you want to make your living room appear larger, use wall sconces, free-standing torchiers or inverted pendants to bounce indirect light off the ceiling. This approach will "open up" your space and produce a warm, inviting atmosphere that will draw family and friends to the room.

As the striking difference between these photos illustrates, landscape lighting can enhance the beauty of a home and make it safer and more secure. A dark, uninviting exterior (left) can be transformed dramatically through the installation of well-planned lighting (right). Low path lights guide people up the walkway to the front porch. Three recessed downlights installed under the porch roof illuminate both the porch and the steps leading up to it. Two wall lanterns on each side of the front door give visitors a warm welcome on their arrival. Under the remaining eaves, recessed downlights graze the facade, accentuating its fine architectural features. Well lights, installed in the ground in front of the house, cast interesting shadows on the walls. In addition, spotlights aimed upward highlight each tree.

Besides producing these space-altering illusions, lighting can also create a variety of moods within a room.

In the dining room, for example, a chandelier helps create a comfortable atmosphere for dining. When this decorative fixture is dimmed, it produces a soft glow similar to candlelight.

Avoid glare by balancing the illumination from the chandelier with wall sconces or freestanding torchiers. This will provide needed ambient light and create the illusion that all the illumination is coming from the chandelier, according to ALA experts.

Another idea is to install recessed adjustable accent fixtures on each side of the chandelier. This way, you can highlight the table, while leaving the chandelier at a soft glow. For best results, aim these fixtures toward opposite sides of the table.

One of the easiest methods for varying the mood of a room is by using lighting controls. With these devices, you can easily change the lighting to fit your fancy at the moment.

These are just a few of the ways you can decorate your home with lighting. For more ideas, talk with the lighting experts at your local American Lighting Association showroom. To find the ALA showroom nearest you, call 1-800-BRIGHT IDEAS.
